Browns Tailspin Ended; Lead Retained

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

There was a suspicion to-day that the St. Louis tailspin was over as the Brownies went into the final test of their last long road trip with a four-game lead.

Adding to Luke Sewell's peace of mind was the second place situation which had seen Boston, New York and Detrtoit in the runner-up spot in the last three days. The three contenders were having a tough time trying to decide which one was going to bear down on the Brownies, who have been staggering along the road losing 12 to 21 away games since August 6.

Detroit appeared to present the main problem at the moment as Steve O'Neill had his Tigers in second place, two points ahead of Boston, and was scheduled to take on St. Louis in a "crooshul" series in the Brownies' back yard this week-end.

Chicago Blanked

The Tigers took over the runner-up spot yesterday as Paul (Dizzy) Trout shut out Chicago, 7-0, while Boston and New York split. Trout ran his string of scoreless innings to 19, hung up his 22nd win and eight straight and hogged the headlines by smashing his fifth homer with one on and adding a double and single to drive in five runs

Boston and New York each popped up with a rookie find who proved he could win at least once in the big show. The Red Sox showed Clem Dreisewerd from Sacramento, who stopped the Yanks with six hits to cop 8-1, and Joe McCarthy countered with Floyd Bevens from Newark who turned the tables 11-2 for an even break.

Bobo Newsom and Jesse Flores hurled Philadelphia to a double-barreled triumph over Washington 3-1 and 11-4, recapturing fifth place and making it eight out of 10 in the win column for the A's.

St. Louis rolled up an 8-3 night-game margin on Cleveland with Denny Galehouse recovering from his recent losing troubles to grab sixth over Specs Klieman.

The Cardinals continued to sun for the Cubs' 190 record by notching victory No. 91 at Cincinnati's expense, 3-0. Ted Wilks upped his win record to 14-1, boasting the longest streak of the Major League season at 11.

Chicago thumped Pittsburgh 15-4 behind Paul Derringer but the Pirates bounced back for a 5-4 verdict to square matters on Preacher Roe's six-hitter.

Dixie Walker took over the National League batting lead with three hits as Brooklyn shaded the Phillies, 2-1, and Mel Ott and Ernie Lombardi socked homers to help New York' Bill Voiselle grab at 4-2 victory over the Phils.

Moss Clouts 24th Homer

(By The Associated Press).

Baltimore's Howie Moss and Buffalo's Eddie Kobesky are putting on a ding-dong battle for the International League slugging crown and for possible most-valuable-player honors.

Moss, leading in runs-batted-in, did his stuff under the lights last night before 27,000 fans as the Orioles pasted Jersey City, 15-5. He clouted a two-run home run in the eighth to bring his total to 24 Frank Skaff also poled a four-master in the eighth as Stan West coasted to his 13th victory.

Kobesky hung on to his league leadership in circuit clouts by unloading No. 25 while Bisons were losing to Toronto, 8-2.

The game was tied at 2-2 until the ninth when the Leafs let loose a six-run rally to take the decision and give All Jarlett his 18th triumph. Earl Whitehill, who relieved starter Emory Hresko, was the loser.

Newark was pushed farther away from the top as Syracuse went 11 innings to win 5-3. Syracuse two in the top of the 11th, the Chiefs tumbled reliefer Ed Marleau to defeat after he had won eight straight in the role of fireman. Bob Malloy pitched the route for the Chiefs for his 14th victory

Rochester swept two from Montreal, 7-4 and 6-3, with Glen Gardner notching his 12th triumph in the seven-inning opener and Bill Emmerich racking up No 10 in the nightcap. Leroy Nichols struck an inside-the-park homer in the finale for the Wings

Cleveland, which has a working agreement with the league leading Orioles, announced the purchase of Blas Monaco, second baseman and Outfielder Stan Benjamin from Baltimore for 1945 delivery.

TORONTO, Aug. 30. — (CP).— One thing everyone seems well agreed upon in the current N.H.L. president-candidate guessing match, and that is that the amount of freedom, or lack of it, given the successful job-seeker will play an important part in the decision.

It has always been bruited about darkly that the man at the helm had to be too much of a figure-head for the Board of Governors and other with their fingers in the league pie. That also has been given as one reason why the loquacious Red Dutton chafed under the collar and finally left the ship—because he wasn't given a free hand in the job.

If the league heads really want to do the best possible thing for the future of hockey, they would be well advised to select someone with power to wield the big stick—like Judge Landis does in baseball and let him have some scope for free expression. Otherwise, there is apt to be too little of a constructive nature coming from the president's office to satisfy any ambitious hockey-lover who succeeds to the mantle of Frank Calder temporarily borrowed by Dutton.

Underdogs Befriended.

A word of sympathy for the sometimes-maligned baseline coaches of baseball come from Hal Cole of the Guelph Mercury. Pointing out that quite often dodgeresque base plays are the fault of the runner, and not the coach, Cole adds darkly that "after all a baseline coach isn't allowed to lay hands on the runners."

It's probably lucky at that, or there might be mayhem right on the field.

Incidentally.

Now that the service sport picture is cleared up, plans are fast getting under way for a service hockey league on the west coast. Only proviso laid down by the army sports officer was that a "soldier first" policy must be followed. Only active service men and other G.S. soldiers medically unfit for overseas duty will be allowed to play. That will prevent a recurrence of the nasty little business that upset the lacrosse applecart out west this summer.

APTLY NAMED

The word grenade was taken from the French word for pomegranate becaus of a resemblance in shape to the fruit.

Two Wrestlers Mix It Outside Ring

Mathematics played a considerable part in the main bout of Frank Tunney's weekly wrestling rodeo at the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night when according to Referee Bert Maxwell, Earl Mose McCready and hustling Dr. Len Hall wound up with 1½ falls each and the bout was declared a draw. The mixup came when Doc Hall had taken the first fall and then in the second round the two gladiators had rolled out of the ring and got so busy manhandling each other on the arena floor that both were counted out by Referee Maxwell.

Hall was exultant. He claimed that the decision gave him two straight falls and won him the bout. Referee Maxwell, however, had it all figured out quite differently. Counting the two out, he ruled gave each of them half a fall and therefore it would be necessary to continue the battle. Hall retired to the dressing room in a highly indignant mood and when the rest period was up he refused to return to the ring, claiming that he was the winner of the bout.

Referee Maxwell issued an ultimatum that unless the angry Hall made an appearance within one minute he would award the match to McCready. The Doctor decided that the official would do exactly what he said and accordingly he got back into the ring within the time limit and the battle was resumed.

McCready evened up the match in short order by an effective application of his rocking chair cradle hold and that was that. Maxwell declared the result a draw, which did not make much of a hit with either battler.

A Tough Battle

Outside of the confusion over the half falls it was a grim, hard-fought and always exciting battle between two big grapplers who know all the answers in the wrestling game. This Hall is a tough hombre. He is fast for his poundage and is not a bit particular about what kind of tactics he uses and before long he had the even-tempered McCready fighting him at his own game. Probably the Moose got tired of being pushed around by a series of ring villains and decided it was time he handed out some of their own medicine. At all events he was in there swinging with wallops to the jaw, rabbit punches and elbow smashes and the result was plenty of excitement. The fans were pulling for the Aurora farmer and they seemed delighted to see him cut loose.

Hall took the first fall after 15 minutes tough battling by softening McCready up with a few punches and then applying the pile-driver to take the fall.

The second round was even tougher with both battlers turning it on and the climax came when the pair rolled out of the ring together and then resumed their warfare on the floor of the arena. Lusty punches were exchanged and every time one of the battlers tried to climb into the ring, he was pulled out again. Meanwhile Referee Maxwell was counting them out. Hall finally did succeed in getting through the ropes but he was too late. He made a violent protest but it did not prove very successful.

When the battle resumed after the rest Hall tried to carry the fight to his big opponent and he had McCready in trouble several times. Finally, however, the Moose caught him flat-footed with a flying tackle. He bowled him over in the same way twice more, then slammed him down a couple of times hard enough to make the ropes quiver and finally trussed him up with those powerful McCready legs and trundled him around the ring with the rocking chair hold before pinning him for the fall.

Sexton Beats Dunlop

Frank Sexton, popular Ohio wrestler, took the measure of Bunny Dunlop in a hard-fought semi-final. In accomplishing the feat Sexton did not have to use his favorite and spectacular giant swing. On the contrary he won the argument by the simple tactics of tossing the Toronto strong man out through the ropes and booting him back again every time he tried to get back into the ring. After the fourth tossout Dunlop was through and he was counted out before he could get through the ropes to resume the argument.

Bunny, however, did not go down without a fight. Previous to his repeated dives on to the floor of the arena he had been treating the popular choice about as roughly as the liberated French people are handling Nazi sympathizers. Dunlop kicked and gouged, brought punches up from the floor, apparently used a secret weapon on Sexton's eyes and in general carried on a one-man riot. The crowd were demanding his head about this stage and Referee Maxwell got a panning because the fans figured he was not checking up on the bad man from Toronto.

In the preliminary the fast-moving Johnny Gyroffy had too much moxy for Jimmy Burke, former member of the Canadian Navy who substituted for Tom Collins, out of action because of boils. Burke tried hard to take the decision over the ex-airman but Gyroff's speed and experience were too much for the youngster who recently wore the blue of the Navy. Gyroffy finally won the bout after 15 minutes with a crotch hold and body slam.

Referee Bert Maxwell weathered the storm in the three bouts while as usual Fred Scates introduced the battlers and took care of the timing chore.

Browns Tailspin Ended; Lead Retained

By JACK HAND,

There was a suspicion to-day that the St. Louis tailspin was over as the Brownies went into the final test of their last long road trip with a four-game lead.

Memorial Service Honors Cpl. M. Perrin

CAVAN, Aug. 30 — (ENS) — A memorial service was held Sunday evening at 7.30 in Cavan United church for Cpl. Melville Perrin, only son of Mrs. Joseph Perrin and the late Mr. Perrin, of Cavan, who was killed in action in Italy, May 24. He was thirty years of age.

Other members of the family are two sisters, Mrs. Ross Brown and Miss Alma Perrin, both of Toronto. Cpl. Perrin enlisted in November, 1942, with the 48th Highlanders and went overseas in February, 1943.

Rev. W. E. Honey, pastor of the church, had charge of the service, assisted by Rev. A. L. Sisco, pastor of Millbrook United church. Mr. Honey took his text from John 15:13, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." He gave a short sketch of the young man's life, from his life on the farm in Cavan township until his enlistment into the army. He was sent to Sicily, and later to Italy where he met his death. He spoke of a letter which had been received from a comrade in which he said, "He was a good soldier."

Miss Margaret Lang of Toronto, a cousin of Cpl. Perrin's, sang two selections, "Face to Face" and "When Those Golden Bells Are Ringing," accompanied by Miss E. Hetherington of Millbrook. The pulpit was decorated with a number of baskets of gladioli, which were sent by friends.

Rev. Mr. Sisco based his remarks on the 46th Psalm. He spoke of a new note of victory which has been sounded, thus lightening our hearts, but he said the true victory is that which God gives us over sorrow and trouble. The choir sang hymns which had been specially selected, "Unto the hills do I lift up my eyes," "He Leadeth Me" and "Sun of my Soul." Mrs. A. Kennedy presided at the organ.

TWO IN FAMILY SERVING—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Glen, Lansdowne street west, have two in the family serving. Gnr. Ray Collins (Left), a son-in-law, has been overseas ten months with the R.C.A., and his wife is living with her parents. Harris Glen (Right), a son, has been a year in the R.C.N.V.R., and has just returned to his post after spending a furlough at home.

Main Street Topics

FALSE ALARM

A false alarm turned in at 8:30 this morning brought a fire engine racing to the corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets, but outside of this, the firemen at the local station had a quiet night.

TAX DEADLINE

Thursday midnight is the long-dreaded "last minute" for people who have not paid their income tax yet. If the payment is to be considered on time, the money owed the government must be in the mails and postmarked not later than midnight.

EXPECT SERVICE SOON

Regular civilian mail service to parts of France occupied by Allied troops is expected soon, Postmaster Charles Lacheur of the Peterborough Post Office said today. When Italy was invaded, regular mail service began soon after, and so it can be expected in France, too, he declared.

ONLY ONE CUP

Although individual rations of the tea and coffee were increased early this year, restaurants are still permitted to serve only one cup of tea or one cup of coffee at each serving, the local ration board pointed out today. Several of the city's restaurants reported many people ask for a second cup, and these it was indicated, were under the impression it was possible for restaurants to serve more than one now.

WOUNDS DESCRIBED

Pte. Lawrence Irvin Patterson, previously reported slightly wounded received a bullet wound in the right hand and a splinter in the back of the left knee, a further report reveals. His wife, Mrs. Evelyn Patterson, lives at 267 Bethune street.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE.

Arrangements for the big Labor Day celebration in Peterborough are practically complete. Various service clubs are co-operating by operating booths and the city generally is getting behind the three auxiliaries in putting the affair over the top.

MEET IN LONDON.

PO. "Bun" Burrows, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Burrows, Park Hill road, wrote home that he had met FO. William Hamilton, D.F.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, Homewood avenue, in the Strand. PO. Burrows was on a seven-day leave and he and FO. Hamilton were so glad to see one another that they sat up most of the night talking.

LINDSAY BOY WOUNDED

Pte. Donald Phillips, son of Mrs. Lena Phillips of Lindsay, has been reported wounded in France, according to information reaching his family. He enlisted in 1943, and went overseas in May of this year. A brother, William, is still in hospital from wounds received while fighting in France two days after D-Day.

Memorial Centre Site To Be Discussed

In the planning of a Memorial and Community Centre for Peterborough a meeting is being held in the committee room at the city hall Friday at 1.30 p.m. "to consider the recommendation from the site committee, and to try to arrive at some definite decision."

Chairmen of the different committees promoting the Community Centre are being asked to attend with representatives of other organizations whose assistance is desired for the success of the project.

Those who have been invited include Mayor Hamilton, J. A. Jebson, Alderman H. I. Bradburn, John E. Keyes, Frank Buckland, Ed. Riley, Ian F. McRae, W. R. L. Blackwell, William S. Johnson, Alderman James Dutton, V. S. Selkirk, George A. Macdonald, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Paige Rowell.

The "foundation committee" has been progressing through preliminary stages, including finance, and the committee in its preparations for the rounding out of the project is now about to approach the question of location of the Memorial and Community Centre.

Incidentally, members of the general committee feel than an impression has been created from a report of the recent meeting at C.G.E.-Genelco cafeteria that manufacturers of the committee are contributing the amount of the entire cost of the building. The fact is that generous subscriptions are being pledged by manufacturing industries in the city in their desire to promote the Memorial and Community Centre, but general financial support from the citizens will have to be forthcoming to ensure the sufficiency of the funding before that phase of the background is secure.

ELEVATION AFFECTED

The elevation at which a gun will hit a target is affected by temperature, height of barometer, degree of wear of the gun and other factors.

Holding the 70th annual session of the Supreme Grand Lodge, 200 delegates from Newfoundland on the east to Manitoba on the west were ready today to elect officers.

Mayor Pleased With Check-up At Local Market

Mayor Hamilton's confidence in Peterborough's farm produce market revived last Saturday with the spectacle of abundance of fruit and vegetables and the crowd of hundreds of people selling and buying.

Mentioning his observation to the council Monday night His Worship also said that he had called one day last week at the provincial Department of Agriculture. Colonel Kennedy was not in his office at the time, but from several members of the staff, Mayor Hamilton learned that the general experience today is tha farm markets "are going ahead" and are serving a real purpose for the benefit both of producers and consumers.

"I went over to our market Saturday to see for myself what it looked like, and it was packed with people, and our farmers and market gardeners had made a fine show of their fruit and vegetables. I was told that this volume of business would continue until Christmas. I still think that we have a chance to make an excellent market in Peterborough.

The Ontario Department is willing to assist in the city's proposed enquiry into local market affairs, and Mayor Hamilton was also advised to call upon Dr. W. C. Hopper. Ottawa, agricultural economist with the Federal Department of Agriculture, and an expert on markets.

A resolution by Aldermen Dutton and Sullivan will invite Dr. Hopper to come to Peterborough in advance of the meeting the council is planning with district producers and local consumers.

Mayor Hamilton said Dr. Hopper would make a survey of the market area, enquire into what products should be especially developed for this market, consider the important detail of site and generally give the city and county the benefit of his experience. The meeting which is being planned as a market conference will be held in September.

FIFTH BROTHER OVERSEAS—Sgt. Air Gunner M. Arnold Graham, son of Mrs. Clara Graham, Lakefield, is one of five brothers serving overseas. A sixth is with the Army in Western Canada.

Thoughtlessness May Rob Boy Of Overseas Christmas Box

A man walked brusquely, perhaps only thoughtlessly, by the little group of women who were selling this morning tickets on a draw to be held at Riverside Park, Monday, incident of the big holiday program of events, the proceeds of which are to be devoted entirely to the sending of Christmas "cheer" to the Peterborough boys and girls on active service.

Had he thought for a passing moment of the purpose of this sale of tickets, "another sale of tickets" as the calloused main streeter probably is saying, he couldn't possibly have failed to appreciate what these women represented in their appeal to him.

Last fall the women's auxiliaries of the three branches of the armed service acquired their Christmas funds separately, and in the end applied to the city council for supplementary grants which were then necessary, in order that all the men should be remembered.

This year these women's auxilaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, have joined effort to obtain sufficient funds without recourse to municipal aid.

Helping Others

These women have their headquarters in front of the store of Grafton and Company, and as mentioned above one man breezed by them this morning as if he considered them something of a nuisance to be brushed off. They represent the mothers of all Peterborough boys who have gone overseas, and every ticket you buy from them this week and at Riverside Park on Labor Day is going into the most commendable "pool" this community could imagine.—for the buying of gifts next Christmas, tokens of remembrance to Peterborough men who have been fighting through the war with the infantry the navy and the R.C.A.F. Some of them have been away from Peterborough since the springtime of 1940.

They are so far away from their Peterborough homes that most of their families and friends have little conception of what they have been accomplishing for us.

The latest victory of the infantry, units of the Canadian Army, was the Battle of the Seine, the importance of which, according to the London (Eng.) News Chronicle has been deplorably neglected in the press reports of the Nazi and world shaking events of the last ten days.

And the London Observer, owned by Lord Astor, makes it clear, says A. C. Cummings of the London Bureau of the Ottawa Citizens, "that if the Battle of the Seine had not been won by British and Canadian troops, the American breakthrough into central France would never have been possible."

Continues the Observer: "The victory of the Seine is one of the decisive battles of history. It will have cut short Hitler's 1000 years' Reich by 999 years."

Support Effort

Peterborough soldiers have been in some of the toughest fighting since "D" Day.

Well, that's what this "ticket selling" is about; and that is what these women in front of Grafton's represent.

Don't wait for them to ask you to buy a ticket for such a purpose as this....It is so pitifully little that you can do as remembrance at Christmas time for those Peterborough boys of the Army, the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Navy....Don't pass them by....

No Ducking This Time, Peterboro Fishermen Land 15-Pound Lunge Without Any Help

Pusing a jointed pikie, Wr. Cliff McKee and Stan McLeod managed to land a 15-pound muskie after a 15 minute battle on Chemong lake Tuesday afternoon, while fishing from an outboard motor-boat about a mile from George Wild's Boat Livery, and near Bass Rock. The fishing excursion also paid off with a 3-pound bass, described by the fishing party as a "nice" fish.

Dr. McKee, whose name was in the columns not long ago when a muskie battle landed him and a companion in the water, requiring assistance of some ladies to rescue them, let it be known this time that no help from females was needed and that a plunge into the lake from the boat in order to accomplish the haul was not on the schedule either!

"In other words," he declared quite loudly, "I did it all by myself!"

However, the fishermen admit they had to beach their craft and Dr. McKee had to leap out of the boat into shallow water to make certain of snagging the lunge. However, according to the dentist, that's beside the point!

Personal Gifts Speed Cheer To Robot Victims

A real friend is one who stands by in time of need and distress, and that in no sense of the word can be considered out of the way when each are acquainted with the other on a somewhat if only slight personal basis, but when people do acts of friendliness for others in a personal way whom they have never seen, the appellation then takes on a much deeper and wider significance, which proclaims the giver as a real friend of a suffering humanity in general.

The terrific amount of damage caused by the robot bombs, in addition tothe huge loss of life and personal injury to many thousands of people in the southern area of Britain, proclaims to those who have a real sympathy for those in distress, that they are really in such need of friends who can assist in a personal way.

On July 10, this column on behalf of these sufferers through the local and district fund operating for that purpose, made a special appeal for an increased personal interest that could find expression in a practical way, by the giving of their means in a personal way to at least give them a chance to fight back to some semblance of their former state of living.

Since that time, nine different lists of purely personal gifts have appeared, and to-day a 10th of such is recorded which is headed by "A Friend" who makes a splendid offering of $50.00, which bespeaks a real friendliness for those whom the misfortunes of war has thus afflicted, which is perhaps of further emphasis, when it is known that this same friend has contributed in a substantial manner on a number of previous occasions.

This too may be said of others whose contribution is listed to-ady, one of whom has been represented in a number of the aforementioned tn lists of personal gifts, and Mrs. Wm. Shannon will be recognized as one whose regular gift on a monthly basis has appeared in this column for almost the whole of the time that the fund has been in operation.

In Memory Of An Only Son

Doing good for others in the name of those who have passed on marks one of the finest memorials that can be possibly be found, and when such happens to be associated with a life that fulifilled its earthly mission by laying down his life that righteousness might still prevail, a memorial of this type must surely rise to the throne of grace in thankfulness both for the life thus spent, and the good it inspired in the days that followed.

To-day a gift of $10.00 is recorded "In memory of an only son," calling to mind the anniversary of the passing on August 25 of Albert Leether in the service of his country, in, itself the utmost that any one individual could sacrifice, and his glorious memory is thus perpetuated in continuing to do a good work for the sake of the same cause.

AS THE MOOD STRIKES

Most Far Eastern artists paint not what they see, but what they feel.

PROMOTED OVERSEAS—Robert Willshaw of the S.D. and G. Highlanders, has been promoted from corporal to sergeant, while fighting in France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Willshaw, 721 Elcome Crescent. Formerly employed at the Peterborough Canoe Company, Sgt. Willshaw is a sniper. He enlisted at 18.

Two Asphodel Farmers Pay Traffic Fines

As the result of a collision at a road intersection in which one car was damaged to the extent of $75 and the other suffered $25 worth on injury, two Asphodel farmers, E. Roy Scott and Francis Towns, entered pleas of guilty to careless driving charges before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning and were fined $5 and $2.50 costs each.

The charges were laid by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock after he had investigated the accident.

A charge of drunken driving against Mrs. Mary McGee, 546 Downie Street, was adjourned for a week without plea at the request of the accused.

Adjournments were also made for the same time in a careless driving charge against E. G. Godfrey and a liquor charge against Arthur Lee. W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for the accused in both those cases.

Gaspe Man Pleads Guilty To Theft

Albert Marcoux, 28, Gaspe, Que., pleaded guilty in police court this morning to two charges of car theft and a third count of stealing a quantity of clothing from Isadore Black.

Marcoux, who was defended by F. C. Richardson of Cobourg, assisted by Marin Dion, a Montreal lawyer, elected summary trial and entered a guilty plea to charges of stealing automobiles in Peterborough belonging to W. F. Leonard, Noranda, and Frederick Vivash, and also to the Black charge.

In the automobile theft cases Provincial Constable Ernest Soubliere of Belleville supplied evidence. The officer said that following the arrest of the accused near Bewdley, Marcoux had admitted that he along with several other persons had stolen the Leonard car in Peterborough on August 16. He had also admitted that he had participated in the theft of Vivash's automobile which had been driven down near Bewdley and then had been partially dismantled.

In the clothing theft charge Isadore Black testified that he had left a quantity of clothing in his car outside his home, and next morning found that it had been stolen.

In Army Three Years.

Mr .Richardson urged leniency for Marcoux who had been in the army for three years, he said. He had been driven out of Montreal by the housing situation and had to get accommodation for his wife and family in Gaspe. He himself had gone to North Bay in search of work.

Magistrate Langley announced that he would reserve sentence in the three cases until Friday, and that on that date there would probably be another remand.

Leonard Gingras, Montreal, and George Houde, St. Prosper, Que., were charged jointly with the same offences as Marcoux, and Mr. Richardson objected, declaring that Houde intended to plead guilty and Gingras not guilty, and the joint charge was not fair to the latter.

Crown Attorney McElderry consented to have separate charges made against the two men and the case proceeded on that basis.

The services of Alex. Letellier was required as an interpreter as the prisoners said that they did not speak English fluently.

Nazi Retreat Recalls Plight Of 1918 France

Chateau-Thierry, the furthest point reached by the Germans in France in their offensive in May 1918, and which was held by Americans who were sent in to support hard pressed French troops, has been taken for the second time in 30 years by men from the United States. It is one of the names which has gone down in their history books and every child is aware of its significance.

For the second time in 30 years, the people of that district have been the centre of the tug-of-war on both sides and only with time will the extent of their suffering in this war be gauged. But incidents of life under German occupation around Chateau-Thierry in the last war will have a familiar ring, and once again the peasants of France face the discouraging task of hewing out a new life.

After the American success at Chateau-Thierry in 1918, a hospital was set up at Luzancy, a few miles distant, and to this hospital came the refugees of German occupation, and the staff amassed hundreds of pathetic stories which have been repeated all too frequently in the present struggle.

A small funeral cortege, flanked by children, shortly before the end of the war reminded one of the doctors of the day, a little girl was brought in for treatment. She screamed in terror and her mother explained that it was not the staff, but the uniforms which were making her cry.

The mother then told how she, her 7-year-old daughter and two other children had been German prisoners for two years. During the German retreat, they along with other French women were marched miles to keep French guns from the Germans. One of her children became ill and died in her arms. She was not allowed to stop and walked on for five hours carrying her dead. The little girl, when finally admitted to hospital, died shortly afterwards of tubercular meningitis.

Dies of Exposure

An old peasant couple had a home which was in the path of the advancing enemy in a little village between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry. The Germans took over the house and in a few days everyone in the village was lined up in the square. Thos who were fit, including this 70-year-old peasant were recruited for labor battalions and marched away. Families had no opportunity to say farewell.

His aged wife returned home, heart-broken and in a few days was forced to spend an entire night on her doorstep while the Huns caroused inside. She died within two days of exposure. Shortly before the Armistice was signed, her old husband, no longer fit for work, returned home and learned of his wife's death.

A "for sale "sign on a farm in this section of France is an unusual thing and caused considerable comment, on the part of this hospital staff after the Armistice. The woman who owned it had becoming a raving maniac when she learned her son, whom she had always believed to be a prisoner, had been killed. His chum, an old man at 28, who had been a German prisoner, came after his release to tell the story.

The two men had been on kitchen duty and were taking food into the trenches. A fog covered everything and by mistake they wandered into the German trenches. When they discovered their mistake, they attempted to get away, but were caught. They fought like tigers and when finally overpowered, the one boy was stabbed in the back. His last words were: "You cowards. You call this fighting?"

The young people who suffered so cruelly from the fortunes of war in 1914-18 have been called upon since 1940, to bear even heavier burdens. Will they have the courage to build a new world a second time?

Outpost Hospitals May Be Closed

TORONTO, Aug. 30—A Canadian Red Cross official announced yesterday the society's outpost hospitals in Haliburton, Bancroft, Emo, Rainy River and Beardmore, Ont., may be closed unless the need for nursing assistance is met immediately.

Stafford Roberts commissioner of Ontario Division of the Red Cross, said the situation is acute and "hospitals are filled with sick people in need of nursing care."

Mr. Roberts issued an appeal to graduate nurses willing to assist in the emergency.

AMBULANCE DRIVER—Pte. F. L. Graham of the R.C.A.S.C. is an ambulance driver serving in England, and his wife resides with her parents at 3 Grandview avenue. He enlisted in April, 1943, while in the employ of the C.G.E., and has a half-brother, Bert Johnson, in Italy. Two brothers-in-law, Pte. George Bowen, wounded, and Sgt. Herbert Bowen, are overseas.

Farmers Active In Cleaning Up Harvest Crops

The elements of possibility and surprise are passing out of the agricultural vista in Ontario as farmers push along with their harvesting and turn their hand to the back-log of plowing that has been held up by too long a period of dry weather.

Peterborough farmers have a fairly complete idea of the substance of the season and have only to coast along through the routine later stages. For instance, many farmers in Glengarry are cutting corn, and incidentally are finding the crop a disappointment. A similare note sounds from Dundas "Corn will not be as heavy as promised earlier in the season."

Most of the threshing is done in eastern Ontario. Renfrew comments that the harvest will be completed a month earlier than last year. Canning factories in Hastings county have began the corn pack.

Victoria county remarks: "It is surprising how rapidly the harvesting of grain has proceeded. Dry weather and cooperative labor and use of equipment have worked wonders."

Several showers of rain have been generally reported across the eastern section of the province during this last week, but the need of the long parched land has not yet been satisfied.

The chapter of information from western Ontario is similar in most respects to the neighboring east,—"all the grain is now cut and 90 per cent. harvested", "pastures are suffering heavily from the drouth", and in Wellington "it is practically impossible to plow at this date".

PERFECTLY SUITED—Beautiful detail, beautifully executed, finds itself at home on the new suits and is the choice of women who aren't overly keen about suits heaped with luxury fur. This soft black woollen suit uses feather applique executed on a bias line, to give softness and flattery to the bodice. The metallic crepe blouse has a looped chin ascot. A sailor hat of black felt with velvet applique completes a costume of quiet but outstanding elegance.

Chopped Nuts Add Flavor To Vegetables

It was the ambition of every housewife to astound her dinner guests with a reliable unexciting dish which she has given a new turn, to make it into a concoction to melt in their mouths and to tempt appetites weary of routine foods.

One housewife has recommended nuts as doing a lot for ordinary dishes. She suggests sprinkling chopped nuts on vegetables for a final garnish and good flavor. Brazil nuts flatter creamed carrots, turnips or parsnips. Place under the broiler briefly to brown the nuts. To get long and thin slices, simmer shelled nuts for three minutes before cutting.

The next time you whip top milk and serve it on a chilled apple dessert, add a few sprinklings of nutmeg. The flecks in the cream are interesting and the flavor goes well with the apple. For those who like cheese, it has been suggested that a little fine grated cheese added to thin soup, improves the flavor immensely

If yours is a family with penchant for bananas, here is a recipe for banana sherbet which they may enjoy eating. Mix 1½ cups of sugar and 1 cup of water, and boil for five minutes into syrup. Cool. The recipe calls for six medium bananas, mashed or put through a potat ricer, 2 cups of orange juice, and 2 tablespoons of lemon juice. Add together two tablespons of sugar and 1 beaten egg white.

Mix fruits together, add syrup and egg white last. Put in tray and freeze. Stir once or twice.

Here are a few kitchen hints, which may help iron out some irritating kitchen problems. To soften brown sugar, all you have to do is cut a thick peel of apple and place it in the package of sugar. It will work magic. To keep lemons fresh longer, melt paraffin and give the fruit light coating with a small bush.

Many women have had the annoying experience of putting labels on bottles and then having this handiwork spoiled when the liquid ran over it. Keep a bottle of nail polish handy in a natural shade, and cover the labels on medicine and other bottles which contain liquids. The ink or print will always be readable in this way.

Instead of the seasoned bread stuffing for pork chops, fill the cavities with a ham or liver paste and bake in the usual way.

Corks or lunchbox thermos bottles often become too small for the opening after repeated use. Boil them occasionally in a covered pan for a few minutes. This sterilizes them as well as puffing them up.

Fall Wardrobe Increased By Remodelling

Even though the family budget is slim, there's no reason why your back-to-school wardrobe for 1944 can't win summa cum laude on the double score of fashion and economy. One thrifty way to increase the style rating of the school-bound trunk is to start now and canvass the family closets for wardrobe slackers that can be salvaged for make-over projects with a minimum use of new yardage, then stitch-up new "fillins" where you find gaps in your collection.

A well-worn plaid woolen bathrobe of father's for instance can be transformed into a handsome suit jacket or a toasty warm shirt-waist even by a beginner sewer, just by taking a few lessons in the thrifty wartime art of make-overs at your local sewing centers. Special courses for teen-age groups are featured at local sewing centers. And after a few hours of instruction, any young beginner can learn to stitch a good looking skirt and companion plaid jacket.

Remodeling is Easy.

If you plan on doing a professional job, be sure the fabric is cleaned and pressed. Then rip open every seam and take a good look at the wrong side. Even after hard wear, most good woolens look practically new on the wrong side. The sewing centers instructors will show you how to lay the fabric on the cutting table with the grain and design going in one direction. This technique avoids amateurish mistakes that result in the wrong hang in the finished garment.

The wonder worker of a school wardrobe is a three-piece costume —jacket, vest and skirt— that can be worn together or equally well with other things. Plaid wool favon is suggested for the rib-hugging vest and kick-pleated skirt and lightweight flannel for the cardigan jacket that is finished off with heavily rolled binding of the plaid material. Another attractive trimming detail for the jacket is looped fringed edging that can be made in a jiffy of colorful wool yarn with the aid of the handicraft guide attachment, available for sewing machine kits.

To give fabric-saving wartime wardrobes a maximum fashion rating ,it's winning strategy to practice stretching magic. A jacket that co-stars with a jumper, or a skirt that doubles up smartly with a plaid blouse, are good examples of "teaming" that give the effect of extra costumes with a minimum use of fabric.

SENSIBLE AND SMART—We all get in such swivets about luxurious fur coats, overcome by their precious beauty, that it's seldom enough that anyone mentions the basic reason for fur coats. . They keep one warm. So, if your growing daughter begs for a fur coat this winter, don't scold her for an embryo sybarite, but admit that she has her health in view as well as her fashion vanity. Laskin mouton is a quality fur, and it isn't expensive. A full length coat of it costs less than a really de luxe tailored wool coat.

Leaders Expect Hitler To Flee Berlin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(AP). —Military leaders here are becoming increasingly apprehensive over the possibility that Adolf Hitler and some of his henchmen may fly from Germany in the next few weeks and seek refuge in a neutral country.

Concern has become such that a new appeal may be issued to the neutrals not to give sanctuary to the men who led the world into war.

Such an appeal could be directed particularly to Spain and Argentina, because of their past or present links with the Nazi Government of Germany and the suspicions current in diplomatic and treasury circles here that the German leaders have stored funds in both countries.

This last hope of escape, it is believed, is one of the reasons why so many of the top men in Nazidom to-day are willing to stick with Hitler while all over Europe their political and military fortress is caving in.

What Hitler will do remains the all-consuming speculation in Washington and the conviction of officials with whom the subject has been discussed is that if he is not killed at the last minute by some of his own henchmen he may very well kill himself. There always remains the chance, however, that he will quit the country.

Robot Bombs Bring New Headaches

By FRANK LOWE,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Aug 30 —CP) — This scheme of evacuating women and children from London because of the buzz bombs has made the city one of newly-created bachelors and poor males more than a little confused by it all.

For many long-married men it was a dream come true— freedom to stay out as long as he liked. To spend congenial hours drinking at the club and to have no questions asked. But that feeling didn't last long.

Soon the men began to discover there were such things as making beds and keeping the apartment clean and remembering to collect the laundry and pay the gas bill and the thousand little things like that which never previously had occurred to the master of the house.

Complicating these were the problems of wartime living of which the men had complained but never before had really met head on.

Like learning to make a piece of meat do through the week and whipping together oddments so they would be palatable and standing in line for hours to buy fish— all these things moved from talk to reality for more and more men as more and more women and children sought the safety of the country.

With true British doggedness, however, the males tackled their problem. Daily newspapers began carrying recipes couched in language men might understand — one even used whisky measurements," .... and add a jigger of ...." — while occasionally in a purely masculine ear the odd sound of culinary conversation would intrude.

More and more often you hear a man who always before insisted a woman's life was an easy one say, 'You know, I never knew how hard women had to work."

Perhaps buzz bombs have their uses after all— if only to further the woman's point of view.

CHURCHILL AND PRINCE UMBERTO CONFER—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Left, is shown as he conferred with Prince Umberto at the British Embassy in Rome. Vatican observers said the conference will have a great effect both on the terms of peace and on the future of Italy.

Nazis Warned Respect Polish Army

LONDON, Aug. 30—(CP).—Both the British Foreign Office and Polish Ministry of Information in London Tuesday night warned the Germans they would be duly prosecuted and punished if they failed to treat Polish Army home forces in accordance with the laws and customs of war.

The United States Government issued a similar warning, the State Department in Washington announced.

The Foreign Office and the Polish Ministry told the Germans that the Polish resistance troops constituted a combatant force forming an integral part in the Polish armed forces and as such were entitled to treatment prescribed under The Hague Convention.

The statement followed a report by the Polish Ambassador in Washington, Jan Ciehanowski, to the British and American Governments that the Germans are trying to exterminate the population of Warsaw as revenge for the military activity of Polish patriot forces inside the city.

Tuesday night's statements recalled Gen. Eisenhower's warning to the Germans after the Allied invasion of Western France that he regarded the French forces of the interior as part of the Allied Expeditionary Forces and insisted on their being treated as Allied troops and not as Franc Tireurs, liable to be shot after capture.

Elephant At Sea

LONDON, Aug. 29—(CP). —"This," said the Daily Mirror, "is the last, the absolutely final word in fishing stories." It seems there were two fishing craft in Cruden Bay, off the east coast of Scotland and a deckhand on one shouted, "Whale on the starboard bow." The crews saw a long trunk and four big legs sticking out of the water. "It's an elephant," yelled one of the skippers. "Tur-rn the boat around, ye fools." Where it came from nobody knows.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

PARENTS MUST COOPERATE

Youth Must Be Served; Will Not Go Astray if Father, Mother Act Wisely.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — Don't you think that one of the fundamental reasons for juvenile delinquency is the lack of complete trust and confidence existing between children and their parents? I have a girl friend who is pretty and who would be popular except for her parents' attitude towards her. They will not let her go out with a boy without one or the other of them accompanying her. When a boy comes to see her, she has to receive him in the living room in the midst of the family, with everyone listening to all they say. Her mother opens her letters before she sees them and eavesdrops when she has a call on the telephone.

This so humiliates my friend that she would rather have no dates than the ones that put her in such an awkward position. She is a girl of high character and her parents have no reason for mistrusting her. She is very unhappy and I feel sorry for her because my parents have always encouraged me to bring my friends to the house, and they are so sympathetic that I have always been able to talk over everything with them.

A HAPPY DAUGHTER.

ANSWER—You are quite right in thinking that the reason children often take the wrong road and get into trouble is because their parents have made it impossible for the youngsters to talk over their troubles and ask their mothers' and fathers' advice.

And it is a tragic thing that in trying to protect their children parents very often bring upon them the very evils they are trying to defend them from. Many a mother and father who think they are keeping their little ewe lamb unspotted from the world by never letting a boy cross their threshold are merely forcing her to pick up a drug store cowboy for a stolen date, instead of having an aboveboard one with a nice, respectable boy at home.

For youth is going to be served, with Mama and Papa looking on and taking part in it if they will cooperate, but behind their backs if they won't, and if they deny their girls the pleasures of their time of life to which they know they are entitled.

And the same way with boys. Very few boys would run wild and get in with bad gangs if their fathers would only play around with them and help them to find good, clean fun, and if they would talk to them as man to man, instead of as a policeman to a suspect. I knew one father who said to his boys: "Don't ever tell a stranger your troubles if you get in a scrape. Come to me. I'll always help you out. If you need any money, don't borrow from others. I'll get it for you. Don't forget I am always your best friend." And this father never had any trouble with his children.

DEAR MISS DIX—My brother is over six feet tall, thoroughly masculine in appearance and conduct, the father of children, yet our mother persists in calling him "My Baby." Once in his high school days she called him "Babykins" in the presence of his football team and after that they taunted him by shouting "Babykins" at him. She even talks baby-talk to him. Natudally all this humiliates him and makes him seem ridiculous, but do what we will we cant induce her to stop it. Can you think of any way we can make her drop it?

ANSWER—No. A mother who has no more sense of humor than yours seems to have is hopeless. But your brother is not the only one. I knew a man who was a veritable giant whose mother called him "pitty sing" (for pretty thing) when he was an infant in the cradle and he writhed cnder the appellation as long as he lived.

DEAR MISS DIX—What is the best method of chasing a man?

M. E. W.

ANSWER—Different methods to different men, according to their natures. The best way of chasing men who think they are devils among the ladies is to run from them instead of after them. They like to think they are the pursuers instead of the pursued, and that it is only their superior technique that enables them to overtake the lady and capture her.

Another method that is to be highly recommended is what might be called the "sit down" method. The woman who camps on a man's trail and is Sally-on-the-spot wears down his resistance and eventually gets him.

And, of course, there is the old true and tried recipe of dangling good food before the brute. Any plan is good that works.

WAR MEASURE

Daylight saving was adopted by Germany in 1916 as a war measure.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, August 31

Sudden news or an avalanche of opportunity for outstanding success, or strange adventures, may prove bewildering or confusing, as happy and propitious as the circumstances seem to appear. And appearances will not be of deceptive variety if reason, sound judgment and balanced action be utilized and not erratic, impetuous and tempestuous urges be held in leash. Inner, subjective, or intuitive forces are uppermost, carrying emotions, feelings and sensations into power and upsetting the seat of reason and practicality. Exceptional situations and contacts are likely, with high promise of business, financial, and professional enterprise. The social and romantic developments are similarly subject to emotional experiences.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of strange, baffling, exotic and quixotic experiences and adventures, the final outcome depending entirely upon how wisely and rationally peculiar circumstances are turned to account. The intuitive, mystical and subjective forces are potent, and might be expressed in either a highly manner or in a dangerous and destructive way. Gain or loss depends upon restraints and sound logic and not tempest, confusion or emotional decisions. This applies to business as well as social and romantic probabilities. Be alert to outside deception as well as inner delusions or illusions.

A child born on this day may have exceptional promise of success, happiness and achievement in both business and private life, although its intuitive, subjective and romantic or mystical outlook may swerve it from the practical.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Our talk to-day will be about salads. In these busy days when the housewife has Red Cross work and many other war duties to attend to, it is nice to know that you can prepare a supper in the morning, put it in the ice box and when you return from your work, boil the kettle and the rest of the meal is ready to put on the able. Try these recipes and see if you don't think they are very tasty and satisfying.

Meat Salad.

One tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, ¾ cup cream, teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 2 cups cooked, chopped ham, ½ cup chopped clery, 1-3 cup mayonnaise, 1 hard cooked egg, finely chopped, 1 tablespoon chili sauce, ¼ teaspoon currie powder, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 tablespoons cider vinegar, 1 teaspoon white sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and paprika, ½ cup salad oil. Soak the gelatine for five minutes in cold water. Heat together the cream, salt and dry mustard, add the gelatine and stir still dissolved. Add 2 cups of cooked ham run through the food chopper and chopped celery. Fold in mayonnaise. Pour into oiled mould and chill until set. Unmould and serve with following dressing: Measure into a quart jar a finely chopped hard boiled egg. Chill sauce, currie powder, lemon juice, cider vinegar ,salad oil, white sugar, salt, dash of pepper and paprika. Shake well, chill, and shake again just before serving.

Ginger Ale Salad.

1 tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, ¼ cup of orange juice, ¼ cup white sugar, dash of salt, a cup ginger ale, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, a cup sweet grapes, 1 peach, 1 apple, 1 pear. Soak the gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Heat the orange juice to the boiling point and add gelatine. Stir until dissolved. Add the sugar, salt, ginger ale and lemon juice. Chill till the mixture begins to set, then add the grapes which have been seeded and the various fruits, peeled, cored and diced. Turn into a salad mould, and chill until set. Unmould on shredded lettuce and serve with the following fruit and dressing.

Fruit Dressing.

One egg separated, ⅛ teaspoon salt, cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Lightly beat the egg yolk, add salt, sugar and cornstarch. Beat in the fruit juices and cook over low heat until smooth and thickened. When cool, fold in the stiffly beaten egg white.

Juvenile Court Cases Show Big Increase

TORONTO, Aug. 30 — (CP) — The number of children between nine and 11 years of age appearing in juvenile court has increased approximately 100 per cent. and the nature of the offences is steadily becoming more serious, W. A. Turnbull of the Toronto Public Welfare Department, said yesterday at the Welfare Section of the Ontario Municipal Association.

Mrs. M. A. Shipley, Reeve of Teck Township ,told delegates the question of current and post-war public welfare needs was one of the main problems to have been discussed fully in the Dominion-Provincial conference which "now has been called off by the Prime Minister." In view of this, she added, "we, the people, have the right to know when this conference is to be held."

Bacon Dominates

OTTAWA, Aug. 30—(CP)—Canadian meat, cheese, butter, evaporated milk, fruit, eggs and similar food products sent to the United Kingdom since 1940 are valued more than $500,000,000 and 1944 shipments probably will bring the total to nearly $700,000,000, a survey by The Canadian Press showed today. Exports of bacon and Allied products represent the greatest single amount. Cheese shipments in the four years to the end of 1943 were valued at nearly $81,821,096.

Plazas Defeat

for which Hall made a good bid. Jim Ellis hit the longest rap of the night when he slammed a drive a mile into right centre field. McColl was playing deep and took the ball over his head. Blewett went to third after the catch. Tucker popped to Hall. Burton drew a walk but Chorner got out of the hole by striking out Hawks.

Plazas closed the gap by scoring a run in the seventh. Wilson was out at first on a close play when Chorner covered the bag to take a throw from Heaney. Starr ripped a double into right field and went to third when Art Heal bunted safely. Conroy popped to Lesperance. Blewett dropped a double into short left, scoring Starr and sending Heal to third but Ellis raised a foul which Mills took nicely.

Homer Ties It Up

Jack Tucker walked out to the plate to open the Plazas eighth and slammed a homer over Istead's head in left to tie up the game at 4-4. Burton fouled to Long. Hawks walked but was forced at second by Wilson and Starr flied out.

Trenton went out in order in the ninth but Plazas threatened in their half. With two out Blewett got his third double, again into left, Ellis walked but Tucker's good bid for a hit was taken by McColl in deep left centre.

Bell scratched a single to open Trenton's tenth when his roller took a bad hop over Tucker's shoulder. Heaney sacrificed him to second but when Lesperance rolled to Tucker and was tossed out at first a quick throw across the diamond by Ellis doubled Bell trying to go to third on the play.

Plazas wound it up in short order. Les Burton rapped a double over first and carried the winning run over with nobody out when Hawks singled to centre.

Chorner who had done most of the Trenton hitting in the second game. ....Plazas would have won the game without extra time if Art Heal had been given a chance to steal second in the seventh with Starr on third. As it was when Blewett hit only Starr scored and Heal had to pull up at third....George Campbell says enviously, "The gate receipts down in Peterborough Saturday amounted to over $300 and that is a terrific take for a softball game in any man's town. Incidentally that is the beauty of having a closed park where the softball fans all pay their two bits to see a playoff game."

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Since 1934 more than 10,000,000 persons in the Soviet have qualified for the "ready for labor and defence" badge through physical proficiency, according to a statement at Moscow by Konstantin Neopomnyaschy, chief of the Physical Culture and Sports Committee, U.S.S.R. foreign relations department. Prior to the entry of Russia into the war, there were 88 athletic societies and 63,000 athletic clubs, of which 26,000 were in rural districts. During 1941 more than 6,500,000 men and women took part in 140,000 competitions and all forms of sport, with the exception of field hockey, polo, golf and English rugger, were popular.

In an 18-hole playoff in the amateur division of the Tam O'Shanter all-American golf championships yesterday at Chicago the title went to Ed Furgol of Michigan with a 73, one over par. This was three strokes ahead of Policeman Earl Christiansen of Miami and six up on Ken Heilemann of St. Louis, who tied with Furgol at 295 at the finish of the regulation 72 holes.

Cater To Million

Both the Cardinals and Browns announced yesterday their prospective World Series would be of the streetcar scope for the 1,000,000 population within the St. Louis area, as requested by the Office of Defence Transportation. Tickets will not be sold to residents outside the immediate district.

The 63rd United States National tennis championships open today at Forest Hills and the draw found Francisco Segura of Ecuador and Bill Talbert of Indianapolis, lead-contenders, in the same half of the men's singles schedule for a prospective early clash.

The Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League will report for training Sept. 25 at the Niagara Falls, Ont., arena, it was announced last night by Manager Eddie Shore. The team will play several exhibition games before Oct. 17.

President Herb Berscht of the Hamilton Baseball Club last night tossed a bombshell in the direction of the O.B.A. in announcing the withdrawal of the team from the Niagara senior playdowns. The O.B.A. ruled a game between Hamilton and St. Catharines-Merriton Combines had to be replayed because Hamilton used a replacement for Pitcher Dick Fowler. The latter, once with Toronto Leafs, had been ordered to withdraw from competition by his commanding officer in the Canadian army. The O.B.A. found that replacements were forbidden after July 15.

The Inter County Junior baseball final series was knotted at two games apiece last night after Kitchener Rangers licked Galt Terrier Pups 4-2, to force a fifth and deciding tilt at Galt Thursday night.

Welland took the measure of Stamford 9-6 last night in Oakes Stadium in the opening engagement of the O.B.A. Minor Bantam playdowns.

Packers Drub Nashua Outfit

At Brinton recreation field last night Canada Packers beat Nashua 15 to 3 behind the superb pitching of F. Foley, who struck out 9 batters and was given great support in the field. Foley also helped his own cause by hitting a home run in the 4th innings with two runners aboard. The score was no indication of game as it was a case of the Packers hitting and fielding at their best and if they can keep up the pace they are now setting the rest of the teams will find them hard to beat.

Score by innings:

Packers	132 504 0	—15
Nashua	000 012 0	— 3

Teams:

Packers—N. Downer cf, F. Foley pitcher, J. Begley 3b, G. Downer ss, A. Downer catcher, S. Detlor 1b, V. LaFave 2b, C. Todd lf, E. Godfrey rf.

Nashua — Lewis cf, Loucks ss, Menzie catcher, Maudsley 1b, Creary 3b, Martyn lf, White rf, Hughey 2b, Ellis pitcher, Atchison pitcher from the fifth innings.

Losing pitcher, Ellis; winning pitcher Foley.

Umpires—Hanlon for four innings on plate and Chalmers for three innings.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

HABITUAL FALSE-CARDS

FALSE-CARDING as a matter of habit is costly business, especially on the defense. Besides the danger of misleading your partner, there is the fact that in some situations false-carding will enable the declarer to figure out the true facts instead of deceiving him. The mere fact that he can tell you are false-carding indicates that you have some reason for doing so. He may then be able to sense what is your reason.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1NT	Pass
3♣	Pass	4♣	Pass
5♣

That deal should have wound up in 3-No Trumps, either as a result of North bidding 1-Spade on his first turn or 3-No Trumps on his second one. It would have been easy to make at least one extra trick at that contract, if clubs were guessed right, whereas the 5-Clubs required either a successful guess or help from an opponent to make the contract on the head. South got the help, from East.

The heart 2 was led to the A and the club A laid down. East decided it was smart to play the 7 instead of the 5, and when South saw the 8 from West, he knew something was funny. One opponent was false-carding and holding the 5. So, instead of next laying down the club K, as he had intended, he led the diamond Q, aiming to get the dummy in the lead by overtaking it with the K if the A was not put on. West used his A, however, and also cashed his spade A, then led the heart 5.

North took that in the dummy and led the club J. The missing 5 was put on by East, who was now revealed as a false-carder, as nobody would purposely use the high-low trump echo in this situation to disclose his possession of three trumps. Why was he false-carding? The only possible reason, South reckoned, was to protect the Q, as with only the 7 and 5 he almost surely would have played naturally, the 5 first and then the 7. So South finessed the J and as a consequence made the contract.

In what simple matter must South be careful, in seeking 3-No Trumps on this deal, after he wins the third diamond lead?

Urges Changes For Police Across Ontario

WINDSOR, Aug. 30 — (CP) — Far-reaching changes in Ontario's police set-up, designed to improve the standards and efficiency of police in their work, are recommended in a brief approved at today's meeting of the 12th annual Police Association of Ontario convention.

The brief is addressed to Premier George A. Drew of Ontario, and Hon. Leslie E. Blackwell, K.C., Attorney-General for Ontario, and copies, as approved by the convention, will be forwarded to them.

Chief Harold Nash, chairman of the Association's convention committee, after reading the changes proposed in the Association's brief, declared that when the recommendations were drawn up the executive had in mind former policemen now serving overseas.

"We don't want them to come back to work under the same damnable conditions that existed before they went away," Chief Nash said, adding, "we must have the intestinal fortitude to propose a new plan—to demand a new plan."

Proposals included in the brief include: Adoption of a uniform system of municipal police organization and administration, standardization of the present system of municipal policing, appointment of police commissions to govern all municipal police forces in Ontario and appointment of an inspector-general of police for the Province of Ontario.

The association asks the following measures to elevate the standards of municipal police service: Standardization of qualifications for appointment to municipal police forces, standardzation of training for municipal police personnel, standardization of training for municipal police personnel, standardization of qualifications for promotions in municipal police forces, and standardization of working conditions for municipal officers, including the establishment of a minimum wage.

Germans Withdraw Troops From Bulgaria

LONDON, Aug. 30 — (CP) — Reports that the Germans have started withdrawing troops from peace-seeking Bulgaria coincided to-day with Istanbul dispatches suggesting that Anglo-American armistice terms already have been received by Allied diplomats there for relay to Sofia.

The Moscow radio, quoting the Bulgarian News Agency, said the Germans were beginning to move out of Bulgaria and asserted the withdrawal would be completed within a few days.

"Disarming of German troops crossing the BulgariaRomania frontier is going on," the broadcast added.

Istanbul advices, meanwhile told of a flurry of diplomatic activity, inrluding an hour-long conference yesterday between the United States and British ambassadors, Lawrence A Steinhardt and Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen.

It is believed in Istanbul, these dispatches said, the ambassadors might have received from Washington and London the terms which will be offered Bulgaria. Yesterday it was disclosed that terms drawn up in consultation with the European advisory commission would be presented to Bulgaria within a few days.

Robot Bombs Hit Home Of War Bride

MARMORA, Aug. 30—(ENS)—A long black cross in the sky with a light which goes out when the engine stops. Such was the description of a robot in flight as given by Mrs. Dan Vesterfelt who reached Marmora with her seventeen-months-old daughter on Saturday as the first war bride to come to the district to rejoin her husband.

A native of Reigate Surrey, Mrs. Vesterfelt has lived in two homes struck twice by these bombs. Asked if any near relatives were killed in these four harrowing experiences Mrs. Vesterfelt replied in the negative but added that her stepfather had died from the shock of one of these attacks. She intimated that the robots travel far inland before dropping and corroborated the press reports that hospitals largely become the targets. Houses fall like pack of cards, she stated.

On the voyage over, she learned that about five hundred war brides were on the ship. The voyage was uneventful and only seven were sea sick.

"Take your meals regularly on board and tell yourself you are not going to be sick and it works out alright I think," she said. "At least it did with most of us." Mrs. Vesterfelt paid a glowing tribute to the ministering of the Red Cross workers who greeted the women and children upon disembarkation.

Prices Board Controls Sale Of Cream

OTTAWA, Aug. 30—(CP)—Effective Sept. 1, distributors in approximately 80 of the principal markets of Canada may not sell more fluid cream (in pounds of butterfat) in any month than was sold by such distributors during June, the Prices Board announced Tuesday.

J. H. Olive, Administrator of Dairy Products, said in a statement the order was issued because of the necessity of stabilizing the use of butterfat and would help prevent further diversion of milk and cream from production of butter and cheese.

He said total demand for dairy products now exceeds total supply and steps must be taken to ensure that available supplies are distributed in a manner best suited to the various food needs of the Canadian people.

"In January, 1943, the sale of whipping cream was prohibited and all cream sold was limited to a maximum percentage of butter fat of 18 per cent. Although these limitations last year reduced the amount of butter fat sold as fluid cream, the trend has been reversed during the first seven months of 1944 and reports indicate that butterfat sold as cream during this period has increased by more than 20 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1943.

"Butter production shows a decrease of slightly more than 10,000,000 pounds during the first seven months of 1944 compared with the corresponding months of 1943, and the quantity of butter in stock on Aug. 1 was about 9,000,000 pounds short of the quantity held at the same date last year.

Production Down

"The trend in the consumption of butter and fluid milk is up, and with prospects for production during the remainder of 1944 distinctly less favorable, the proposed action in connection with sales of cream has become necessary. The recent prolonged drought in Eastern Canada where a large percentage of the milk is produced brought about a marked decline in milk production, and the lack of rain in many areas has seriously affected feed supplies for dairy herds."

The new restrictions do not apply to sales by a farmer to a dairy, creamery, distributor or manufacturer of dairy products or on sales between distributors of manufacturers.

Following are the areas in Ontario to which the new order applies:

Ontario — Belleville, Brantford, Brockville, Chatham, Cornwall, Fort William, Galt, Hamilton, Kingston, Kitchener, London, Niagara Falls, North Bay, Oshawa, Ottawa, Owen Sound, Pembroke, Peterborough, Port Arthur, Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie, Stratford, St. Catharines, St. Thomas, Sudbury, Timmins, Toronto, Welland Waterloo, Windsor, Woodstock.

Rouen Greets Canadian Liberation Army

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN ROUEN, Aug. 31 — (CP Cable) — Canadian Infantry from Ontario and the Maritimes entered historic Rouen today in drizzling rain and the city reacted like a little Paris.

French Maquis were all over the city, guiding the Canadians through the streets of this ancient Seine port. Civilians poured into the streets in hundreds, waving the Canadians on and tricolors were thrust from every window as street after street was cleared of light German opposition.

The men, women and children proudly paraded with red, white and blue rosettes—a liberation emblem they had held ready for this day. They gave the rosettes to the Canadians, tossed flowers in their rath, and hailed their muddy, sodden liberators with wild abandon.

I went into Rouen yesterday on the heels of an eastern Ontario infantry battalion which had pierced the outskirts of the city. There was all the usual uncertainty and excitement of the front line, but in the streets was a spirit of carnival.

I was at a Canadian divisional headquarters getting the latest information when Maj. Dampier of Tornoto received a message from the front line "We have got troops into Rouen now."

The route into Rouen was up the road to Boos, then straight along the main highway into the city. In our scout car the driver, Gnr. Norman Beattie of Mount Dennis, Ont., and I whisked along roads with infantry and tanks which were rushing forward for advances northeast of Rouen.

Glengarrians Win Applause

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(CP).—To hard-hitting Canadian and British troops fell the task of breaking the German line at Caen—described today by Gen. Eisenhower as the strongest defence the Germans had on the front.

That thundering battle, culminating July 9 in the capture of the German Norman anchor town, marked the greatest triumph since D-Day for the Canadians.

Troops of the Canadian 3rd Division supported the right flank of the attack and took all their objectives on schedule as strong British forces in the centre of the left of the line swept forward and thrust into the ruins of Caen.

Attacking in an area three and four miles northwest of the town and also due south of Carpiquet, a village three miles west of Caen, the Canadians first captured the towns of Buron and Gruchy. Then they jumped forward and took Authie and Franqueville, making contact with the Canadian garrison in Carpiquet.

Murdered Canucks.

About a division and a half of Germans faced the British-Canadian attack. The enemy formations included elements of the 12th S.S. Panzer Division—the German formation that murdered 19 Canadian prisoners two days after the Normandy landing near Pavie on the Caen-Bayeux highway.

Three infantry regiments — the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, Ont., the North Nova Scotia Highlanders of Amherst, N.S., and the Highland Light Infantry from Galt, Ont., formed the Canadian spearhead in the battle of Caen. Tanks of the Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment of Sherbrooke, Que., supported them and armored cars of the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars of Montreal also were in the attack.

Units which fought in the battle of Carpiquet were the North Shore New Brunswick Regiment, New Castle, N.B., the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, a Toronto unit, the Regiment de la Chaudiere, Lake Megantic Que., the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and the Fort Garry Horse, a Winnipeg tank regiment.

First Into Town

The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders was the first Canadian regiment to get into Caen. Support by tanks of the Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment, the Highlanders went down the rubble-piled streets shouting their wild battle cry "Up the Glens."

Close behind came the Highland Light Infantry and the North Nova Scotia Highlanders.

Beurling Wants To Serve With U.S. Force

MONTREAL, Aug. 31—(CP)—Flt.-Lt. George Beurling, Canadian fighter ace, left Montreal last night for New York with signed and sealed official preliminary papers for U.S. citizenship in his pocket. Beurling, who shot down more than 32 planes while serving with the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F., said he had always wanted to be an American citizen "and now is my chance."

He said he was going to see a U.S. airline official who "has something to do with the U.S.-China ferry service" to see if he could get into the Chinese Air Force more quickly.

"Barring that, I will join the U.S. Air Corps or the ferry service itself—anything to help me get back into action," he added.

"Of course, if I enlisted in the U.S. Air Corps, I would automatically be an American citizen after 90 days. I might do that too, they're a good outfit to be with."

He said he had definitely decided he wanted to fight the Japs but was not too sure that he would meet with success in the United States.

"I don't know yet that all this will get me to China any faster," he said. "But I have been out of action for a long time now. The first five days back here in Canada were enough to make me itch for action and here I have been running around doing nothing for months. I've had enough of it and I hope I make it faster with contacts on the other side of the line."

Belgium Braced For New Ordeal

By ALEX. SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 31—(AP).—Belgium braced herself today for the ordeal of again becoming a battlefield, and the country's tightly-knot underground, now concentrating on sabotage, awaited orders from Gen. Eisenhower for a general uprising as American troops neared the Belgian border.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Hubert Pierlot's government in London said Nazi attempts to exploit British-American bombing as a propaganda weapon to alienate his countrymen against the Allies had failed and that 95 per cent. of Belgians are supporting the Allied cause.

The Belgian underground fighters are perhaps even better organized than those in France because of Belgium's thickly-populated areas. They have stolen arms and vehicles from the Germans and have become a guerilla organization.

The extent of the activity was demonstrated by an underground report that two nights of sabotage recently resulted in the destruction of two railroad depots, 23 locomotives and scores of cars.

The size of the resistance movement is uncertain, but its potential strength obviously has been reduced by Hitler's action in deporting approximately 500,000 workers—almost the size of the Belgian army before the Nazi invasion—to Germany.

Capture Nice Drive On Toward Italy

Material Losses In South France Are Tremendous

BY NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Aug. 31 — (AP) — Remnants of the German 19th Army raced desperately north toward Lyon today, fighting costly rearguard actions with pursuing Americans only when necessary while other 7th Army units moved through the French Riviera Metropolis of Nice toward the Italian frontier, some 12 miles ahead.

Nice, with a population of 200,000 and the largest of the Rivera's famed playgrounds, was taken without any opposition. Damage was confined chiefly to harbor area, Allied headquarters said.

The total of prisoners captured by the 7th Army since it swarmed ashore on the beaches of southern France passed the 50,000 mark, with additional thousands rounded up from Nazi units intercepted and cut to pieces in the Rhone valley pockets south of the junction of the Rhone and Drome Rivers.

2000 Vehicles

Equally impressive were the material losses of the enemy.

In a pocket of slightly more than 11 miles south of Livron "losses inflicted by our ground forces included 2,000 motor vehicles, 1,000 horses, 27 five-millimetre anti-tank guns, 12 77-mm. guns, 40 50-mm. anti-aircraft weapons, eight self-propelled guns and a trailer with a printing press," Lt.-Gen. Alexander M. Patch's headquarters said.

Additional hundreds of vehicles and guns knocked out by Allied planes littered the roads throughout the valley and 200 enemy dead were found in the same area.

Yesterday the Germans locked in sharp battle with an American column in the vicinity of Livron on the north banks of the Drome river, 11 mles south of Valence. Later in the day the enemy broke off contact and fled north when the avenue of escape was threatened by another Allied column that punched into Chabeuil, six miles southeast of Valence.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Aug. 31—(AP).—Harry Ferguson, who runs a main street tailor shop, reported to police that a gunman, handkerchief over face, entered his shop yesterday, pointed a revolver and demanded money.

"Sorry," said Mr. Ferguson, "there's no money here."

"Oh," said the gunman, "okay, then."

He pocketed his gun, shrugged his shoulders, and meekly walked out.

Port Of Pesaro Captured Foglia Crossed

ROME, Aug. 31 — (AP) —British 8th Army patrols have crossed the Goglia river on the Adriatic flank of the Italian front and have encountered strong resistance from German Gothic Line positions on the north bank, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

Pesaro fell only after a bitter fight in which both infantry and armor participated. The Germans counter-attacked yesterday after the Poles had invested part of the city, but were repulsed with heavy losses.

The Poles announced they had taken a sizeablebag of prisoners in the fighting.

Dispatches from the front said that in some places farther west the British 8th army troops drove across the Foglia so swiftly the Germans had not even had time to lay mines.

Headquarters said, however, that the forces already at grips with positions in the Gothic Line — on which the enemy is expected to make his stand in defence of northern Italy— were meeting stiff resistance.

Banks Cleaned.

Reports from the field said that not a Nazi was left on the south bank of the Foglia for a distance of 16 miles inland from the Adriatic.

Other 8th Army forces further inland, Headquarters said, were approaching the Foglia after occupying the town of Urbino and pushing on five miles beyond in an advance through difficult moutain

400,000 German Casualties 25 Hun Divisions Wiped Out

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP).—Allied armies in France have inflicted more than 400,000 casualties on the Nazis since D-Day, General Eisenhower reported to-day, including the destruction of 25 enemy divisions and the severe mauling of 18 additional divisions.

In a report on operations in Northern France from the landing on the beaches June 6 up to Aug. 25, Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied expeditionary force, reported that the German 7th Army and the newly formed 5th Panzer army have been decisively defeated," dragging down with them the bulk of the fighting strength of the enemy's 1st and 15th armies.

"The equivalent of five Panzer divisions have been destroyed and a further six severely mailed, including one Panzer Grenadier division." said the report submitted by Eisenhower to the War Department.

Many Cut Up.

The equivalent of 20 infantry divisions have been eliminated, he said, and a further 12 very bedly cut up and have suffered severe losses. Included in this total of infantry divisions were three of the enemy's crack parachute divisions.

In addition, one parachute division and two infantry divisions have no hope of escape from the fortress ports of the Brittany Peninsula in which they are marooned. One infantry division is isolated in the Channel Islands.

"Total enemy casualties amount to over 400,000 killed, wounded and prisoners of war, of which over 200,000 are prisoners of war," Eisenhower reports. "Of these prisoners, 135,000 have been captured since July 25. The total continues to mount.

"One thousand three hundred enemy tanks and over 20,000 motor transports have been captured or destroyed.

"About 500 assault guns and 1,500 field and heavier artillery guns have been captured or destroyed. In addition the enemy has suffered very heavy losses in coast artillery equipment.

Draw Reserves.

"The German 7th Army and the newly formed 5th Panzer Army have been decisively defeated, and into this defeat have been drawn the bulk of the fighting strength of the 1st and 15th Armies.

"Three field marshals and one army commander have either been dismissed or incapacitated by wounds. One army commander, three corps commanders, 15 divisional commanders and one fortress commander have been either killed or captured.

In the air, the Luftwaffe has taken a fearful beating. Since June 6 (D-Day), 2,378 German aircraft have been destroyed in the air and 1,167 on the ground. In addition, 270 aircraft were probably destroyed and 1,028 aircraft were damaged in the air."

Soviet Army Believed In Bucharest

Ploesti Oil Fires Under Control Saboteurs Thwarted

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Aug. 31 —(AP)—The Red Army was believed today to have entered Bucharest, capital of Romania, after capturing the great Ploesti oil fields and seizing perhaps a third of the German petroleum supply.

At midnight, the Russians were 17 miles from the city of 648,000 after an advance of nearly 40 miles in a day through the capitulated Balkan kingdom.

An official announcement was not yet made but Muscovites kept their radios tuned for an order of the day. "With the fall of Ploesti, the way to Bucharest is open," Red Star said.

Izvestia reported from captured Ploesti that the abrupt Red Army drive had prevented destruction of the Ploesti oil fields but added that serious damage had been done. Romanian oil workers helped the Russians put out tremendous fires and civilians directed Soviet troops to a large group of Germans dressed as civilians, applying the torch right and left.

The dispatch added that a plane trip over the fields, greatest in Europe except for those in Russia itself, disclosed that the Germans did everything possible to destroy wells, pipelines, derricks and equipment.

Forces of Gen. Fedor I. Tolbukhin were rushing through level country along with those of Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky and were believed already to have joined.

Another arm of Malinovsky's big command turned directly north through a pass leading to Brasov (pop. 61,800) on the trunk line railroad from Bucharest to Budapest and Vienna. Large groups of Germans and Hungarians are known to be massed in Hungary-held Transylvania in the path of this force.

Germans Doomed

Even after the Romanian army's big defeats on the Russian steppes, in the Crimea and at Odessa, Red Star said it still had 30 to 35 divisions. King Mihai has pledged these to the Allies.

"German divisions in Romania are doomed," the usually conservaitve army organ added. Red Star said five to six German divisions in Greece and the Aegean islands were cut off from the main German army and that Marshal Tito's divisions had handed the Germans defeats in Yugoslavia. In Ploesti itself, dispatches said fires lit by the fleeing Germans raged through the streets and interfered with operations. The Germans left dozens of barbed wire barricades in the path of the Red Army.

The lightning advance by Gen. Malinovsky's army captured an additional 15,000 Germans Tuesday, including a corps commander, Gen. Heil; a divisional commander, Lt.-Gen. Weitzner, and two colonels commanding divisions, the Soviet communique said.

German losses in the unsuccessful defence of Ploesti were declared "tremendous."

Mosquitos Hit Rolling Stock

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Aug. 31 —(AP) — British Mosquitos struck at enemy war transport and industry in northern France and Germany last night despite the handicap of poor weather.

While the Mosquitos bombed the industrial centre of Frankfurt without loss, other squadrons of these speedy, all-purpose raiders, operating as fighter-bombers, battered rail targets from the fighting front to the German borders.

They plowed through storms and clouds as low as 500 feet and wrecked trains and tracks directly in the path of the retreating Germans.

Strings of rolling stock were left burning in widespread operations extending beyond the Ardennes Gap down to Metz and Saarbrucken.

The German News Agency Transocean said German bombers also active over France during the night, attacking Soissons only a few hours after its capture by Americans.

LT.-GEN. OMAR BRADLEY has been named a field commander over American forces in France.

Allies Five Days Ahead Of War Schedule

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 31 —(CP)—Gen. Eisenhower announced today that Lt.-Gen. Bradley had taken his place as a full field commander of American armies in northern France in equal status to Gen. Montgomery and declared confidently his forces would carry the fight into Germany, inevitably and decisively.

Bradley, an infantry specialist, hitherto has been officially under Montgomery who commanded all ground troops in northern France under Eisenhower. Bradley, however, has assumed great stature by directing his 1st and 3rd American armies in the break-through from St. Lo across the Brest peninsula, beyond Paris and to the approaches of Belgium and Germany.

In announcing the new setup of field command, Eisenhower paid high tribute to Montgomery, describing him as a close and warm friend and one of the greatest soldiers of this war or any other. He emphasized the change was in no way the slightest reflection upon "Monty" nor a demotion for him.

The exact time when the division of responsibility was reached was not specified. But Eisenhower said it was not effective at the time the report of the division first came out a fortnight ago.

Eisenhower, smiling and bronzed, said operations were five days ahead of schedule.

Praises Canadians

In a specific reference to the fighting at Caen, key German strongpoint bitterly fought for by Canadian and British troops before the sweep through to the Seine, he said that writers who had tended to be apologetic about the long fight there should instead have bragged. It was the strongest line of defences the Germans had on that front.

Eisenhower said the crushing defeat administered to Field Marshal Von Kluge was due partly to the land-greedy strategy of inflexible defence—a rigid stake-all stand on a flank south of the Seine.

Eisenhower did not permit direct quotations from his talk—his first to his main press headquarters since D-Day—observing with a wry smile that generals got into trouble whenever they talk.

His eyes twinkling, Eisenhower stood before a huge battle map of northern France streaked with red arrows of his troops' gains toward Belgium and the Rhine and spoke with a firm voice of confidence in victories won and others yet ahead.

Montgomery's position heretofore has been as commander of the 21st British-Canadian Army group and he was directly responsible under Eisenhower for co-ordination of American forces in the over-all plan.

Unity Of Thought

Eisenhower emphasized again the unity of thought and co-operation at his headquarters and among his commanders and declared that to

Germans In Flight To Belgium

Allied Spearhead 30 Miles From Abbeville

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 31—(CP)—British tanks captured Amiens and smashed across the Somme River today in a lightning 60-mile, 48-hour drive that found the Germans in full flight back to the Reich bfeore four onrushing Allied armies.

The British forces—fighting on territory hallowed by the blood of their fathers in the First Great War—raced with American columns, which overran Laon and stabbed north more than two miles to within 33 miles of Belgium with such speed that they overwhelmed three trainloads of German soldiers trying to escape.

Troops of the 1st Canadian Army, meanwhile, mopped up the big river port of Rouen, 25 miles inland from Dieppe where the gallant Canadian raid of Aug. 19, 1942, was made, and cut the Rouen-Dieppe road nine miles north of Rouen.

The British armored advance, which speared 60 miles in two days and rivalled the American lightning thrusts, was directed by one of Britain's greatest tank experts, Maj.-Gen. R. N. O'Connor, who was captured by the Germans in the Middle East and later escaped.

Span Natural Barrier

These speeding British columns drove along the two main roads to Amiens — on the west through Grande Villiers and on the east through Catheux. The British forces were in Amiens in strength and had a firm foothold across the last barrier river short of Belgium, a scant 30 miles from Abbeville where the Germans four years ago sprang their trap on Dunkerque.

The speed of the advance, virtually uncontested along a 105-mile arc at the Somme and approaching the Meuse river, indicated the Germans had given up the last pretense of a rear-guard stand and were in open flight through Belgium back to the imperiled homeland.

With the 1st. Canadian Army mopping up Rouen, and British forces 25 miles inland from Abbeville at Amiens, half the German robot bomb coast and any forces garrisoning it seemed doomed.

Down the Seine, Belgian troops of the 1st Canadian Army won a new bridgehead at Quillebeuf, 18 miles inland from Le Havre.

There was no rest anywhere for the disorganized Germans, and Allied drives mushroomed over battlefields of the First Great War, covering

Negro Fliers Fire Transports

ROME, Aug. 31 — (AP) —Strafing attacks by American 15th Air Force fighter-bombers yesterday destroyed scores of Nazi transport planes, gliders and bombers massed on Romanian and Hungarian airfields to support desperate efforts to extricate the German armies from Romania.

Negro pilots made five separate strafing assaults on an airdrome just outside Oradia, Romania, which was covered with many types of Nazi planes.

Oil tank cars were fired.

Heavy bombers of the 15th Air Force devoted the day to hammering two railroad bridges in Yugoslavia on the main routes from Hungary to Belgrade.

Some cut a 1,000-foot bridge at Cuprija, over the Moravia river, and others knocked out a crossing over the Danube northwest of Belgrade.

Bombs Finish Enemy Stores

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 31 — (CP) — At request of British and Canadian ground Commanders, American medium bombers smashed at a German ammunition-dump five miles southeast of Dieppe today, exploding shells which German artillery were to use in covering the enemy's retreat.

The dump was located in the Foret D'Arques—scarcely more than 20 miles from advance elements of the 1st Canadian Army outflanking Rouen. In the same forest yesterday an enemy oil storage depot was hit from the air.

As the bombers completed their destruction of supplies sorely needed by the retreating Germans, others hit at the fortified island of Cezembre guarding the mouth of St. Malo harbor, for the second time within 18 hours.

Slovakian Garrisons Revolt

Riots Occur In Slovakia Germany Reports

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 — (AP) — Berlin acknowledged today that a revolutionary movement had broken out in its puppet state of Slovakia and that some garrisons had deserted.

The official German News Agency, D.N.B., said riots occurred at several places in Slovakia and quoted a German Foreign Office spokesman as saying they could be traced to activity of partisans and agents of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

D. N. B. said the outbreaks "had rather the character of Bolshevist terror" starting with "murder of priests and violation of women."

The Agency eported that Joseph Tiso, President of Slovakia, had appealed to Germany for aid and that it had been given.

Czechoslovak sources in London had announced the uprising yesterday and said it was the work of the Czechoslovak forces of the interior. The London announcement said the forces had launched concerted attacks in several areas against important communications points.

Broke Censorship Rules In Paris

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 31 — (AP) — Six correspondents accredited to Supreme Headquarters have been suspended in Paris and ordered to return to London for investigation of charges that they evaded censorship in filing dispatches, it was announced yesterday.

Names of the correspondents involved will not be announced until the investigation ends. A high ranking officer at Supreme Headquarters said none of the Associated Press taff which entered Paris was involved.

Some of the persons figuring in the case are accused of making an uncensored broadcast direct from Paris after having agreed, under the usual practice in the European theatre of operations, to submit material for field censorship.

Further comment was declined at headquarters until after the inquiry.

Believe Nazis Ready To Use Gas

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 — (AP) — John Scott, Time correspondent, broadcast from Stockholm today a report that Germans were sending poison gas cylinders to the English Channel coast.

The correspondent said an Allied plane had strafed a heavily guarded train en route from Germany through Holland to the coast, and that poison gas had escaped from cylinders it was carryin, killing several of the guards and throwing a near-by Netherlands town into panic.

"Many trains, heavily guarded such as this one, have passed through Belgium and Holland recently toward the Channel coast," Scott added.

Meanwhile, a BBC broadcast said Polish patriots in Warsaw have reported the capture of gas grenades from Germans fighting inside the Polish capital.

The London Daily Mail's Geneva correspondent also quoted reports—"circulating freely in the Reich and neutral countries" that the Germans were planning a poison-gas offensive as a last ditch war measure.

"Chemical factories in Bohemia and Northern Italy are working on huge orders for poducts which are veiled in the greatest secrecy," the story said, "and other factories are said to be working night and day on mass production of gas masks.

The story quoted the Swiss newspaper Gazette de Lausanne as saying that: "Since Germany has lost her mastery, her efforts will be reduced to insensate attacks. The leaders of the Reich will gravely aggravate their position by adding gas to flying bombs dropped on the civil population of London."

Allies Five Days

this day there never had been any sharp difference of opinion among those who constitute his command team.

Commenting on a Washington report that the whole French operation—northern and southern invasions—soon would be brought under his command, the supreme commander said this was a matter for the decision of the combined chiefs of staff.

He disclosed that the campaign of Northern France now is ahead of schedule. He said the line that it had been hoped to reach by D-Day plus 95 was well passed by D-Day plus 85.

From the first five days after the Normandy landings the Allied command has been able to foresee the whole German strategy, one of rigid defence in which the enemy staked all and lost all, he said.

The supreme commander added that before the invasion the Allied chiefs had thought it would be more likely—and better strategy—for the Germans to withdraw when they saw they were unable to hurl the invaders into the sea, fighting a delaying action back to some better defence system with more direct lines of supply and reinforcement.

Instead the Nazis fought in and out of Caen on a plan of strategy which made every foot there more important than 10 miles anywhere else along the line. Every piece of dust there had the value of a diamond, so bitter was the enemy's determination to hold on well south of the Seine.

Eisenhower praised efforts of the French Forces of the Interior as more effective than most had thought they could be.

He declined comment on the German flying bombs because he said he did not want to tell the enemy what the Allies plan to do.

ering in an hour territory that it once took days and weeks to conquer.

The dashing British were halfway from the shattered Seine line to Belgium and at Amiens they were where the "black day" defeat of the German Army in 1918 brought Ludendorff to ask for peace.

Near Maginot Line

The Germans were pulling out along a whole 150-mile arc in a top speed withdrawal which suggested final abandonment of Northern France, the buzzbomb coast and all, for the defence of the menaced homeland.

One force of Americans, heading east for the German frontier, seized St. Dizier, 18 miles southeast of fallen Vitry Le Francois, and pressed on to within 40 miles of the reversed Maginot Line. The Saar border of Germany was 87 miles ahead of this force.

Forty-five miles ahead of the American drive was the gateway city of Sedan, where the Germans won the Battle of France in 1940 by skirting the Maginot Line. Verdun, 40 miles north of St. Dizier, along with Metz and Nancy were strongpoints of the French defense line.

There have been reports the Germans were able to reverse guns to point west, but many observers doubt that any real reversal has been attempted. This would take years, and the Germans have had a few scant weeks since it became evident that Allied armies were loose and headed for their own borders.

The British and Canadians were veering directly toward the Pas de Calais coast of France.

Canadian infantry pushed into historic Rouen where cleanup fighting was in progress. Despite German reports that Rouen had been evacuated enough snipers remained to demand considerable mopping up before its capture could be claimed.

North to the sea 1st Canadian Army troops swept along the Seine in advances that pushed all but a small pocket of Germans across the river.

Gain 30 Miles

In an eight-mile flanking sweep northeast of Rouen the Canadians plunged within 30 miles of a two-year-delayed vengeance for the Dieppe raid.

The British who drove into Amiens were cutting down the buzzbomb belt with every mile of their advance. They were barely 25 miles from Abbeville, where a German salient to the sea in 1940 split the British-French front and cleared the way for Dunkerque.

In the centre to the east 3rd Army forces drove to Senlis, 23 miles north of Paris, and neared Crepy, 15 miles farther to the northeast. These elements were closing on Compiegne and linking the Allied northward sweep into a solid assault front aimed at the enemy's Somme line.

The Americans racing from the Marne past Laon toward the Ardennes road, historic German pathway into France, had swept in four days the full width of bloody battlegrounds over which the Allies struggled in four years of the First Great War.

German resistance was collapsing along almost the whole line, strongly suggesting that the enemy high command once again may have decided—too late—to pull out toward home frontiers.

With their path of withdrawal already flanked to the east it appeared they must go northward into Belgium.

The 3rd Army, after capturing the cathedral city of Reims 80 miles northeast of Paris, drove on 10 miles north of the city. Other forces which crossed the Vesle River strode forward southeast of Reims. The Reims cathedral was reported undamaged.

The Aisne bridgehead at Soissons the Marne the Americans crossed was extended north and east. Along the river beyond Epernay and won a new crossing. This force reached Les Grandes Loges, eight miles northwest of Chalons.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, September 1.

An unforeseen occurrence may quite suddenly and dramatically turn the course of events into entirely new channels, with fresh experiences, changed motives, ambitions, even environments and associations. While this may open up the prospect of expansive and unprecedented scope for progress, production or other dynamic achievement, there may be need for particular precaution, conservatism, and practical performance in order to capture the highest advantage possible. Duplicity, intrigues, and undercover doings, menace, and might even thwart the keen insight of an illuminated and shrewd mind. Shun impetuous or emotional decisions.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an important and significant year, which there is scope for great expectations of a dramatic and startling crisis. But such sudden visitation should be handled with sound judgment, and shrewd weighing in the balance of conflicting factors, since there are undercurrents treacherous and intriguing. The mind is attuned to subtlety, being keen, astute and intuitive, but stimulated impulses and emotions may incite to unwise decisions or unfruitful tactics. The romantic affiliations are subject to similar false moves and conclusions. Be alert to all form of subtlety.

A child born on this day will possess much inventive skill and ingenuity, with a keen mentality, but may lose through trickery of craft, although it may also gain in some spectacular or unusual channel.

TORONTO, Aug. 31— (CP). — There's an interesting sign of the times in Winnipeg, where it's rumored the Services may organize six-man football to make the best of the strained manpower situation. The league would draw its membership from the R.C.A.F., Canadian Army and Navy units, and United States army representatives.

Six-man football was dreamed up by Nebraska-born Stephen Epler, originally as an easier game for High school and junior college footballers. It is played on a field 80 yards by 40 yards, and features lateral and forward passing, rather than bone-and-muscle contact of the regulation game. With fewer players on the field there is less bodily contact and more attention to the finer details of organized team-play and combination with consequent higher scoring.

Winnipeg High schools have tried the game before, but if the proposed league is formed it will be the first time on such an ambitious scale.

His Outstanding Game.

Ralph (North Bay Nugget) Adams recalls what he thinks is the high point in Phil Marchildon's pitching career. Phil, now reported missing overseas with the R.C.A.F., was a coming start with Philadelphia Athletics before he donned the uniform, and hurled some fine games in the big league. But Adams still prefers Marchildon's 12-inning battle for Penetanguishene against North Bay in the 1934 intermediate Ontario baseball finals. Penetang won that game 2-1.

Incidentally.

There's big doings in west coast dogdom. A monster program of field dog trials is slated for Sept. 23-24, with outstanding canines invading from the United States. Among those entered is Shed of Arden, smooth Labrador winner of the U.S. national open the last two years. Another is Skoromarine, 1943 U.S. national derby winner, and Stillrovin Superspeed, Golden Retriever which came second to Shed of Arden in the 1943 trials.... Fame of the Niagara Falls District Baseball Leagle has spread far afield, with Dan Parker giving it mention in his New York Daily Mirror column.... Baseball is becoming big-time in Calgary. Between 2,000 and 3,000 fans have been turning out recently for amateur contests.

Russia Rebukes Bulgarians

LONDON, Aug. 31—(CP).—Russia adopted a stiff attitude toward Bulgaria today, accusing her of still collaborating with the Germans, despite her self-proclaimed neutrality status, while a Bulgarian commission discussed peace terms with the western allies in Cairo.

The rebuke, one of the sharpest ever made by Moscow against Sofia, helped strengthen the hand of Anglo-American negotiators at Cairo. Russia and Bulgaria are not at war.

"The manoeuvre of the Bulgarian Government will not fool anybody and the Allies are taking this into full account," a Moscow broadcast said.

Thus, as a Romanian delegation reached Moscow to formalize that country's armistice and Red Army hordes drove her more deeply into Romania and Transylvania, the stage was set for collapse of Hitler's Balkan ramparts.

An Ankara dispatch said Romanian signature of an armistice in the Russian capital appeared likely within 48 hours. Romanian troops already are fighting beside the Russians.

Ankara reports said the Germans bombed Bucharest, causing heavy damage in residential districts. These same reports said General Gestenberg, head of the German air mission in Romania, was taken prisoner but escaped.

Quoting a Tass News Agency dispatch from the Romanian port of Constanta, where Soviet troops stand only 29 miles from the Bulgarian border, the Moscow radio declared that by all indications Bulgaria announced herself a neutral "in order to enable the Germans to hide in Bulgaria from prosecution by the Allies."

This broadcast said German Black Sea naval vessels, including submarines, had found a haven in Bulgarian ports, and "in violation of the neutrality proclaimed by Bulgaria, these ships were not subject to a regime of internment.

Moscow declared Bulgarian troops still were fighting along with Germans against the Yugoslav Partisans and the Greeks.

Expose Plotters

"This additional evidence of the real aims of the Bulgarian Government confirms, as all others factors do, that the government of Premier Ivan Bagrianov in reality doesn't think of bringing about a radical change in policy," Moscow declared.

"Bulgarian propaganda, in raising a big noise around the declartion of neutrality, attempts at the same time to put into circulation all sorts of rumors, even going so far as to act as if Soviet circles had approved of the present position. These manoeuvres have been exposed."

Radio France in Algiers said an armistice between Bulgaria and the Allies might be signed today.

The Bulgarian delegation reached Cairo by plane yesterday and immediately was taken into seclusion by Allied authorities, who issued this statement:

"The Bulgarian armistice delegation has arrived in Cairo, where they will shortly have armistice terms presented to them. A statement will be issued when the armistice has been signed."

Capture Nice

"By accepting heavy losses of the last several days a substantial portion of the enemy personnel has succeded in reaching the Lyon area," an official Headquarters statement conceded.

Losses Heavy.

On Aug. 30 from the vicinity of Livron to Lyon the Germans are fighting where they are forced to, and are delaying and blocking at a heavy cost in men and equipment."

During the course of one of the most violent Nazi rear-guard actions in the Montelimar area, the Germans drove Patch's troops out of the occupied village of Clary five miles northeast of Montelimar, last Monday night. The Americans retook it the following day, but against light opposition.

Farther north in the Alps of the Franco-Italian frontier south of Switzerland "enemy forces have been showing signs of nervousness and have been moving out of frontier passes, particularly the Larche and Mt. Genevre Passes, to try to contact our forward elements," said an official report.

"It was one of these thrusts in force that compelled the small American garrison to withdraw into the outskirts of Briancon, five miles from the border.

Many Ambushes

Swift French assault forces punching up the west side of the Rhone river valley to-day were reported to have made contact with enemy rear-guards in the vicinity of Bourg-St. Andeol, 14 miles north of Bagnols, their farthest point of advance the preceding day.

The Germans lucky enough to esscape to Lyon had a long, hard road ahead to the safety of the German frontier.

In and near Lyon small enemy columns have been raided repeatedly by French patriots. Nazi losses from these ambushes have been extraordinarily high, reports reaching Rome said.

In the Lyon area Allied planes were taking a steadily mounting tell of Germans who escaped to that communication centre, and who were trying desperately to muster transportation for a continued flight.

Output Of Hogs Shows Increase

OTTAWA, Aug. 31 — (CP) — Hog production in Canada has passed its peak, but a decline in numbers probably will not be reflected in commercial marketings immediately, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today on the basis of a June 1 survey of the hog population.

Swine on farms numbered 7,740,800, 5 per cent below the total on the same date last year. A decline of 32 per cent. was indicated in numbers of sows to farrow in the fall.

"The relatively small decline in numbers at June 1 probably will not be reflected in commercial channels this year in order to secure the advantage of Government quality subsidies," said the bureau.

"It appears likely, however, that marketings in the early months of 1945 from fall-farrowed pigs will be substantially below the marketings of the early months of 1944."

Omemee Team Advances Into Finals

OMEMEE, August 31 (ENS) — Behind the four-hit pitching effort of Charlie Stephenson, the Omemee Creamery swamped the Knights of Columbus with a deluge of hits and runs to win their third straight game, in the semi-finals of the Lindsay Town League, 18-3. The win for the O's advances them into the finals against the Lindsay Live Wires, and elminates the K of C.

The O's hit Lucas freely, scoring nine runs in the first inning. He struck out two and issued only one pass to first base. Stephenson struck out six and walked four.

The K of C scored all their runs in the fourth inning. Lucas walked, Williams and Ashmore were thrown out at first, then Hennessey singled, advancing Lucas to third. Arthurs drove a long triple to centre field scoring the two runners ahead of him. Walsh singled scoring Arthurs, Stephenson retired the side by striking out O'Leary.

Omemee, after their big inning in the first, kept up the pace and scored four in each of the fifth and sixth innings and one in the seventh. Three errors were recorded in the game, two going to K of C and one to Omemee.

Hennessey for the Knights got two hits, while Arthurs and Walsh were each credited with one hit and one walk. Parsons led the O's at bat with four hits, two singles and two doubles out of five trips to the plate. Brooks and Russ Deyell rapped three hits each, Brooks also gaining first on a walk. Williamson and Crawford had three hits each and each gained first again on errors. Crawford started the tilt off with the only home run of the game. Stephenson and Weir each gathered two hits, and J. Deyell made one three bagger. Stephenson helped win his own game by clouting two doubles.

Toronto Serviceman Found Guilty Of Theft Of $1,150 At Cobourg

COBOURG, Aug. 31 — (ENS) — Harold White of Toronto was found guilty in police court Wednesday of theft of a purse containing $1,150 from Mrs. Adelaide Skinner at Cobourg on July 27. He was also found guilty of attempted theft on July 27 in Port Hope of a purse from Mrs. Addie Lingard. White was found guilty too on a charge of theft of a car from Toronto on July 25, the car used in the robbery. His companion, Isabelle Smith, age 17, was charged with the Cobourg purse snatching count but at the conclusion of evidence, Magistrate R. B. Baxter dismissed the charge. White is 26, and a member of the armed forces. He was remanded for sentence until September 11.

Mrs. Skinner, whose home is in Port Hope, testified that she was visiting her daughter at the time of the robbery. At about 10.30 in the morning, a short distance from her daughter's house on Ball street, she noticed a man with a khaki raincoat and soldier's wedge hat, cross the street towards her.

"As soon as he came up to me he grabbed my purse. I didn't expect anything like that and as he pulled at it, I lost my balance and fell down. Then he wrenched the purse from my grasp and ran off," she testified.

Mrs. Skinner said that she had $1,150, of which $1,100 was in a white envelope and $50 in a small purse. She identified White, in court, as the purse snatcher. Witness said that she had not seen the girl.

Saw Soldier Flee

George Ferguson, age 13, who lives near the lane at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, testified that he saw a soldier climb over a fence near his house, with his cap and a purse under his arm. The boy identified him in court and also said that he had picked him out of a line-up at the jail. The soldier ran north to Burke street, the boy testified.

Mrs. May Miller, resident on Blake street, one street north of Burke, said that she saw the accused go down Blake and turn down Ball street. Parked on Blake street was a blue coupe with a dark-haired girl inside, Mrs. Miller said. Some time later she heard a car door slam and the automobile drove off. She could see the girl beside the driver, but could not tell who was driving.

Mrs. Georgina Prentice, another resident on Blake street, said that she was out watering her plants when she noticed a blue coupe parked on the north side facing west. A soldier in a raincoat ran along the street, jumped in the car, which drove off. Mrs. Prentice identified White in court and said that she had picked him out in the police line-up at the jail.

Resting In Car

Ronald Wakeley, 114 Charles street, Port Hope, told of seeing a blue coupe parked on the road in the dump. As he was unable to pass in his truck, he walked over to the parked car to see if the driver would move his car to one side. A dark-haired girl was in the car with a soldier whose head was on her lap. This would be about 6.30 in the morning, on July 27, the witness said. He noticed that the car had a truck license, No. 7360C and when he learned of the robbery he gave the number to the police, Wakeley said.

Constable Jean Lucas and Constable Aime Hetu of Montreal, testified that they spotted the number and the blue car, the description of which had been sent to Montreal by Chief W. J. Carey of Cobourg, while patrolling at three a.m. on July 29. When they signalled for a stop, the car speeded away. Constable Hetu fired a shot in the air and when the car did not stop, emptied his revolver at the car while they pursued at a speed of 80 miles an hour. All but one of the shots hit the car, one of them deflating a tire which brought the chase to an end.

The evidence of the constables further related that the two in the car, White and the girl, were taken to detective headquarters where $955 was found on the girl and $19 on the man.

Notified Montreal

Chief Carey told of wiring Montreal on July 27, and informing police there of the description of the wanted pair and the car. Notified on July 29 of their arrest, he went down to Montreal and brought them back. White's soldier identification gave his name as Roy Williams, Chief Carey said. The statement of the girl was admitted in the evidence and it related that she met Williams in Peterborough on July 26, driven with him to Port Hope the following day and to Cobourg the same morning. They parked their car on Blake street and White left, saying he was going to take a walk and look around. Not long afterward Williams or White returned to the car out of breath and running. He said there was nothing wrong, jumped into the car and they drove east to Belleville, where she made some purchases with money given to her by her companion.. At Montreal when the police car pulled up he handed her a small parcel, telling her to keep it.

"I hid it, not knowing what was in it until after we were searched in the police station," her statement related.

Recovered $979

Chief Carey went on to state that he took over $979 from the Montreal police along with a wrist watch which White had bought the girl in Belleville.

In connection with the Port Hope charge, Mrs. Addie Lingard said that at around 9.40 a.m. on July 27, a soldier made an unsuccessful attempt to steal her purse but she hung on to it, and he took to his heels and fled. Mrs. Lingard identified White in court and also in the line-up at the jail.

Chief Carey produced White's record, which showed that he had served six years in Quebec of car theft, breaking his parole after being released before expiration of sentencing, resulting in his being sent back to prison to finish out his term.

In dismissing the charge against the girl, the magistrate said that he was giving her the benefit of the doubt.

Doe Deserts Fawn Children Give It Home

COBOURG, Aug. 31 — (ENS) — Northumberland County farm boys and girls have many interesting animal pets, but that of Edward and Monica Monaghen, who live near the swamp north of Wooler, is perhaps the most interesting. It is a young fawn whose perky nose and white spots intrigue all who have seen it. The children found it in the swamp a short time ago and the mother must have been frightened or deserted it as she has not shown any interest, although it plays in the barnyard close to where it was found. So far the cows' milk diet seems to agree with the little deer. The game warden is interested in the little fellow and is keeping an eye on it for the mother. Agricultural Representative Ralph C. Banbury was called to give some advice and he said that its diet was apparently all right. It has been suggested that a cow bell should be placed on the little animal so that no hunter will make a mistake and shoot it.

Individual Has Responsibility For Just Peace

WHITBY, Aug. 31 —(ENS)— Mr. C. G. Park of Whitby in a series of lectures spoke Wednesday morning on "The Artisans of Peace." This lecture based on Matt. 5:9, (French Version. "Blessed are the artisans of peace, for they shall be called the children of God," presented a vivid picture of the part the artisans — the common toilers— of the world will have in building the edifice of peace.

Mr. Park quoted Sir Alfred Zimmern, professor of International Relations at Oxford University who said "the greatest obstacle to the establishment of enduring world peace is the small scale individual, the person with selfish parochial outlook and no passion to achieve a Christian solution to the world's problems."

The Church, said Mr Park, must transcend the outlook of the small scale individual. He opinioned the solution was the approach should be that of uncompromising Christian idealism.

World Community.

Not, expediency, but, what ought to be, is the Christian approach, and quoting from Dr. Paul Hutchisons "From Victory to Peace," he went on. The Church belives there must be achieved a world community of nations, owing allegiance to a true international law defined and administered by international agencies, established by the necessary surrender of national sovereignty on the part of individual nations.

Because this is a distant goal beyond attainment at the present time, hence we must be political realists and support the immediate practical steps possible at the present time.

The purely voluntary but effective collaboration of the free peoples comprising the British Commonwealth of Nations suggests the pattern of the post war world, he declared.

Walter Pippman, said we may expect the International Order of To-Morrow to be achieved by strengthening the internaional framework that we have already forged in war, quoted Mr. Park, concluding his lecture with two revealing facts.

Hunger means war. The Post-War World must be prosperous. International trade must be revived and wise domestic policies established within nations, Mr. Park affirmed.

The second is the peril that nations will fall apart when the war is over. The christian task is to keep alive sufficient vision and enthusiasm to make internationalism work.

Dairy Output Inadequate Across Canada

BY JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 31 — (CP) — Canada's cows are doing the best they can but it isn't enough.

Federal government charts and figures today pointed the problem of meeting the rising demand for dairy products. Already steps have been taken which officials hope will meet the situation but they said that public co-operation in conserving milk supplies has become of urgent importance.

Dr. G. S. H. Barton, Chairman of the Agricultural Food Board has appealed to Canadians to avoid possible waste and over-purchase of milk so that the urgent needs of the United Kingdom for Canadian cheese and the requirements of the Canadian Armed Forces may be met.

A second step was an order by the Prices Board effective Sept. 1 which required that distributors in about 80 of the principal Canadian markets sell no more fluid cream in any month that was sold by them during June.

J. H. Olive, Board Administrator of Dairy Products, said that total demand for dairy products now exceeds total supply. Recent reports had indicated that butterfat sold as cream in 1944 had increased by more than 20 per cent over the first seven months of 1943, while butter production and stocks on hand were down.

Drought Bad

Officials said the last straw in upsetting the delicate balance between milk production and the consumption of dairy products was a drought situation in many parts of declines in milk output.

Even in June, the dairy herds in Quebec and Ontario showed a falling off in average production. Production per cow per day in Ontario was 22.5 pounds against 23.8 in the same month last year, and in Quebec 21.8 pounds against 22.8.

The limited milk supplies already have been reflected in a drop in the output of some products. In July, for instance, the gallonage of ice cream produced dropped 7.2 per cent compared with July last year. But for the seven months of 1944, production was up 3.2 per cent at 11,287,728 gallons, a major increase over pre-war years.

The combined output of factory products in July amounted to slightly less than 1,400,000,000 pounds of milk, a decrease of about 63,500,000 pounds compared with the combined make in terms of milk for the corresponding month a year ago.

Of the total milk available to the factories last month, creamery butter took 69.4 per cent; cheddar cheese 22.5; ice cream 3.2 and concentrated whole milk 4.9.

Officials said that during the summer months of peak production butter has to be moved into storage for winter requirements. Total stocks in storage Aug. 1 were down 9,000,000 compared with last year and, significantly, the "into-storage" movement in July was only 16,300,000 pounds compared with 20,800,000 pounds for July, 1943.

TORONTO, Aug. 31—(CP)—The newest in educational facilities is baths for junior at school. The Toronto Board of Education management committee approved installation of two bathtubs in Sackville Street Public School on the fringe of the downtown area. Mrs. G. E. Robinson, who sponsored the resolution, said that "considering the thousands of families now living in one or two rooms with inadequate bathing facilities I think this is a step in the right direction.

3 New Ministers To Serve Districts

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 31 — (CP) — Ordained at Wall Street United Church, Brockville, last night by the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada were Richard Ralph Bonsteel, Lansdowne Gordon Smythe, Pembroke and Douglas Bradford, Brockville. They were certified by Rev. Dr George A. Brown of Kingston as to academic and moral fitness.

Rev. Basil W. Thompson of Kingston who officiated was assisted in the laying on of hands by ministers of the seven presbyteries.

The three men are graduates in arts and have completed their courses in special wartime courses at Queen's, Kingston and Emmanuel, Toronto Theological Colleges. They will proceed at once to mission fields in central Ontario. Smythe to Haliburton; Bradford to Coe Hill and Bonsteel to Denbigh. It was decided to hold the next conference at Simcoe Street United Church, Oshawa, for four days beginning May 28, 1945.

A Great Victory

One of the world's greatest battles according to the British press has been won by United Kingdom and Canadian troops. It was the battle of the Seine which raged for 40 days, and in some of the bloodiest fighting of the war, tied down the bulk of the German 7th Army, including the finest Nazi divisions, thus making possible the break through at Avranches. It was what Montgomery planned and his plan worked.

Britain's newspapers are berating the Information Ministry for not telling the world of this great Canadian-United Kingdom victory. While applauding the brilliant success of the mobile American forces in exploiting the achievement of the British and Canadian Armies for tying down the crack German force and making the break through possible, they emphasize that for political and other seasons the United States should be made aware of the mighty part played by the forces of the British Commonwealth.

In recent weeks we have heard it asked, especially when the great American drive was on, "Where are the British?" and all this, according to the British press, was due to the failure of the Information Ministry to tell to the world, the great part the Canadian and British soldiers were playing. They alleged the soldiers are angered because they have not been given their due and moreover it was the rocket-firing Typhoons that defeated Von Kluge's dangerous attack on the Americans at Mortain almost before it was launched.

The Observer, owned by Lord Astor, makes it clear that the battle of the Seine was won by British and Canadian troops, and if they had not won it the American break-through into Central France would never have been possible. In urging a part in the parade through Paris The London Star declares it would be a gesture appreciated through the British Empire if the parade included men of the British Second and Canadian First Armies.

The whole world has admired the fighting qualities of the American army now winning the greatest victory in history and we are perfectly confident that the Americans will be the first to acknowledge the vital part played by British and Canadians who broke the back of the Germans before Caen. They created the major opening and they played a noble part in the liberation of Paris.

But we question whether the British Information Ministry is to blame. Our war correspondents on the field of battle have been sending out the news, and could it not possibly be that our newspaper headline writers and war analyists missed the boat?

Battle Of France Won

Maps of France, being published toda., showing three-fourths of that country still in the shaded colours of the Nazi, do not give a true picture of the situation. These show only two slices of liberated territory—the rough rectangle between the Seine and the Loire and the small rectangle pointing up from the Riviera. Actually everything southwest of Paris should be presented in the lighter shades of freedom, with only here and there a black pocket of Nazi domination. The Seine has been lost and the Somme-Aisne-Marne line has been pierced. Two great Allied wings are swiftly slicing up Northern France. One American column is well past Reims and is rapidly approaching the Belgian frontier. Meanwhile British and Canadian armies are driving on the buzz-bomb coast. If these maps could only show what the Allied commanders know of the situation in Northern France, we feel that they would have a ribbon-like appearance.

The Battle of France is won, the battle of Germany is next, and this statement is born out in the warning General Eisenhower gave to the people of Alsace, Lorraine and Luxembourg. With the very best of information, he says that the "handful of German divisions north of the Seine can at best fight a series of delaying actions on their retreat into Germany". Eisenhower has never been given to boasting, thus his words can best describe the situation.

Mass Murder

The first of September marks the fifth anniversary of the treacherous German attack on Poland. She lost that fight in 1939 and what a terrible price the Polish people have paid; but five years later the horizon is much brighter. Much of her territory is again in the hands of the Allies, and although Warsaw is still for the most part held by the Germans, the patriots inside the city are putting up a gallant fight.

Her men form a part of Canada's army in France and other regiments are part of the British 8th Army in Italy. The Polish soldier is proving a gallant fighter and an honour and a credit to the armies which they form a part. Their airmen have trained in Canada and are part of the gallant R.A.F. crews who nightly bomb Germany. Their sailors have taken their place in convoy duty on the Atlantic lanes.

The battle of Warsaw serves to emphasize the terrible treatment that the Jews have received from the Germans in Poland, but it has not been the Jews alone who have suffered, for W. H. Lawrence, correspondent for The New York Times, tells of a mass-production factory of death at Maidanek where it is estimated that 1,500,000 persons from nearly every country in Europe have been slain in the last three years.

It was a well organized brutal plan of murder. A plan that only the Germans are capable of putting into effect. The camp had its hermetically-sealed gas chambers, in which people were asphyxiated and its five furnaces in which the bodies were cremated. But even this camp was not large enough to handle the mass murder, for thousands more died in sealed railroad cars, the floors of which were sprinkled with chemicals so that they would suffocate. Thousands more were shot in mass massacres. One murder factory alone handled 1,500 people daily.

In these mass murder factories the victims were first forced to disrobe and their clothing was sent to Germany to be used there by the German people. Nobody will ever know how many people have been taken. The Germans are guilty of the most infamous crimes ever perpetuated against mankind. Evidence is being gathered, the names of the officers in charge are already in the hands of the Allies and the day of reckoning is rapidly approaching. We ask what form of punishment should be meted out to these fiends and we are forced to admit that a just form of punishment does not exist for these barbarians.

The Coming Of Autumn

Meanwhile, the goldenrod has come to bloom along the country roads and in fence corners, precariously tolerated along the respectable fringes of agriculture. Your discovery, unlike the eager finding of the earliest hepaticas of April, intrudes upon this waning week of August with sharp and sudden awa eness of September's near approach in the familiar raiment of summer soon to dissolve into the radiant glory of another Canadian autumn.

The gleam of the first fronds of the goldenrod, turning unexpectedly an abrupt corner of the gently changing season, recalls remote fields, unredeemed by any utility except perhaps some lean grazing, soon to blazon wondrously in a golden tapestry upon which summer seems to have fondly lavished all the distilled brilliance of its sunny hours. Untrespassed playground of the birds and of their recent broods, and of their morning songs, these uncultivated fields in which the goldenrod reigns gloriously through September with riotous waste of colour fade at length forlornly into the dull background which November spreads for the first snows and the long hush of winter.

So, August prepares to depart trailed by the assembling portents of the season of the lengthening nights and cooling days. Among these unmistakable signs of change from the febrile heat of August and its sense of eternal summer is the goldenrod cluster in the fence corner with its air of casual blooming and its innocence of approaching finality which the last days of August sound flash the fields.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The saying that war deals hardly with governments has been belied in New Brunswick.

With 22 members in his cabinet apparently Mr. Duplessis lacks nothing in ministerial ability.

That faint noise you hear is the sound of C.C.F. members cheering the results of the New Brunswick election.

The Chemists' Wars

(By J. H. GRAY)

AFTER the German government, in the 1860's and 1870's, contrived to steal the secret of coal-tar chemistry which the great British chemist, Sir William Perkins, had discovered, the German chemical industry underwent a great boom. By 1900 Dr. Carl Druisberg was toying with the idea of combining all German chemistry into one gigantic trust which would pool all patents, all "know-how"—a vital factor in chemistry—and all research under a single head. By 1904 he had sold his scheme to the German government and his fellow chemists and I. G. Farben was born.

As the German geopoliticians of those days schemed and planned for world domination they came continually against a fact of life which stumped them. That fact was nitrogen. The main source of nitrates was Chile. No nation could make war without nitrates because from it alone came the basic components of dynamite, TNT and picric acid. Dependence upon Chilean nitrates was Germany's Achilles' Heel. The British and French navies could blockade the country and bring the mighty German army to its knees almost without a shot being fired.

THIS situation was what an early day Hitler might have called an intolerable affront to German dignity. The general staff batted the problem to the newly formed I. G. Farben. Dr. Druisberg set one of his top chemists to work on the problem of producing nitrogen artificially from the air. That chemist was Dr. Fritz Haber. In 1905 he began his experiments on synthetic nitrogen. With the full support of the high command, I. G. Farben expanded his experimental laboratory in 1908. In the next five years he completed his experiment. A factory capable of producing 10,000 tons of nitrogen was built. It was completed late in 1913. Germany went to war in 1914.

In the inter-war years, war making took a new turn. Mechanization came in and with it the demand for two new strategic materials—rubber and gasoline. Germany had no oil and a new war would require bottomless oil reserves. Britain, the United States, Holland and Russia controlled most of the world's oil resources. Like the Chilean nitrates, oil was far across the sea. Germany had no rubber. Britain owned most of the rubber resources and supplied the world from Malaya.

To fight another necessitated development of synthetic gasoline and synthetic rubber. Once again the German chemists went to work. By 1926 the Farben chemists had perfected experiments for getting both from coal.

The extraction was carried out in experimental laboratories, but the problems of carrying the process to big-scale commercial production took years to work out.

WHILE the Farben chemists worked with feverish impatience, the directors of its destiny not going on the patent and cartel front. Again they filed stacks on stacks of patents, but this time they went farther. They were able to use their patent position as a club with which to force British and American industries to come into their cartels. They made deals with the giant British chemical trust—Imperial Chemicals, with the giants of American industry—Standard Oil and E. I. Dupont. These cartels split the world markets between the members who undertook not to compete with each other in the allotted markets.

But more important for the German militarists than the comercial aspects of the scheme was the pooling of information on synthetic rubber. Farben arranged with Standard Oil and Dupont to exchange patents and formulae. Thus, the American chemists who working to perfect synthetic rubber were actualy working for the German militarists. It is characteristic of Farben that it reneged on its deal with the Americans. It took their valuable information, and withheld its own. When the development of the vital synthetics had reached a commercial stage, Germany went to war. Once again it had been the Farben gang who solved its problem of the blockade.

(The Third of a series on cartels and monopolies.)

Newfoundland

Among the many important questions of Imperial reconstruction which will confront British statesmanship after the war is the constitutional status and economic development of Newfoundland. War has brought to the island unwonted conditions of prosperity, some of which may be expected to survive in the peace. For example, Newfoundland's geographical position assures her a foremost place as a trans-Atlantic airport. On the other hand, she will have to reckon with the loss of more ephemeral benefits due to the arbitrary exigencies of war and will have to look in other directions for her permanent rehabilitation. Lord Bennett pointed out the pressing need for the better use of her fertile soil to dispense with the large imports of farm products on which she has had to rely in the past. The improvement of communications and the exploitation of her mineral and other natural resources demand attention, and generous financial assistance will be required from the Mother Country. Newfoundland has deserved well of the Empire in this war as in the last, and has laid us under obligation to see that she is thoroughly restored to political and economic health. —London Daily Telegraph.

Australia's Baby Bonus

Child endowment is paid to children in Australia under 16, and latest figures show that there is one family of 14 all under this age limit, one of 13, sixteen of 12, 63 of eleven, 230 of ten, 724 of nine, and that the majority of families have only two.

Endowed children number 919557, and the annual cost is £11,954,241. Although there is no direct evidence, department officers believe that many eligible parents do not claim endowment, possibly because they consider it charity.—Australian News Letter.

When Paris Fell

"Four years ago I went back to Paris. Walking the deserted streets, I could not get out of my mind the barbaric words that Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkische Beobachter, had uttered the day that Paris fell. 'Paris' it said, 'was a city of frivolity and corruption, of democracy and capitalism, where Jews had entry to the court, and niggers to the salons. That Paris,' it concluded arogantly, 'will never rise again.' Hitler was wrong. The liberation of Paris, with all it stands for in the civilized world, will be burning proof."—William L. Shirer.

BEGINNING THE LAST CHAPTER

What To Do With Hitler

(FROM THE OTTAWA JOURNAL)

AS the First World War reached its final stages there was much talk about the fate of the German emperor, and in Britain an election was fought and won on the issue "Hang the Kaiser". But the Kaiser meanwhile had scurried to safety in Holland, the Dutch Government declined to give him up for trial, and Wilhelm was permitted to live out his life in ignominous exle.

The world is in no mood to see anything like this happen to Hitler, or to his chief associates Ribbentrop, Himmler, Goering, Goebbels. If they survive the war they must be delivered up to justice and punished for their crimes against humanity—for the oceans of blood they have spilled, the ruthless destruction they have brought upon whole countries, the misery and starvation they have inflicted upon conquered peoples.

There can be no safe refuge anywhere for Hitler, arch-criminal of all times. At liberty anywhere in the world he would become speedily and inevitably a centre of conspiracy and disaffection against the democratic world order—he could not be permitted to find comfortable exile in Spain or Argentina or Sweden or even in an Eastern country. Hitler alive and free would be a constant plague spot.

These gangsters must be turned over to the Allied powers for trial before an international court where legal technicalities will have no part—there can be no other just solution. If in such a court-martial they are proved guilty of murder they should pay the penalty of murder. We cannot let their cases be surrounded with any air of false chivalry, or let our notions of justice be weakened by sentimentality, by sympathy for a beaten enemy. The power of the Nazi leaders must be tramped out utterly, and the leaders themselves removed permanently from any power to work evil.

Of course, Hitler may solve the problem for himself. He may kill himself in a last burst of fanatical zeal, or he may be assassinated. To either course we should take not the least exception.

New Tack, Old Tune

(FROM KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

NAZI propaganda, off on a new tack, now is conceding the inevitable Allied victory. Broadcast quotations from the publication "Berlin-Rome-Tokyo" heard in this country reveal that Dr. Goebbels' writers already are speculating on peace terms and the possibility of a third world war. The frank concession is new, but the thought behind it is a familiar one. Published quotations show the article as forseeing a certain renewal of hostilities if "participation in free access to the world's raw materials," which it calls the fundamental safeguard of peace, is not assured.

The article waves aside the question of harsh or mild peace terms as war-breeders, but stresses "conflicting political issues." These, it develops, are the familiar bogeyman of a "Bolshevized Europe." "It is absurd to believe that Europe, which proved unable to bear Napoleon's domination and which denied Germany's claim to leadership, will bend its knee to Moscow for any length of time," the Nazi propaganda writer says. He predicts failure of a "United States-Russia world police force" and a clash of Soviet and American power in the "so-called Chinese sphere of interests."

In other words, Nazi progaganda is building up the same old case for itself that it has used in the last decade. The article indicates that remnants of the Nazi Party will again weep over lack of "lebensraum" and cry for the stolen colonies. So long as these remnants are alive and articulate they will try to create discord among the "Big Four" of the United Naitons. The article's emphasis on "a United States-Russia world police force, containing also a few Englishmen and Chinese" is a childishly obvious attempt to turn Britain against United States while playing upon Britain's real or fancied fear of a Soviet-dominated Europe, and to frighten China with the same two countries' "imperialistic" intentions.

The Nazi effort to win English sympathy while robot bombs unite the English public in favour of strongest reprisals against Germany is downright stupid. In fact, the whole clever, insidious Nazi propaganda machine has been looking pretty stupid for some time now. All the same, we would do well to remember the principal themes of Nazi propaganda for future reference. Ten years ago Hitler's screaming tirades seemed ridiculous too, even stupid. Yet many people swallowed them and believed them—Britons and Americans and Frenchmen as well as Germans. Hitler's surviving followers must not find another audience.

Don't Send Reinforcements

(FROM BUFFALO COURIER-EXPRESS)

THE Black Watch is among the more famous of the great Highland regiments which have made glorious history on battlefields all over the world. Nowhere in the chronicles of Scotland's Black Watch is there a finer chapter than you can find in a war correspondent's recital of the superb heroism of that regiment's younger brother, the Black Watch of Canada, in the fighting on the Orne.

Ralph Allen, Toronto Globe and Mail correspondent, tells the story:

"Here is the epitaph of a regiment: Three words only—'Don't send reinforcements'.

"From the four rifle companies that comprised almost the full strength of the Black Watch (Royal Highlanders of Canada), the rest was silence. Trapped on a barren ridge just above May-sur-Orne on July 25, in the heart of a powerful German tank, gun and infantry position, all that was left of their gallant spearhead was swallowed up, platoon by platoon, section by section, and finally man by man. Their ammunition ran out as a ring of German heavy guns and lighter automatic weapons went about its deadly work with the calculated precision of a firing squad. Finally, even the thin trickle of wounded, half-walking, half-crawling to the rear, came to an end. As a desperate little party of headquarters and support personnel prepared to fight its way forward in the forlorn hope of making a partial rescue, the last man out, a badly-injured captain, bore this message from the battalion's 24-year-old acting commanding officer: 'Don't send reinforcements. We have too many men here now'.

"Little else is known about what happened on the far side of the ridge where the rifle companies of the Black Watch met their death.

"'Only a handful of men who crossed the ridge ever came back', an officer of the regiment said. 'Those who are still alive are in hospitals. Half a dozen were shell shocked and the rest wounded'."

"Don't send reinforcements." Does that "epitaph of a regiment", as the correspondent calls it, mean that the Black Watch of Canada has passed into history? No; for in the same dispatch Allen writes: "Already a new Black Watch regiment is being formed around the hard core of those who are left. The rear and support echelons escaped relatively lightly—although to give an idea of how bravely they fought, of eight company clerks two were killed and three wounded trying to give what aid they could to the lost riflemen. In a quiet little field just back of the front, those who are left were busy today polishing their mortars and cleaning their rifles, before they stretched out in the sun to get a little rest".

So the "epitaph of a regiment" will become a battle cry instead, inspiring the successors to the heroes of May-sur-Orne as they go into the fight and on to victory. "Scorn of death," as Philip Gibbs once wrote, may have been "born in the Highlands" of Scotland, but it lives in the hearts of Canadian Highlanders, too.

SMITHS ARE LEADING

A recent census discloses that the Smiths and not the MacDonalds are now the predominant tribe in Scotland. There are complaints that such favored names as Dewar, Johnny Walker, Haig and Haig, are also scarcer in some parts of the world.—Ottawa Citizen.

A Bible Message

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ: according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love. (Eph. 1: 3, 4.)

FAULT WITH VOTERS

A recent Gallup canvass tended to show that voters are influenced in their choice at the polls by party policies rather than by the capacity of the candidate for whom they vote. This verdict is not flattering either to the candidates or the voters, and may help to explain why governments at times become dictatorial and Parliaments are reduced to the level of rubber stamps and yes-men.—Hamilton Spectator.

Urges Standard Police Uniforms

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 31 (CP)—James R. Wilkinson, Windsor Police Department's Superintendent of Identification, was named president of the Police Association of Ontario at Wednesday's session of the police convention. In the afternoon delegates made a tour of Greenwich Village and last evening attended a banquet in Dearborn as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford and the Ford Motor Company.

Chief I. L. Robertson of Sault Ste. Marie was named first vice-president; Inspector Percy Last, of London, second vice-president.

Members of the new executive committee are as follows: Chief C. E. Bagnall, Chatham; H. McCready, of the Ontario Provincial Police; Chief Wilfred Young, Brockville; Deputy Chief V. H. Neale, Windsor; Chief Elmer Simmon, Hespeler; Inspector Arthur Webster, Forest Hill; Sgt. J. Penlington, of the C.P.R. police; Sgt. J. Anderson, of the C.N.R. police of Toronto; Police Constable J. Wedge, Dundas; Detective-Sgt. W. J. Meagher, Peterborough; Sgt. S. C. Pratt, of Sarnia; and Sgt. James Case, Barrie.

President Wilkinson, chiefly responsible for success of the Canadian Police Spitfire Fund, announced that the fund lacks only $1,500 to make purchase of a third Spitfire. These machines cost $25,000 each, he pointed out.

Chief Harold Nash, of Guelph, introduced a lively discussion regarding the advisability of having standardized uniforms for police throughout the province. He argued that this form of standardization would help tourists. The idea found general approval and was referred to a special committee or consideration.

On Wrong Track.

Juvenile delinquency came in for attention and the statement of Chief Constable J. Hawkshaw, of Cornwall township, that police should not be friends of juveniles since such friendship removed the fear that children should properly have of police officers came under attack.

Chief Nash declared he felt Chief Hawkshaw was "defintely on the wrong track." Through friendship with young people, he said, police can find out things from the youngsters, about which they would otherwise be unaware.

Major Edwin Watts, deputy assistant provost marshal for Military District No. 2, and former chnef constable of Napanee, was asked to relate his experiences with combating juvenile delinquency in that area. He told how he had won the confidence of boys who might have caused trouble by organizing sports and camps for them.

Daniel Thompson, editor and manager of the Canadian National Police Review, attacked radio programs featuring crime and shooting. He said this situation must be corrected if juvenile delinquency is to be kept down.

Cooperation of the Chief Constables Association of Canada was promised by George A. M. Shea, C.N.R. director of police, and vice-president of the Chief Constables Association, in an address before the convention.

Capt. F. J. Smith, of the R.C.M.P., who spent four years overseas, with the No. 6 Provost Corps, outlined the cooperation in Britain between the military and civilian police.

In this connection, representatives of the military police gave assurance that they stand ready to cooperate with police departments to the fullest and thanked the Ontario police in general for their cooperation in the past. Present at the convention were the Deputy Assistant Provost Marshals of the three Ontario Military Districts.

Sappers Bridge Seine River

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY ON THE SEINE, Aug. 30.—(CP Cable.)—A daring lone reconnaissance mission by Lieut. Harold Vodden of the Royal Canadian Engineers, who comes from the Carp area of Eastern Ontario, led to the first bridging of the Seine by the Canadian Army.

Vodden's orders were to find a suitable location on the Seine where the advancing Canadians could throw a bridge over the wide river. So he drove east in a jeep beyond the leading infantry battalions and into country where no Canadian troops had ever been.

As he neared the river he met armored cars of the Manitoba Dragoons who had come from another direction. He continued to operate alone, reached the river, then scouted along the banks for miles until he found a good spot for a bridge. Much of the reconnaissance had to be done on foot in broad daylight.

Finally he got back word to his headquartqers. Sapper companies and bridging material rolled up to the area right behind infantry as they pushed to the river. Ten hours later the Seine was bridged at the point Vodden had chosen.

Westclox Girls Swamp Belleville Team

Starting their quest for a provincial title, Westclox, Peterborough representatives found little opposition last night when they met Belleville Reliance at Riverside Park, in the first game of a best-of-three intermediate P. W. S. U. series, winning in hollow fashion by 21 runs to 1.

The Belleville girls, making their debut in provincial competition showed inexperience and they were plainly nervous. The result was that the Big Bens, crashing through the delivery of Millie Foster for a total of 25 hits, won as they pleased.

Isobel Bullock pitching for the Westclockers, did not allow a hit until two were out in the seventh frame when Helen Garrow scratched a double on a fly that Aggie Anderson almost got. The Reliance girls managed to bunch two hits with a pass in the eighth to score their only run of the game. The Big Ben pitcher struck out 10 of the visitors and until the last couple of innings had the Reliance batters eating out of her hand, while her effective pitching was supported by cleancut fielding.

Millie Foster who went the route for the visitors had nothing with which to puzzle the Peterborough batters and they teed off all night. Viola McLean led the attack with six hits in six trips to the plate one of them a double. Nona Whetung and Beryl Dobbin each had four blows and Marg. Hawthorne and Isobel Bullock both slapped out three-run homers.

Maxine McKenna, Reliance catcher, was the only visitor to get more than one hit. She came through on her last two appearances at the plate.

Besse Fans 13 Fliers Win Title

WICHITA, Kans., Aug. 31—(CP).—Herman Besse, whose talented left arm once made him a valuable asset to the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League and the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, is the hero of the national semi-pro baseball tournament.

Besse, who now pitches for the Sherman Field Flyers of Fort Leavenworth, Kans., struck out 13 men last night, singled and then scored the winning run as his team defeated the Enidairs from the Enid, Okla., army air field 5-4 for the national championship. Besse allowed 11 hits, but was cagey with men on bases.

The victory made the Flyers the United States' representative in the first Canadian-American semi-pro series, to be played in London, Ont., starting September 15.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough softball fans are evidently in for another treat tomorrow evening when Oshawa General Motors Main Office team will meet Plazas in the second game of their O.A.S.A. intermediate A playdowns. The Oshawa team won the opening game of the series at home last evening in one of the tightest games in which Plazas have been engaged this season 3 to 2 so that the Peterborough team has to win tomorrow night and even up the series or retire for the year. Plazas, in other words, are in the same position as they were a few days ago in the Trenton series which they had to win the hard way. This Oshawa outfit which finished second to the Colts in the Oshawa loop and had the pleasure of taking a fall out of the high-riding provincial champs are a tough aggregation and Plazas will have to come up with their best ball of the summer to head them off here tomorrow night. The Peterborough players are confident that they can come through with a win and make a third game necessary. The biggest crowd of the season will be on hand to see the battle for the two exciting games with Trenton here have the fans thoroughly enthused. There were more telephone calls into The Examiner office last night asking for the score of the Oshawa game than there have been in connection with any local sporting event for several years. The game will be staged at Riverside Park at 6 o'clock tomorrow Friday evening and it really should be a honey.

Westclox girls, playing fine ball behind effective pitching by Isobel Bullock completely wrecked the Belleville Reliance team here last night in the first game of the provincial playdowns. For a long time it looked as if the Big Bens' pitcher was going to come through with a no-hitter for the visitors did not get a blow until two were out in the seventh. Millie Foster, the Reliance pitcher, has probably seen all she wants to see of the Westclockers. Earlier in the season they broke through her service for 17 runs when she pitched here for the R.C.A.F. Bomberettes in an exhibition game and last night she was combed for 25 hits as her team went down to defeat 21 to 1. Viola McLean's feat of getting six hits in as many trips to the plate was one of the season's best batting records and Marg Hawthorne and Isobel Bullock each came through with homers with two on bases in each case. Every member of the winners got at least one hit and all but Joyce Withers scored at least once. Westclox play the return game in Belleville Saturday afternoon, with the arrangement being that if a third game should be necessary it will be played that evening. There shouldn't be any need of a third fixture.

In the intermediate playoff series in the Girls' Softball League Brintons and Johnson Motors will clash at the Ashburnham Bowl this evening and it should be a lively argument. The intermediate final round is a best-of-seven affair and Brintons who have won the title for the past two seasons are riding out in front with two straight wins over the Outboard Marines. The latter are now in the position that they have to win tonight's game or find themselves faced with the task of having to try to beat Brintons four games in a row. The Johnson girls are confident that they can turn the trick while Brintons are just as sure that victory will perch on their banners. Phyllis Corrigan or Doris Walker will do the pitching for the carpet makers as they seek their third win in succession while Helen Mark will likely get the assignment for the Outboard Marines. It should be a tight struggle all the way down the stretch for the teams look to be very evenly matched, in spite of the fact that Brintons are leading the series with two straight wins.

Two well-known sporting personalities have promised to attend Peterborough's big Labor Day celebration in aid of Christmas parcels for the boys in the armed services. They are Lionel Conacher, chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission and Irvin Ace Bailey, former Peterborough hockey star, who graduated from the Petes into professional hockey with the Toronto Maple Leafs and had a great record with that club Conacher was one of the country's outstanding athletes, a crack half back in football, a sturdy defence player in hockey, a good ball player, a star lacrosse exponent and not too bad in wrestling either His coming to Peterborough for the celebration and the presence of Ace Bailey, one of the most popular players who ever wore a local uniform will add interest to the big affair. So will the visit of two crack Toronto softball aggregations, Simpsons ladies' team and the Bowsers, one of the strong men's teams in the Queen City. With races, novelty contests, a swimming exhibition, a demonstration by Duke the famous R.C.M.P. dog and a wealth of other features including a carnival and a draw for three fine prizes there will be something doing every minute and the celebration promises to set a new record in interest and attendance.

"It would please many of his friends if Paul Derringer would decide to call it a day when the present National League race ends," writes Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Gazette. "Of course, he would be a welcome sight as a minor manager or major coach, but as far as taking his regular turn against opposing batters, the big righthander is just another thrower. If he were still the Derringer of Cincinnati days, he would be crowding the 20 win mark at this time, but he's finding the task hard and with so few batters of pre-war type on duty, the tipoff on his finish is out. Derringer rates with the finest hurlers to show in fast company the past twenty years and you could count on the fingers of one hand, superiors to the present Cup vet. He and Bucky Walters were the greatest reasons why Bill McKechnie won pennants in 1939 and '40 and a series triumph in the latter year, but it's a different Paul now, and it is not the nicest sight to see such an immortal thumped so much in his late seasons."

New York Yanks are back in second place in the American League race by virtue of a 9 to 7 win over the Boston Red Sox and Joe McCarthy's men are only 3½ games off the pace. St. Louis Browns staggering a bit under pressure, were bumped off 12 to 7 by the Cleveland Indians and the American League race is still wide open. If the Detroit Tigers could come up with another pitcher of the Hal Newhouser-Dizzy Trout calibre they might be the outfit to take it all. But Newhouser and Trout can't pitch every other day and neither of them worked yesterday with the result that the Bengals were bumped off 8 to 3 by the Chicago White Sox. In the National League the Pittsburg Pirates were cooled of by the Chicago Cubs who took both ends of a double-header. Rip Sewell was the victim in the first game and Nick Strincevich was chalked up with the loss of the second one, although he disappeared before the finish. Ben Chapman, the veteran who used to be an outfielder and has now blossomed out into a pitcher held the Phillies to four hits as the Brooklyn Dodgers took the argument 10 to 2. St. Louis Cards didn't get a chance to win as their game with the Cincinnati Reds was rained out.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Frank Stokoe surely lost a tough game at Oshawa last night....The Plaza pitcher allowed Oshawa Main Office only two hits but was beaten 3 to 2, two errors being responsible for two out of the three Oshawa runs....Plazas had three golden opportunities to pull the game out of the fire but couldn't come through with the necessary hits....Eddie Starr contributed two doubles and a single for half his team's hit total and Jim Ellis drove in both the Plazas' runs with a timely single in the first frame....The teams play the second game here tomorrow night and it should be a wow of a ball game....Westclox girls looked good in all departments as they smothered Belleville Reliance last night. ....There was a flavor of hockey about the visit of the Belleville team.... Plazas Outhit Oshawa Team But Drop First Of Series 3-2

OSHAWA, Aug. 31—Peterborough Plazas dropped the first game of their second round OASA Intermediate "A" playdowns to Oshawa intermediate representatives "Main Office" here last night by a score of 3 to 2. Brilliant defensive pitching by Harvey Bennett, Oshawa Generals noted goalie, was the deciding factor in the nip-and-tuck contest, as the Plazas actualy outhit the home club by six to two but couldn't make their bingles count.

The Liftlock City boys scored their only two runs in the first inning when Starr drew a walk and Heal dribbled a perfect bunt down the third base line. Conroy popped out and Blewett fanned but Jim Ellis drilled one through the shortstop's side of second base and his two mates, who had previously advanced to second and third on a wild pitch scored on the hit.

After that the Plazas couldn't score, although they did get runners on bases, several times it was the first batter of the inning. Starr singled in the third but was forced at second. Conroy walked and with only one out, Blewett again struck out and Ellis grounded weakly to the box.

Miss Good Chance

In the seventh inning, Peterborough missed good chance when Burton opened with a single. Hawkes popped out and Stokoe flied out to right. Eddie Starr hit a double down the foul line but both runners were left on bases when Heal struck out.

Bennett had his only shaky inning in the eighth when he walked Conroy to start it off. Blewett fanned for the third time and Ellis forced Conroy. Tucker then walked and the runners advanced on a wild pitch but McGarry fielded Burton's bid for the third out.

In the ninth innings the visitors made a last big bid but once again Harvey Bennett arose to the occasion. With one out, Woods, batting for Stokoe, drew a walk. Eddie Starr hit another two-bagger in exactly the same place. With the tying and winning runs on third and second Pinch Hitter Pryde was called out after getting the count to the limit and then Conroy watched the third strike go up the middle, to wind up the exciting game.

One Bad Inning

Oshawa got all their runs in the fourth inning on two errors and a home run and a piece of slow ball by the visitors. Petre was safe on Heal's fumble and then Rospond fanned. Frank McGarry poled out a terrific homer into deep centre to tie up the score. Brudek drew a walk after this homer and then Heal fumbled Covert's grounder, as Brudek went to third. Covert got himself caught between first and second deliberately and while the Plazas were getting him out, Brodek stole home with what proved the winning run of the game.

Outside of McGarry's homer, a scratch infield hit by way was Oshawa's only other safe blow. Bennett struck out seven batters and Stokoe fanned seven also. Defensive fielding gems were provided by Tucker's one-handed catch, McGarry's leaping catch, Covert's running catch to rob Blewett and by the rival third

Trenton Rejects Rugby Plan

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 31 — Any chances the Trenton RCAF Stars had of competing in the Ontario Service League senior football loop went by the boards when Group Capt. Bell-Irving, officer commanding the Trenton RCAF Station, announced the project had been rejected at a meeting of the station sports committee Wednesday.

"We are not likely to start in the proposed service league football group. We feel we are too far away from Toronto to assume the responsibilities of a full schedule.

"We have a schedule of work to complete at the station here, which naturally comes first. The distances involved to fulfil such a schedule are too great in the face of present-day transportation facilities," Group Capt. Bell-Irving informed The Globe and Mail today. "I am an old footballer myself, and naturally regret such a move, but we have a large intramural sports program, as well as interstation competition throughout the Quinte district.

"These programs will take care of the necessities of our sports program for the interest of a larger number of our personnel," added Group Capt. Bell-Irving.

The Fliers will continue in the No. 1 Command RCAF baseball playdowns, however.

It's used daily to make certain steel in Blue Gillette Blades is correctly tempered to take and hold the sharpest edges ever honed—and give you the world's smoothest shaves."

Detroit Meets Tough Browns; Must Win Again

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit ran head-on into St. Louis Browns today in a do-or-die pennant series while the Yankees took on second-division opposition.

If the New Yrkers aren't too tired after climbing the steps from second to fourth and back to second in the last three days, the schedule calling for a six-game home set with the last-place Washington Senators offers a golden opportunity.

Detroit needed to repeat last week-end's three out of four success or be practically counted out of the running.

Although the Tigers put the Brownies down for a nine-count in their last series, the season figures give the league-leaders a 12-6 edge with four to go.

The Browns ran into trouble in Cleveland yesterday, blowing a substantial lead as the Tribe counted eight times in the eighth to grab a 12-7 decision. Reliefer Jim Bagby took the win over George Caster who replaced starter Jack Kramer.

New York hopped back into the place slot, 3½ games back by outslugging Boston, 9-7, although Jimmy Bucher unloaded two homers and Bob Johnson one in a rousing finish that just missed.

Detroit stumbled against Chicago and bowed to Ed Topat, 8-3. Running out of Newhousers and Trouts, the Tigers started Johnny Gorsica, who absorbed his 10th straight beating. Dutch Leonard tossed Washington to a 9-4 verdict over Philadelphia's Luke Hamlin in the other American Leaguer.

Chicago dealt a body blow at Pittsburgh's second-place hopes by twice trimming the Pirates, 12-5 and 6-3. Hank Wyse and Claude Passeau were the winners over Rip Sewell and Ray Starr in a double that lasted 5½ hours and included homers by Dom Dallessanro, Babe Dahlgren and Vince DiMaggio.

Cincinnati, rained out at St. Louis, moved to within 2½ games of second spot.

Ben Chapman pitched and batted Brooklyn to a 10-2 slaughter of Philadelphia and Jim Tobin stopped New York Giants with five hits to gain a 4-2 edge for Boston with the help of round trippers by Whitey Weitelmann and Buck Etchison.

By HYE BOSSIN

The life of Shakespeare will come to the screen through the pen of an American writer, Ben Hecht. The Bard lived in lusty times and among gay friends. His story should be a great one and it is to be hoped that it doesn't get off the Elizabethan path in being brought to the screen.

It all brings to mind the story of the Hollywood producer who saw a fine stage play called "Romeo and Juliet" and enquired after the writer. On being told his name and that he was an Englishman, the producer wired his British representative to obtain a contract for the writer's works.

"Shakespeare dead," was the reply via cable.

"Sorry," the producer wired back. "Send flowers."

Indoor woods were created by Samuel Goldwyn for the shooting of "Wonder Man," Danny Kaye's next film. California mists drove the production inside and a set resembling Central Park, New York, had to be created. On it are 100 trees, shrubs, a bridle path and several thousand square feet of grass—all under a single cover. . . . Newest suggestion for Canadian production of dramas comes from Professor Arthur L. Phelps, who isn't satisfied with John Grierson's idea of Dominion films to be made in New York or Hollywood. . . Professor Phelps doesn't see why we can't "do a gem of at least a filmette," for which the government would pay. It's an interesting suggestion, although Hollywood, in spite of its many years of experience, has never discovered a formula for film gems of any kind. It's unlikely that Canadian film craftsmen know that secret either.

They needed 350 extras for "Hollywood Canteen" and couldn't get them so the producer sent news over to the real Hollywood Canteen that servicemen on leave could make some extra dollars by appearing in the film. That brought 354 soldiers to play soldier. . . More than 1,000 Italian theatres are now showing the same films as Canadians see. . . David Niven, with the British Army, dated his letters "Beachhead, Normandy." He recently wrote a friend that "this is the biggest production I have ever been in. And all in Technicolor! How are the notices so far?". . . Alan Ladd, discharged by the army, no sooner completed John Farrow's "Two Years Before the Mast" when he was ordered back for re-examination. Now he's in the army again. . . The song soldiers have been demanding most from Irving Berlin during his tour is "White Christmas." He wrote it and Bing Crosby banged it across the hit line. . . Joan Davis and her husband, Si Wills, have been married for 13 years. Seems like a novelty to stay married that long in Hollywood.

Thirty years ago Arthur Treacher, the film butler, and Sydney Greenstreet, "The Fat Man," did a song-and-dance together in London music halls. . . "Son of Lassie" is the ninth or tenth motion picture to use British Columbia scenery as a background. Now there is talk of complete production in the future. John Davis, who manages Britain's largest theatre chain for J. Arthur Rank, has been touring Canada and examining the possibility of establishing studios on this side for Old Country film makers. Such studios will probably be located in Canada's Pacific coast province because of its proximity to California. . . There were 686 feature films shown in Canada last year, the average theatre using 138 annually. British Columbia citizens spent an average each of $8.29 for movie entertainment during the year and Ontario came next with $6.97.

Stratford Ousts Waterloo Tigers

By The Canadian Press

Stratford Nationals eliminated Waterloo Tigers with a 9-7 victory in the third and deciding game of the intermediate "A" playoffs in the inter county loop last night at Stratford and qualified to meet the Niagara district contenders in the O. B. A. playdowns. It was reported after the game the Nats might withdraw from competition for an undisclosed reason.

In an O. B. A. midget playdown fixture at Niagara Falls, S. Catharines defeated Lundy's Lane 7-4, with Watson responsible for a homer and single for the victors. A bantam playdown engagement at Oakes stadium resulted in a 7-3 win for Welland over Niagara Falls north ends.

The opening game of the O. B. A. juvenile playdowns at Welland last night between Niagara Falls and Welland Clippers brought a 7-2 victory for the home team. Catcher Joe Brown homered for the first Welland run.

Oshawa nosed out Peterborough 3-2 at the motor city in the initial tussle of the second round of the Ontario Intermediate "A" softball playdowns. The Petes scored both runs in the first innings but Frank McGarry tied the count with a two-run homer.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton baseball club is back in the good graces of the Ontario Baseball Association, having become reconciled to the ruling of the Provincial body that Saturday night's semi-final game with St. Catharines-Merriton Combines in the Niagara Senior League would have to be replayed. The O. B. A. order came when Hamilton used Pitcher Paul Wargo as a replacement for Ex Leaf Dick Fowler who had been barred from further play by army regulations. Decision to meet the Combines again came, Hamilton club officials said last night, when the Combines agreed to take only one-sixth of the gate receipts for the tilt.

Sidney B. Wood of New York, winner of the British Championship at Wimbledon in 1931 and top player for more than a decade, bowed to Charley Oliver of Perth Amboy, N. J., in a first-round upset of the U. S. National Tennis championships at Forest Hills, N. Y., yesterday. Oliver was the 1943 National Interscholastic champion. Winner of the Women's Singles for two years, Pauline Betz of Los Angeles defeated Mrs. E P. Cushingham of Florida in two sets.

The Lockport, N. Y., team has clinched the Pony Baseball League pennant and the organization's officials yesterday decided to start the semi-final play-offs next Wednesday between four of the clubs.

Widely known as a harness driver and trainer, John D. Dickerson, 81, died yesterday at a hospital in Greensburg, Ind. He had managed many large stables.

Manager Joe Cronin of Boston Red Sox and manager Bob Coleman of the Boston Braves were both re-signed by their respective clubs yesterday, Cronin getting a three-year contract and Coleman securing a renewal for two years.

2,500 Attend Trotting Races

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Aug. 31—(CP)—Keen competition was seen in the events at Wallaceburg races at Saints' Park yesterday when a crowd of more than 2,500 saw two horses take three straight heats in a row in the 2:28 class and 2:24 trot. In the former, Farmer Grattan, owned by Len Guy of Seaforth, had no difficulty in getting around, his fastest time being 2:11¾, and in the latter Argot Dillon, owned by Smith and Miller of Dutton, did the mile in 2:16¼.

The track was fairly fast, although a bit dusty, but ideal weather conditions otherwise prevailed. It was the first harness meet of the year in Wallaceburg, and delighted the large crowd.

Cuban Beaten By Castilloux

MONTREAL, Aug. 31—(CP)—Dave Castilloux, Canadian holder of the lightweight and welterweight titles, last night displayed his ring mastery here, when he score a clean-cut decision over Santiago Sosa, Cuban lightweight titleholder. The Canadian weighed 134¾, Sosa 133½.

Appearing in his second bout since getting out of the RCAF, Castilloux had too much ring gneralship for Sosa. The judges voted unanimously for the French-Canadian and The Canadian Press scorecard voted six rounds for Castilloux, one for Sosa and three even. There were no no knockdowns.

Overcoming a heavy flurry of body punches by the Cuban in the early rounds, Castilloux came on in the late stanzas to unlose some of his own artillery. In the seventh round he slowed Sosa down with several one-two punches to the head. Sosa seemed unable to keep up his rapid-fire punching after that and Castilloux left no doubt as to his supremacy in the remaining rounds.

Featuring a card, which attracted an estimated 5,000 fans, the Castilloux-Sosa bout was one of the best seen here in some time. Castilloux looked like the same sharp fighter that won a one-sided verdict over Al Lust, the Calgary Kid, the year he entered the RCAF in 1942.

In the semi-final, Gus Mell of Montreal took an eight-round verdict over Ted Finlay, Toronto, to successfully retain his Canadian featherweight crown.

Oriole-Newark Series To Decide Race

By The Associated Press

The International League pennant race, close all season, should be decided with the opening of the five-game Baltimore-Newark series to-day.

The Orioles, in first place by 2½ games, were dumped by a 5-3 count last night as their ace, Red Embree, went down to defeat at the hands of Jersey City Giants. Should the Bears win three or four times, the race will be thrown into a last ditch fight between the two clubs.

If Baltimore can make a decisive showing, they will stretch their margin to the point where only a sustained drive to the end of the season, Sept. 10, by the Bears can turn the trick.

Toronto solidified its hold on fourth place by defeating Montreal, 6-2. Woody Crowson scattered five Royal hits for his 11th victory. Wading into John Gabbard and Wayne Collins for 15 hits, each Leaf got a safe blow. The defeat just about eliminated Montreal's hopes of gaining a play-off spot.

Rochester took an up and down ball game from Buffalo, 7-5, as Mike Naymick racked up his first International League triumph in nine starts.

Burleigh Road Repair Asked

The council of the Township of Smith met at the court house, Peterborough this week. All members were present with Reeve McIlmoyl presiding.

Gordon K. Fraser presented a petition signed by cottage owners in the Burleigh Falls area requesting that some repairs be made to the old Burleigh road; this road reverted to the township after the highway was built. The road superintendent and Councillor Bullock were appointed to see that necessary repairs were made.

According to 1944 amendments to the Municipal Act it is compulsory to have two signatures on all cheques issued, and in future cheques will be signed by the treasurer and countersigned by the reeve.

The Municipal officers were authorized to sign and submit to the Department of Highways a statement showing the total road expenditure from January 1 to August 31, and requesting the interim subsidy payment.

Allan B. Mann asked municipal approval for a plan of 23 lots recently surveyed on his Chemong Lake property. On motion the Reeve ad Clerk were authorized to sign on behalf of the township.

A delegation of members of the Home and School Association of Queen Elizabeth School was present, the Association is interested in securing the services of the Victorian Order of Nurses in the suburban area adjoining the city. Miss Mary Ross, superintendent of the Order in Peterborough and James Dutton, president of the local branch, accompanied the delegation. Miss Ross and Mr. Dutton explained the work carried out by the Order and answered questions in regard to operating costs. After some discussion it was decided to call a meeting at an early date, at Queen Elizabeth School to obtain the wishes of the residents in this matter.

The following accounts were approved for payment: C. English, salary, $80 William Robinson, garbage contract, $70; Dawe's Printing Co., supplies, $11.78; Registrar of Deeds, list of transfers $1.01; Peterborough Examiner, notice, $1.40; Road accounts $439.52.

The group today is studying ways and means of having the 18-year limit extended across the Dominion. The Federation has also undertaken a campaign for the removal of poll taxes.

U.S. CORRESPONDENT SEES A CANADIAN BREN—A quintet of Canadians in a war-ravaged French village take time out to show James Cassidy, an American war correspondent, fine points of the Bren gun, that "sweet little baby that plays such an important part in street fighting." They have had lots of street fighting in France, every hamlet being a haven for snipers long after the main body of Hun troops have retired. Handling the Brens are Spr. John Teperto of Winnipeg and Spr. Ed. Kube of St. Thomas.

His brother, Sgt. Herb. Bowen (Left), is also with the Canadian forces in France. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen, of 3 Grandview avenue. Another brother, L.-Cpl. NORWEGIAN AID.

PRESENTATION OF PLAQUE

The presentation of the plaque to the children of Peterborough city and county schools in honor of them purchasing enough war savings stamps to provide a Hurricane fighter is to be made at Nicholls Oval on October 4 it was announced today. The committee under the chairmahship of Major Gordon Monkman is making arrangements for this event.

PASTORAL LETTER

A pastoral letter from Bishop McDonald was read Sunday in all the churches of the diocese of Peterborough directing that Sunday September 3 be observed as a special day of prayer as requested by the Federal Government in compliance with the wishes of His Majesty King George VI for an early and victorious end of the war and the re-establishment of peace and justice throughout the world.

STARTING EARLY

Someone evidentally celebrating the 24th of May ahead of time was gaily setting off colorul sky-rockets and other types of firecrackers somewhere along the southerly shore of Little Lake Wednesday evening. Many canoeists out on the lake, paused to enjoy the spectacle of the premature barrage of fireworks. Outside of Labor Day being just around the corner, and the liberation of Paris, no earthly reason for the event could be deduced.

BAD PRACTICE

Three or four young boys were seen throwing glass, tin cans and other refuse into the Otonabee from the pile of garbage located along the west bank Wednesday evening, and they seemed to b entirely unaware of the foolishness of the act. Although warned at least every five minutes by a passing boat, the boys kept at their sport until darkness, and consequently, a great number of cans have floated out into the river, and much glass must now repose at the bottom. Thowing refuse into the river may be fun, but it isn't exactly the wisest thing to do.

TALK ON HOLLYWOOD

Captain Jack Young, of Norwood, will address the Kiwanis Club Friday, and tell of some of the experiences he has had in Hollywood.

MISSING.

Sergeant Ross William Lough, son of George Lough, of Belleville, has been reported missing after air operations by the Department of National Defence to-day.

BUS DAMAGED

Some damage was done to the Lakefield bus in front of the Sanitary Ice plant Wednesday evening in a collision with a car driven by R. H. Turner which was coming out of the driveway at the plant. The rear panel and light on the bus suffered from the impact. James Reid, Lakefield, was the driver of the bus.

ANOTHER FALSE ALARM.

The already lengthy list of false alarms turned in during the past few days was increased Wednesday evening after 11 o'clock when another dud brought the reels screaming to the corner of Aylmer and McDonnell streets. Outside of that, fireman reported a quiet night.

ONE CENT SHORT

Even small boys have their worries, like the little fellow today turning in empty "coke" bottles, and when he was paid for them he counted his money with a note of doubt in his voice, and finally said: "I still need one cent to see Bufflao Bill." Probably he had enterprise enough to scrape up that extra copper to see the picture show on which he had set his mind.

LANED 13-POUNDER

Clare Collins, Dr. "Bill" Gordon and Herb Bradburn nearly wasted several hours fishing at Chemong Wednesday. With nothing to show for their questing about the lake, they were back to land when the Alderman of the trio suggested one last try out from the boat livery. And that spirit of sticking with it, otherwise perseverance, yielded reward, as Mr Collins hooked and landed a 13-pound muskie.

LEAVE MICKEYS AT HOME

An embarassing situation might develop if anyone carries any whisey, beer, wine, or other drinks on their person to the mammoth Labor Day celebration at Riverside Park Monday. Duke, the famed R.C.M.P. police dog, has mastered the knack of smelling and tracing down the beverages, and so far the dog has never been baffled. So, better watch out, if you don't want Duke dashing up to you, sniffing, and calling every policeman in the city to the scene!

Lawn Bowlers Render Aid To Robot Victims

Above all else, all sports lovers who play the game for the sake of the game itself do have a great love of fair play, and will go to great lengths to counteract or do away with anything that pertains to meanness or underhand work of any kind.

This can hardly fail to spread itself to all their dealings, in which respect this has been clearly demonstrated by the manner in which the sports loving patrons and participants have stood behind the efforts of their various groups to raise money to counteract the evil destruction on the civilian life in Britain, by an enemy to whom the international agreements in regard to civilian rights in warfare have been only a mere scrap of paper.

The dumping of bombs on an unprotected people which had no military value was in its day considered the highest type of infamous warfare, and now even a worse type of destruction known as robot or flying bombs has come into being, destroying in an even greater measure at wilful random life and property on a scale much larger still.

Bowlers Double Former Effort.

Just how well the members of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club have risen to the occasion in helping to counteract this latest menace and help the victoms of this vicious type of warfare is summed up in the result of an effort which they held last Friday night, when well over twice the amount of their previous effort was raised and handed over to the secretary-manager of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund.

Arranged by a committee headed by G. Gimblett as chairman and assisted in splendid manner by F. M. Brown and Robert Hendry, with splendid support by the members, some of whom added considerably more than the fee charged for participation in the evening's sport, this group is tonight credited with the really splendid sum of $132 for this great humanitarian project which compares so tremendously favorable in ratio when contrasted with a similar event held last year for the same purpose which raised the sum of $63.00.

Donated Prizes Assist.

Of material assistance in giving a 100 per cent return to help the fund were prizes donated by the Knox Jewellery Store, Payne's Drug Store, Schneiders Jewellery Store, Stocks Bread Ltd., Warnes Jewellery Store, Grafton and Co. Ltd., Robert Fair Ltd., Ed. Riley, Trebilcock's Bookstore, and J. W. Steinkraus, which were won in order of merit by Mrs. W Hepburn, Mrs. P. Moore, Mrs A. Gibbs, Mrs. C. Braund and Messrs. T. McMillan, W. Ashby, D. Fulford, G. Spence, V. Tully, B. Grant, N. Hamly, J. Arnott, G. Snowden, S. F. Downey and R. Hendry.

In typical fashion in other efforts connected with the raising of money to help the fund, Bob Hendry turned back his consolation prize of $1.00 to help swell the amount raised by the club, and this same attitude of helpfulness seemed to permeate the whole atmosphere during the course of the whole evenings event by the members themselves, which rebounds so creditably to the club as a whole, headed by P. E. Moore, their president.

Another evidence of just how wholehearted was the backing given this effort is contained in the fact that the Ladies Social Committee added a cheque of $5.00 in lieu of serving light refreshments, giving up that added social touch so welcome to most people, in order that others in unfortunate circumstances might benefit all the more.

The fund management wishes to express its sincere thanks and appreciation to the special committee in charge for the occasion, and the officers and all members of the club for the splendid assistance this group has thus rendered, not forgetting to include Herb Martin for his part in giving the event some publicity.

Peterboro Man Sentenced For Stealing Drugs

Lavergne Killingbeck, Park street, was sentenced to two years less one day definite and six months indeterminate by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning after he had been convicted on a charge of breaking and entering the office of Dr. J. C. Smith, Lakefield, on August 17, and stealing a quantity of drugs.

Evidence of a number of little boys and girls, ranging in age from eight to 11 years helped to convict the accused.

Killingbeck elected summary trial and had no lawyer. The prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Dr. Smith testified that Killingbeck had called at his office early on the evening of August 17 and had wanted a hypodermic. "He was obviously in need of drugs" said the witness. "He was trembling and shaky."

Discovers Break-in

Dr. Smith said that he had told the accused that he was out of the required drug but that Killingbeck had remained around the place in spite of being warned away. He was still on the street outside Dr. Smith's apartment when the latter left for Peterborough. When the doctor returned to his apartment several hours later he found that the front door had been broken into and that his medical bag had been rummaged through. He also discovered that a quantity of heroin and morphine mixture tablets had been stolen.

Dr. Smith said that he had seen Killingbeck in the police station here later that night and that it was obvious that in the meantime the accused had had some drug because his condition had greatly changed.

Five children, Edna Nelson, 11; Esther Phillips, 8; Don Crawford, 10; Don Henry and Margaret Smith all gave evidence. The little Nelson girl testified that she had seen Killingbeck going up the stairway to Dr. Smith's office and then had heard the sound of pounding.

The other identified Killingbeck as the man who had been around Dr. Smith's place on the evening of August 17.

Chief Garnet Samis testified that he saw Killingbeck on Bridge street, Lakefield, shortly before 8 o'clock and that at first he thought he was drunk. On calling Killingbeck over to his car, however, he arrived at the conclusion that the man had been using drugs, because of his appearance and the brightness of his eyes.

Killingbeck had left Lakefield that night, Chief Samis said on a bus several minutes before 8 o'clock.

Percy Seymour, driver of the bus, called by the defence said that he could not remember Killingbeck riding on his bus that night.

Accused Testifies

Killingbeck said that he suffered from a heart condition and that he had gone to Dr. Smith's office to get a hypodermic to relieve the pain. He said that Dr. Smith told him that he had used his last hypo, but that he was going to Peterborough that night and might be able to help him when he returned. Accused also said that Dr. Smith told him to go around to the back because he was too well known in Lakefield.

Killingbeck swore that he did not break into his office or steal any drugs.

Recalled by the crown, Dr. Smith denied that he had told Killingbeck to remain at the back of the office building.

Magistrate Gee said that the crown evidence was circumstantial, but that it pointed to the guilt of the accused.

"It is the drug habit that got you into all this trouble," said His Worship, after scanning the record of the accused. "Where would be the best place for you; the penitentiary or the reformatory?" he asked Killingbeck.

"Fresh air and sunshine are what I need", said the accused. "I wouldn't get them in the penitentiary."

Sgt. Bud White Battle Casualty

A winner of the British Empire Medal, Sgt. E. C. "Bud" White, son of Mr. and Mrs. David White, 319 Burnham street, has been officially reported wounded in action in France, according to a telegram received Wednesday by his parents. The information revealed the young sergeant was wounded August 22, but no additional details were given.

Enlisting in the Prince of Wales Rangers when that unit went active in 1942, he went overseas in the early part of this year, and since then, has been attached to the famed Montreal Black Watch Regiment. He happened to be ill in a hospital when the Black Watch made its heroic stand in France.

Sgt. White is well-known in athletic circles here, and took part in baseball and other sports. Previous to his enlistment, he was employed in the Wire Department of the Canadian General Electric Company. A brother, Steward Robert White, is with the R.C.N.V.R. At present, he is serving aboard the H.M.C.S. Charlottetown.

Two Areas Suggested For New Dance Hall

The level top of Armour Hill and a property along Lansdowne street are the two sites which appeal to the several men who are planning to build a $20,000 dance hall for Peterborough. The signature of one of them, writing to the council, seems to be J. Vineberg.

They would take the hill on a long lease basis if the council was favorable to the proposal. The Lansdowne street area includes lots 16, 17 and part of 18 on the south side of Lansdowne street, at its east end, and also seven lots on the south side of Morrow street. This property is said to be in the vicinity of the Locks Bridge.

The council put this communication from Mr. Vineberg on the general business list the other night, and then forgot it in the discussion of other matter. Possibly a psychologic factor was at work because the council does not seem to be favorably disposed to any more dance halls. The city is now about to absorb that area south of Lansdowne street, and the council obviously wishes to begin the new and family relationship with deference to the wishes of the property owners in that incoming part of the city.

WOUNDED OVERSEAS—Pte. Roy Holland, son-in-law of Mrs. William Southwell, Campbellford, has been wounded in France. He suffered a broken arm and leg wounds, and he had lived in Campbellford for several years.

Bishop Nelligan Resigns As War Chaplain

OTTAWA, Aug. 32 (CP) — Hon. Brig. C. L. Nelligan, Bishop of Pembroke, is relinquishing the appointment of principal Roman Catholic chaplain of the Canadian Army, and will be succeeded by Hon. Lt.-Col. R. C. MacGillivray of Pictou, N.S., with rank of honorary brigadier, it was announced last night. Brig. Nelligan, a former Chancellor of the Diocese of Edmonton, has been principal Roman Catholic chaplain since the outbreak of war, when he was commissioned as honorary lieutenant-colonel. He was later promoted to full colonel, and assumed his present rank in February, 1943.

He made two trips to Britain, the first during the height of the London blitz in 1940, and again in 1942, when he flew to make an extended tour of Roman Catholic chaplain services overseas and visit Canadian troops.

During a three-month stay he motored more than 2,000 miles visiting Canadian camps, and was granted a special interview with Queen Elizabeth. He also visited troops of other Allied nations, and his work on behalf of the Polish people and the Polish armed forces was recognized by the Government of that country with the award of the Croix de Grand Officer de l'Order Polonia Restituta.

Brig. MacGillivray served as a chaplain in the first Great War, and returned to Canada in 1919, assuming clerical duties in various Nova Scotia towns. At the outbreak of this war he re-enlisted to take appointment as district Roman Catholic chaplain for Military District No. 6 at Halifax.

Held On Drunk Charge Man Given 3 Months

William Davis, Burleigh township, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of having been drunk here Wednesday and admitted that he had been previously convicted twice in the last year.

Accordingly Magistrate E. A. Gee sentenced him to three months imprisonment in the county jail.

Davis said that he had been cutting wood all summer. "You would [illegible] staying in jail," commented the magistrate, "but the law says you have to go to jail for from three to six months."

Cooler Weather Slows Down Tomato Supply

The swift change to cooler weather has put a brake on the supply of tomatoes to Canada Packers. "We started with a bang," E. S. Ford reported today, "and last week we packed more of the York brand than ever before for the third week of the season. Our experience this week indicates a decline in deliveries to the plant and even the quality of the tomatoes coming this week seems to have dropped off a bit."

Mr. Ford said the packing plant is short of man power (at a time when there is a reported scramble of men to go to western farms until about the middle of October), but the women and girls have been doing a first rate job helping to pack this important vegetable crop for winter use.

City Fuel Pile To Be Held For Emergencies

Peterborough's municipal supply of wood that was built up to substantial volume last winter is going to be held in reserve thoughout the coming season, Welfare Officer A. G. Metheral told the Examiner today.

"The local dealers have stocked up with something like 3,000 cords for the coming winter, and that means the public can buy thier requirements of wood in the usual way. Out city supply will be kept for any emergency which might arise, and will also be used for welfare deliveries."

A group of local dealers discussed their seasonal prospects at a meeting in the city hall a few days ago, and mentioned the fact that the return of the wood business to their yards would be an extra load on their limited man-power. Consumers are being urged, therefore, to attend to their fuel needs at once, thereby enabling the trade to spread deliveries over an extended season, instead of leaving them to accumulate until cold weather arrives, and everyone makes a dash for the coal yard.

"I think we are a little ahead of deliveries up to the first of September as compared with last year," Jack Thompson informed the Examiner, "but that is partly due to the fact that the mines supplying us are in a better working condition than they were throughout the first half of last year.

Must Not Delay.

The point that should be stressed to the public, for their own convenience and comfort, is that even more than last year they should not delay their fuel orders. The quota system enforced by the Federal government allows delivery on the basis of last year's requirements, of 40 p.c. hard coal up to October 1, another 20 p.c. to December 31, and the remaining 20 p.c. after New Year's. Consumers have to take 25 p.c. of substitute second grade coal.

Orders for substitute fuel should be placed early for the obvious reason that this coal, for instance coke, will be satisfactory in most homes until the colder severe weather sets in. The public should consult their own dealers as soon as possible, and make arrangements for their fuel needs.

Mrs. W. Sollit Hears Brother Casualty

Mrs. W. Sollit, River Road south, has received official word from Ottawa that her brother, Gunner Everett Bertrand, who was with the Canadian Artillery with the 8th Army in Italy was wounded in action on August 23.

Gunner Bertrand formerly lived in Campbellford but for a number of years had been employed at Timmins where he was working when he enlisted for overseas service.

Hun Battle-Flag Sent Home By Pte. Wilson

Probably the first Boche flag to reach Peterborough from the battle zones of Europe is being displayed in a window of the headquarters of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Operators' Union at 291 George street.

It was sent home from Italy by Private Russel Wilson, 151 Park street, who enlisted with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in 1940, four years ago last month, and has been with the Canadians in the Mediterranean fighting for ten months.

The Hun flag is a bright red background with a big swastika of the Nazis on a central circle of white, and was sent by Private Wilson to his wife.

48-Hour Week Distresses Cafe Owners

Because of an acute shortage of help available, and with the provincial ruling of a 48-hour week for restaurant employees effective September 1, Peterborough's Chinese restaurants are faced with the prospect of a six-day week instead of the seven days of operation in practice now. A delegation of representatives from Chinese restaurants is still reported to be in Toronto, negotiating for some revision or moderation of the law.

A meeting of Chinese restaurant managers scheduled for Wednesday evening to discuss plans for the one-day a week shut-down, was cancelled, due to the fact the results of the Toronto delegation will not be made known until sometime next week. Meanwhile, the manager of one Peterborough Chinese-operated cafe said his restaurant could not possibly keep the cafe doors open seven days a week if the ruling was not moderated.

Some of the other Peterborough restaurants though, have already become accustomed to the six-day week, and Joe Dean, manager of the Capitol Grill, told the Examiner his employees had been working a 48-hour week for some time, and once, he found it necessary to close two days in the week, in order to keep the 48-hour week in operation. Although he said his employees are willing to work longer hours, he thinks 48 hours a week is sufficient time for a waitress or waiter to work. At the present, his restaurant is closing one day a week.

The Ritz Grill is another restaurant that has been closing one day a week, due to the labor shortage. The Churchill restaurant has been closing Sunday nights and Wednesday afternoon, but still gives early morning service every day.

Role Of Church After War Told To W.M.S.

WHITBY, Aug. 31.—(ENS).—The highlight of the Tuesday morning sessions at the school for leaders, was the lecture period with Rev. C. G. Park, M.A., Whitby, as the lecturer. Mr. Park's subject was, "The Church and Post-War Problems."

The import of Tuesday's lecture was, "The Church Shall Live" By dint of heroism the church has survived in Europe and Asia in spite of persistent persecution, he declared. It is said that in Europe to-day in spite of decimated membersihp rolls, the number of effective Christians is actually increasing. But the church will emerge battered and bleeding, her wealth destroyed, her leaders mostly dead, a generation of youth wrested from her hands. Only on this continent will the church possess sufficient resources—human and material—to meet the challenge of to-morrow.

Must Give Help.

"There are some things our church must be and do. It must be a church with the world in its heart. We shall have to help the devastated lands restore their churches. Foreign missions must go on. Our evangelistic task in Africa and Asia is only just begun. But we must work as part of the world church. The W.M.S. must communicate its vision to the whole church.

"Our church must be a co-operating church. Under the guidance of the new Canadian Council of Churches, the denominations must work as comrades."

Mr. Park opinioned that, perhaps after the war only National Federation of Churches will be allowed to send missionaries to many lands. The church in the post-war world must make an effective impact upon the social, political, economic and international order. But it is not the church's task to devise political or economic blue prints; rather it must inject the spirit of justitce and concern for human well being into the secular order.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

NATURE DECIDED WOMENS LOT

After the War She Will Marry, Have Children, Cook, as She Always Has.

A great many people are agitating themselves over what women are going to do after the war. It is a grand subject for a summer debate because the subject is just about as hot as the weather, and nobody's argument is hampered by any facts and figures. All is pure surmise and one person's guess is just as good as another's. Women, themselves, can throw no light on the problem because they don't know what they can do or what they will have to do, or even what they want to do after they take off their coveralls and put on their skirts again.

There are as many schools of thought about the matter as there are individuals. There are those who assert that women will have had enough of understudying men and that they will gladly rush back into what used to be called their "sacred sphere" where they can put perfume behind their ears instead of having machine grease on their hands. Others contend that, having tasted blood in the shape of financial independence, they will never go back to wheedling carfare out of their husbands.

Realists assert that after the duration that there will not be enough jobs to go around, and men will grab off all the good ones, and that Mom will have to return to her cooking stove and washing machine whether she hankers for them or not. While the starry-eyed dreamers foresee a brave new world in which democracy will be extended to even take in wives.

Both Views Wrong And Right

Perhaps all of these arguers are a little bit of all right, as well as being a good deal wrong. The assembly line was never home to the domestic-minded woman and she will be glad to be surrounded again by her pots and pans, but no miracle is ever going to reconcile the woman who has once toted her own pocket-book to not getting her pay envelope on Saturday night.

As for jobs, maybe many women skills that will give them priority over men. Or men and women may swap jobs so that there will be no sex in work, and the man who is a born milliner can make hats, while the woman who has the hand of a mechanic can go on making automobiles.

But in trying to decide what's to become of women after the war we forget one thing, and that is that Nature settled all of these matters aeons ago. The real pattern of life never changes. Boy meets girl. They fall in love. They marry. They have children. They make homes. Food has to be cooked. Clothes washed. And no matter what a girl starts out to be, ninety-nine times out of a hundred she ends by doing the things that every woman since Eve has done.

The time has not yet arrived when we can order our babies sent to us parcel post. We still get our nourishment from well-cooked food, instead of from pellets we carry around in our pockets. And as long as these customs and habits survive marriage will still be a woman's greatest career, and they will just naturally gravitate to the kitchen and the nursery.

So we are borrowing trouble when we worry over what women are going to do after the war. They are going to do pretty much what they have always done.

Noreen Hayes Becomes Bride

Immaculate Conception Church was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning when Mary Noreen Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hayes, Indian River, became the bride of Francis Powers, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Powers, Otonabee. Rev. J. J. Garvey, Hastings, cousin of the bride, officiating. The church was charmingly decorated with gladioli and asters, and the music played by Mrs. J. A. MacDonald. During the signing of the register, Mrs. D. Campanaro sang "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white taffeta, with full sheer skirt and sweetheart neckline. Her finger-tip veil was of silk net, and was caught with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of Butterfly roses.

Miss Kathleen Powers, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and wore a pink gown, with full skirt and square neckline. The bridesmaid, Mary Margaret Hayes, cousin of the bride, Lansing, Michigan, wore a pale blue gown in matching style. Both wore Juliet caps, caught with matching roses, and carried nosegays of Briarcliffe roses and gladioli tips.

The best man was Vincent Powers, and the ushers Leonard Hayes, brother of the bride, and Victor Powers, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of orchid crepe with black accessories. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of powder blue, with black accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Horse Steaks Served Weekly To Faculty of Harvard

By Mary Moore

Now some of you are going to be a target for this blast; it's food news that comes from Harvard University Faculty dining room.

One hundred pounds of horse steaks — "filly mignon" to you,—is being consumed by the professors and postgraduates every week in their club dining room.

This is the result of trials made with the cooperation of the enquiring minds of these gentlemen. They were curious; they tasted it; they liked it, so now it's a regular item on their menu.

Stefansson, the famous Arctic explorer, made a statement which confirms this openmindedness. He says the higher a man's education the more speculative he is likely to be in the matter of food. He found when food was scarce and variety limited in the barren wastes of sub-zero lands, the illiterate sailors, like the sled dogs, absolutely refused to try anything new.

Harvard caterers evidently know from experience that it is useless to serve horse meat to students—for they've never offered it to the undergrads.

So if the cap fits wear it—and start breaking down your prejudices by trying such highbrow delicacies as

Breaded Sweetbreads

(Note: The sweetbreads from mature beef are cheaper but a little stronger in flavor than those from veal, and are best creamed or en casserole.

One pair sweetbreads (these weigh from ¾ to 1 lb.), beaten egg diluted with 1 tablespoon water, fine breadcrumbs, melted butter or bacon drippings, toast. Soak sweetbreads in cold water ½ hour. Parboil in 1 pint boiling water to which add 2 tablespoons vinegar, for 10 minutes. Chill immediately in cold water. (the foregoing procedure is required for any method of preparing sweetbreads). Cut sweetbreads in ¼-inch slices, dip in egg, then in seasoned breadcrumbs, then fry to golden brown. Serve on toast, garnished with parsley. Milk gravy made with flour and milk and fat in pan is nice with it too.

Eggplant Au Gratin

(Note: Egg plant addicts need nothing further than raw eggplant sliced into a pan of bubbling butter or shortening and fried until golden—but there are others who need yet to be persuaded of its deliciousness.)

One medium sized egg plant, 3 tablespoons bacon fat, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ cup strained tomato, 1 cup boiling water or weak meat stock if on hand, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 tablespoons buttered crumbs. Peel the eggplant and cut into large dice Dust with flour and fry in fat until golden. Make a sauce blending the butter and flour, adding the strained tomato, stock and seasonings. Fill a baking dish with alternate layers of eggplant, sauce and cheese. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake 20 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

One tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup orange juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1/3 cup honey, 1 cup orange juice, 1 cup cottage cheese forced through strainer, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ½ cup cream. Zwieback or vanilla wafer crumbs. Soak gelatine in orange juice. Beat yolk, add honey, salt and 1 cup orange juice. Cook in top of double boiler, stirring until it thickens; add softened gelatine and stir to dissolve. Add cottage cheese, lemon juice and rind Stir and cool. When mixture begins to thicken fold in whipped cream and stiffly beaten white.

Make crumbs for bottom and top of cake by crushing 9 slices of zwieback or 9 vanilla wafers (very dry graham crackers are good too). Mix with ¼ cup melted butter, 2 tablespoons sugar, and 1 teaspoon cinnamon; Place part of crumbs in bottom of small casserole or ring mould, turn in cheesecake mix, and sprinkle rest of crumbs on top. Chill until firm. Unmold onto serving dishes, garnish with orange sections or cherries.

QUESTION: Would you please send me recipe how to make sweet pickles, that is—cukes, cauliflowers and small white onions; also horseradish and beet relish.—Mrs. T. H. A.

Sweet Mixed Pickles.

ANSWER: Fifty small cucumbers (average size 3 inches), 1 quart silverskin or small pickling onions, 1 large cauliflower, 6 cups vinegar, 2 cups water, 4 cups sugar, 1 bunch dill, mixed whole spices. Wash and trim cucumbers, peel onions, separate cauliflower into tiny flowerets. Soak in strong brine (1-3 cup salt to each quart water) to cover overnight—salt should be dissolved. Drain well. Boil the vinegar, water and sugar ten minutes; add pickles and keep hot (but not boiling) until pickles change color. Pack into jars, add 1 teaspoon mixed spices and 1 teaspoon crumbled dill blossoms to each quart, then cover with the boiling syrup and seal. Ready in 2 weeks.

Beet Cabbage and Horseradish Relish.

Put through fine knife of grinder, 1 quart raw cabbage and 1 quart peeled raw beets. Add to them 1 cup finely shredded horseradish, 2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 teaspoon white pepper. Pour over just enough boiling vinegar to cover, and seal in sterile jars.

QUESTION: Please send me a recipe how to keep my sweet and 9-day pickles dark green; as a rule they usually turn a pale, light green. Also a cake frosting, the soft kind which is usually used on birthday cakes. Please send a speedy answer. —Mrs. J. M. B.

ANSWER: The problem of color that you have with your pickles is one that every home maker of pickles has. The desirable dark green color that you find in bought pickles is acquired from the use of color preservatives. However these preservatives are so strictly governed by law that it is inadvisable for housewives to use or know about them—for they are poisonous; this does not mean that the extremely small quantities in which they are allowed in commercial pickle manufacture does human beings any harm, but if mistakes were made in measuring them they would.

To keep your pickles crisp you could use a very small amount of alum—a piece about the size of a small hickory nut to 6 quarts of pickles—would do no harm.

Soft White Frosting.

Beat together 1 egg yolk with 4 tablespoons butter and 1 tablespoon cream. Add ¼ teaspoon salt and sift in enough powdered sugar, while creaming constantly, to make of soft consistency to spread.

You may mean a boiled frosting so I am giving you the following:

Boiled Frosting De Luxe.

One and one-half cups white sugar, 3 egg whites, beaten stiff, 1-3 cup water, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Cook sugar and water until the syrup forms soft ball when cooled in cold water. Pour slowly over beaten whites and beat until smooth. Set into pan of boiling water, and cook until when spoon is scraped over bottom of pan it feels rough. Put in cream of tartar and 1 teaspoon of flavoring—beat till cold. Never gets hard.

THREE-PIECE WOOLLEN—The best tailor in the business can't do himself proud unless he is given a fabric worth tailoring. The nubby gray tweed used for this coat and skirt is well worth excellent treatment, and it gets it in a straight silhouette model, with a collarless neckline and detailed pocket tabs which significantly point out the new way from last year's man-tailored design. The harmonizing top coat is also tweed, in brave blue with gray, and is three-quarter length. —By Prunella Wood.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: My Lightning Raisin cake is a standby that has helped me many a day when I have been short of time and ideas. One thing I have been guilty of and that is hunting raisins in the stores and keeping whatever I get on hand for this cake. I have wanted to send it to you for months but canning and getting the children off on holidays to camp has kept me too busy. Thanks for all the help you have given me.—Hester Reinke.

Lightning Raisin Cake (Contributed by H. Reinke.)

Two cups pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ⅛ to ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 2-3 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons butter or substitute, 1 egg, 2-3 cup milk, 1 cup raisins. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon, and nutmeg into a large bowl add the sugar and the raisins, and make a hollow in centre. Melt butter in a half-pint measuring cup, add the egg, and fill the cup up with milk. Pour this mixture into the hollow in the flour and beat vigorously for 2 minutes. Bake in large shallow greased pan at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 40 minutes. Nice with or without buttered frosting.

Thank you—this is nice with dates and steamed prunes. I put a fluffy corn syrup frosting on it to give it height and glamor and it was our complete dessert.

Five in the First.

Westclox blew the game wide open in the first inning. Aggie Anderson, Viola McLean and Nona Whetung opened the attack with singles, Marg. Hawthorne, fourth up walked and before Belleville could get the side out by retiring Aggie Anderson on her second time up in the inning, the Big Bens had scored five runs. They came right back with five more in the second. Viola McLean singled, Nona Whetung beat out a bunt and then Marg. Hawthorne laced a homer past Aileen Wright in left field to drive in three runs. A pass to Beryl Dobbin, a bad throw to first by Helen Garrow and Joyce Withers' single to right sent two more counters across before the third out.

Westclox were quiet for a couple of innings and then broke loose with four more markers in the fifth. Aggie Anderson started it with a triple to left and scored on Viola McLean's double to the same field. An error and singles in a row by Nona Whetung, Marg. Hawthorne and Beryl Dobbin chased in three more runs.

Belleville did not get a hit until Helen Garrow doubled with two out in the seventh and was stranded.

Finally Got One.

In the eighth the visitors got their only run when Maxine McKenna singled through short and Kay Coatup drew a pass. The two advanced on a wild pitch and when Rita Burker singled to centre after Millie Foster had fanned, Maxine McKenna scored. Florence Kokesh lined to Isobel Bullock, C. Elliott walked to fill the bases but Pauline Colden fouled out to Beryl Dobbin.

Reliance had a good chance in the ninth when Helen Garrow got a life on the only Westclox error of the game and Aileen Wright and Maxine McKenna singled to fill the bases with nobody out. Kay Coatup lifted a fly to Nona Whetung back of first and Garrow was doubled out at the plate when she tried to score after the catch. Millie Foster was out when the ball hit her bat as she was trying to duck away from the plate and rolled to Isobel Bullock who tossed her out.

Harry Rosevear Captures Stratton Trophy

By HERB MARTIN

Playing under ideal weather conditions and with representation from almost every club in this district, the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club staged its annual tournament for the Stratton Trophy on Wednesday afternoon and evening. And to Harry Rosevear, Port Hope, the veteran of all lawn bowlers, goes the honor of winning first place and the Stratton Trophy.

To Bert Lott, of Uxbridge, last year's winner, goes second place, and the other three game winner was George Coleman, Jr., of Peterborough club.

In opening the tournament, R. P. Downey, who acted in the absence of President Percy Moore, extended a welcome to all and hoped that they would all have a real good time. He spoke of those who were with us at the last tournament but have passed on and asked the assembly to stand with bowed heads in a minute's silence in memory of the late G. Wall.

It would be impossible to cover all of the highlights that took place during the tournament—there were many. The big ends, 6's and 7's, the close and exciting finishes, the big scores. How this one played and what this bowler did when he should have done something else. We could go on at great length, but you will just have to listen to the boys tell about it themselves. It will make some good conversation some night when we're all sitting on the verandah.

The presentation of the prizes is always a happy ending to any tournament and Mr. Downey acted as chairman for this in his usual capable manner. And with the presentation of the prizes and the singing of the National Anthem, one of the most successful tournaments was brought to a close.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP).—A letter from Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, concerning a proposed inter-collegiate baseball tournament that has received frequent mention in this corner, asks: "Do you suppose that the organized baseball men would agree not to sign up our youngsters before they got out of school or college? If they would not, I am sure that some of the educationists would have no enthusiasm for a project that brought star players to the attention of the pros, who in turn signed these lads up before they had finished their education."

Best answer we can find is the reply given by Pie Traynor to a similar query from scribe Don Pierce during the recent Kansas coaching school at Topeka: "The majors are looking for a supply source. Obviously, they have to have this or go out of existence. When they see a good-looking kid, naturally they go after him. If the High schools and colleges would develop a sharp program of baseball, the majors would lay off signing kid ball players. They would allow the boys to develop under a good system and then endeavor to sign them."

Not So Simple.

Perhaps Pie was simplifying the matter a bit, for the colleges can't, or won't, expend a lot of time or money developing good ball players only to see them snatched up before thier "payoff" seasons and the pros won't stop snatching until they're offered some plan that will assure them that the kids they now sign out of High school will get a good baseball education if they stay in school and that when they spot a good prospect someone else won't snatch him first.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

HASTE NOT BRILLIANCY

MANY RUBBER bridge devotees seem to think that playing rapidly is a fine way to display the brilliancy of their minds. Actually they would make a better impression, and win more often, if they thought first and then played instead of reversing that process as so many do. If you had a nickel for every time you saw a fast player block his own suit by playing hastily, you could get quite a nice gift necktie with the sum.

This looked like "easy meat" to South after he won the third diamond trick, with only one "if" attached—if the clubs were evenly divided in the defenders' hands. Then he could add six club tricks to one each in the other suits, before having to lose the lead.

So he scored the club K, led the 6 to the A, and was happy to see both defenders follow suit. Then his joy ceased abruptly. He discovered to his chagrin that he still had the club 10 in his hand, and the dummy's highest club was the 9. He had blocked the suit. He led to the 10 anyway, and then the spade 4, hoping that West had the K and would play low. If he had, the J would have been an entry to the dummy.

But West did no such thing. He won with the K and followed with two more diamonds to beat the contract.

If South had not been in such a hurry, he would have seen the need of leading the 10 to the second club trick, which he won with the dummy's A. Then the 9 would have been higher than his remaining card, the 6, and he would have been in clover.

Aluminum Dust Slows Up Spread Of Silicosis In Industries

By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 31 (CP)—Silicosis—Scourge of minors and thousands of workers exposed to Silica dust in many industries—is being combated by a method novel to medicine. Many years of search into the causes of Silicosis by a metallurgical engineer, a surgeon and a member of the Department of Medical Research at the University of Toronto, led to the discovery that Silica dust could be combatted by another dust — Aluminium, basic element of the popular Aluminum Alloy.

For years Silicosis, which attacks the lungs, had been as final to its victims as an amputation. In 1937 the aluminium dust treatment was found to work on guinea pigs and five years of research by the late J. J. Denny, engineer; Dr. W. D. Robson, surgeon at McIntyre Mines, Porcupine, Ont., and Dr. D. A. Irwin of the University of Toronto, established one thing definitely. Aluminium dust formed a jelly around Silica particles in the lungs and halted progress of the disease.

Leads to Tuberculosis

Silicosis invariably leads to tuberculosis, for the dust forms a tough fibrous material in the lungs. This cuts down breathing capacity and allows the tuberculosis bacilli to get the upper hand.

But to say aluminium dust will act as a preventative or a cure is premature, according to those working with the dust treatment. However, aluminium dust does act as a prophylactic, preventing spread of a disease whose progress can be rapid.

The United States Labor Department estimates there are about 110,000 silicotics in the United States. On the basis of that figure T. Norman Dean, statistician of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board, figures there are about 11,000 silicotics in Canada.

Slow Progress.

Research work on silicosis was first undertaken in the Banting institute in Toronto but little was accomplished until 1932, when Dr. Robson started to work on the disease. Four years later, Mr. Denny and Dr. Robson discovered that aluminum dust might be the answer to their problem. A small amount of the powder had prevented silica from dissolving in water and forming the silicic acid it forms in the lungs.

They visited the Aluminum Company of America plant at Pittsburgh, where aluminum powder is manufactured for paints and a thorough examination of workers there showed aluminum dust in the lungs had no effect whatsoever. It caused no lung damage nor favored development of tuberculosis.

After examining a group of 300 workers at McIntyre 34 were picked for the experiment which was conducted by Dr. D. W. Crombie, Dr. J. L. Blaisdell and G. MacPherson, of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, London, Ont. They had the miners breathe aluminum dust for half an hour, six days a week. After 200 to 300 treatments, 56 per cent. were improved, none were worse. At the same time 65 per cent. of an untreated group were worse.

Feel Better.

Men in the treated group showed general improvement in breathing, less fatigue and gain in weight. One miner said "Aluminum takes the leather out of your lungs."

But the treatment cannot be regarded in any sense as a "cure" for silicosis insofar as restoring normal lung tissue which has already undergone fibrotic change. Its use is chiefly to aid in easing symptoms and increasing work capacity. However, the researchers hope that it will offer the prospect of preventing silicosis.

McIntyre is at present treating about 6,000 hard-rock miners prophylactically. In the United States, Dr. J. W. G. Hannon of Washington, Penn., pioneer in the use of the dust, is treating more than 1,000 cases prophylactically and reports excellent results.

Hunter States War Soon Over

MONTREAL, Aug. 31 — (CP) — Louis V. Hunter, Canadian Press War Correspondent, returned to Canada today convinced that the end of the war against Germany is near.

Hunter, first invasion correspondent to return to Canada after four years in Britain, Africa, Sicily, Italy and Normandy, declared that "the last decisive battles were the ones fought by Canadian, British and Polish troops of the Canadian first army along the road between Caen and Falaise in the low rolling Normandy country."

"I am convinced that was the end of the war right there," he said.

"It was the pivot of the German position in France and once the enemy lost it he lost every thing. German strength has been crushed and I doubt if the enemy can make much of a stand, even in defence of his own soil."

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

NOTICE TO EMPLOYERS AND THEIR MALE EMPLOYEES

By an order signed on August 15th, 1944, by the undersigned Minister of Labour under authority of National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations:

1. Commencing August 22nd, 1944, every employer is required to check the documents held by each newly engaged male employee, within 7 days of the employee's engagement, to determine if such employee possess documents to show that he is in good standing under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations (that is, in relation to the Military Call-up);

2. Every employer must report on Schedule 9 to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division, concerning any employee found not to possess documents as referred to;

3. Every employer is required similarly to check the documents held by each male employee newly engaged between May 1st, 1944, and August 22nd, 1944, and to report to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division by August 29th, 1944, on any such employee found not to possess documents as referred to;

4. Any male employee here referred to, is required by the Regulations to present his documents to his employer for purposes of inspection;

5. Penalties are provided for any employer or male employee who fails to comply with these Regulations.

By an earlier order, employers were required to check the documents held by their male employees, and to report by May 1st, 1944, on doubtful cases as well as cases where employees did not possess documents. The procedure for the present continuing check, although being notified to employers in "Notice to Employers and their Male Employees", which is now being mailed, is identical with that set forth in "Employers' Guide", which covered the check made before May 1st, 1944.

Employers are asked to remember that they do not report on men who do possess the necessary documents—only on those who fail to present documents for examination, or where there is doubt that the document presented actually proves good standing.

The employers of Canada co-operated very satisfactorily on the first check, made up to May 1st last. This co-operation was decidedly helpful, and is very much appreciated. Further co-operation is now earnestly requested.

Schedule 9 and details as to documents which prove good standing, are available through the Employment and Selective Service Offices.

Disaster Mocks Hitler On 5th Anniversary

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The fifth anniversary of the Second Great War today found British-American-Canadian armies in the west and the Russian Army in the east driving toward a junction in the heart of Germany only a little more than 700 miles apart.

In less than three months of concentrated blows the United Nations have inflicted an enormous casualty toll on the Nazi war machine—more than 1,500,000 killed, captured or wounded, according to the best available figures.

The spectre of military disaster and political catastrophe now mocks the ambitions of Adolf Hitler, who five years ago sent his armored legions crashing into Poland and started a globe-girdling conflict.

When Gen. Eisenhower's armies landed in Normandy June 6 they were 1,400 miles from the Russian forces before Mogilev.

Now the Russians are at the gates of Warsaw, after covering more than half the distance to Berlin since their offensive began June 23. They are a little more than 700 miles from Lt.-Gen. Patton's armor on the Meuse River near the German border.

Signalizing the impending loss of the Balkans to Hitler is the Red Army's occupation of Bucharest.

Gen. Eisenhower's forces, which have smashed German resistance completely in northeastern France, are estimated officialy to have inflicted 400,000 casualties on the Germans from June 6 to Aug. 25.

The Russians, in their campaign along a 1,400-mile front, have killed or captured 1,185,476 Axis foemen, according to Soviet communiques.

The campaigns in Italy and southern France have added many thousands more to the casualty lists.

British Seize Robot Bases

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(CP).—With dozens of flying-bomb launching-sites already reported in the hands of British and Canadian armies sweeping up the French coast, only a few robots were loosed against Britain during the night.

As usual some of the bombs fell in the London area, but damage was not widespread.

Dispatches from France, meanwhile, declared that in addition to the robot launching sites already captured it is expected that at least 100 more will be seized by the Allies between Le Havre and the Somme.

It was noticeable both yesterday and last night that the sporadic robot attacks upon Britain came from the most northerly sites so far used — in extreme Northern France or Belgium.

Soviet Armies Head For Serbia

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 —(AP)— Red Army flying columns, skirting the southern shoulder of the Transylvanian Alps after marching triumphantly through Bucharest, headed today in the direction of Serbia's northeastern mountains, where Marshal Tito's Partisans are battling the common enemy.

A junction between Soviet and Yugoslav Partisan forces became a prospect of the near future as Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's armored scouts approached within 120 miles of the Yugoslav-Romanian frontier.

The German command was reported trying to organize a new defence line along the Olt river, which runs within 75 miles of Serbian territory.

A vital north-south railway parallels the west bank of the Olt, connecting Sibiu—one of Transylvania's leading cities—with the Wallachian Danube port of Corabia, across the stream from Bulgaria.

Malinovsky threatened to cut this waterline at the southern entrance to Turnu Pass, possession of which would safeguard his right wing while he drove across the Danube plain to make contact with Tito.

The Soviet leader's forces, which paraded past the rubble of German-bombed buildings in Bucharest yesterday, drove rapidly westward along the Bucharest-Craiova railway.

Front dispatches said the Germans were still in disorderly flight up the Danube valley.

Bucharest's war-weary populace saw Malinovsky bare the mechanical power of his army. Huge self-propelled guns, squat and thickly-

Allies Equal Speed Of Hun Armies

By CARL C. CRANMER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Gen. Eisenhower's armies have set an unique record in the field of military operations — the virtual liberation of France from a beachhead.

They have almost equalled the record of the Germans who in 1940 completed the conquest of France in 37 days.

Since the St. Lo break-through by Lt.-Gen. Bradley's forces July 25, the Allies in 3 days have almost over-run France, but they have not yet swept Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg into their basis as Hitler did in his famous blitzkrieg.

Probably the most astounding thing to the Germans, the feature which perhaps has upset their calculations more than anything else, is the fact that Allied spearheads have driven from Normandy, taken Paris and pushed almost to the German frontier itself from a beachhead.

Use One Port.

There is yet no indication that any great amount of supplies for Eisenhower's armies are coming through ports. Cherbourg is the only large port held by the Allies, and demolitions to the harbour works there were extensive.

Marvelous engineering developments and supply management have made possible the powering of the great drives in progress to-day. It is a feat which Hitler who ordered his garrisons to button themselves up in the ports of Le Havre, Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient, apparently thought impossible.

This is the great contrast in the 1940 battle of France and the 1944 battle. For in 1940 Adolf Hitler had his land bases close to the frontier, his troops in their assigned positions, his mountains of supplies close to the front

When he gave the word on May 10, he hit the Allies with terrific power all at once. Allied lines were shattered and all was over by June 17.

The Allies have been in France 88 days, counting to-day, but 51 days of that time were spent in the time-consuming process of winning, widening and building up their bridgehead for the offensive.

Huge Bombers Raid France

LONDON, Sept. 1 (CP)—British four-engined Halifax bombers battered German long-range weapon supply depots in Northern France today without loss while American medium bombers assaulted German strong points in besieged Brittany at the port of Brest.

The attack on the Brittany targets was made at the request of Lt.-Gen. Bradley, whose troops then began an all-out assault to free the prized Atlantic harbor of elements of three enemy divisions.

This attack on gun positions, motor parks and two forts on the edge of Brest was only one of numerous operations by Allied planes based in Britain and France as the return of good flying weather enable them to bomb and strafe the foe at many points.

British medium bombers hit German troops concentrated near Abbeville and in danger of being cut off by the British advance across the Somme.

Wave after wave of Allied warplanes thundered out from Britain, continuing the aerial pressure maintained last night by R.A.F. Mosquitos. The Berlin radio said enemy bomber formations were approaching Germany at mid-day.

Government Resigns In Bulgaria Armistice Near

LONDON, Sept. 1 — (CP) — The Bulgarian government of Ivan Bagrianov fell today shortly after its failure to win an easy way out of the war by pleading neutrality and amid indications of far-reaching internal developments within the Balkan Kingdom.

Simultaneously it was disclosed that the European advisory commission had drafted armistice terms for Bulgaria—a demonstration of British-American Russian solidarity on the terms which the Balkan Satellite must meet to get out of the conflict. Russian armies were pushing along the country's northern frontier, ready to send tank columns coursing across her northern plains.

A Cairo dispatch said peace talks with Bugarian emissaries were progressing favorably.

At the same time rumors spread throughout Europe that Hungary was trying to contact the Allies on armistice terms.

With Romania already out of the Axis line-up and negotiating in Moscow for terms on which she might join the Allies as a co-belligerent, Hitler's southeastern front thus appeared to be falling apart in three countries.

Berlin immediately launched a campaiagn of neials to contradict the rumors that Hungary was seeking a way out, but Budapest itself was silent. Reports reaching London from Turkey said Hungarians there had intimated that Budapest was seeking terms.

Terms Secret.

The Allied terms for Bulgaria were kept secret, inasmuch as they involve military operations. But it was regarded as cetrain that one condition would demand the withdrawal of all her troops to within her pre-war border and the return to Greece and Yugoslava of Macedonia and Thrace, territories which she gained in a bargain with Hitler in 1941.

Removal of all Fascist elements from the Bulgarian government was likely to be another condition.

Bulgaria closed her border with Turkey as the Red army massed on her frontier in Romania. D.N.B., official German News Agency, then said in a Berlin broadcast to-day that Bagrianov had announced resignation of his cabinet. He took office June 1.

A dispatch last night from Istanbul gave no hint as to whether the

Tornadic Allied Advance Captures Historic Verdun

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Recapture of the ancient fortress town of Verdun, immortalized by the heroic Allied stand in the First Great War, is a fitting memento to hand Herr Hitler on this fifth anniversary of his war against humanity.

Of even greater military import is the fact that the Allied forces of Northern France, whose tornadic advance has driven the broken German armies into the war-scarred valley of the winding Somme, have at long last returned as victors to the battle grounds were 4¼ years ago civilization faced one of its greatest crises of all time. We shall not forget late May of 1940.

Hitler's troops, arrogant from conquest and sure in their own minds of mastering the world, swept into the Somme valley and closed the great steel trap which they had flung about hundreds of thousands of British, Belgian and French soldiers. Amiens, Abbeville and other strategic Somme towns fell to the Boche.

It was the prelude to Dunkerque, to the Belgian King's surrender, to the collapse of France. Out of Hitler's thundering Blitzkrieg toward the Somme valley was born the do-or-die British government under Prime Minister Churchill. While the German Press roared for England's death, her new Premier called upon the nation to follow him though "blood, toil, tears, and sweat" to "wage war against a monstrous tyranny never surpassed in the dark and lamentable catalogue of human crime," and to fight to a finish.

So finally via the route of "blood, toil, tears and sweat" the Allies have arrived back at the historic spot where the Nazi Dictator thought he had placed the mark of bondage on the brow of mankind. They also stand in Verdun, only 50 miles from the border of the Reich. The disorganized Hitlerite armies of the west, crippled by 400,000 casualties since D-day, are on the run.

It's an interesting commentary on bullies that the already beaten Hitler is whining and trying to finagle a compromise peace. He wants a deal that will save his skin and enable Germany to prepare for another conflict.

Because the peoples of the United Nations have determined to outlaw war, widespread satisfaction is being expressed over renewed assurances from State Secretary Hull that thre will be no alternation in the Allied demand for unconditional surrender.

Glengarrians First Into City Of Rouen

BY ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN ROUEN, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Historic Rouen thundered today with the voices of free men, stilled by four years of German occupation, as liberating Canadian troops went through the narrow, cobblestone streets.

Civilians poured into the streets in hundreds as infantry from Eastern and Western Ontario and the Maritimes entered the ancient Seine port in drizzling rain.

Enthusiasm semed to increase like a snowball as the Canadians progressed through the town — famed as the scene of Joan of Arc's condemnation and torture and the birthplace of La Salle, who explored Canada and the Mississippi. Canadian troops pronounced the reception even better than Caen, liberated July 9 after a bitter battle.

Groups of civilians who swarmed around our car when we stopped told us the German garrison had left the night before and there were only a few enemy anywhere in the city. But they didn't use the word "German". They called the enemy the "Boche," clenching their fists as they snarled the name.

We went down toward the cathedral and Canadian infantry had fanned out all over this part of the city. Companies led by Majors Gordon Clarke and Jack Peterson, Peterborough, and Jack Stothard, Ottawa, were mopping up in the streets.

Only the odd shot was fired, however, and this was the easiest thing these troops had done in weeks of bitter fighting.

Other officers leading troops in the city were Captains Bernard Fox, Cobourg; Wallace Braden Bowmanville; Shan Lafontaine, Tweed. All praised the help received from the Maquis.

The sections of Rouen we saw were not badly hit by bombing, but smoke poured from a suburb on the south bank of the Seine which had been bombed heavily.

Little Resistance As Germans Head For Reich

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 1.— (AP).— Allied troops have made contact with German forces retreating up the Rhone Valley toward Lyon, and the enemy already is fleeing north and north-east of that big city, Allied Headquarters announced to-night.

Tanks and infantry encountered Germans between Tournon, 10 miles above Valence, and Le Bourg du Peage, 11 miles to the northeast. Valence, 55 miles south of Lyon, and Le Bourg du Peage were captured yesterday.

(A communique in London of the French forces of the interior, said the F.F.I. had killed 500 Germans, including a General, in fighting toward Valence. Frenchmen liberated the Loire Department by seizing Montbrison, 37 miles southwest of Lyon, it added.)

Allied airmen reported heavy German movements on roads leading north and north-east from Lyon.

Valence, 55 miles south of Lyon, fell at noon yesterday, Lt.-Gen. Patch's Headquarters said. Le Bourg du Pease, 11 miles to the northwest, capitulated earlier to Americans closing in from the east.

Apparently despairing of ever getting their 19th Army out of Southern France as an intact fighting unit, the Nazi command has ordered its units "to return to Germany by their own resources," an official report said. Such an order was given by artillery personnel in the Nimes area, prisoners related.

From Narbonne a French flying column, in a sweep around Southern France's Mediterranean coast, was reported thrusting to the Spanish border after shoving through Montpellier, Beziers and Narbonne —60 miles from the frontier—without meeting enemy resistance.

Riviera Quiet.

Other French units were well beyond Ales, 38 miles west-northwest of Avignon.

The 7th Army command declared the situation remained "unchanged" on the Riviera, following American occupation of Nice.

In the Alpine regions along the French-Italian frontier farther north, however, the Americans entered the village of Condamine Chatelard, which the Germans had burned in reprisal for Patriot activities.

From the devastated village the Americans pushed along mountain highways and paths and made contact with enemy outposts just northwest of nearby Lagache Pass on the Italian frontier, some 55 miles north-northwest of Nice.

On the west side of the Rhone French elements were mopping up scattered enemy pockets in Pont St. Esprit, Bourg St. Andeol, Vallon and Barjac. All of these towns were overrun or by-passed in the earlier pursuit of the retreating Germans.

Meanwhile the Allied naval command off the south coast of France announced that the German garrison on the islands of Ratinneau and Pomergues off Marseille had surrendered to the captain of a United States navy cruiser Aug. 29.

Free 1100 Airmen In Romania

By JOSEPH MORTON
Associated Press War Correspondent

BUCHAREST, Sept. 1 (AP) — Russian troops arriving in this Romanian capital yesterday found 1,100 American airmen here—prisoners of war who had been liberated the day King Mihai proclaimed an Armistice and who have since been given the run of the city.

Among other liberated Allied airmen in the city, I was told, are about 22 Britons.

The Americans had been confined in two camps—those who went down during the low-level bombardment of Ploesti 13 months ago being confined in a stockade near Brasov and the remainder in a camp at Bucharest.

Their treatment has been far from severe, the airmen told me, and the gates of both prisons were thrown open within a matter of minutes after Mihai issued his armistice proclamation.

British Troops Penetrate Gothic Line

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 1 (AP)—British 8th Army troops have broken through the outer Gothic Line defence in Northern Italy to a depth of 1,000 yards at one point but are meetng strong German resistance north of the Foglia river, where the Nazis have hurled in tanks in repeated counter-attacks, Allied headquarters announced today.

The 1,000-yard penetration was made west of Borgo Santa Maria, where the strongpoint of Montecchio was captured. Tank-supported infantry followed through and established themselves among the Nazi defences.

In Pesaro steady fighting was reported continuing between British and Polish troops and the German 1st Paratroop Division—their old enemies of Cassino.

(Dispatches from Rome yesterday declaring Polish troops had captured Pesaro apparently were premature.)

Pesaro now is divided between the Germans and the 8th Army, which is established along the railway line running through the town.

Monte Della Groce, described as one of the key points of the Gothic Line, was occupied Aug. 30 and 8th Army forward elements now are fighting hand-to-hand on the south slopes of Mount Calvo.

In Belevedere Fogliense, 4½ miues southwest of Montecchio, the Allies penetrated the first line and pushed on to within 1,000 yars of Monte Gridolf.

Gains Substantial.

The Germans were described as "almost back on their main defensive positions" in the Appenines, where close contact was being maintained

The communique said "significant gains" were made in the Florence area. Patrols which crossed the Arno river northwest of Florence yesterday failed to make contact with the Germans. Gincigliato

Germans Admit Situation Hopeless

LONDON, Sept. 1 (CP) — A German military spokesman today described the German situation in Northern France as "hopeless for the time being."

Speaking over the Berlin radio of two big Allied bulges in the Amiens and Meuse areas, the spokesman compared the plight of the Germans now with their "hopeless" situation four weeks ago which he said had been "mastered."

Later the Berlin radio said the "speed of German disengagement movements in Northern France has been increased to frustrate Allied ideas of cutting off and encircling German formations.'

Allies May Cross German Border Before Nightfall

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 1 —(CP)—Avenging troops of the 1st Canadian Army were reported today to have captured Dieppe, enshrined in Canadian memory for the galant and bloody invasion "dress rehearsal" of two years ago.

Canadian units which lost so heavily at Dieppe two years ago today rode into the city from the south without firing a shot.

They were the Essex Scottish, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Royal Regiment of Canada, all units of the Canadian 2nd Division.

While Dieppe was being captured, other Canadian troops reached the Channel at Le Treport, 14 miles east of Dieppe, and Belgian troops driving on Le Havre were two miles east of the port.

The report of the fall of Dieppe without enemy opposition came as Allied armies drove in a mighty pursuit all along a 270-mile front from the sea to the border regions of Germany. A Reuter cable from France first reported the town's fall and later the Algiers radio, quoting a "last-minute dispatch" carried the same report.

Near Belgian Border

American men and tanks passed over the historic fortress cities of Sedan and Verdun, rolling up to or across the Belgian border and threatening to spill over into Germany before nightfall today.

Field Marshal Montgomery's British forces virtually closed off 80 miles of the rocket coast with a bolt of armor.

Behind the Channel rocket coast, Field Marshal Montgomery's tank forces, which had burst forward 80 miles in three days, poured toward Belgium's Flanders fields only 45 miles distant, and approached the back door of Calais.

Montgomery's spearhead paralleled the Channel coast for 100 miles and threatened to hammer out for the second time in this war a giant trap around Calais and Dunkerque—this time with Germans in it. The British forces were only 70 miles south of Calais.

To reach Verdun, American forces advanced 65 miles in less than 24 hours—a pace which left headquarters communique lagging many hours behind actual movements.

On a 70-mile front Americans had stabbed to or across the Belgium border in the vicinity of historic Sedan, reached to within 49 miles of

157 Hun Planes Lost In 2 Days

ROME, Sept. 1.—(AP).—At least 157 enemy planes were destroyed on the ground and nine shot down in aerial combat in the past two days by U.S. 15th Air Force light bombers during strafing attacks on three Romanian airdromes, Mediterranean Allied Air Forces Headquarters announced to-day.

One group swooped over the Reghin airfield in Romania yesterday and destroyed at least 60 Nazi planes on the ground and scored nine aerial victories.

On the preceding day another group destroyed 83 aircraft on the Grosswardein, Romania, airdrome in what the M.A.A.F. Command described as "the most effective machine-gunning of German aircraft on the ground in a single airfield ever carried out in the Mediterranean theatre."

Only two planes were lost.

Big Guns Blast England

Trying To Fire Ammunition Before Capture

LONDON, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Heavy German coastal guns near Boulogne hurled nearly 100 shells early today in a four-hour barrage which Berlin said was "drum fire of the heaviest type against the English invasion port routes."

Several British sea coast towns were reported heavily damaged and at least one man was killed.

Boulogne is on the Channel 28 miles south of Dover and in the path of swiftly-advancing Allied arms. It appeared possible that the Germans with their communications shattered, were trying to unload as much ammunition as possible upon England before the Allies arrived.

English Channel reports said a wide area was shelled and that the attack was "vicious."

Berlin radio tried to make to mystery of the shelling with the assertion that "no explanation can be obtained from competent circles as to whether this drum fire constitutes measures against further invasion preparation or whether new, long-distance weapons have gone into action.

Wheat Exports Booming

1944 Likely Best Year Since War Began

OTTAWA, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Canadian wheat, which often lay dormant in crowded storage buildings in the early years of the war, has been moving to export markets at the most satisfactory pace since 1939, government reports indicated today.

Figures of export shipments are not issued immediately for security reasons, but the latest made public indicated the trend. In the first nine months of the crop year 1943-44, which ended on July 31, wheat and wheat flour leaving Canada amounted to 255,327,902 bushels, more than the total of 214,700,000 bushels shipped in the entire crop year 1942-43.

In the last month for which shipments are given, April, exports were 41,315,967 bushels, compared with 23,278,531 in the corresponding month last year.

Officials said that final figures on the 1943-44 exports would not be available for some time, but there was the likelihood that the total of wheat and wheat flour would be about 344,000,000 bushels, making it by far the best year since the war began.

Warns Cities Big Grants Not Available

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—(CP).—W. J. Stewart of Toronto, Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, yesterday told the Ontario Municipal Association's 46th annual meeting not to expect large grants of money from the Provincial government for their post-war rehabilitation projects.

"I'm not representing the government and don't take anything I say as the official word of the Ontario government," he said. "But I am warning you now that there is no storehouse of money available at Queen's Park and you are dreaming if you expect millions of dollars in post-war grants. Too many people to-day are looking for Utopia when the war ends. An acre of land in Middlesex county is far better than a mansion in Utopia."

The urban section of the Association approved a resolution from Sandwich East council asking that the Provincial government be asked to enact legislation at its next session providing that "all subdivisions of farm lots into small plots shall be done by registered plan. And that the vendor shall furnish to the assessor of the municipality where his land is located a copy of a blueprint of its location."

American Planes Get 5 Jap Ships

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 1.—(AP).— American planes were disclosed to-day to have bagged five more Japanese ships and struck anew at Mindanao in the aerial prelude to invasion of the Philippines.

Nowhere in more than 4,000 miles from the Netherlands Celebes to the Kuriles did raiding planes stir up enemy air opposition but Lt.-Gen. Millard F. Harmon surmised Japan was hoarding plane strength which would be turned loose in furious combat once the Philippines are invaded.

Harmon, assuming command of all army air force units in the Pacific ocean areas, spoke of the day when 1,000-plane formations can give Japan the "kind of unremitting bombing that has to a large extent been responsible for breaking the back of German military power."

The bombing and probable sinking of an enemy destroyer, two freighters and two tankers off Dutch Celebes was announced today.

closing of the border applied only to the Turkish section of Bulgaria's border. The action appeared to imply impending developments within the country.

Yesterday Moscow strongly rebuked the Sofia Government for declaring itself a neutral and then failing to intern German armed forces remaining in Bulgarian territory.

One effect of the Turkish-Bulgarian border closing, the Istanbul dispatch said, was to bar for the time being the exchange of Turkish and German diplomats, which had been scheduled for today at the frontier.

An Ankara dispatch said the Turkish foreign office had decided to intern, as of today, the 310 Nazi diplomats and 150 Germans civilians who were awaiting exchange.

This decision was announced after Turkish civilians en route from Ger- 100 Turkish diplomats and about 300 many did not show up at the border.

The German diplomats will be interned at their embassy and consulates.

Earlier in the week the Moscow newspaper Pravda, organ of the Communist Party, asserted that since Turkey broke relations with Germany the Nazis had been left free to continue espionage in Turkey. An Ankara dispatch, however, quoted official Allied sources there as saying they were satisfied the vigilance of Turkish authorities had prevented the Germans from engaging in illegal activities.

In Moscow it was learned as Romanian and Russian representatives began peace negotiations that Russia, Britain and the United States may join in a declaration concerning Romania's claims to northern Transylvania, annexed in 1940 by Hungray with Hitler's approval.

R. A. F. fighter-bombers and rocket-firing planes flew nearly 1,000 sorties, destroying or damaging more than 400 motor vehicles, eight tanks, 63 railroad cars and 13 locomotives.

Italians Fear Red Domination

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP). — Italians fear that the war will result in "the subjugation of Europe by Moscow instead of Berlin," William G. Bullitt, former American ambassador to France and Russia, says in the current issue of Life Magazine.

Bullitt also saiad Italians believe "the failure of the U.S. and Great Britain to stand strongly for independence for all the States of Europe has made certain a new world war."

Bullitt, writing from Rome, said "the Romans expect the Soviet Union to dominate Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia" as well as Eastern Germany.

He described Italy as being "terrified" that the neighboring nations of Austria and Yugoslavia also might come under influence of Russia.

Bullitt said Italians hope, but are not convinced that the United States and Britain can hold off the "hordes from the east."

"They fear," he added, "Britain will emerge from this war a 'titred victor' unable to stop the threat alone, and are by "no means sure" of what the United States might do.

Dieppe Noted Battleground For Centuries

By The Canadian Press

A valuable port was gained by the Allies when the 1st Canadian army moved into Dieppe.

Nestling in a valley at the mouth of the river Arques, bordered by steep white cliffs, Dieppe has one of the safest and deepest harbors on the English channel. Vessels drawing 20 feet can enter at neap tide, unloading directly to a railway that runs to Paris, 108 miles distant. A drydock was among the port's repairing facilities before the occupation but this probably was damaged by the Germans before the town fell.

Dieppe, a city of 25,000 population before the war, was used by the Normans who found its "diep" or inlet suitable for ships. But it was not until late in the 12th century that the town became of importance. Through the centuries it was a battleground for English and French armies.

The town was occupied by the English from 1420 to 1435, and a siege undertaken in 1442 by John Talbot, first Earl of Shrewsbury, was raised by the Dauphin, afterward Louis XI. The day of deliverance continued for centuries to be celebrated by a great procession and miracle plays.

Bombarded heavily by the English and Dutch fleets in 1694, Dieppe was rebuilt after the Peace of Ryswick. Its modern prosperity dates from the 19th century, partly owing to Marie Caroline, Duchess of Berry, who made it fashionable as a watering place. During the Franco-Prussian war, the town was occupied by the Germans from December, 1870 to July, 1871.

One of the town's waterfront attractions is the casino, scene of bitter fighting during the Canadian attack Aug. 19, 1942. A castle, built in 1435, overlooks the beach from the summit of the western cliff. This was employed to advantage by the Germans during the 1942 raid.

The Navy announced the British destroyers Loyal and Undine bombarded German gun positions and transport north of Pesaro Aug. 30.

Swiss Refuse Hun Proposal

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 1—(AP). — Stockholm political circles said today it was understood the Germans had asked neutral Switzerland what its reaction would be if part of Marshal Kesselring's armies in Italy withdrew into Switzerland. These sources said Switzerland gave an unfavorable reply.

Virtually the only communications left open to German armies in Italy are through the muchbombed and frequently disrupted Brenner Pass route, and via Swiss railroads. Switzerland recently permitted transit of seriously wounded German troops and medical personnel from Southern France.

Poles Are Rebels

LONDON, Sept. 1 — (CP) — A Berlin broadcast announced yesterday German rejection of British and American warnings against treating the Polish Home Army "contrary to the laws and customs of war" and claimed these Poles were rebels without protection of the Hague convention.

VerdunCaptured Meuse Crossed By 3rd U.S. Army

By EDWARD D. BALL, Associated Press War Correspondent.

VERDUN, Sept. 1 — (AP) —The U. S. Army captured immortal Verdun Thursday and plunged on beyond the river Meuse in pursit of the retreating Germans, who put up only a feeble fight in defence of the famed city around which fighting surged for three years in the First Great War.

Plunging along the old Roman road, Lt.-Gen. Patton's troops advanced 65 miles from Reims in less than 24 hours, plunged through the Argonne Forest and liberated Verdun almost without firing a shot.

Fall of the city, one of the keystones of the Maginot Line on which France pinned her faith at the outset of the present conflict, placed the American spearheads less than 50 miles from the German frontier.

In their swift advance toward this famous battleground the Yanks swept eastward from Reims and stormed across the Meuse river at several points. Nowhere did they meet more than weak rear-guard resistance.

Purely for home front propaganda purposes, if for no other reason, Hitler's armies had been expected to make a fight of it at Verdun.

To-day, however, the Nazis put up only a half-hearted defence, then fled. American casualties were light

Caught Off Balance

Lt.-Gen. Patton caught the Germans off balance just as has done before by throwing his armor in one direction, then swerving suddenly in another. In this case he was driving northeast, then swung eastward from Reims.

The first American column entered Verdun at mid-morning.

In contrast to the fierce fighting of 1914-18 in which hundreds of thousands fought and died on the Argonne battlefield, hardly a shot was fired to-day.

The Argonne Forest was dark and silent. It still showed many towns familiar to thousands of veterans of that previous war.

There were no dead to-day. I did not see either an American or German casualty in the Argonne Forest.

armored tanks and a seemingly endless stream of motorized and infantry crossed the city from end to end.

Bucharest Quiet

Bucharest later was reported returning to semi-normal conditions, with Romanian police directing civilian traffic while Red Army men with signal flags regulated the movement of their own vehicles.

On the Black Sea coast south of Constanta Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin's patrols ranged along the Romanian-Bulgarian frontier but the bulk of his 3rd Ukraine Army was hastening on westward for a joint sweep up the Danube with Malinovsky.

Meanwhile on the northern end of the long front the first definite offensive success in the Warsaw sector in more than a week put the Russians less than 12 miles north of the pre-war Polish capital.

It was still too early to say whether the Russians would be able to sustain their attack in this sector, for it bristles with the strongest German concentrations anywhere on the eastern front.

Swiss Attempt To Aid Poles

LONDON, Sept. 1—(AP)—A Swiss radio broadcast said today the International Red Cross had offered to negotiate controversies between the Allies and the Germans over the status of home resistance forces.

Yesterday a Berlin broadcast declared the Germans would not heed British and American warnings against treating the Polish home army "contrary to the laws and customs of war." The Germans contended these Poles were rebels against the government-general (Nazi-annexed area of Poland) and The Hague Convention did not apply to them.

The Swiss broadcast today said the International Red Cross declared any forces operating within military law with visible insignia and under responsible leaders should receive treatment as prisoners of war.

Troops In France Cross Into Italy

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—The BBC said today that Swiss correspondents had reported that American troops after the capture of Nice crossed the Italian border and "effected a junction with Italian Patriots."

The BBC German-language broadcast was recorded by the United States Office of War Information.

An Algiers radio report this afternoon said "Allied advanced units thrusting from Nice have crossed the Italy-French frontier and have reached Ventimiglia (five miles across the border)."

and carried a bouquet of Talisman the German frontier at Verdun and in an eastward thrust through St. Dizier to Commercy had advanced to within 58 miles of Germany's Saar.

They had crossed at a jump the Argonne Forest and the Meuse and driven past some of the most important works of the old French Maginot Line.

Verdun is only 30 miles from the Duchy of Luxembourg and 46 miles from the rail centre of Metz.

The red, yellow and black flags of Belgium already flew over the Belgian Government's building in London in anticipation of the arrival of the Allies at the border and the imminence of liberation, and the Germans admitted that the fight for Northern France was as good as over.

30 Miles a Day.

The British forces, slashing away at a rate of nearly 30 miles a day, stabbed at Longpre, only 10 miles from Abbeville, where the Germans reached the Channel in 1940, and all but cut off the Channel coast southward to Le Havre, threatened by a 1st Canadian Army force only 10 miles distant.

British troops were within 65 miles of Calais where German guns have barked at Dover across the narrowest part of the Channel for more than four years, and where the Rifle Brigade made a gallant stand against the onrushing Germans four years ago.

A 22-mile race north of Amiens, a town still in the memory of Britons who fought bitterly there in the First Great War, took another British column to Hebuterme, 12 miles from Arras and 39 miles from the poppy-filled fields of Flanders in Belgium.

Fast-Moving

Moving so swiftly that official informaiton here lagged far behind developments, a mighty arc formed by the U.S. 3rd and 1st Armies also swept to or across the border of Belgium in the vicinity of Sedan.

Front dispatches last night said U.S. 1st Army forces had penetrated Sedan, five miles from Belgium.

Everywhere the Germans were in full flight for the dubious safety of their homeland fort lines.

"The battle of France is all but over,' wrote Associated Press War Correspondent William Smith White, "what is developing now is the beginning of the battle for Germany."

To the west along the coast of France, Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army group, now in high gear, rolled up the buzzbomb belt at a mile-an-hour rate and captured General Eberbach— at breakfast — in a final ignominy to the broken German 7th Army he commanded 20 Mile Gap.

The escape gap for the guardians of the flying bomb sites in the Le Havre sector was narrowed to 20 miles by a British plunge to within 20 miles of Abbeville. Through this funnel the Germans were in flight for Flanders

On the southernmost American flank a 20-mile advance east of Troyes carried to Bar Sur Seine within 10 miles of a link-up with spearheads of the 7th Army driving up through southern France

Headquarters had no late information on battle front positions in the Sedan gap, but the Belgian Government in London ordered its red, yellow and black national flags raised at its headquarters this morning in sakute to arrival of the Americans at the frontier and the bright promise of liberation.

In a fan-out north of Paris, the left flank of the American 1st Army shot patrols within a mile of Compiegne,45 miles from the French capital. These reconnaissance forces presumably went along the main road, by-passing the historic forest where the armistices of 1918 and 1940 were signed.

Other forces branched out to Bresle and Fouquerolles, just east of Beauvais, and occupied Creil, Crepy, Betrancourt and Harmont.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

We are today going to give some choice recipes for summer luncheons, easy to prepare, inexpensive and very nourishing. Nearly everyone likes cheese especially when made up in some way that is unusual and that is what the following recipes will be.

Cheese Biscuits

¾ cup grated cheese, ¾ cup flour, ½ cup shortening, cayenne, 1 egg yolk, Mix the cheese and flour, then cut the shortening into this mixture, add a little cayenne pepper and moisten with the yolk of the egg. Roll out to one-fourth inch thick, cut into long narrow strips and bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees F) for 5 or 7 minutes. If you prefer, use the ordinary recipe for baking powder biscuits, making the biscuits in 2 layers and sprinkling grated cheese between the layers.

Cheese Wafers

Spread grated cheese on thin crackers, season with a bit of paprika and heat in a quick oven until the cheese is melted. These are nice to serve with soup or a salad. Thin slices of toasted bread may be used instead of the crackers.

Mashed Potatoes Au Gratin

6 potatoes riced, 3 tablespoons fat, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 2 eggs, ¼ cup grated cheese ½ cup buttered crumbs. Add fat, seasoning and eggs to the hot riced potatoes. Beat until light and mound on a baking dish. Cover with grated cheese, then with buttered crumbs. Bake (400 degrees F) 10 minutes, until crumbs are brown.

The vegetable plate, an appetizing arrangement of vegetables, makes an excellent luncheon. It is lovely to look at and delicious to taste. Below are some recipes you will enjoy.

Washington Salad

¾ cup chopped celery, ¾ cup bottoms of artichokes chopped, ¾ cup canned cherries, ¾ cup diced grapefruit pulp, cheese straws. Pile cheese straws in log cabin style on a large plate, leaving a centre space sufficient to hold the salad. Mix celery, artichokes, cherries and grapefruit pulp with salad dressing and decorate with a large spoonful of mayonnaise. Serve two cheese straws with each portion of salad.

Waldorf Salad

celery, ½ cup nut meats, lettuce, mayonnaise. Fold together the 1 cup diced apples, 1 cup diced apple, celery, nuts, mix with mayonnaise and place on lettuce leaves. Do not allow this to stand long before serving as the nuts will discolor the fruit. Hot tea biscuits are lovely served with this salad.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 2

While there is definite promise of substantial and enduring growth and gain through industry, application, persistent and patient effort, yet there are also dangers of loss, with reversal of fortunes through deception, fraud or carelessness with papers, through theft or illicit transactions. There may be impetuous acts, involving waste of time, money or energy. With sound and sturdy efforts there is promise of firm foundations for good fortune. Superiors do not assist.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which final issues depend on individual effort, sustained and patient against odds, loss, theft, fraud, want of cooperation from higher-ups. There are hints of many phases of duplicity, trickery and illicit activities, perhaps tampering with legal matters or documents. Also waste of physical and mental energy, money and time, contribute to unprofitable conditions. But brave, sound and well-directed energies win in the long run, with enduring promise.

A child born on this day may have much sturdiness of character, with sound mental equipment, yet may suffer loss and reversals, through carelessness, fraud and imposition.

With The Girl Guides

Here's your Scribe, back after two months' holiday, ready to bring you the Guide news again.

Guide and Brownie meetings for First St. Andrew's Company and Pack will commence on Wednesday, September 13. The Brownies meeting at 6.15 and the Guides at 7 o'clock, in the downstairs Sunday School Hall. We hope to see all our former members there.

No doubt most of you have read of the big Labor Day celebration being planned by the Women's Auxiliaries of the Navy, Army and Air Force, to be held in Riverside Park. The money raised by this effort is to be used to send Christmas parcels to our boys and girls in the various Armed Services. The program for this event is varied, and should prove of interest to all the Guides and Brownies. We would especially draw their attention to the "Beauty Contest" being held at 4.40 p.m. for girl of 9-10-11-12 years, and 13-14-15 years. We have been asked to encourage our Guides and older Brownies to enter this contest, and help make it a success. Bathing suits, or play-suits can be worn, and fuller details can be obtained from the full-page program which appeared in the Examiner a few nights ago. We hope that our girls will lend their support to this, and other items on the program and so help to make it a success.

"The Scribe."

Mother Dies Believing Son Lives On

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1—(AP)—Mrs. Julia Columbo's life ended last night—and with it one of the tenderest deceptions ever enacted in this capital of make-believe.

She was the 78-year-old mother of Russ Columbo, crooner and film actor. She died still happy in the belief that he was winning ever more fame abroad — mercifully unaware that actually her son died a decade ago.

Columbo was killed September 2, 1934, when 26, and on the crest of a career as a night-club singer and film actor. He and friends were examining an old cap-and-ball pistol, believing it unloaded. The weapon discharged, and the bullet struck him in the brain.

His mother was too ill from a heart ailment to be told of his death.

So each week she received a letter from "Russ." Actually it was written by her husband, Micholas, or one o fthe other four children—Tony in Philadelphia and Albert, John and Mrs. Carmela Tempest here.

The missive would be filled with newsy accounts, tender sentiments, reports of his successes abroad, and regret that he was still too busy to return for a visit.

Once a month the letter contained a cheque for $398, supposedly from Russ. It was the payment to her from his insurance policy.

The deception was continued after failing eyesight narrowed her little world. Her husband died two years ago.

100,000 In July

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP)—More than 100,000 United States tourists received temporary Canadian ration cards during July at 68 local ration boards throughout Central Ontario, it was estimated yesterday by W. H. McCrae, regional rationing superintendent.

Dangerous Souvenir

DETROIT, Sept. 1—(AP).—Daniel Broush, 10, was killed and three playmates were injured when a 75-mm. souvenir of the First Great War exploded on Tuesday. From hospital beds where they received transfusions, the other boys, John Strejan and Ramond Ostrowski, both 11, and Daniel Doran, 5, told detectives they had been throwing the shell at some rocks in the Doran backyard when it exploded.

Among the survivors is Lt.-Cmdr. Ian Hunter Bell, R.C. N.V.R., of Vancouver, whose wife lives at Halifax, N.S. He has been in command of the Alberni for two years.

CORVETTE ALBERNI SUNK ON INVASION DUTY—59 OF CREW MISSING—Second Canadian warship lost on invasion duties and 18th ship lost by the Royal Canadian Navy since the outbreak of the war, the West Coast built corvette, H.M.C.S. Alberni has been sunk with nearly two-thirds of her crew missing, it was announced by Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, Minister of National Defence and Naval Services. In the three and one-half years of her service, the Alberni was at sea during the most bitterly fought months of the Battle of the Atlantic, rescued scores of merchant seamen from torpedoed ships, was credited with the "probable" sinking of a German submarine, and saw service in the Mediterranean.

Says Rommel Prisoner In Germany

LONDON, Sept. 1—(CP Cable)—The Evening Standard, in a story from its correspondent Philip Grune in Paris, today reported the Gen. Otto Von Stuelpnagel, German military governor of Paris, died from self-inflicted gunshot wounds following the failure of the plot against Hitler.

Gune said the story came from an informant "closely connected with underground work within German administrative circles in Paris."

The correspondent added that Field Marshal Kesselring, Stuelpnagel and Rommel became involved in the plan to rid Germany of Hitler when they realized that the end had come from Germany after the success of the Allied invasion.

On July 20, he reported, troops under Stuelpnagel's command fought a fierce battle with the Gestapo at their Paris headquarters, but soon it was learned in Paris that the plot against Hitler had failed.

Stuelpnagel is said to have written a farewell letter to his son saying he preferred an honorable death on the battlefield to what awaited him in Germany and during a drive from Paris to Verdun shot himself in the head. He died a few days later.

Rommel, too, knew his fate, said the report, when a special motor car accident was arranged for him, but he "did not die and probably now is in Germany."

Empire Ties Help Canada

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 1. — (ENS).—The Seymour West Women's Institute which held its August meeting at the home of Mrs. Allan Lewis, was addressed by Mrs. Gordon McCullough on the "Empire Consciousness."

In her address she defined the words Empire from the Latin imperium,' and meaning 'dominion' and consciousness from "conscients," meaning knowledge. Within the Empire you have dominions such as Canada enjoying dominion status under the statute of Westminster places them on the equality with the Mother Country.

The value of British connection was stressed under the headings of prestige, security, trade and commerce and cultural relations. As part of the British Empire our standing was immeasurably higher than if we stood alone, she said. As part of that Empire our duty is plainly known. Our security is the Empire's security and only as an Empire are we sufficiently strong to make ourselves secure. All our surplus products must be sold abroad and on the markets obtained depends our prosperity.

"The rule of law, equal justice, freedom of speech, of the press, political liberty, these are our common heritages. Our parliamentary system is flexible. Our administration of justice is sure and swift. Our law enforcement is efficient due to our close association with Great Britain and the benefit derived from her help and example. Our motto is "united we stand, divided we fall." In conclusion she quoted 'The Empire Speaks of Britain' by Charles Roberts.

Other items on the program were a vocal solo by Miss Isobel Lewis and a demonstration by Mrs. Mac Waddell of bedspreads, dresses and stand scarves made from cotton bags.

It was decided to accept the invitation of the Seymour East W.I. to be their guests in September at Burnbrae Presbyterian church.

Set A Record

HENSALL, Ont., Sept. 1—(CP).—After driving an estimated 260,000 miles without an accident, Frank Haines, of Hensall, Ont., yesterday was involved in a collision with a truck. No injuries were suffered by either Haines or his war worker passengers. However, Haines, a taxi driver, believes he has set something of a record.

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning — never comfortable. about the things you buy in wartime

The production of milk and milk products in Canada has achieved a notable record. Careful planning makes the best use of every quart. But we must all recognize the conditions imposed by war and realize that in these times we all can't get all we want.

Chairman
Wartime Prices & Trade Board

Milk IS NOT ELASTIC

Milk is our most valuable food. It must provide us with milk to drink, with butter, cheese, evaporated and concentrated milk and a score of other products.

Canadian farmers have done a magnificent job. They have increased milk production in 1943 by more than 540 million quarts over 1938.

They have done this in the face of a 25% reduction in farm help, equipment shortages, and the fact that it takes two to three years to bring a calf into milk production.

WHAT HAPPENS TO ALL THIS MILK?

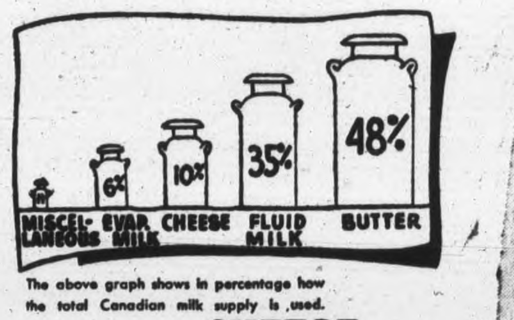
In spite of greater production, the demand for milk and milk products has risen even more, because—

(a) There's more money to spend;

(b) More people are working, with changed food habits and increased food needs;

(c) Our Armed Forces and Allies make heavy demands.

It has therefore been necessary—by rationing, by subsidies, by careful planning and by other controls —to divert our milk supply into channels most suited to our various food needs.



The above graph shows in percentage how the total Canadian milk supply is used.

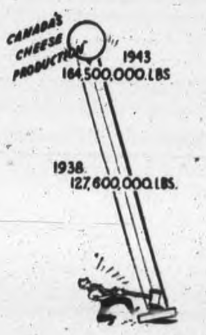
TAKES 35% OF OUR MILK

Because fluid milk is regarded by nutritionists as the most nearly perfect food, nothing has been allowed to interfere with its sale. Today, Canadians are drinking more milk—and a greater percentage of our milk supply is being consumed as fluid milk—than ever before. Fluid milk has the right of way, but don't waste a drop of it.



CHEESE

Canada's annual cheese production has gone up by about 37 million pounds since the war.

Cheese is a concentrated food product—easily shipped and stored. That is one reason why we send large quantities to Great Britain to help meet its pressing food needs. While in the last year we exported four of every five pounds of cheese we made, our production has been so increased that we have left for domestic use about three million pounds a year more than before the war.

BUTTER

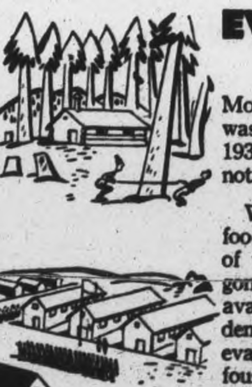
IT TAKES 9 QUARTS OF MILK TO MAKE ONE POUND OF BUTTER

In the first three years of war, our butter consumption increased 10.9%. So, rationing was established to prevent too much milk going into butter, at the expense of other important milk products, and to insure a fair share to everyone.

The rationing of butter was influenced by the fact that it has less nutritive value than some other milk products, and because we get a generous supply of fats or their food equivalent in other forms.

To maintain a proper balance of consumption between various milk products and to ensure that butter is put into storage for winter use—when production drops—it is necessary to reduce the ration from time to time.

The only Canadian-made butter not consumed in Canada is that sent by the Red Cross in prisoner-of-war parcels, each of which contains a 1 lb. tin.



EVAPORATED MILK
TAKES 6% OF OUR MILK

More than twice as much (152 million lbs.) was used by Canadians this last year as in 1938 (74 million lbs.). And yet, there has not been enough.

Where has it all gone? It's an important food for babies—and there are 50,000 more of them a year. Larger quantities have gone to areas where fresh milk is not available. Armed Services have added new demands. In spite of this, our exports of evaporated milk to Great Britain, Newfoundland and the West Indies, etc., are maintained at pre-war level.

ICE CREAM AND OTHER MILK PRODUCTS
TAKE ABOUT 1½% OF OUR MILK

The manufacture of ice cream is restricted to the 1941 level because milk is needed for other purposes.

Milk Powder and Condensed Milk are taking more milk. Milk sugar is used in the manufacture of Penicillin and for other wartime purposes. Casein (a milk by-product) is used in making glue for aeroplanes.

90% OF THE MILK PRODUCED IN CANADA IS CONSUMED IN CANADA

Softening Up Tactics

Lieut.-General Kurt Dittmar, propagandist for the German High Command, has implied that Germany would be willing to cease fighting if the Allies would relax their war aims and substitute "an attitude of reason and better understanding".

This ace propagandist, whose job after finishing one war is to get ready for another, acknowledged German reverses in France and deplored the way the war was going for the Germans, but declared Germany had to continue as long as our enemies stuck to their war aims.

He again harks back to the old story of the world refusing to recognize the living rights "of a great capable and hard working nation" as he terms the Germans.

This is just another of these blasts which the Allied Nations have been hearing periodically, and in recent weeks more frequently. It is a German plan of softening up the Allied peoples in order that Germany may get a breather to prepare for another war.

How could a group of civilized nations show any other attitude towards Huns and barbarians than the Allied nations have and are showing? A nation that has slain civilians by the hundreds of thousands; a nation whose actions in the past five years condemn it to be held for time to come in complete distrust, requires no consideration whatsoever.

The defeat of the Third Reich must be a total defeat. Fascist force must be broken by a superior force—utterly and for ever. The retreating Wehrmacht must be smashed on the ground and in the air. The German soldier must be broken. His nerves must be forced to give way and his will to resist must be extinguished.

The Allied nations must be on their guard against this propaganda of the German High Command. There can be no softening up on our part. The softening up must be done by our armed forces through an invasion of Germany.

The longer the war lasts the more evident it becomes that the security of the world depends not on the destruction of a mere political system, Nazism within Germany, but on the German capacity to invent and produce man-killing implements. The means to make war in the future has got to be monopolized by the nations which have the will for peace. Unless the means is made impossible for Germany any new political system in that country will soon come under the domination of the German High Command and the Prussian officer class.

Montgomery a Field Marshal

General Montgomery, the hero of El Alamein, has been elevated to the rank of Field Marshal, according to the announcement from the War Office in London and will now direct the British armies in Northern France. Along with General Montgomery's elevation comes a realignment of the Allied Command in France which places Lieut.-General Bradley, field commander of the American forces, with parallel status with General Montgomery.

At the time of invasion of France General Montgomery was deputy commander of Allied ground forces, but on the moving to France of General Eisenhower's headquarters the need for a deputy commander no longer existed. With the rapid push of the British, Canadian and American armies General Montgomery's field responsibilities increased and the logical step was to free him of any further responsibility for operations of the 12th American Army Group under Bradley.

Eisenhower in his announcement said that the division of the command when the French campaign reached the present stage had been evisioned from the start, and the present set up merely puts into effect what had been regarded all along as the final stage of the Allied command system. He paid warm tribute to Montgomery as not only being his close and warm friend but one of the greatest soldiers of this or any other war.

On the invasion of France Montgomery held responsibility for putting into action the plans laid by the Combined Chiefs of Staff. Under the orders of the Supreme Commander, General Eisenhower, this involved battle decisions in the light of day-to-day development of the campaign, adaptations and speeding or slowing of the timetable as required.

Montgomery's general aim from the beginning was to destroy the German Army by encirclement. In pursuit of this aim it is doubtful whether any great coalition army has ever been so closely integrated as one army. His plan fell into four clear stages. First was the "break-in" stage which pierced the Atlantic Wall and gained a beachhead. This was completed by the end of June when British troops had established a bridgehead across the Odon, south of Caen, and the Orne, north of Caen, while U.S. forces had mopped-up the Cherbourg Peninsula.

Next was the "break-out" stage. This was achieved during the next three weeks by the British-Canadian capture of Caen, pinning down six of the nine available German Panzer divisions. The Americans exploited the capture of St. Lo and pushed across to Coutances, turning the German flank. The Germans thereafter found the beachhead could no longer be held in strength at all points.

The next stage the "break-through" began at the end of July. It has been the swiftest phase. Fifty per cent. of the total German strength was engaged and worn down particularly in the Caen-Tilly sector. In eight days the German left flank disintegrated and the fast-moving U.S. armour swept south through the Brittany peninsula, fanned out westward towards Brest and southwards towards St. Nazaire and Nantes. While this was being done German armour was held in the north and attacks were launched southward from Caen and Caumont. The Germans attempted to pivot their left flank and so establish a line, but failed.

The failure initiated the fourth stage, "encirclement". The U.S. armour encountering fluid opposition, wheeled eastward through Laval, pushed on towards Le Mans and liquidated the whole German left flank pushing south of Paris. With perfect timing the British-Canadian offensive was pushed, not eastward as the Germans had been led to expect, but southward to meet the American right pincer and close the gap behind the main German forces.

Montgomery outsmarted Rommel early in the invasion he announced his heavy armoured British divisions on the beachhead. Among them was the British 59th Division which had formerly been the spearhead in the British advance from El Alamein to Tunisia. No doubt Rommel led himself to think that Montgomery would, like himself, rely on these famous divisions for the key attacks. But Montgomery did otherwise, he gave no preference to the British troops and while the British and Canadians pinned down the main German Army the stage was all set for the U.S. break through.

Montgomery now becomes a Field Marshal, an honour befitting a great soldier and a great Allied field commander.

The Writing On The Wall

The German people are being advised by the BBC to write on every wall these words: "Mein Kampf, page 104".

The Germans will not have very much difficulty in looking up this reference, for Hitler forced everyone in the Reich to buy his book. In recent years it has become a German's bible. When they turn to page 104 they will read this passage: "Whenever a nation is led to disaster by the government, revolt by every member of the government is not a privilege but a duty".

We feel that this must have been a slip of the pen when Hitler was writing Mein Kampf, for if he had to write it today, this would never have appeared. But what is written is written. Through these years he has followed his intuitions as they appeared in Mein Kampf. He has now provided the German nation with disaster, thus BBC is maintaining that it is up to the German people to perform the duty that the Fuehrer has so clearly laid upon them.

These words no doubt, look like the writing on the wall to Hitler.

NOTE AND COMMENT

With 21 ministers in the Cabinet it looks as if it is a case of all officers and no privates in the Duplessis army.

Germans in flight are streaming past Compiegne, where Hitler danced his silly little fandango of victory when France fell. Adolf probably treads a different measure now—a step more suitable to a funeral march.

Unprotective Tariff

(By J. H. GRAY)

IN girding Germany for war for world conquest, the German cartelists made use of two weapons of extreme efficacy. One was the patent laws of the deomracies. The other was their so-called protective tariffs.

Because of the traditionally high American tariff, the eyes of American industrialists have been turned inward upon their economy. They regard the American consumer as exclusively their own and have always geared their production to the American market, regarding all other markets as incidental. Because of this they were vulnerable targets indeed for the German cartels.

During the last war the American firm of E. I. duPont and Company underwent a tremendous expansion From explosives it went into dyestuffs, organic chemicals, paints and varnish. It expanded its research until between 4,000 and 5,000 articles were being marketed under its "duPont" trademark. It wanted to make use of the Haber-Bosch process for making synthetic ammonia. I. G. Farben was willing to make a deal with duPont. Farben suggested the formation of a subsidiary in which both owners would have 50 per cent of the stock.

This was the undeviating Farben formula. With 50 per cent it could veto any expansion of the subsidiaries' production which was not in the German interest. DuPont however, wanted control. It offered Farben 49 per cent. DuPont thought it could use the American tariff as a thumb-screw with which to force Farben to accept terms. Farben only laughed. Eventually duPont capitulated on Farben's terms.

The American tariff did not exist as far as the German cartels were concerned. Their technique was simple. They would ship their commodities into the United States, pay the duty and undersell American competitors. Because the American industrialists concentrated so much upon their own market, they were often more than willing to make deals with the German cartelists. If the Americans were inclined to be stubborn, Farben could threaten stubborn, Farben could threaten suit in the courts for patent infringement.

ONCE the Americans agreed to make a deal with Farben or other German interests, the formula was easy. A patent pool was first set up. The Germans and Americans threw their patents into the pool. The Americans would be guaranteed against German competition in the home market, but they would have to agree to let the Germans have exclusive control of the South American or some other market.

The Germans got the benefit of American inventions for their exclusive use in Europe, they got exclusive control of the vast markets outside the United States and usually they had production restriction clauses inserted into the licenses of Americans in their own market.

The tariff did not protect American industry from the German master-planners; but it did protect the American consumer from getting the benefit of competition in the cartel controlled field. Smaller firms outside the United States, which might have exported to the United States and hence broken the cartel price structure, did not have the resources needed to engage in a price war after paying the high duty on their products. The American tariff, hence, played into the hands of the German cartel.

But there was more, much more, to this than mere dividing up of commercial markets between rival trusts. The objective of all the German cartel agreements was to restrict production in the democracies of vital materials of war while at the same time expanding the production of the German war industries.

THROUGH the cartel agreements the Germans were able to severely restrict American production of aluminum, magnesium, optical instruments, drugs, artificial rubber, artificial gasoline, tungsten-carbide, beryllium and a host of other essential war materials. German production of all these products sky-rocketed but when the United States went to war, and even before Pearl Harbor, its industrial front was stifled by the serious shortages of these elements. The German cartels had lulled American industry into a false sense of security behind their high tariff. That Germany did not win the war was not because of anything that her scheming cartelists had left undone.

Do You Know These Laws?

We glanced over a booklet the other day issued by the motor vehicles branch of the department of highways dealing with the traffic laws, just by way of refreshing our memory, and came upon some things we either didn't know, or had forgotten. The booklet reminds car owners that possession of a licence to drive is a privilege and not a right, and, therefore, can be taken away for infractions of the regulations.

Are you aware that rear-view mirrors and windshield wipers are required on all motor vehicles? Probably they all had them once, but we have seen cars on the road that lacked one or both.

A distance of at least 100 feet must be maintained between commercial vehicles travelling in the same direction outside a city. You can see them 30 or 40 feet apart any day; sometimes less.

Then there are regulations "common to all municipal bylaws," one of which says that there must be no parking within 120 feet of any point designated as a street car stop on any street having a pavement width of less than 54 feet, or within 80 feet of a point designated as a street car, bus or coach stop on any other street. That would hit a lot of people if it were enforced in St. Thomas. Cars not only park right up to the edge of the bus stop, but sometimes on it. Nor is it permissible to park within 25 feet of a fire-hall on the side of a street on which a fire-hall is located, or within 100 feet of the fire-hall on the opposite side of the street. Here the cars park up on the sidewalk, but the firemen have little margin to swing the long trucks around in.

Between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. parking on the side of any street adjacent to the playgrounds of any public or separate school is banned on days when the school is in session.

Do you observe that one?—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

TOO BIG A BURDEN

Too large a percentage of the population is being supported by a small number of taxpayers.—Brantford Expositor.

Disastrous Case History

(By J. H. GRAY)

AS an instrument of German national policy, the German cartel system organized around I. G. Farben had two functions. The first was to provide Germany, by chemical research, with the instruments of war. It did this in 1914 with synthetic nitrogen. It did it in 1937-38 with synthetic rubber and synthetic gasoline. Of equal importance was its other function—of preventing the democracies from protecting themselves on the industrial front. They did this by restricting and curtailing our production of vital new materials of war.

Because of restrictions on production dictated by the German cartels, the United States, Canada, Great Britain and France found themselves in extreme peril at the outbreak of war. The German cartels had forced the democracies to restrict aluminum expansion while German aluminum production increased more than 10-fold. They prevented the giant American optical firm—Bosch and Lomb — from selling direly needed field glasses and optical instruments to Great Britain and France. They forced Standard Oil to withhold licenses for making synthetic rubber from American rubber companies. They forced General Electric to restrict production of tungsten-carbide, a steel-hardening compound of immense value; while Germany increased her production in all directions.

The aluminum cartel is as good an example as any of the way in which the Germans worked and schemed. An aluminum cartel was in operation in Europe as early as 1928. In 1931 it took legal form with the incorporation in Switzerland of the Alliance Aluminum Company. This company was to fix the aluminum production of the world, exclusive of the United States. The ratio of ownership of shares was based upon production capacity. The members were the aluminum companies of Canada, Britain, France, Switzerland and Germany.

Alliance fixed prices at satisfactorily high minimum figures. Instead of allotting markets, the usual dodge, the quota system was universally applied. By fixing total production and fixing prices, there was no need to divide up the markets.

Between 1930 and 1932 production of aluminum dropped by about 50 per cent in all countries, including the United States. After Hitler came to power, I. G. Farben recognized at once that the Alliance policy was not in the German national interest. Germany would need vast quantities of aluminum in its war preparations. The Germans announced that henceforth they were going to produce aluminum in larger quantities. The other companies did not like this high-handed attitude. The Germans, however, hoodwinked them nicely. The German cartel agreed not to export any aluminum and hence would not interfere with the markets of the others. Further it agreed to advance its price in Germany for all aluminum not sold to the government. If it did do a little exporting occasionally, it guaranteed to buy an amount equal to its exports from the cartel.

By 1936 the need for aluminum in all countries had so expanded that the Alliance lapsed into dormancy. But the cartel had served the Germans well. It enabled them to get a jump of at least three years on the democracies in expanding aluminum production. The following table shows how German production skyrocketed after Hitler came to power and how the expansion in the democracies took a much slower pace.

PRODUCTION IN METRIC TONS

Canada	16,200	15,500	20,556	26,900	42,550	50,000
France	14,300	15,100	22,000	28,300	34,500	40,000
Germany	18,900	37,200	70,800	97,500	127,500	175,000
Switzerland	7,500	8,200	11,700	13,700	25,000	28,000
England	11,000	13,000	15,100	16,400	19,400	24,000
United States	38,614	33,647	54,112	102,037	132,759	130,129

According to Joseph Borkin and Charles A. Welsh in "Germany's Master Plan," by 1941 the aluminum production of Germany exceeded that of all the United Nations combined.

Of all the countries hit by the German aluminum cartel, none suffered perhaps as much as France. France could not muster enough aluminum to provide more than the merest token airforce. The German cartelists had a great hand in the German success in the battle of France in the summer of 1940. That the German air force failed in the battle of Britain was certainly not the fault of I. G. Farbenindustrie.

Why Naval Gunfire Is Accurate

(By A. C. CUMMINGS in HAMILTON SPECTATOR)

OFF the coast of Normandy recently the famous old British battleship Warspite, with five shots, knocked out four German anti-aircraft guns at a distance of eleven miles. The five salvoes completely destroyed a wood from which hundreds of Nazis were deluging British and Canadian troops with mortar and machine-gun fire. On another occasion the Warspite shelled Nazi units on the outskirts of a Normandy village seventeen miles away. How is it done? How can guns weighing over a hundred tons each and hurling a shell weighing a ton, achieve such accuracy?

The answer is that naval gunnery is a science which, during the past 30 years, has evolved as many sets of mathematical tables as the astronomer uses for studying the stars. Every one has been perfected by trial and error on special gunnery ranges, so that today a British battleship's gunnery department has the benefit of the work of thousands of research scientists and the millions of dollars spent in compiling these tables.

It is a mathematical certainty for instance, that if the gunnery officer is told to fire on a target 26,700 yards away, with a compass bearing 178 degrees, no matter what the state of the sea or the weather, his ship's guns can do it. His book of tables tells him exactly how he must correct those readings to allow for all the prevailing conditions. The corrected readings are transmitted to the guns, which are set accordingly.

The guns are fired by one man—known as a director layer—who presses one pedal. The pedal operates an electric circuit. But the guns may not fire immediately. The ship may be rolling and that could render futile all the elaborate calculations that have gone into the ringing. So, although the director layer has "switched on", there is yet another "switch"—an automatic one—which will operate at the right second.

It is operated by mercury. Only when a column of mercury, which is linked up by wires to the guns, is in a certain position will the electricity pass through, after the pedal has been pressed. The mercury will only come into position when the ship is on an even keel. This is what British gunners call taking the roll out of the ship, or "ironing out the waves". As the ship rolls or heaves there will be one instant when it is evenly on its keel. That is the instant when the circuit is completed and, by its completion, the guns are fired.

When the warship is moving at high speed, and firing at a moving target, more instruments are used to estimate the speed and direction of the enemy warship and translate them again into corrections for the two basis readings of range and compass bearing by which the guns are trained.

Without the Royal Navy's huge guns, and without the 30 years of exact science which has gone into the firing of them, it is safe to say that many fewer British or Canadian soldiers would have got ashore in Normandy. Those guns made the beaches possible for them in two hours.

USEFUL POLES

A Bible Message

Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches. In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water. For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years. When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole? The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed and walk. And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and on the same day was the sabbath....

And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day. But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work. Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father making himself equal with God.

Then answered Jesus and said unto them Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth these also doeth the Son likewise. For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel. (John 5: 2-16-20.)

NEW STYLE CAMPAIGN

The campaign Hon. John Bracken is condu[illegible]ing across the country is rather interesting. [illegible] is refreshing in its novelty.

Mr. Bracken seems to start from the [illegible] position that the Canadian voter, in the m[illegible] is an intelligent man or woman, not stro[illegible] partisan, not greatly impressed with slogans [illegible] formulas, inclined to think for himself, im[illegible] with a love for Canada and the Empire, [illegible] rather suspicious of the flamboyant in poli[illegible] oratory or political promises.

Whether it is politically effective or [illegible] whether or not he can reach a sufficient [illegible]ence of men and women of the sort to w[illegible] that type of campaign will appeal, is for [illegible] to tell.—Vancouver Province.

$100 Tips

Down in the Maritimes they are strong[illegible] harness racing. The horsemen follow the [illegible] and the people bet their heads off. Five [illegible]dred and a thousand dollars per bet on a [illegible] is peanuts for many of them.

And, the winners like to flash their m[illegible] around. Hundred-dollar tips to elevator [illegible] are reported and the donors are not any [illegible] or Y seeking publicity. They just toss o[illegible] cash with abandon and head for the next [illegible] track.—W. L. Clark in the Windsor Star.

Sissies!

Pictures of American soldiers shaving [illegible] adverse conditions along the far-flung [illegible] fronts are not uncommon, including bri[illegible] generals.

But why should strong men who face d[illegible] battle with equanimity need a looking g[illegible] get a clean shave? Before the days of the [illegible] razor there were men wielding the old st[illegible] edge blades who could dispense with the m[illegible] They just closed their eyes and felt the[illegible] along cheek and jaw and lip. Today app[illegible] the paratroopers, tank comanders and [illegible]rine fighters feel that there is a limit [illegible] dangers which a man should be asked [illegible] They insist on a small piece of looking g[illegible] shaving.—New York Times.

SHORT STORY IN FUR—The shorter length of the new fur coats certainly does not mean any skimping of fur. Wide tuxedo revers, full sleeves and wide turn-back cuffs tell the story of compensation for the shorter length. Jaeckel shows this new 36-inch Persian and makes it with a slight back flare, wide sleeve, fullness at the shoulder, graduated tuxedo front and a curved hem with side slits—all attractive features in a coat of many uses and constant beauty.

Suits Kerchiefs Taboo Men Declare

Is your soldier coming home on a furlough this week-end? If he is, then make sure the clothes you plan on wearing are the right type to set a man's fancy soaring off into rosy dreams the minute he lays eyes on you! One thing is sure, judging from a small survey made recently to discover just what men like to see owmen wearing on various occasions, and that is he won't enjoy seeing you scooting down Main street all wrapped up in a "smart" business suit. It's a fact, some men just don't like to see a girl in a severely-tailored suit, completely equipped with a shirt, tie, and any other strickly masculine accessories young women seem to find excuses to wear these days.

The survey also disclosed that nine out of ten men deplore the "mannish" type of girl; the one who comes up with that "slap-on-the-back" approach, and has to stop to fix her ttie and pull up her slacks every five or ten minutes. "It's alright for a girl to wear a suit or anything she pleases when at the office, but when I come home, I want to see a girl, not an in-between," one man said.

Soldiers, especially, say when they come home from camp, they like to see their best girls all done up in something fluffy and feminine, lavishly decorated with wisps of soft material, and crowned with a ribbon in the hair. Flowers, too, whether worn high on the head, or as a corsage on a dress are sure to make an impression with the men, it was found. One woman frankly admitted she thought if a girl dresses like a man when boyfriend comes home on leave, he'll dash back to camp with that "she's a swell guy" attitude,....and not the one that leads to the altar.

No Kerchiefs

The survey also discovered that men definitely detest those printed kerchief creations a girl wears instead of a hat. They claim it throws a girl's facial picture out of proportion, and gives her the appearance of a gypsy, or a refugee just arrived from northern Siberia. Men said they would rather see a ridiculous hat, piled high with fruit, vegetables, flowers, or anything, than a kerchief!

About shorts? Yes, if the weather is hot, and your out for a game of tennis or a hike, wear 'em! After seeing nothing but brawny male legs in an army camp all week, it's refreshing for a man to see a girl all cool in shorts servicemen report. But, there is one important "don't" about wearing shorts. Please, not on the main street of the city. Some men said they were disgraced when a friend or relative saw them walking down George street accompanied by women with their very brief shorts.

And more than one private has winced when a superior officer passes and him with a woman dressed in shorts. And if nature has not developed you for shorts, don't try to climb into them, instead, be satisfied with a dress.

In general, men are fairly well satisfied with the clothes their girl friend's good sense leads her to wear Of course, they like to see them in something special and new for a special occasion, but outside of that, it seems men just aren't the choosy type, with the exception of some things they are dead set against.

So if you can remember a few things men don't like, it isn't difficult to dress to please even the hardest critic at all times. But with available males at a premium right now, better be careful.

Correct Footwear Urged for Women

Despite the caution which every women thinks she uses in buying shoes that fit, mistakes are made that bring grimaces to a face; wrack havoc with a carriage

So here are some rules to read before you spend.

Buy large enough shoes. Foot doctors say women rarely do and that's why so many feminine patients come limping in for relief. Thrust the longer foot out for a fitting—mismated feet are not an unusual mistake that Nature makes. Provide suitable accommodations for the shorter one by padding.

Remember that fit applies to the last of a shoe as well as the size The-last fits the shape and proportions of the feet. The right one may take searching to find, but once found, it will be your friend for life.

A walled shoe— it has a third dimension running around the front half — will give more comfort to feet that are thicker than usual. Best average heel height for general wear and walking is 1½ inches.

Topper Coats Very Useful

All hail to the topper coat, that jaunty little over-everything wonder that clicks on campus as smartly as it does in the big city, for day or night wear. There's a glamorous selection now on view in sportswear and coat departments, in a wide range of fascinating fabrics and colors.

The tunic coat is taking top honors in bright wools, neutral gabardines, and even in dressed up satin and faille. Belted, with a gracefully flared skirt, it lends an air of dashing chic to the simplest suit or skirt.

The cardigan boxy, to toss on over everything is a sure-fire success style with the young crowd. It's making its appearance now in fuzzy wools and even in fur-lined style to "set up" hard-working wardrobes. For a coat with a future, equal to any occasion, consider a topper that has what it takes for every taste, every budget, too.

W.M.S. History Told In Pageant

WHITBY, Sept. 1 —(ENS) —As an appropriate feature in connection with the 10th anniversary of the School for Leaders, in session from Monday to Friday at the Ontario Ladies' College, the history of the W. M. S. of the Bay of Quine Conference Branch was outlined in a entitled "The Story of the Years," which was prepared by Mrs. E. J. Wagar and her daughter, Constance Wagar of Peterborough.

In an informal manner and with many delightful touches of humor the interesting narrative was unfolded by five characters.

In her introduction, Miss Wagar outlined the pageant as "An Adventure into the Spirit World in order to give mere humans a survey of the work accomplished by Our School for Leaders's during the past ten years."

The cast of characters included: Spirit of the School, Mrs. F. Bannister; Spirit of the First Year Delegates, Miss Constance Wagar; Spirit of the Average W. M. S. Worker as Regular Delegates— Mrs. S. W. Spafford; Spirit of the Staff, Mrs. Gordon Adams; Spirit of Missionary Guests, Mrs. R. M. Seymour.

Mrs. Crawford acted as soloist and sang "The Whole Wide World for Jesus."

NO DISGRACE TO BE SINGLE
No Greater Torture Than Unhappy Marriage; Women Wedded To Tyrannical Mates Suffer

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl 23 years of age. Have an excellent job. A comfortable home. A good family. Am not in love with any man, or in a hurry to change my way of living at this time. But since the war has started so many of my friends and acquaintances have married, mostly to service men and war time acquaintances, that I am beginning to feel that perhaps I, too, should start looking around for a potential husband. I don't want to be the only one in my crowd not married and have already begun to be heckled good-naturedly by my friends for being single.

Am I being silly in worrying a bit about the situation, or am I being wise in waiting a few more years for marriage until the war is over, or I meet the one and only?

Old Superstition Persists

ANSWER: Nothing makes me so hopeless of the real advancement of my sex as the fact that although women now have just the same chances of success in the world that men have; they can get college educations if they want them; they can follow any trade or career for which they have a talent; they can make as much money or climb as high as men can, yet they are still slaves to the old superstition that it is a reflection on them, if not an actual disgrace, if they don't marry, and that they are failures, no matter what else they have, if they haven't got a husband.

I am not disparaging marriage as an institution. Undeniably a happy marriage is our nearest approach to a Heaven on earth, and a good husband is a gift from God Himself. But, on the other hand, purgatory itself offers no greater torture than an unhappy marriage, and there are no women who suffer such heartbreak as those who are married to philanderers, or drunkards, or men who are mean and tyrannical and cruel.

All women know this, and why any one of them would marry a man she did not love, or even re-

Murray-Smith Vows Pledged

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Rhena Evelina Smith, youngest daughter of the late Thomas Smith and Clara Thompson was united in marriage to Frances Joseph Murray, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Murray, Ennismore, Rev. Father Morroco officiated and the wedding music was played by Miss Marion Best.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Roderick Culbertson, was dressed in a frock of white sheer crepe, shirred bodice, embroidered at neckline, with long sleeves and full skirt. Her shoulder veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses and maiden hair fern. The bride's only ornament was a gold cross and chain, a gift of the groom.

Miss Mary O'Brien, bridesmaid, wore a frock of blue sheer crepe, torso style, with lace insertions, and three-quarter length sleeyes. She carried a ring bouquet of gladioli. The flower girl, Miss Adele Culbertson, was dressed in white sheer and carried a nosegay of yellow gladioli. The best man was Tom Murray, brother of the groom. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pin in forget-me-not setting; to the groomsman, a gold tie-pin and bar; and to the flower girl a necklace.

After the ceremony breakfast, served to about thirty guests at the home of the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. H. Smith, a reception was held held at Hooper's Palm Rooms.

Later the bride and groom left by motor for Toronto and points west. For travelling the bride wore a two-piece dress of dusty rose brocaded taffeta, with brown accessories. On their return they will reside at 634 Union street.

Field Narrows In Drive For Tennis Title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 1—(AP).—The United States tennis championships had their second not-unexpected upset yesterday and the singles fields were narrowed to the eight quarter-finalists in each division.

Jack Jossi, the cocky Oakland, Calif., youngster seeded eighth in the men's field, joined seventh-ranked Sidney B. Wood of New York on the side lines. But the elimination of these two made little difference in the prospects for the later rounds, as neither was expected to survive Friday's matches and the upsetters are conceded little chance against a pair of highly rated opponents.

Carver Cut Him Down.

Jossi fell before Major Alexander H. Carver of Philadelphia, an air force officer recently returned from Panama. The scores were 6-1, 4-6, 8-6. Charles W. Oliver, the Perth Amboy, N.J., junior star who beat Wood in the first round, barely got past yesterday's match against Jack McManis, a determined redheaded slugger from California who now makes his home in New York. McManis took the first set at love, but couldn't hold the pace as Oliver eked out a 0-6, 6-4 decision.

Carver runs into top-seeded Pancho Segura of Ecuador to-day, who rallied from a bad start to defeat Pte. David Freeman of Pomona, Calif., 8-6, 6-1. Oliver will oppose Sgt. Frankie Parker of Munroe Field, Calif., perennial title contender who yesterday whipped Lieut. Victor Seixas of Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-4.

The other seeded stars — Lieut. Don McNeill of the navy, Lieut. Seymour Greenberg and Cadet Bobby Falkenburg of the army and civilian Bill Talbert of Indianapolis—all scored straight-set victories.

The women's division adhered even more closely to form as the eight seeded players filled the quarter-final brackets and only two of them were extended to extra sets.

Mrs. Virginia Wolfenden Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., who has been absent from national competition for two years, had her hands full in defeating Mrs. Virginia Rice Johnson of Chestnut Hill, Mass., 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. Seventeen-year-old Shirley Fry, of Akron, Ohio, played a doggedly, determined match to conquer 19-year-old Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Once again the Plazas will be battling with their backs to the wall when they meet Oshawa Main Office at Riverside Park at 6 o'clock this evening in the second game of their O.A.S.A. intermediate A playoff series. Oshawa nosed out the Peterborough winners by 3 to 2 in the opening game at Oshawa Wednesday when a couple of errors robbed Frank Stokoe of a well-earned win. "Stoke" allowed Oshawa only two hits but the misplays coupled with the failure of Plazas to hit Harvey Bennett with men in scoring position beat him. Now Plazas are facing the task of having to down the strong Oshawa club here tonight to even up the series and then to take them again in a third game to grab the series. The Peterborough players are confident that they can come through and they will be battling every foot of the way tonight. The game should be one of the best of the season and will undoubtedly draw the summer's biggest crowd as local fans are all pepped up over the Trenton series and the way the Plazas fought through to win and they expect to see them repeat the feat tonight. Just who will do the pitching tonight has not been announced on either side. Oshawa may elect to send Harvey Bennett right back at Plazas and the latter might toss Dave Wilson who pitched fine ball to take the last Trenton game in against the Main Office squad. No matter who pitches, however, it will be a battle with plenty of fireworks all the way.

It looks as if the Norwegian relief fund is going to benefit as a result of an argument over the merit of English soccer and the Scottish brand. It started down at C.G.E.-Genelco where some of the English football enthusiasts have been declaring that English teams played the best ball to be found in the world and the Scottish adherents of the game have been just as loudly proclaiming that if the English know anything about "fitba'" they learned it from the Scots. The verbal battle has finally got to the stage when talk is to be transformed into action. In other words an English and a Scottish team are being organized and they will meet at Riverside Park either on Saturday, September 9 or 16 with the proceeds to be turned over to the Norwegian relief fund. One important condition is that not a player under the age of 40 will be allowed to take part. As Peterborough Irishmen are supposed to be neutral in this football argument they will supply the referee and other officials. It has not been definitely decided yet as to whether the game will be confined to employees of the C.G.E. or open to city players generally. That and other details have to be ironed out. However the game is definitely on and by the manner in which the rival camps are arguing it should be a riot. No limit will be put on the number of subs—an important matter in view of the age handicap of the competing teams.

Entertainment Galore

There will be plenty of entertainment at the Labor Day celebration at Riverside Park Monday afternoon and the problem of what to do on the holiday has been satisfactorily solved. In addition to all the other attractions mentioned early arrivals at the Park may have the opportunity of seeing a hard ball game. The Bancroft team is anxious to play a return game here with the team which visited Bancroft last week for the swim meet and Gord Minty is endeavoring to make the necessary arrangements. If the ball game is added to the program it will be played early in the afternoon starting around 1 o'clock. Two outstanding softball games will be on the card. Toronto Simpsons, one of the best girls' teams in the Queen City will battle a Peterborough girls' team and there will be a men's contest afterward. Toronto Bowsers were to have been here but they have been ordered to play a double-header on that day with Army Shamrocks and had to call their Peterborough visit off. However a suitable substitute will fill in the bill in the Oshawa Colts. It looks like a big day's sport and the best feature about it is that every cent of the proceeds will be used to buy Christmas parcels for the Peterborough boys in the armed services.

* * * * * *

Peterborough softball fans and the Auxiliaries to the Navy, Army and Air Force owe a vote of thanks to the Oshawa Colts for their co-operation in making Monday's Labor Day celebration a success. Invited at the eleventh hour to fill in for the Toronto Bowsers who were unexpectedly ordered to play a double-header in Toronto Monday the Colts, twice Ontario intermediate champs and this year seeking a senior B title promptly accepted the bid and announced that they would be glad to co-operate in such a worthy cause and that they would be here Monday with their full team. Either Preem Whitely or Dean McLaughlin will do the tossing for the Colts and they will face the same Peterborough All-Star team that played Tip Tops here earlier in the season. It should be a wow of a game, getting under way at 5 o'clock. The girls' game which starts at 3 o'clock will see Toronto Simpsons battling with an all-star local girls' team, lining up the same as the selects who played Toronto Sunday Morning Class two weeks ago. The two games will be high lights of a big day's activities.

Kingston Wins Out

The winner of the Oshawa-Plaza round will meet Kingston next. The Ordnance team from the Limestone City eliminated Belleville the other night by taking the third game 18 to 5 and Ken Colling, somewhat sadly, makes the following comment: "This business of getting knocked off by Kingston in the O.A.S.A. playdowns is getting to be too much of a good thing. However, there wasn't much question last night when the Ordnance "Soldiers" eliminated SACO "Marines" in a third and final O.A.S.A. saw-off at the local ball balliwick. The Soldiers were too good for our boys last night, and when we say too good that goes for every department during last night's game. The Kingston winners out-hit, outfielded and pitcher Jack Holowchuk added insults to injuries by pitching a five-hitter, which included Jim Barriage's two singles and Murney Green's circuit blow. Adding all this up you find the remainder of the Marines colected but two hits off Holowchuk, and that ain't enough. The only time the 600-odd home fans had a chance to exercise their vocal chords was in the top half of the first inning when Marines scored two and completed a smart double steal. But Atanas' two-run homer evened matters in the bottom half of that frame and the Soldiers coasted in on Holowchuk's five-hit effort and some of the strongest hitting of the season. Of course the Ordnance know more than average about this business of fielding also."

St. Louis Browns' hold on first place in the American League race is not nearly so tight this morning as the result of yesterday's activities which saw the New York Yanks sweep through both ends of a double-header with the Washington Senators while the Brownies were absorbing a beating at the hands of the Detroit Tigers. As a result the St. Loius margin has been cut to two games. The gap between the fourth place Boston Red Sox and the Brownies is only 3½ games. Long ball hitting won both games for the Yanks. Old Frank Crosetti hit a homer in the ninth to win the second game with an earlier homer by Nick Etten helping and a triple by Johnnie Lindell with the bases full was responsible for the victory in the opener. Dizzy Trout pitched the Tigers to their 4 to 3 win over the Browns, his 23rd triumph of the season. The Bengals took the decision with a run in the ninth. There were no games in the National League.

Top Golfers At Weston Meet

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—Nick Wisnock, 1944 Ontario amateur champion from Burlington; Phil Farley, former titleholder from Scarboro, and puckchaser Bill Ezinickj, Oshawa and the R.C.A.F., are among the shotmakers entered in the annual Willie Park Trophy tournament at Weston Golf Club Saturday.

A field of more than 100, one of the largest entries in history, was announced last night by A. L. McAllister, Weston manager-secretary.

The Willie Park Trophy event is open to all Canadian amateurs with handicaps of 12 or under. It is an 18-hole medal play competition.

An attractive array of prizes is attached to the Weston feature, to be distributed on low gross and low net basis. There is a team prize for the low gross contribution of a four-player entry from any one club.

Presence of Wisnock and Farley in this year's Willie Park gives the event its highest rating in years. Recently Wilsnock and Farley tied for the Ontario amateur in a 36-hole competition at Royal York course. Wisnock edeged out Farley by a single stroke in a see-saw 18-hole playoff. Both figured prominently in the amateur divisions of the Maple Leaf Open at Scarboro a few weeks back.

Lady Bowlers From Peterborough Take All 5 Prizes At Lindsay

By HERB MARTIN

Over at Lindsay on Wednesday our lady bowlers made a real job of it by bringing home all of the prizes.

It was Lindsay's annual trebles competition and the Peterborough ladies annual excursion. There were sixteen rinks in all entered—50% from our club.

First prize winners were: Miss G. Patterson, Mrs. J. Cullen, Mrs. H. Beatty, skip; Each received a pair of silk hose.

Second:—Mrs. H. Graham, Mrs. S. Scott, Miss L. Allan, skip. Each received sandwich plates.

Third:—Mrs. T. Doughty, Mrs. E. Bearne, Mrs. F. Staunton, skip. Each received a cup and saucer.

Fourth:—Mrs. C. Williams, Mrs. L. Delman, Mrs. J. Arnold, skip. Each a cup and saucer.

Fifth:—Mrs. G. Spence, Miss J. Walker, Mrs. C. Renaud, skip. Each a Pyrex cake dish.

Playing at Toronto on Thursday, in the annual Globe doubles tournament, Mrs. R. Dyer and Mrs. R. Hendry were successful in winning two games, and then the rain came stopping any further play for the day.

In their first game they had to go into overtime before winning, and in the second game they were four down coming home and then helped themselves to a big five, to win by one point, and we bet it was the biggest five they ever saw during all the time they have been bowling. This information came to us early last evening.

Regarding our other representatives, Mrs. N. Killingbeck and Mrs. W. Hepburn, playing in the same tournament, we have no report.

If the weather is favorable, it will be men's rinks this evening, and tomorrow night the schedule is the usual week-end mixed.

On Monday (Labor Day) we are holding our usual mixed rink tournament. Draw from the board at 1.30 p.m.—Fee 25c—It will all depend on the weather regarding the length of games. This will be decided prior to starting the tournament.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—Yesterday this department expended considerable wordage on the problems of college and high school baseball, reaching the conclusion that the hardest one to solve is that of "snatching" undergraduate stars by professional clubs....Today, abandoning all caution, we offer our idea of a solution that might work.

Here's How:

We propose that organized baseball agree not to sign school or college ball players until their classes are graduated...In return each club, major and minor, would get the prvilege of selecting a certain number of boys from each year's graduating class (loan from pro football)...In addition, each club would have a "negotiation list" (loan from pro hockey) of a certain number of undergraduates, with which no other club could deal... There would be separate lists and drafts for high schools and colleges ...Boys on a negotiation list at the time of graduation wouldn't go into the draft and any high school kid who was more interested in higher education than in pro ball would automatically be transferred to his club's negotiation list.

The Colleges' part of the deal would be to build up a strong baseball program, via coaching and competition, and to lend enthusiastic support to an organized summer slate that would enable the boy to keep playing until autumn instead of having to end their season before baseball weather arrives.

Detroit Wins 19 Of 27 During August

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Detroit won the American League "August pennant" by roaring through 27 games with 18 victories at a fancy .704 pace and to-day had St. Louis Browns on the run within easy shooting distance of the Tigers, lankees and Red Sox.

One over-sized horse blanket would cover the four contenders, all grouped within 3½ games of first place. New York rested in second spot at the moment, only two lengths back.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout and Hal Newhouser personally accounted for 13 of the Tigers 19 triumphs and only two of their defeats. Trout's win streak, which started in July, was stretched to nine last night by his eighth successive August victory.

Trout, who has pitched 26 complete games, stepped in to grab a 4-3 verdict over St. Louis in the opener of an important four-game set and helped win his own game with a ninth-inning single. Trout later was forced at second but the man who forced him, Doc Cramer, scored the big run on Pinky Higgins single after an infield out.

While the Tigers and Brown prepared for their night game, the Yanks grabbed a pair from Washington, 9-4 and 4-3 behind rookies Walt (Monk) Dubiel and Mel Queen to pick up 1½ games. Johnny Lindell's triple unloading the sacks ruined Mickey Haefner in the opener and Frank Crosetti's ninth-inning homer with two out downed Alex Carrasquel in the finale.

Girls' Ball Game Is Rained Out

The third game of the Girls' League Intermediate Play-Offs between Outboard Marines and Brintons at Ashburham Bowl, Thursday evening, was called off in the third inning, when a rain, drizzling at first, suddenly blossomed into a teeming downpour, and put a quick end to any action in the softball loop for the evening. At the end of the pint-sized tilte, the Marines were leading the Brinton outfit with a 5 to 2 count, and had not been up to bat in their section of the third frame.

Although Thursday evening's shut-down threw the race for the Intermediate Championship into a temporary stall, the battle will be resumed on Tuesday, Sept. 5.

Slashing out with some heavy hitting in their section of the first inning, Outboard Marines scored twice. Eileen Young and Vera Mitchell both scored on a hefty blow into the right field by Marjorie Smith.

The next frame saw the Marines keep up the heavy slugging, to the tune of 3 more runs. Viona Martin came home on a hit into centre field by Bertha Phillips, and a smack into the same place by Eileen Young was the means of bringing home both Miss Phillips and Edna Smith. In their two inunings of play the Marines ran up a count of five runs, on 7 hits, and 2 errors.

Britons got 2 runs in the third frame. With one away, Pauline Steinburg shot one into right field that got away from Viona Martin, and before the ball was recovered, the batter had landed safely on third base. Thelma Batley singled through second base to score Steinburg, and a swift roller passed first base by Marjorie Walling brought home Batley. Brinton's runs were made on 2 hits, and one error.

The teams:

Brintons— Thelma Batley 3b, Phyllis Corrigan cf, Marjorie Walling lf, Marg. Thompson 2b, Jean Vass c, Gladys Lawson ss, Doris Walker p, Elsie MacKenzie 1b, Pauline Steinburg rf.

Umpires: Payne, at the plate, Barrett at the bases.

Helen Mark pitched for the Marines, allowing only 2 hits. Doris Walker hurled for the Brintons, and the Marines touched her for seven blows in their 2 innings.

Toronto Leafs Stage Powerful Drive

By The Associated Press

Somewhat overshadowed by Newark Bears' spectacular rise from the International League cellar has been the first-division surge of Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Leafs, dwelling in the second division for the better part of the season, started to hit the comeback trail Aug. 9 when they broke a five-game losing streak. They since have won 20 out of 26 games for a meatty .769 clip, good enough to hoist them into fourth place.

Having displaced Jersey City Giants, first-division occupants for several weeks, the Leafs now are 5½ games ahead and need to win eight of their remaining 14 games to assure them of at least a tie for a play-off berth.

Pitching stars of the Leafs during their sensational rise have been Al Jarlett, Alec Mustaikis and Woody Crowson, each with four won, and Luther Knerr with three victories. Tony Castano, currently batting third in the League, has been an integral part of the Leafs' attack.

Scrapping to get back to the top of the heap, Newark Bears threw Joe Page against Baltimore last night and took a 6-3 decision. Page settled down to strike out 11 and never was in trouble after the first inning.

Syracuse whittled down Jersey City's chances of a play-off post by taking the measure of the Little Giants, 6-4.

GRAND SLAM QUEEN — By Jack Sords

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Sport is fraught with perils in Windsor, Ont., obviously Doug. Vaughan of the Windsor Star relays a story of the difficulties encountered in the Ford Soccer League.

It seems that, war being what it is, a number of players in the league are not spring chickens and have to wear store ivory on their gums. The league doesn"t afford the luxury of a stadium, so an old, unlighted shed is used as dressing room Before a game, our stalwarts take their ivories out and lay them on a shelf in the shed, and the other evening the snappers got mixed up in the dark.

Accordnig to the story, the shift wasn't noticed until the next morning when some of the players found their teeth weren't cutting the cereal properly.

Hamilton hopes:

Now that the coach situation is settled, everything seems hunky-dory on the Hamilton football front. One of the largest turnouts in years, 62 pigskin stalwarts appeared for the initial practice. Abe Zvonkin, assistant coach, found his fling in the wrestling ring hadn't done him any harm, but he needs to get a few football muscles loosened up to get in the swing.

Incidentally:

Sir Malcolm Campbell, then holder of the world's land speed record and "novice" boat driver, eclipsed Gar Wood's motorboat record at Locarno, Switzerland, seven years ago today with an average speed of 125.795 miles per hour. He boosted it to 129.516 m.p.h. the following day. Capt. George Eyston of England now holds the land record with 311.42 m.p.h. set in November, 1937.

Allies Want To Win War Before Winter

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Good news continues to roll out of Allied Supreme Headquarters and to-day there have been several announcements of vast and happy significance.

One of Gen. Patton's racing armored columns has driven northward beyond Laon, not far from the headwaters of the winding river Somme, the valley of which is the main defensive position in the northern tip of France and as such is one of the great battlefields of the ages. This means that an advance of a few more miles will enable U.S. forces to flank the historic valley and render it untenable for the Hitlerites.

Meantime British troops have launched a great offensive from their bridgeheads across the lower Sine and have thrust spearheads into the Amiens on the Somme far to the north. This railway city, which has grown gray in the service of wars, is one of the key positions on the Somme.

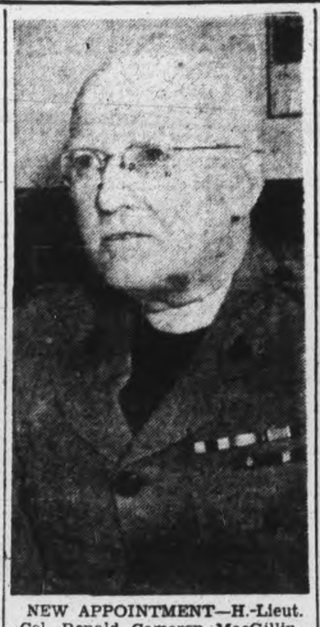
This British advance, coupled with the American drive on the east, will compel the Germans to abandon their positions on the coast of the English channel south of the mouth of the Somme. They'll have to move fast, too, or get caught in another disastrous trap.

But one of the most cheering aspects of the British offensive lies in the official statement that "the thrust was cutting off German flying bomb launching sites with every mile gained."

Supreme Commander Eisenhower has capped all this fine news with the statement that the campaign in Northern France is ahead of schedule. He didn't say just how much, but made it clear that it is more than 10 days to the good.

That 10 days means a lot at this critical juncture. Hitler is fighting for time, and we are fighting to deprive him of it. The Nazis declare the Allies are speeding in an effort to win the war before winter comes—a claim which one would scarcely dispute—and 10 days saved now may be worth 100 after the arrival of bad weather.

The whole picture of the fighting in France is that of a wholesale German retirement. The Nazis now are offering only such resistance as is necessary to cover their retreat. They are heading for the defences of their own frontier.



NEW APPOINTMENT—H.-Lieut. Col. Ronald Cameron MacGillivray, M.C., E.D., has been appointed principal chaplain (Roman Catholic) for the Canadian Army, succeeding H.-Brigadier the Right Reverend C. L. Nelligan, E.D., Bishop of Pembroke, who is retiring due to ill health. Col. MacGillivray was born in Antigonish county, N.S., and was educated at St. Francis Xavier College and the Urban University in Rome. He was awarded the Military Cross during the last war for "personal bravery" in the Battle of Amiens. He has served overseas in this war for two and one-half years, and returned to Canada to take the appointment of assistant principal chaplain under Bishop Nelligan. (Canadian Army Overseas Photo)

Wilbert Mumby Elected Legion Head

MARMORA, Sept. 1—(ENS)—Wilbert Mumby, a former president of the branch, was elected president of Marmora Branch No. 237, Canadian Legion at a meeting held in the council chambers on Wednesday evening.

Other officers elected were: 1st vice-president, Cyril Sandy; 2nd vice-president, Norman Hipson; members of executive, Nathan Mumby, Joseph Darrah; sergeant-at-arms, Albert Bartlett. The secretary-treasurer will be appointed by the new executive.

The retiring president turned the meeting over to District Commissioner George Gimblett, of Peterborough, who was present, with Zone Commander Robert Hotrum and Patrick Burke, member of the Peterborough executive.

Presentation.

Secretary-Treasurer J. W. Hickey read out eight applications for membership and two for re-instatement. Following approval, one candidate for membership was initiated and the two members re-instated.

The election of officers was followed by the installation, carried out by the district and zone commanders. The presentation of a past president's badge was made to the retiring president, T. E. Pritchard, as well as that of a blue blazer with the crest of the Canadian Legion upon it as a token of esteem from the branch for his energetic work as president.

The presentations were made by District Commander Gimblett. Past President Pritchard in replying extended congratulations to the new officers individually and expressed his deep appreciation for the honors accorded him. Later each of the newly-elected officers gave short speeches, indicating their determination to do all in their power for the welfare of the branch. Before adjournment, a committee was appointed to meet a committee from Marmora L.O.L. 13 to discuss holding of a street dance in the near future.

The striking cathedral on the summit has not been in use for the last 200 years but the town which spirals up to it via narrow cobblestone streets has continued to do a thriving tourist trade even despite the war, German and now Allied service people constituting its clientele.

IODE To Adopt 303 RCN Ships

TORONTO, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Three hundred and three ships of the Royal Canadian Navy have been allocated to the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire for adoption by Chapters from the Yukon to Prince Edward Island, it was announced to-day.

I.O.D.E. Chapters will supply these vessels with gramophones, washing machines, games and sports equipment. The ships include aircraft carriers, destroyers, frigates, corvettes, firmiles, motor launches, sea-going tugs, gate vessels and submarines, the I.O.D.E. announcement said.

A letter from the commanding officer of one of the vessels, newly commissioned, said: "We hope we shall prove a creditable foster-child, and will do our utmost to ensure that this ship has an honorable career."

Short Work Week Starts Sept. 1

TORONTO, Sept. 1—(CP)—The 48-hour-week becomes compulsory for retail stores, restaurants and hotels in Ontario under regulations which become effective today. An official of the Industry and Labor Board, which administers the regulations, said today that business places affected were being notified through the Ontario Retail Merchants Association.

"Everything necessary has been done to notify those concerned," the offical said, declining direct comment on a report from Sudbury that restaurant and hotel operators there had received no official information about the date the regulations become effective.

17 Japanese Ships Sunk By U.S. Subs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 — (AP) — Destruction of 17 Japanese vessels, including two warships, by American submarines operating in enemy waters, was reported by the Navy yesterday.

Destruction of the two Niponese destroyers brings to 58 the number of Japanese warships thus far sunk by American subarmine action.

The latest bag of the submarines included two tankers from the badly depleted fleet of Japanese fuel-carrying vessels.

The total also included 13 cargo vessels.

The Navy also reported American bombers sank one Japanese vessel and damaged three others in raids on the North Pacific Kurile Islands Sunday.

3 Planes At Once

BOSTON, Sept. 1 — (AP). —The aircraft rocket gun of the Ordnance Department, army service forces, is credited with downing three Japanese Zeros with one shot. Col. H. B. Sheets, commanding officer of the Boston ordnance district, said today a pilot in the China-Burma-India theatre made a direct hit on one of the Zeros with a rocket. Two others attempted to avoid the debris and crashed together. A fourth Zero fled.

Welfare Group Tries New Plan

TORONTO, Sept. 1 — (CP) — A re-organization of the Toronto Welfare Department to bring emphasis on the administration of social services rather than distribution of relief allowances is recommended in a report to city council. The report was prepared by the Public Administration Service of Chicago at council's request.

"It is no longer enough that the department recognize the economic need of families unable to provide for themselves and attempt to relieve this situation by merely granting financial aid said the report. "Welfare experience throughout the continent has indicated that the services performed by qualified social workers in assisting families to solve their financial and social roblems have been a great factor in preventing the continuing depency of many families."

Churchill, F.D.R. 11th Session Coming Soon

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—(AP)—It now seems certain that before another month passes President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will meet to formalize plans for control of Germany and immediate post-war security of the western world.

Also expected to come up for discussion are arrangements for Britain's full participation in the final phases of the war against Japan once Germany is out of the way. This British help was promised by the Prime Minister when the President and he got together at Quebec a year ago this month.

Little remained to be announced of the forthcoming session except the time and place. President Roosevelt has answered every recent press conference inquiry with the comment he would meet Mr. Churchill soon. London reports said to-day Mr. Churchill would not remain long in England following his trip to Italy and his conference with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Some Urgent Problems.

This will be the 11th session of the British and American leaders with their political and military advisers. They last had three sessions in the Middle East, meeting at Cairo with General Chiang Kai-Shek, Premier Stalin at Teheran and again at Cairo with President Inonu of Turkey.

It is recognized in official circles that one of the Allies' most urgent immediate problems is that of short-range security in Europe, calling for continued political co-operation of the Allied powers after the necessity for cohesive military efforts has vanished.

This calls initially for continuation and expansion of the European Advisory commission—a war agency created by the British, United States and Russian foreign ministers in their meeting at Moscow last fall. But that highlights another problem which the President and Prime Minister will encounter: What about Mr. Stalin?

Now the Anglo-American Armies are within possibly a few weeks of meeting Russian armies in crumbling Germany, and Anglo-American diplomacy must meet Russian diplomacy in every corner of Europe.

Some observers here are privately expressing surprise, therefore, that none of the numerous reports from Washington and London on the next meeting have spoken of Russian representation. In the absence of such indications it is assumed Russia will be kept closely informed of developments, and that no conclusive actions will be taken which are not fully approved by Moscow.

Duchess Has Operation

Appendix Removed In New York Hospital

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—The Duchess of Windsor underwent successfully an operation for appendicitis at Roosevelt Hospital yesterday, Dr. Joe R. Clemmons, medical director, announced.

The operation was performed by Dr. Henry Cave of New York, and was witnessed by Dr. Lay Martin of Baltimore, who had been in consultation.

"The operation was successfully carried out and no adverse complications are anticipated," Dr. Clemmons said.

Dr. Clemmons issued a statement earlier this morning that "the Duchess has one room and one nurse on duty at a time and that's all."

"She does not have a suite of 10 rooms or two nurses on duty at a time," Dr. Clemmons said. Yesterday a person connected with the hospital told an Associated Press reporter that the Duke had reserved 10 rooms and engaged six nurses for the Duchess.

Stoney Lake Bush Fire Now Under Control

A bush fire that has been raging in the neighborhood of McCracken's Landing, Stoney Lake, for the past two or three days is reported as under control, although still requiring watching.

The blaze, starting from an unknown origin, broke out in some bush a short distance south of McCracken's Landing and about 1,000 yards in from the lake. Fifteen or twenty acres on the Hamilton and Tedford property were burned over and for some time there were fears that a change in wind might endanger the summer cottages on the shore of the lake or carry the fire into some valuable timber close by.

Farmers and cottagers combined to fight the fire and last night Robert Hamilton stated that the spread of the blaze had been checked.

Jack Thirnbeck, 80 Years Old Works As Usual On Birthday

For forty-five years an employee of the city's Board of Works Department, John W. Thirnbeck, city foreman, 525 McDonnel street, celebrated his 80th birthday today by going to work as usual.

This sturdy native of the north of England who has been a resident of Peterborough for well over half a century is the oldest employee of the city both in point of years and service. He has been associated with the Board of Works since 1899 and is still going strong.

"Jack" Thirnbeck, as he is known to his hundreds of friends, had in his early youth a wonderful record as an athlete in England and later in Peterborough became a familiar figure as manager of the Brock St. Rink, in which capacity he was the friend and champion of Peterborough hockey players of yesteryear.

The accompanying picture shows this fine old citizen on the day of one of his greatest triumphs, the day some 60 years ago that he won the all-England handicap 100 yards dash from a field of 80 competitors.

Cleaned Up

Old timers like to recall the time that Jack Thirnbeck surprised the sporting world in Peterborough. For many years Dominion Day used to be celebrated as a picnic in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital and a program of sports always featured the event. The city had some good runners and jumpers in those days and the prizes had been won pretty regularly by the same bunch of athletes. But one memorable Dominion Day there was a new figure in the contests. It was Jack Thirnbeck, newly arrived from the Old Country and he threw a bomb into the proceedings by cleaning up the meet.

When Peterborough's famous Colts were winning provincial renown and later graduated into intermediate ranks to continue their triumphs they had no warmer supporter than the North of England manager of the Brock St. Rink. The late Fred Whitcroft, Harry Morgan, Roy and Harold Armstrong, Bill Cavanah, Rollie Glover, Ernie Wasson and all the other stars of that golden period in Peterborough hockey at the beginning of the century were personal friends of Jack Thirnbeck who thought there were no athletes in the world to compare with that coterie of puck-chasers. He sat up all night flooding the rink so that they could be sure of good ice, he acompanied them on their road trips and fought for them on foreign fields and he always shared in their victory celebrations.

Helped Youngsters

Youngsters breaking into the game also found him a good friend. He picked up a bunch of "kids" known as the Chieftains and thanks to his coaching and to the opportunities for practice he provided for them the young team developed into a crack organization capable of beating teams of much older players. Most of them graduated into faster company as they got older.

At 80 years of age City Foreman Thirnbeck shows few signs of the march of time. He is out in all kinds of weather, is regular in attendance and the foundation of sound health he laid in his early days as an athlete is evidently standing him in good stead. Today may be his 80th birthday but it is just a routine work day for him. He didn't even go home for the noon meal but took his lunch to eat on the job as usual.

But the anniversary will be a matter of interest to many hundreds of folk who have come into contact with him, especialy the hockey players and skaters who remember his many years at Brock Street Rink and they will unite in paying tribute to this colorful citizen and in hoping that he may continue to roll along like Old Man River.

111 Farm Hands Leaving To Help In West

The western harvesters' excursion, with wartime modification, still exerts a widespread and potent attraction to farm workers of this district.

That observation stems from the fact that W. H. L. Mellis of Selective Service had issued up to this morning one hundred and eleven warrants to men from this country and district for the autumn exodus to help farmers in the western grain provinces to harvest their crop of more than 400,000,000 bushels of wheat. Probably there may be other grain chores too.

Nearly three hundred and seventy-five applications for this trip have passed through the Selective Service office. In the details of permission Mr. Mellis has had the cooperation of Frank C. Patterson, county representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The final corps from this district will exceed 111 as some of the men obtaining permits for the long and not de luxe trek had not completed this morning the detail of arranging for their transportation. They were chiefly farm workers from Haliburton, Peterborough, Victoria and Northumberland counties, and perhaps some from Durham. Some of the earliest applicants were from Haliburton, such centres as Wilberforce, Minden and other small centres in the summer resort county being frequently mentioned in the filed information.

"First real trip since I was married," said an Otonabee farm owner whose harvesting was finished and his circumstances at home enabled him to take off until the middle of October.

Harvester excursions used to be an annual variation of Ontario agriculture, especially for the hired men, in the days prior to the war and especially before the expanding use of machines in farm work had virtually terminated the need of help from the east during the 1930's and up to the outbreak of Hun hostilities. So many of the young men from Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan enlisted in all three armed services that labor shortage has been acute since 1940, and the federal Government arranged for assisted transportation of available men from the east during the harvest period on the prairies.

The casualty lists have relected the patriotic spirit of thousands of young Canadians from the western provinces, and notably in the R.C.A.F. It is their absence that has caused the need of calling upon Ontario labor for the emergency and highly important work of assisting western farmers with their harvest.

Committee Sells Lot With 36-Ft. Frontage

The property committee of the council sold a lot with 36-feet frontage Thursday, a retreat from municipal ideals that could not be avoided. Some time ago the committee had sold two other lots from the same parcel, each of them around forty to fifty feet frontage.

Quite frankly the committee admitted that somebody had not thought fast enough about the distribution which left the long 36-foot a lot.

"When we sell one like that we can't say an awful lot about the North Monaghan subdivisions of 30-feet frontage," Alderman Swanston remarked.

The property originally would have permitted three forty-foot lots. The committee decided that there was no purpose in withholding the 36-foot lot from sale, and recommended its disposal.

Alderman Sands moved, seconded by Alderman Dutton, that the assessment department examine any adjoining lots that are for sale, and if necessary, re-subdivide them on the basis of at least forty feet frontage.

More Divorces

RENO, Nev., Sept. 1.—(AP). — Reno divorce actions in August reached an all-time high for any single month, with 790 filed. The figure broke a 14-year record of 710 suits filed in July, 1931.

American Gets 25-lb. Muskie

A 25-pound muskie that measures over 50 inches from head to tail was caught by George Rauchfleish of Painsville, Ohio, while trolling in a motorboat on the Trent River above Healey Falls Thursday evening.

Using Heddon bait, it took him only 20 minutes to land the big lunge....the biggest he's managed to snag in twelve years of vacations spent in this district. Mr. Rauchfleish is staying at Joe Reynold's cabins, and with him are Bud Overhaulcer, Clarence Wizorich, Pete Blacet, and his son, all from Painsville. After hooking the fish, the rest of the group pitched in to help him land it. This morning, they brought the muskie into Peterborough to have it mounted. Mr. Rauchfleish said catching the fish was a real thrill....and doesn't care if he ever catches another. The fisherman caught his muskie at 5:30 in the evening.

Lindsay Flier Finds Mannheim Trip Bad

LINDSAY, Sept. 1.— An attack on Mannheim stands out most vividly in FO. M. A. Henry's mind as he looks back on the tour of "ops" he has completed. Bomb-aimer with the Ghost Squadron, the Lindsay flyer, who enlisted in Toronto in 1942, is now an instructor in the radio division of Bomber Group.

His operational record includes four trips to Berlin, and sorties against Hanover, Frankfurt, Leipzig, Bochum and Dusseldorf, but the Mannheim job was the "shakiest do" of the lot. His aircraft was coned by searchlights for nearly five minutes before it was able to elude them, and during this time flak peppered the plane, put one engine out of order and ripped 49 holes in the aircraft. It had to be landed at an emergency airfield in Britain.

Union Members Hear Plans For New Arena

J. A. Jebson outlined the plans for the Memorial and Community centre to a group of representatives of labor unions, including six young women, at the headquarters of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Thursday night.

After he had gone the meeting named Wm. S. Johnson as its representative at the meeting this afternoon in th city hall for the consideration of a site.

Mr. Jebson reviewed the preliminary work that has already been done by the "foundation committee" of which he is chairman, and said he hoped that every section of the community would be represented in the city hall discussion.

H. J. Pearce was chairman of the meeting, and those sitting in with him included representatives of the Canadian Postal Employees; Federated Association of Letter Carriers; District council of the Canadian Civil Service Federation; two locals of the United Electrical Workers and their Ladies Auxiliary; and Canadian Brothrhood of Railway Employees. Albert Borland was appointed acting secretary.

Members expressed the best of wishes for the success of the Memorial and Community Centre, and thanked Mr. Jebson for his visit. Some further details were given by Mr. Johnson who was appointed to the foundation committee at its inceptive meeting.

"We are proposing to build a community centre for the next fifty years of more," said Mr. Johnson, "and it is most important that we lay a sound foundation."

Labor Council

One unexpected and unscheduled result of Thursday night's meeting was a suggestion that an effort be made to revive in Peterborough a Trades Council. All the local unions were not represented at the meeting last night, but the coming together of members of some of them and then expressed realization that union workers and labor are collectively content to remain in the background of community affairs, inactive, and generally wondering why they were being left out of things inspired the council proposal.

Mr. Johnson touched on that point and explained that he was named to the foundatioin committee of the arena project because he attended the first public meeting of citizens after the Kinsmen set the idea in motion. He was proposed as an individual and had continued to act with that body.

Other members remarked that all the workers of the city in stores and factories and so on, took an interest in community affairs, and they were actually a reservoir of citizenship that was not being tapped to the extent that it might be, and there by the community as whole was losing the beneft of that energy.

Members of all the unions in the city will be invited to send delegates to a meeting for the discussion of the allied labor council idea.

Boys Hold Sale To Bring $15 To Robot Victims

It is a very exhilarating thing to see young boys display genuine initiative in doing a good work for other people, they themselves are unconsciously building a character of the better type, which cannot fail but have a salutory effect for good in their own lives later on, besides teaching them from first hand experience, many things of benefit if properly utilized that will also stand them in good stead in the days that are still yet to come.

Eight young boys, Harry and Ray Yelland, Gordon and Gary Gilders, Harry Hanwell, Jack Rowley, Milton Lalonde and Donald Cooper, for the most part attendants at the Central School, and styling themselves the Vulture Club, really demonstrated their ability when they set about the job of raising money to assist the victims of robot or flying bombs, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose.

With the aid of donations of homemade cooking and canned goods given them by neighbors in the George, London, Dublin and Water street districts, they held a bazaar and sale in front of the residence of one of their number at 588 George street last Saturday morning, and raised the nice sum of $15.00 credited in their name today.

This is a mighty fine showing for the boys, and reflects a great deal to their credit, besides creating the feeling that boys who are clubbed together in such a manner, can by their example do much good in inspiration to others of their own age, apart from the intrinsic value attached to the specific reason of their holding such an event to help other people in distress.

Cavan Group Gives $10

The plight of the robot victims distinctly stirred the members of the Pot Luck Quilties Club of the 7th and 8th Lines of Cavan township to take a hand in relieving their distress.

This group meets regularly for quiltings, and their revenue comes from the sale of the quilts thus made, in addition to which they held a pot luck supper, and the $10.00 listed in their name today, represents a part of the proceeds from these two sources.

Then the penny box located at the Capitol Theatre, always among the best of this type of fund assist, comes through once more with another nice donation, this time the amount standing at $6.70 and also being included in today's receipts.

The total amount now on hand towards another donation stands at $484.58, a very creditable figure when one realizes that it is only eight days since the last donation of £500 was cabled to the Lord Mayor of London.

Previously acknowledged	$79,602.08

Utilities Commission Inspects Properties

The Utilities Commission adopted several minor changes in its insurance coverage Thursday, attended to several other matters of routine and then set out on an inspection of the properties of which they are the custodians, including the waterworks plant and grounds, the Aylmer street transformer substation, the Romaine street yard and so on.

The July operating report from R. L. Dobbin, manager;

Electric Department.

The peak for July 1944 was 11,400 horsepower as compared with 11,300 horsepower for July 1943. This peak for July was practically the same as last year and 1,000 horsepower less than for June, 1944. This drop was probably due to curtailed operations of many local factories during summer vacations.

Activity continues in the rural district. No extensions were constructed but 17 new services were connected, and eight others were changed from 2 wire to 3 wire.

Waterworks Department.

The pumpage for July 1944, was 118,865,000 gallons as compared with 112,205,000 gallons in July 1943.

The total rainfall was 2.42 inches compared with 2.81 inches for July 1943. The average temperature was about the same. Water temperature reached 79 deg. F.

Eight new water services were laid and three re-laid.

Gas Department.

Gas made at the plant continues to increase, being 6 p.c. more than that of July of last year. In July of 1940 we made 4,400,000 cubic feet of gas, as compared with 5,741,000 cubic feet this year, an increase of 13 p.c.

The number of consumers has increased from 2,789 to 3,199 in the same time.

War—4 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

SEPT. 1, 1940—British ship taking 320 children and other passengers to Canada reported torpedoed Aug. 30; all saved except purser. Romanians protested surrender of Transylvania to Hungary. President Roosevelt summoned 60,000 national guardsmen to one year's military service.

REPORTED KILLED—Cpl. Lloyd Davis, son of Ralph Davis, serving overseas, and Mrs. Davis, of 1 Rose avenue, has been killed in action in France, according to word received from Lieut. Nels. Foster, R.C.N.V.R., who met the boy's father in England, and was told of his death August 18, while fighting with the S.D. and G. Highlanders in France.

Extra Effort Urged In Paper Drive

"A pound a day, keeps the Nazis away,"...that's the slogan for the big waste paper drive that will take place September 21 in Peterborough, and 10 pounds of paper from every man, woman and child in the city will be asked so that the drive will be a huge success.

There is a direct relationship between the feats of our fighting men and the waste paper citizens collect on the home front, as the soldiers in France can only receive blood plasma, food, arms, and other medical and domestic equipment transported in paper containers. There is a definite shortage of this material but in the past, Peterborough has always come through with the needed amount, and with the war in Europe now entering the final phases, it is doubly important the soldiers on the home front continue the work of collecting waste paper.

The September 21 drive will be a one-evening affair, with all the paper that is collected by civilians picked up in the evening by trucks that will be leased by many Peterborough business and industrial firms, and will be operated by men from the same firms. The picking-up of the paper will begin at 6 o'clock in the evening.

All householders will be notified through the mails of the drive, and the September 21 effort will be instead of the monthly campaign under the direction of Mrs. R. Whalen. Mrs. Whalen is also chairman of the Peterborough Emergency One-Day Paper Drive.

In a telegram received by Mrs. Whalen recently from James C. Gray, provincial supervisor of the National Salvage Division, Mr. Gray said: "We feel sure we can call upon the people of Peterborough to make a substantial contribution in the form of 10 pounds of paper from everyone in the community. Peterborough always comes through."

Not only the city proper will be included in the drive, as it is a district campaign, taking in Omemee, Norwood, Lakefield and Millbrook.

Experts Hopeful Of Airport In Monaghan

The next step toward eventually providing Peterborough with an airport, Alderman Bradburn informed his special committee Thursday afternoon, will be an approach to the council of North Monaghan and the county council for their approval of diversion of a stretch of No. 28 Highway west of the city.

In recent weeks, the chairman has consulted Commander Edwards, Deputy-Minister of Transport, who has been most encouraging, Alderman Bradburn said; engineers of the Civil Aviation Division of the Department; other engineers of the Ontario Department of Highways and Hon. George Dunbar, Minister; and the manager of the airport at Malton, has also been over certain Monaghan properties with the visiting engineers.

"Toronto has got back the money it put into the Malton airport," Alderman Bradburn said, "and that has proved to be an excellent investment. Of course, we couldn't expect returns to that extent from a port here."

Alderman Ovens, who also made some of the Toronto calls, said that expectation of airway management for postwar business was far outstripping the opinions of laymen. Travel by air has been growing steadily and to an extent that can hardly be provided for. Rates are moving downward and were likely to be on parity with railway fares, possibly less.

A letter from S. S. Foley, Hamilton, district inspector of southern airways of the Civil Aviation Division of the Dominion Department of Transport, was received by the committee affirming that the proposed North Monaghan fields would permit the making of a port of ample accommodation for Peterborough, with two landing strips each about 3,200 feet, and "L" shaped.

Committee Favors Voting In Schools

The Supervision Committee of the Board of Education on Thursday night approved of the suggestion of the City Council to use the schools for polling purposes at the municipal election on December 4. The committee was unanimously in favor of the children attending school for one hour and the polls opening at eleven o'clock. It was pointed out there were many difficulties in the way of declaring the whole day a holiday and the plan was favored of giving the children a lesson in civics following the opening exercises and then dismissing them.

The committee was also favorable to the returning officer using any of the teachers which might wish to engage as polling officials for the day.

spect, who could not offer her a decent home, and who bored her to extinction before marriage, just for the sake of being able to write Mrs. before her name and because she thought fools might twit her for being an old maid, passes all comprehension. Yet millions of otherwise intelligent women do it.

DEAR MISS DIX: Twelve years ago I married a man who is eight years younger than I am. Now I am 52 years old and have two children in school, 10 and 8 years old. My husband makes $85 a week, but he ensists on my going to work in a defense plant. Every night when he comes home he tells me of a job I can get and says that I ought to take it as I don't have enough work at home, and that other women are working.

I do all of my housework, the cooking and sewing and laundry. Do you think at my age that I should take a job and hire someone else to keep the children?

WAR WORKER'S WIFE

Women With Children Should Be Home

ANSWER: I certainly don't. No woman who has teen-age children should work outside her home unless it is a matter of absolute necessity. Nobody else is going to look after the children as a mother does. It is the women who have been tempted by higher wages to leave their homes and children who are mainly responsible for the wave of juvenile delinquency that is sweeping the country.

Stick to your own job. It is the greatest one in the world.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband and I have adopted a little girl of whom we are very fond. Should I tell her about it and that she is not our own child?

MRS. M. G. M.

ANSWER: By all means tell her at once while she is still too young for the knowledge to make any particular impression upon her. When children are allowed to grow up in the belief that their foster parents are their own parents and then find out that they have been deceived, it often gives them a shock from which they never recover.

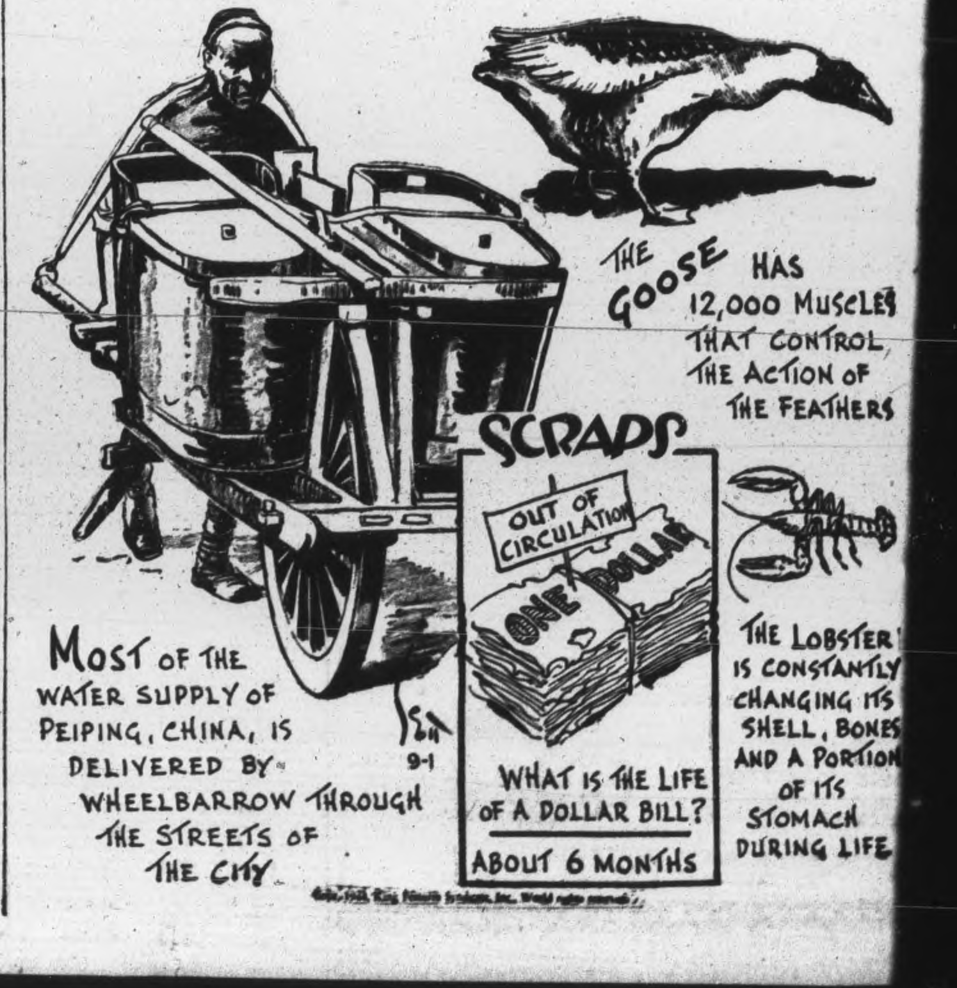
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott



Poland Faces Great Crisis

LONDON, Sept. 1. — (AP).—Prime Minister Mikolajczyk of the Polish government in exile announced yesterday an offer to Russia to form a coalition cabinet with equal representation of Poland's five parties.

The Prime Minister said his nation's fate is a "great test case for the world" and that Warsaw again had called for help, but that the Russians had not yet granted permission for Allied shuttle planes to land on Soviet soil in order to support Gen. Bor's still-fighting patriot army in the capital.

The exiled government's plan for accord with the Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation has been approved by the Polish underground and by his cabinet and is en route to Moscow, the Prime Minister said.

Teachers Like New Legislation

TORONTO, Aug. 31—(CP)—The Teaching Profession Act, enacted by the Provincial Legislature during the last session, has met with the approval of 92 per cent of the members of the Ontario Teachers' Council, the secretary of the Ontario Federation of Women Teachers Associations, H. Emma Car, reported at the opening of the annual convention Thursday.

Minimum salaries for teachers was raised to $1 000, which has proved of great benefit to rural teachers although this minimum does not apply to schools not receiving township grants. Average salaries for women teachers were reported by Helen M. Sheppard, convener of the educational finance committee, to be: for cities, $1,599; for suburban, $1.277; urban, towns and villages, $1,153; and rural schools $1,055.

The reconstruction reported drafted by Dr. Joyce Boyle, of Toronto, deplored the present system of inspection which it termed authoritarian by necessity. The report suggested a change to a system of consultation where the attitude of the consultant will be co-operative. Reforms of class-room procedure along democratic procedure were suggested and the report called for the formation of a sub-committee to study the problem.

The Federation suggested that the minimum age for student teachers be 18 and called for more practical work and a shortening of the period of theoretical studies. Aptitude tests and the elimination of people obviously unfitted for the profession was urged at Normal School half terms.

U.S.A. Casualties Total 343,191

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(AP).—Reflecting the period of heaviest fighting in Northern France, total United States army casualties jumped to 482,838 on Aug. 13, an increase of 23,249 over those reported just a week earlier.

Coupled with navy casualties of 58,353, the latest overall figures for the U.S. armed services is 343,191, compared with 317,846 a week ago.

Coughs Up Pin

ROME, Ga., Sept. 1—(AP).—Six years ago Mary Rose Tankersley swallowed a pin. Early this month, after a coughing spell, Mary Rose, now 15, was taken to the hospital for X-rays. Doctors found a pin lodged in her right lung, but decided to let it remain for the time being. A week later she coughed up the pin, pointless and rusty, and saved doctors an operation.

Explains Technique

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill., Sept. 1 (AP).—The only prisoner in the Wabash county jail escaped, but before he fled he left a note far Sheriff M. M. Moberly telling him how he effected his break. He used hack saws, the prisoner said, which were left with him by a former prisoner who was released before he got a chance to use them.

Famous Tapestry Believed Safe

LONDON, Sept. 1 — (CP-Reuter)—The world famous Bayeux tapestry telling the story of the Norman conquest of England has been found in the Louvre, according to the reports reaching Reuter today. There is no official confirmation.

When Allied troops liberated Bayeux, the tapestry which consists of 231 feet of delicate embroidery was missing.

For some time, there has been anxiety as to whether the Germans had taken it, or it had been hidden away by patriots.

Eighteen inches deep and worked in eight colors, the Bayeux tapestry is the only pictorial record of life in England 900 years ago and countless histories and illustrations have been based upon it.

New Commander Replaces Rommel

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Sept. 1.—(AP).—Marshal Walter Von Model, lately German commander in Southern Poland, was reported yesterday to have replaced Marshal Erwin Rommel as commander of a Nazi army group in Northern France.

Rommel has been missing from dispatches for a month or more, variously reported wounded or killed in a traffic accident during an Allied bombing.

David A. Croll Becomes Lt.Col.

WINDSOR, Sept. 1. — (CP).—David A. Croll, Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Windsor East and former mayor, has been promoted from major to lieutenant-colonel, according to information reaching here yesterday. Lt.-Col. Croll enlisted in the Essex Scottish regiment as a private in 1940.

Some months ago Lt.-Col. Croll returned from England on a special mission and was posted to Kingston, Ont., for a course. He recently went overseas for a second time.

Cancer Research Sittings On Sept. 7

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Health Minister Ivan Schultz of Manitoba announced today the appointment of a four-man Commission to investigate cancer research work of Dr. J. R. Davidson of Winnipeg. Dr. Alfred Savage, University of Manitoba pathologist, has been named chairman. Sittings will begin here September 7.

The 73-year-old Winnipeg physician has carried out cancer research mainly at his home and with facilities he improvised himself. His theory is that cancer is caused by a nutritional deficiency.

Guard Borders

ZURICH, Sept. 1 (CP)—Units of the "Blue Devils" — the famous French Alpne Chasseurs—have already taken over posts on the French-Swiss frontier from the French forces of the interior and are keeping watch to prevent escape of collaborationists.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

LEADING FROM HONORS

Leading away from any honor, when it is not in sequence with one or more other honors, is likely to cost a trick. This applies sometimes to low ones like the J and 10 the same as to higher ones, and on rare occasions the same principle operates on a card as low as the 9 or 8 or even the 7. It is well always to have this in mind, especially on the defense, as you don't know as a rule just what cards are opposite you.

West	North	East
	♠ 10 6 4 2 ♥ Q J 6 3 ♦ A 6 5 ♣ 7 2
♠ 5 ♥ 10 7 4 2 ♦ Q J 10 8 3 ♣ A 10 8	N / W E / S	♠ Q 8 7 ♥ K 8 ♦ 9 2 ♣ K J 9 6 4 3
	♠ A K J 9 3 ♥ A 9 5 ♦ K 7 4 ♣ Q 5

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East

West led the diamond Q to the K and South went right after the trumps, playing the A and K. West discarded the high club 10, so when East then won the spade J with the Q, he obeyed the request by leading the club 6 to the A.

For some unfathomable reason, West now switched to the heart 2, making the third side suit for whose lead he was responsible. This lead hurt. South called the 3 from dummy, East played the 8 and the 9 won. Fellowed then the heart A dropping the K, the Q and the J, on which South discarded the club Q. That assured the contract, as the defenders got only one more trick, with a diamond.

West censored East for not playing his K on the first heart trick, but he was out of order, since that play could not have saved the day. The A would have taken it, and the 9 could have been led next. If West ducked, the 9 could have won. If he covered with the 10, the J could have won, catching the 8. Then the closed hand could have been entered to finesse with Q-6 against the 7.

The damage was really done when West led his heart. He should have led another diamond then from his sequence. That would have assured his side a trick in diamonds and another in clubs, in addition to the spade and club already gathered.

Rioters Urge Bulgaria Fight Nazis

Russian Armies At Frontier Of Hun Satellite

By DANIEL DE LUCE,
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 2 —(AP- — Demands that Bulgaria declare war on Germany were shouted in the streets of Sofia by rioters battling police, Moscow heard to-day, as the Red Army faced the frontiers of that Balkan country from the Black Sea to the Danube river ferry crossing between Giurgui and Ruse, 140 miles inland.

The tensest moment of the war had struck for Bulgaria whose Premier Ivan Bagrianov resigned while his peace envoys were conferring with representatives of Great Britain and United States in Cairo.

(Reports from Cairo said the resignation caused a suspension of the armistice talks, which had entered the preliminary phase. Apparently they will not be resumed until a new government is formed. A Cairo report said Bagrianov might form a leftist government and continue the conversations.)

Russian armored columns which had secured the Ploesti pipe-line terminus at Giurgiu were only 155 miles northeast of Sofia and 150 miles east of Yugoslavia. Germans in southern Yugoslavia and Greece were declared in direct peril if Bulgaria capitulates.

Free of Germans.

One Swiss radio said in a broadcast heard at New York that Rumanian communique said to-day "Romania is free of German troops."

(Col.-Gen. Geza Lakatos, newly-appointed Premier of Nazi-Occupied Hungary, declared in a domestic broadcast over the Budapest radio reported by the United States Office of War Information that "everything will be done to use our forces" to resist Romanian attempts to regain Northern Transylvania. The Romanian army has begun such operations, the BBC said in quoting a Bucharest report).

As the fuse in the Balkan powder keg sputtered, threatening to destroy the Germans in a sudden explosion, the far-flung eastern front in Poland and the Baltic lapsed into uneasy quiet.

For the first time since Premier Stalin's tremendous summer offensive started, Soviet commanders for the most part reported only reconnaissance activity.

Lost 2 Divisions.

The Russian war bulletin said, however, that Red Army forces had captured a dominating height in a lightning thrust against the Germans near Praga, Warsaw's eastern

Allies Through Maginot Line

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(CP).—American armor has driven to the vicinity of Thionville, on the Moselle river only 11 miles from the Reich, the German News Agency Transocean said to-day.

The reported advance carried to within 20 miles of the Saar river outposts of the chain of forts in Germany's Siegfried Line, and was almost all the way through the former Maginot Line.

Thionville is 17 miles north of Metz and seven miles from the Luxembourg frontier.

The same dispatch said the Americans were even closer to the Luxembourg border, reaching a point only two miles from the frontier.

Thionville lies on the west bank of the Moselle river.

OBSTACLES ALLIES FACE IN FRANCE—This map shows the appropriate locations of the principal lines of fortifications that lie between the Allied armies and the German-Belgian border. No one knows just how strong they are. Their strength will be tested when the Allies reach them. The Maginot Line is believed to have been put to use by the Germans, facing reverse from what it did when built. The new so-called Spiel line is a backstop (A) towards which the Third Army armored spearheads of Gen. Patton are now racing. Another drive is headed north to encircle German forces guarding the robot coast (B), while a third brought the British to Amiens (C) to flank the Pas de Calais area.

Anglo-American Units May Enter Reich Ahead Of Reds

By LEWIS HAWKINS—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 2—(AP).—It is possible that Anglo-American troops may stride into Germany as invaders before the Russians, but if they do it will not automatically prove an old and favorite theme of amateur staticians — that once the German leaders have accepted defeat as inevitable, they would "let the British and Americans in because they are afraid of the Russians."

The Western allies' current spectacular sweep through Northern France, combined with the German army's stubborn stand before East Prussia and Warsaw, may seem to give fresh support to this theory, but any suggestion that the Nazis are "letting" the Allied armies in is a poor tribute to the men whose brains and brawn and bravery broke through to liberate France.

The truth is that the Germans fought savagely, and for a while effectively, to bottle the Allies within the narrow Normandy bridgehead.

They lost that gamble and with it 400,000 of the force of about 1,000,000 men they sent out to defend the west. Now they are packing up and running fast not because they want to, but because they must.

Army Shrinking

How far they will run is anyone's guess. That they will be able to stop for long much short of of their own border is doubtful. When they do stop, they will have something like 500,000 men plus perhaps 200,000 green youngsters and oldsters scraped up by the latest comb-out and rushed through sketchy training.

There is not the slightest doubt that no matter where or when the Germans stop, the Allies will be able to smash through them when they are ready. It is no longer a question of being able to hold this front or that front for the Germans. It is only a question of how long they can stave off disaster.

German strength in the east is four or five times the strength in the west, but the front is longer and the Nazis' enemy is stronger in numbers there too.

If the Germans are worried about occupation forces, it probably will make little difference whether the British and Americans or the Russians enter the country first, because there is little doubt that the zones of occupation already have been agreed upon among the big three.

In addition, under Allied agreements, there can be nothing but surrender-to-one, surrender-to-all.

Tourist Traffic Nears Record

By The Canadian Press.

Visitors from the United States flocked to Ontario in greater numbers this year than at any time since 1939, although wartime travel difficulties kept many of them from venturing far from the border points of entry into the Dominion.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows that some of the resorts farther inland shared in the tourist boom with border points although other inland cities had fewer American visitors than ever before.

In the Niagara Peninsula, Americans who in ordinary times would head north for a Muskoka holiday settled in cottages and camps along the Canadian shore of Lake Erie for the summer, providing the greatest influx in the Welland area since the boom days of 1928 and 1929.

At St. Catharines, it was estimated the tourist influx was the greatest since 1942, at least.

Although actual figures are lacking, Eastern Ontario reports the best season for American tourists since the beginning of the war. Kingston reported that a survey from Picton to Ivy Lea showed the tourist traffic was heavy all summer with the most visitors of any year since 1939. The Thousand Islands bridge at Ivy Lea had the heaviest traffic in five years. Most visitors to the Kingston area came from comparatively nearby points in the U. S.

Many Sold Out.

At the Roosevelt Bridge at Cornwall, officials reported the traffic volume equalled that of pre-war years.

Belleville in the Bay of Quinte district had nearly five times as many applications for tourist accommodation as in 1939.

Marmora, Madoc, Bancroft and Tweed all reported "sell-out" of accommodations while farther south in Prince Edward County the demand for hotel accommodation was the heaviest in seven years.

Peterborough reported it had 50 per cent more American visitors

Bad Coal Strike Looms

Conditions Unsettled Across The States

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 2 — (AP) — In a rapidly-developing, highly-complicated strike situation in the bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky, five points stood out in prominent relief today—

1. Leader of the Supervisory Workers' Union have promised that some [illegible] miners at 10 Pennsylvania pits, seized Thursday by the government will be back at work Monday.

2. Supervisory employees, balloting in National Labor Relations Board elections, voted yesterday to strike at six west Virginia mines where 1,725 men are employed and nearly 9,000 tons of coal are produced daily.

3. The United States War Labor Board appealed last night to strikers at four Pennsylvania pits, employing nearly 2,000 and producing 10,000 tons daily, to return to their jobs. This was the sort of appeal which preceded government seizure of the other mines.

4. Strikes votes were scheduled today at nine westen and central Pennsylvania mines employing 4,975 men and producing 26,150 tons daily.

5. Within the coming week, supervisory employees in nearly 60 other mines in the tri-state area will take strike votes.

Chinese, Japs In Fierce Fight

CHUNGKING, Sept. 2.—(AP).—Advancing against determined enemy resistance the Chinese cleared and crossed the street leading from the centre of Tengchung to the northeast gate of the Japanese stronghold of the Burma road, the Chinese High Command announced to-day.

Japanese defenders in the southern part of Lungling were further compressed into positions pounded by artillery and mortar fire, it was announced, and the Chinese occupied several fortified positions at Sungshan, a strongholud denying the Allies the use of the Burma road west of the Salween.

British Push 4 Miles Into Gothic Line

Great Mobile Army Switched To Start Latest Drive

By GEORGE TUCKER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 2—(AP)—British 8th Army troops have broken the Nazis' vaunted Gothic Line in Italy along a 20-mile front, opening the gates to the Po Valley, Allied Headquarters announced today, and a spokesman declared it was only a matter of time before complete destruction of all German forces in Italy will be accomplished.

British, Canadian, Indian and Polish infantry are taking part in the advance which has penetrated to a depth of from three to four miles, a communique said.

It was the first disclosure that Canadian infantry was in action following their exploits in aiding the Allied break-through the Gustav and Hitler Line and drive for Rome, in late May and early June.

Near Final Phase

Canadian Press War Correspondent Doug How said the Canadians entered battle Aug. 24, and crossed the Metauro river late the following day to advance on the Gothic Line from positions some 11 miles distant.

The Gothic Line operation is the next to the last phase in the Italian campaign. The fortifications there represent the next to the last prepared German position of depth and importance in Italy.

While 8th Army troops broke through the bristling defences near the Adriatic to a depth of four miles, the Allied 5th Army crossed the Arno river from Florence west to the sea.

Heavy fighting raged along the front as the Germans threw in reinforcements.

A communique said 8th Army troops, sweeping forward from the Metauro river August 26, fought their way 15 miles through difficult country "and have now broken through the enemy's elaborately prepared defenses."

"Thus,' the communique added, "the last enemy prepared defence line south of the river Po has been successfully breached.

Throughout the operations, the announcement said, "The 8th Army has been ably supported by its old associate of past victories, the Desert Air Force."

Without naming any towns captured, the bulletin said that in the centre other 8th Army troops had made "very important gains."

Canadians Nearing Le Havre Americans Beyond Mihiel Few Miles From Hun Border

Belgians Are Warned Huns Coming Back Brussels To Fall Soon

LONDON, Sept. 2 — (CP) — The Germans acknowledged the forthcoming loss of Belgium in a startling farewell broadcast last night over the Brussels radio.

Apparently preparing for flight before the Allied armies which, at the time of the broadcast, may already have crossed the border, one Nazi announcer urged the Belgians "not to show hatred against us or against those in your country who worked for us."

"I know you are friends of the British and that you are eagerly awaiting the British and American forces," said S.S. leader Hans Friedrich who came to the microphone.

"Within a short while you will fill the streets of Brussels and shout 'at last at long last, they are here, the Liberators.'

"You will acclaim the Allied troops as they march through your streets. You all do that because you know that Britain has never lost the last battle.

"We National Socialists, however, will face any situation. We shall have means to watch you, for we shall never give up our principles.

"One day we shall come back."

Then the Brussels radio went dead.

A Berlin broadcast has reported earlier that wounded German soldiers filled Brussels streets and that "unrest and fever" was growing among the populace.

The Germans landed their last blows elsewhere, too, as the Allied armies swept forward.

American fighter pilots reported the enemy was opening flood gates and permitting waters to sweep over large sections of northern Belgium and Southern Holland— an act that will result in extensive property damage. The Germans long have boasted of plans to flood the low countries in the path of any invasion armies.

From Associated Press War Correspondent William Smith White came a story of grim brutality—of 14 French male civilians of Plomion, France, near the Belgian frontier, murdered and dismembered by the German garrison of the town before fleeing.

Southern Army Closing In On City Of Lyon

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 2.—(AP).—Despite scattered rains that hampered progress in some areas, American and French columns of the 7th Army were closing in steadily to-day on the great French city of Lyon, where the retreating Germans were reported feverishly digging rear-guard positions in an attempt to slow their pursuers.

Lt.-Gen. Patch's Headquarters said heavy motor movements continued on the roads north and northwest of the city, as the Nazi command sought to escape from the jaws of an Allied trap closing in from both the north and south.

An Allied Headquarters announcement said the count of prisoners taken since the landing in Southern France exceeds 55,000, of which French troops captured 35,000, including 15,000 at Marseille and 10,000 at Toulon.

Capture Contes.

On the eastern edge of the invasion front Allied troops have entered Contes, eight miles northeast of the captured Riviera resort town of Nice.

Official sources were vague in describing movements of Patton's striking forces in the area north of Grenoble, from which thrusts could be made to by-pass Lyon on the east and get astride of routes along which the Nazis are trying to escape with what is left of their battered 19th Army.

The communique said only that some American elements are "beyond Voiron," which is 43 miles southeast of Lyon.

American columns on the east side of the Rhone river made a few contacts with enemy rear-guards yesterday between Tournon, 47 miles south of Lyon, and Bourge de Peace, but only patrol clashes were reported.

Impregnable Dieppe Taken Without Single Casualty

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

DIEPPE, Sept. 2 (CP Cable) — The Germans toiled for two years to make Dieppe impregnable against seaward attack and then abandoned it without firing a shot as 2nd Canadian Division troops swept into the port by land to avenge the bloody repulse they received here in August, 1942.

The resort town of 25,000 fell into Canadian hands yesterday in the course of a lightning sweep by Lt.-Gen. Crerar's forces which took them 40 miles northward from Rouen in 24 hours.

The 2nd Division regiments which stormed Dieppe Aug. 19, 1942, encountered heavy guns emplaced on cliffs commanding the pebbled beaches, pill boxes, machine-guns, mines,—all the paraphernalia of death laid by a determined and well-entrenched enemy.

They remained ashore nine hours before withdrawing, having probed German coastal defenses at a cost of 3,400 casualties, approximately two-thirds of the attacking force.

Worked 2 Years

Since then the Germans greatly strengthened their defences, taking every precaution against an all-out invasion from across the channel. They added more pill-boxes, more gun casements, more obstacles in the way and on the beaches in front of the town. They installed more guns in the cliffs overlooking Dieppe on both sides.

But when the Canadians came back to Dieppe yesterday they found no Germans. The enemy had fled and the only sign of his presence were demolitions in the port areas and destruction of public facilities.

A reconnaissance unit was in the vanguard, entering this town of bitter memories for Canadians at 10.30 a.m.

Toured The Port

Then came infantry regiments which fought on Dieppe's blood-stained beaches in that 1942 raid. Men of the Royal Regiment, a Toronto Unit, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Essex Scottish from Windsor, Ont., drove into Dieppe and were wildly acclaimed by its citizens. Behind them came another 2nd Division Brigade—the Queens Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, the South Saskatchewan Regiment from Weyburn, Sask., and the Fusiliers Mont-Royal. Next

Canadians In Italian Battle

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Sept. 2—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops are taking part in the new British 8th Army offensive on the Gothic Line in Northern Italy it was disclosed today.

The drive is pushing along the Adriatic coast and inland through rolling country, and through the eastern fringes of the Appennines.

Veteran Canadian infantry was committed to battle behind a thin line of Polish reconnaissance elements, which crossed the Metauro River at a few points.

The Canadians made their own reconnaissances and then crossed the river late Aug. 25 to begin an advance from positions roughly 11 miles from the main Gothic Line defences running west from Pesaro to the Appennines.

Polish troops pushed forward simultaneously between the Canadians and the Adriatic, while British and Indian forces moved ahead on the left flank.

Heinzerling said that Prime Minister Churchill visited the front with Lt.-Gen. Leese and Gen. Alexander, and watched the progress of the first day's battle from an observation post near the Metauro river.

Mr. Churchill saw the troops moving in for an attack aimed directly at the richest part of Italy.

Hun Siegfried Line Next Objective Of Speeding Armies

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 2—(AP).—British 2nd Army forces have taken Vimy Ridge —scene of one of the greatest Canadian victories in the First Great War—it was disclosed today, while 1st Canadian Army units, driving forward from captured Dieppe, are reported probing within two miles of the vital Channel port of Le Havre.

American 3rd Army armored units spearing out from captured Verdun and St. Mihiel were speeding over the line where the shooting stopped in 1918 and were only a few hours' run, at their present rate of advance, from the German border itself.

News of the fall of Vimy Ridge, near Arras, was contained in a message from Lt.-Gen. Dempsey, British 2nd Army commander, to Lt.-Gen. Crerar, leader of the 1st Canadian Army, Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported.

At Belgian Border.

The message, dated yesterday, said in part: "Today you captured Dieppe and we capture Vimy Ridge—a great day for Canada."

The Americans were pushing toward the Moselle River, 35 miles east of Verdun and about 20 miles from the German border, and were racing the Germans to the Siegfried Line, hoping to reach it before the routed German forces in France can man the fortifications in strength.

To the north and west American 1st Army and British 2nd Army troops were moving up within 20 miles of Belgium at key points along a 100-mile front and probably had reconnaissance units already across the Belgian border.

The Canadians were reported to have reached the Somme between Abbeville and Airaines, marking a 60-mile advance from Rouen in two days.

The British in their new drive toward Flanders which captured Vimy Ridge, were within 20 miles of Armentieres on the French side of the Belgian border.

In the last hope of a delaying defence the Germans opened flood gates in the low countries and apparently were preparing for a large-scale withdrawal from Belgian and perhaps much of Holland.

The last of the Nazi 15th Army, the guardian force of the rocket-bomb coast, was in open flight from the Pas De Calais coast, abandoning sites of known and yet unknown weapons of vengeance to which Hitler turned when hope of victory failed.

EXTRA!

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS — Battlefront dispatches reported today that the U.S. 1st Army had reached Charleville and Hirson and within five to eight miles of Belgium, on a 30-mile front west of Sedan.

STOCKHOLM—All signs pointed today to a quick withdrawal of Finland from the war with Russia. The government of Field Marshal Mannerheim, president of Finland, was reliably reported to have taken a decision to break completely with Germany.

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS—British forces thrust 15 miles northeast of Arras to Douar, pushed eight miles northwest of Arras over historic Vimy Ridge to Cambigneil, and thrust patrols to Lens and Pernes within 18 miles of Armentieres and Lille.

Maquis Fight At Vercors Worst Battle

Patriots Held Area For 2 Years Against Hun Armies

By EDWARD KENNEDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE MAQUIS AT VERCors, France, Sept. 2 —(AP)— The fight of the Maquis, a bitter struggle of poorly-armed patriots against strong German formations, will lon be famous in French history, and it was here in Vercors, a wild region south of Grenoble, that the fight was fiercest.

It was in this area of deep forests, mountains and valleys that the Germans shortly before the Allied landings on the Riviera had 2½ divisions tied up fighting the Maquis. They left a trail of burned and bombed villages but failed dismally in their announced purpose of exterminating these patriots.

For each patriot the Germans put to death— often by torture —there were 10 others to fire upon them, blow up bridges behind them or steal their supplies when they least expected it.

Maquis fighters have held some areas here for the last two years and no German has dared to penetrate them. Other areas have been German by day but at night control returned to the patriots.

It was not unitl the landings in Normandy, June 6, however, that the Maquis forces, splendidly organized and greatly enlarged went into a full offensive against the Germans.

By the time the Allies arrived they held virtually all of Vercors, were maintaining order and already were at work repairing war damage.

The story of the Maquis and their hardships could be hard to equal.

With a large part of France's men of military age held in Germany, boys and old men are numerous in the Maquis units hich are compact, manoeuverable groups of 20 to 30 fighters.

One potato often was a day's ration. At times the Frenchmen in arid areas licked the dew from leaves each morning for water. Many wore only a ragged shirt and trousers and their shoes were almost worn out.

Their main weapon is a sten gun, a British-made lightweight machine pistol parachuted to them by the thousands. One advantage of this gun is that Germans have ammunition which fits it.

Canadian Units Reach Somme

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 2—(CP Cable)—Canadian tank columns to-day reached the Somme between Abbeville and airlines northwest of Amiens, as the British 2nd Army drives for the Belgium border, and German forces struggle back toward Germany in what is fast approaching a rout.

In two days Canadian armored units have advanced 60 miles from Rouen to the Somme. The only serious resistance encountered was near Abbeville, where a German rear-guard put up a brief fight while enemy troops sped eastward through the town.

Strong Canadian infantry forces pushed on from Neufchatel toward the Channel coast 20 miles east of Dieppe, which was occupied by a reconnaissance squadron yesterday without opposition.

Meanwhile elements of the 2nd Canadian division are in and around

Air Marshal Bishop Retires

Veteran Flier Says No Work To Do

OTTAWA, Sept. 2 — (CP) — Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop V. C., Canadian flying ace of the last war with 72 victories, will retire shortly from active service as director of recruiting for the R.C.A.F.

Air Minister Power, in announcing last night that the famed airman will retire "later this fall" said he will be appointed to the reserve of officers and will be subject to recall should his services be required.

Meanwhile, Air Marshal Bishop said in a press release that he felt he had accomplished all he could usefully do for the service and that he should yield to pressure put on him to return to his personal affairs as vice-president of McColl-Frontenac.

Maj. Power said he agreed "with reluctance" to Air Marshal Bishop's suggestion that he retire.

"The Air Marshal has taken the position that since recruiting has been suspended, there is no further necessity for him to retain his post as director of Air Force recruiting, said Maj. Power.

Claims Negroes Pure Aryans

TORONTO, Sept. 2—Hitler and Goebbels were talking "pure rubbish" when they referred to the Aryan race as being most desirable in the world, Prof. T. F. McIlwraith, professor of anthropology, University of Toronto, told the Rotary Club yesterday.

"There is no such thing as a superior, or Aryan race," he said. "The term 'Aryan' means a person speaking the Aryan language—the English, French, German, Russian, Portuguese and a dozen other nations. The Negro of the Southern United States is 100 per cent Aryan just as much as the fairest-haired, blue-eyed individual."

He pointed out that through the ages various races had claimed superiority over others, the Egyptians putting themselves in a central position; the Romans classifying mankind; the Chinese and Eskimo doing likewise. Even Scottish clans, he said, had fought among themselves and classed other clans as inferior peoples.

"Man everywhere has his likes and dislikes, based on what the other group does, and not on physical appearance," he said. "The people of North Africa and Central Asia are essentially the same. The human wrist and hand is one of the most intricate mechanical devices known and is essentially the same the world over."

Hatred of Germany was confined, not to the physical characteristics of the German people, but to their way of life, he said. "In Germany, Japan and Italy a generation has grown up whose whole attitude has been an ideal of brutality, an admiration of warfare and, in the case of Germany, an idolization of Hitler. This attitude can be changed if we are willing to realize the problems of race actions are not problems of biology but of education. They must be taught to think and act like ordinary human beings," he declared.

Even in such far northerly areas as the Sudbury and North Bay districts, it was a lush season. Sudbury reported more tourists than in any previous war years. They came earlier, stayed later and had plenty of money. The marjority came by train.

Around North Bay tourist camp operators were booked in full for all of July and August and most of September. Many new camps were opened this year and they did a capacity business. The North Bay Board of Trade reported 15 per cent more inquiries from tourists than in 1943.

Owen Sound reported fewer visitors from the United States but visitors from Ontario and Quebec flocked into the area to tax all accommodation and more than make up for decrease in the number of Americans.

The two border points touching Southern Michigan — Sarnia and Windsor— reported a great influx of visitors.

At Sarnia it was estimated 100,000 visitors from the United States entered Canada. Many motored up the Blue Water highway to resorts in the Georgian Bay and Muskoka areas. Others stayed in the cottages and resorts which line the shore of Lake Huron from Sarnia to Grand Bend and beyond.

Stayed Near Border

In Essex County tourist facilities were taxed to the limit and enquiries for accomodation far exceeded the supply. The gasoline shortage led many of the visitors to stay in the border zone. During July 105,752 tourist permits were issued at Windsor compared with 77,590 in the same month last year.

Such inland points as London, St. Thomas and Brantford reported more visitors in their areas. St. Thomas tourist buying was the best in any year since 1940. Much of the trade came from Americans travelling between Detroit and Buffalo. Shoe stores in Brantford enjoyed a 50 to 70 per cent increase in business over last year, due largely to shoe rationing in the U. S.

Woodstock reported tourist traffic light this season and Kitchener reported few visitors from the U. S. wth gasoline rationing believed to be the chief factor. At Hamilton there were few visitors.

Traffic to the Toronto area was light although many Americans passed through the city by train to vacation spots.

ON SECOND TOUR—Flt.-Lieut. Kenneth Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnston, 66 Lee street, is nearing completion of his second tour overseas. He is a flight engineer who has been serving with the R.C.A.F. bomber group's "Bison" squadron, and he has had a brilliant career in the Air Force.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, Septmber 3

Sunday's horoscope indicates rather strange, peculiar or disconcerting conditions or states of mind, with uprooting and disruptive consequences. It is an undermining force in which opposition or antagonism might provoke erratic conduct or childish reactions. All may have emotional tensions with health and romantic associates imperiled. Beware strange contacts.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have to encounter a year of peculiar or inexplicable adventures, with strange and puzzling circumstances. There may be devastating conditions, with disagreeable reactions on the health and fortunes. There may be erratic, impulsive or childish actions, aggravated by opposition or excitement. Choose companions with great precautions, lest there be regrets and loss.

A child born on this day may have leanings toward the occult or the unusual, with reactions on its health and emotional behavior.

For Monday, September 4

Monday's astrological forecast is rather conflicting with many indications of a slowing down of affairs or a continued congestion of already static matters. Hazards and delays in all directions, business and private, may be aggravated by ill temper, strife and turbulence. With this under control pleasant and profitable relations may be preserved. Be alert to deception.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a difficult and disagreeable year to handle, with strife, disharmony, tempestuous and suspicious circumstances to compose or vanquish both in private and business relations. With tenacious obstacles and generally crystallized conditions little headway is shown. However, with persistent effort, industry and amiability eventually there may be pleasant and profitale denouements. Shun subtlety or queer adventures.

A child born on this day may have a quick temper, sharp tongue and be caustic or sarcastic, yet with discipline and control may eventually enjoy a happy personal life experience.

For Tuesday, September 5

A QUICK and decisive effort at grasping unusual or unexpected opportunities for growth, progress and expansion should bring surprising results according to lunar transits. Nevertheless there may be need for new ways of attacking perilous propositions or dangerous situations, as precaution, cleverness and novelty may be powerful in averting devastating circumstances. There may be sudden uprooting, change or rearranged plans and associates, of far reachir importance. This condition may prevail in both business and private relations, in the latter being intrigue, possibly illusion, delusion, should imagination run riot. Be cautious.

Those whose birthday it is may face a difficult year in which disturbing and devastating forces may demand cautious and wise consideration lest there be sudden changes, removals, estrangements or other far reaching denouements. With fresh and alluring openings for exceptional benefits or progress, it would be well to refrain from impulsive or emotional decisions. This in both business and private relationships, as both are beset by the menace of erratic, rash or delusive judgments. Romance may take sudden turns but not enduring or pleasant ones.

A child born on this day may have exceptional opportunities for progress and attainments yet its impetuous or erratic behavior may cause defeat. Its vivid imagination and feelings may beget loss and regrets.

McCracken's Landing Fears Spreading Fire

The bush fire which started near McCracken's Landing a few days ago and was thought to be under control, has started again this morning, and with a change in the wind is once more threatening the cottages on Stoney Lake nearby and also some valuable timber. Provincial Constable Price Morris received a call for help this morning from Robert Hamilton, on whose bushland the fire has been burning since early in the week. Farmers and cottagers are working together to prevent the spread of the blaze.

Dieppe.

It was learned that 12 hours before the Canadians entered Dieppe yesterday morning there were only 150 Germans left there from the garrison and when the first troops entered there were only from 12 to 20 enemy soldiers still in town. They cleared out before the Canadians reached the central square.

Meanwhile at the western end of the Channel front, Le Havre was threatened.

Travel Fast

The Germans are anticipating the loss of Le Havre by setting off demolitions in the dry docks and harbor. It is believed that there is at least one German regiment of abou 1,500 men in the port. It is unlikely that Le Havre will fall without resistance, like Dieppe, but there can be nothing more than a suicide stand because every escape route is cut.

The chief object of the retreating Germans seems to be to get back to Germany as fast as they can, but there is no order about it. The largest organized bodies in the flight seem to be platoons of about 30 men, kept together by an officer, according to information here.

Straggling columns of Nazis are moving slowly along scores of roads with British and Canadian tanks and infantry right on their heels.

Industrial Workers Organizing For Memorial Centre Canvass

More than fifty men, representing those who work in industry met in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night to discuss plans for the financial campaign for the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre. Sam Whitehouse, the chairman of the section in charge of the canvass among the industrial employees, was in the chair.

It was announced that an objective of $10 per employee had been set and that subscriptions would be received on a cash basis or on the salary deduction plan. It is being left to each firm to set the length of time to be taken for the deductions. Some it was said were planning to suggest a fifty cents a week plan, thus cleaning it up in 20 weeks, while others were recommending 25 cents a week.

The question of size of the arena came up and unanimous support was expressed for one with a seating capacity of 3,500.

Joe Jebson, the committee chairman, outlined what had been done and what the plans were. He said the proposed cost of this centre would be in the neighborhood of $300,000 and that the plans include a swimming pool, a softball diamond, a hardball diamond, rugby, soccer and lacrosse field and an artificial ice arena which will have a floor for summer use. The building will have an overall dimension of 263 feet by 144 feet, the ice surface wil be 190 feet by 85 feet. It will be heated, there will be five dressing rooms for the convenience of athletes and two general skating dressing rooms.

The representatives were unanimous in their support of the project and they now will set up their own plant committees to look after the canvass in the various industries.

in line were the Black Watch of Montreal, the Calgary Highlanders, the Regiment Maisonneuvre and the Toronto Scottish, all of which were represented at Dieppe.

The Divisional Commander entered the town during the day and toured the port after a conference with the Mayor. He said he hoped to have a parade of Diepe Regiments through the town before they left the area.

Transport of the 2nd Division poured into the port in the wake of the leading units, to receive the same tumultuous welcome that the inhabitants accorded the first formations. The whole division was seeing the town and sharing the bloodless victory.

A few Germans didn't flee fast enough from the onrushting Canadians. A number of them were marched south along the highway out of the town late yesterday, guarded by half-a-dozen men of the Royal Hamilton Infantry.

A squadron commanded by Maj. Dennis Bult-Francis of Montreal, who was wounded on the beaches in the 1942 raid but managed to get back to England, led the way into Dieppe. Other squadron leaders of the reconnaissance regiment were Maj. J. K. Bate of Saskatoon and Maj. G. M. Wood of Estevan, Sask. The unit's second-in-command, Maj. John Merner of Toronto, also went in.

No One Injured.

Not a single Canadian soldier was killed or injured in the taking of Dieppe, or during the sweep into the town along the Rouen highway. There were two minor skirmishes with German parties, one at Totes, 17 miles south, and one at Le Bas Robert, on the outskirts. At Le Bas Robert a German anti-aircraft party trying to escape eastward was caught and wiped out.

Grim Memories

Dieppe seaward defences brought back grim memories to those who took part in the 1942 raid, of whom there were about 25 in each regiment. One was Eric Bell of Regina who saw heavy action on the main beach. He stood yesterday looking at the beach. He didn't say anything. His jaw just tightened.

On that beach the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, the Essex Scottish and the Fusiliers Mont-Royal had their roughest time. Around the west headland was Pourville, where the South Saskatchewan Regiment and the Cameron Highlanders landed.

The road was blown and it was inaccessible. Sappers also said the bridge there was blown. It was over this bridge that Lt.-Col. Col. C. C. I. Merritt of Vancouver and Belleville, Ont., who commanded the S.S.R., led his men with a heroism that won him the Victoria Cross. He was wounded and taken prisoner in the raid.

East of Dieppe the Royal Regiment landed during the raid and we could see the narrow beach where they were caught by murderous German machine-gun and mortar fire. The enemy hadn't left many guns at Dieppe. They hauled away what mobile ones they could, and blew up others in pill boxes and casemates.

At the western end of the Esplanade the Germans had demolished the Casino which was captured by the R.H.L.I. in 1942 and held for hours under heavy fire.

Dozens of people crowded around the Canadians as they arrived back in Dieppe. They thronged around every 2nd Division man they saw wearing blue battle patches which they remembered from two years before. Among them were some English people who had been in Dieppe throughout the war and were unable to leave since the German occupation in 1940.

Hun Losses Heavy

Mrs. Jean Touzon of London, England, said: "It is a wonderful idea to send the Canadians back here. I was here when the Canadians came on the 1942 raid and we were all terribly saddened by your losses.

"But the German losses were very heavy too. There were from 600 to 800 killed alone and the wounded totalled well over 1,000. The raid shook them to their heels. There was nearly a panic in the middle of the morning."

(Canadian casualties in the raid have been announced at Ottawa as 710 killed, 608 wounded and 2,066 missing or taken prisoner.)

Speaking of the present situation, Mrs. Touzon said the Germans became extremely nervous Thursday at the progress of Canadian and British forces to the south around Rouen and began blowing up ammunition dumps, continuing the demolitions all that day and Thursday night.

The last German parties left Dieppe about dawn Friday, fleeing eastward.

Employee Remanded On Theft Charge

Blake McNaughton, Romaine stret, employee of Canada Packers was remanded until Wednesday for sentence by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a chicken, two ham butts and a casing back from that firm.

A. Frederick Innes, superintendent of Canada Packers, giving evidence, told the court that McNaughton was employed as a night transport checker in regard to goods being shipped out at night. This morning, the witness said, the accused's car was searched at 6 o'clock and the stolen articles found therein.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Unusual desserts will be our topic for today. The recipes are unusual as you will agree while reading them. The first one is tasty lovely, to look at and not hard to make.

Baked Alaska

Vanilla ice cream, sponge cake, 4 egg whites, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar. Fill a round mould with vanilla ice cream, pack and freeze hard. At serving time, beat the whites of the eggs until light, add the powdered sugar and whip until light and dry. Turn the ice-cream on to a sheet of sponge cake placed on a board and cover it thoroughly with meringue. Dust well with powdered sugar and set the whole in a hot oven (400 degrees F or 450 degrees F) for a moment to brown. Place on a serving platter and serve at once.

Nesselrode Pudding

3 cups milk, 1⅛ cups sugar, 3 egg yolks, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 pint coffee cream, 3 tablespoons pineapple syrup, 1 cup chopped nutmeats, ¼ cup seeded raisins, ¼ cup assorted fruits. Make a custard of milk, sugar, egg yolks and salt. When cool add the cream and pineapple syrup. Chop the nuts fine and pound to a paste. Add to the custard and freeze. Line a two-quart melon mould with half the frozen mixture. To the remaining half add raisins and assorted fruits cut to bits. Fill the mould with the mixture, cover and pack in ice and salt for two hours, or pack and freeze in the trays of the mechanical refrigerator. Serve with small cakes.

Biscuit Glace

1 cup sugar, ¼ cup water, 4 egg yolks, 2½ cups cream, (the top off Jersey milk may be used), 1 teaspoon vanilla, pulverized macaroons. Make a thick syrup of the sugar and water. Beat the yolks of the eggs and add the syrup and ½ cup of the cream. Place all in a saucepan over a slow fire and stir constantly until it forms a thick coating on the spoon. Empty into a mixing bowl set on ice, beat until it is cold and stiff and then add remainder of the cream which has been beaten stiff. Flavor with vanilla or any preferred extract. Pack the mixture into serving bowl and sprinkle with pulverized macaroons. Set in a covered container, pack and freeze in ice for about four hours.

Abandonment of the Pas De Calais area clearly wrote finis to the fight for France— for the Germans would have held on there if any stand was possible long enough to permit them, at least, to get their threatened giant V-2 rockets into action.

Robots Slackens

Following a night-long roar of gunfire in which the Germans shot 200 cross-channel shells from their big Pas De Calais coastal guns, the English cities of Folkestone and Dover teemed with rumors that the Germans pulled out at dawn this morning from Boulogne and likely were planning to give up Calais as well.

At the same time London eased back cautiously toward normal in a flying bomb lull which suggested that although the Axis might fire a last flurry, probably the worst was over. The Germans might move their robot bases back even into the Reich, but the accuracy of these weapons would suffer and the longer runs by the robots would make Allied defensive measures more effective.

In the eastern bulge, front dispatches reported a steady advance east of Verdun toward Metz, 35 miles away, said now to be within artillery range. Similar gains were made beyond St. Mihiel — scene of a great American victory 26 years ago this month—toward Nancy, Lorraine capital.

Other columns pushed east toward Germany from Commercy. Still others drove 18 miles southeast of St. Dizier to Joinville, 23 miles above Chaumont, U.S. general headquarters in 1918.

On the northern front, headquarters still had no confirmation of front reports over 24 hours ago of a push through the Sedan gap to Belgium, but U.S. troops fought into the forest of Signy, 20 miles from the Belgian frontier to the west of Sedan.

who had been largely idle except for patrol actions since they swept to Livorno (Leghorn) and the Arno river weeks ago, jumped the stream at several points west of Florence and plunged forward menacing historic Pisa near the coast.

The main American drive, however, was said to be toward high ground north of Florence which must be taken before the 8th and 5th Armies can gain their final objectives.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force gave srong support to the offensive. Last night, bombers hit railyards at Bologna on the Brenner Pass line in northern Italy.

The attack that broke the back of the Gothic Line was launched on a 20-mile stretch west from Psearo, Adriatic port. The heaviest fighting in that area began two days ago.

In the Allied advance Polish and British troops crossed the Ofglie river.

Move a Secret.

A secret concentration of 8th Army forces in the Adriatic sector before the push began in rough mountain country was termed here one of the classic manoeuvres of the war.

A front dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Lynn Heinzerling said that the 8th transferred many divisions, thousands of guns and vehicles and tons of ammunition and equipment from Central Italy to the Adriatic sector "to the complete mystification of the Germans."

He said the attack was so heavy and unexpected that it caught the Germans still unpacking some of their mines and making a routine relief of one of their tired divisions.

"Even now the full story of the army's migration— a movement far greater than that which preceded the assault on Cassino and the Gustav Line— cannot be told." Heinzerling wrote, adding.

"One day 11,000 vehicles passed over the roads. Tank transporters, running day and night through heat and dust, travelled 60,000 miles. Planes were used to watch traffic on the roads and report jams promptly."

Sgt. R. A. Dutton Killed Overseas

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Dutton, 502 Water street, have been notified that their only son, Sgt. Robert A. Dutton, has been killed in action overseas August 30.

The young airman finished his schooling at Collegiate and enlisted in November 1942. He trained at Truro, Fingal, Three Rivers and Mount Pleasant, P.E.I., before going overseas as an air gunner in February of this year.

Advance Allied elements in and east of the Rhone Valley are finding increasing difficulties in pursuing the Germans because of lengthened supply lines, a statement from Allied headquarters said.

Troops operating in the Valence area are 150 miles from where they landed 17 days ago, while units beyond Grenoble are more than 160 miles from the beaches.

In the Alpine passes crossing the French-Italian frontier north of the Riviera "further activity has been noted," an Allied spokesman said, but its nature was not disclosed.

So far German thrusts across these passes have been in the nature of exploratory moves, possibly intended also to cause Patch to divert forces to that area from the Rhone Valley.

Balkans Totter Hungary Seeks Way Out

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

While our attention naturally is centred on the fascinating speed of the Western Allies' drive against the Reich, we shouldn't overlook the eastern front—for if the United Nations are to achieve their avowed ambition of defeating Hitler this year their operations in the two theatres must be complementary.

They are indeed complementing each other—perfectly. Although the developments of the moment in France are the more spectacular, the whole vast eastern front is verging on explosion, especially in the Balkans. When that blow-up comes we shall get the full pressure necessary for a quick crushing of Germany.

Hitler's hold on the Balkan peninsula was to all intents broken when the Red armies steam-rollered into the heart of Romania. Not only has Bulgaria raced for cover to escape the Allied storm, but Hungary—keystone of Germany's southeastern military and political defences—is shaking like an Autumn leaf and is said to be seeking a way to escape the German clutch.

Bulwark for Reich

But the Balkans have been more than bulwark for Southeastern Germany. They've been a powerful shield for the southern flank of Hitler's last great line of defence east of the Reich—that along the Vistula river. With the Balkans go the dictator can't long hold the Vistula and the last Prussian front. Then will come the big squeeze on both sides of the Fatherland.

Will Germany allow the battle to be carried onto its "sacred soil?" A couple of months ago the answer would have been "no". That was before the open revolt of the Prussian generals. Wise in war, they knew that they had lost and they wanted to surrender short of fighting in Germany.

With their influence stilled, however, the situation has changed. Hitler gives every sign of intending to fight to a finish. The only thing that will stop him is desertion by his fighting forces and home front. So long as they back him, he presumably will battle on, and this means fighting inside Germany.

Saul Failure As Leader Because of Selfishness

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 3 is I Samuel 13, 15, 31, the Golden Text being Sam. 15:23, "Because thou has rejected the word of Jehovah, He hath also rejected thee from being king.")

TODAY'S Lesson relates the story of Saul, the man chosen of God to lead the Israelites. It tells the story of a man who seemed to have the requisites of a great leader, but who was not sound at the core of his being. His character lacked the necessary greatness which was needed for the office he was called upon to hold, and so his life was a failure.

Our first chapter tells us that Saul resigned for one year, and in the second he chose 3,000 men of Israel and sent all other men to their tents. Then he smote the Philistine garrison, after which the Philistines gathered thousands of their soldiers together to fight back.

When the Philistines were all gathered for an attack, with thousands of chariots, horsemen and people "as the sand which is on the sea shore in multitude," the Israelites were badly frightened and hid in caves and thickets, in rocks and high places, and some crossed over Jordon. Saul was in Gilgal, and some followed him there, trembling. He waited there seven days for Samuel and when he did not come Saul himself offered a burnt offering and a peace offering to the Lord.

Samuel Removes Saul

Then Samuel came and asked Saul what he had done. Saul told him that the people were scared and so he had taken upon himself to ast as priest and offer up the burnt sacrifice which was Samuel's office. Samuel told Saul he had done foolishly and that as he had not obeyed the Lord, the Lord would destroy the kingdom, when He would have established it.

"But now thy kingdom shall not continue: The Lord hath sought after a man after His own heart, and the Lord hath commanded him to be captain over His people, because thou has not kept that which the Lord commanded thee."

To show how the Philistines kept the Israelites in subjection, they had no smith to make swords and spears, so on the day of battle they had no warlike weapons to use in the battle of Mishmash, which they won.

Then Samuel told Saul to go out against the Amalekites and to destroy them utterly, they and all their goods. Saul and his people overthrew the Amalekites and destroyed them, only Saul took Agag, the king prisoner, and allowed the people to keep all the best sheep and oven. When Samuel came Saul said "Blessed be thou of the Lord: I have performed the commandment of the Lord."

Knows Saul Lies

Samuel knew Saul had not obeyed implicitly, because the Lord had told him that He repented having made Saul king, and Samuel had "cried unto the Lord all night" because of Saul's unworthiness. All Samuel said to Saul was, "What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?"

Saul tried to blame the people for keeping the sheep and oxen and insisted that he had obeyed the Lord—which was a lie. The oxen and sheep were to be a sacrifice unto the Lord. Saul stated. Samuel answered, "Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord?"....

"For rebellion is as the sin of whitchcraft, and stubborness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, He hath also rejected thee from being king." Saul then confessed his sins, but Samuel could not forgive him. He ordered Agag to be brought before him and killed him with his own hands.

Samuel also told Saul he would not come to him again, and although Saul pleaded to be forgiven, and caught hold of Samuel's robe as he was leaving, tearing same. Samuel came no more to Saul all the days of his life, but he mourned for this promising man who had so disappointed him.

The 31st chapter of 1 Samuel tells of Saul's last hours. The Philistines were again on the rampage and "the battle went sore against Saul." His son Jonathan, beloved of David, and his two other sons were killed and Saul begged his armor bearer to kill him but he refused. Saul therefore fell on his sword and died, and his armor bearer followed suit.

The Philistines found the bodies of Saul and his sons, cut off Saul's head, stripped off the armor and fastened the bodies to the wall in the house of their idol Bethshan. The valiant men of Israel, however, went at night and took the bodies of Saul and his sons and burnt them at Jabesh, and burried the bones under a tree. Then they fasted seven days. So ends the life story of a man who seemed a born leader of the Lord, but did not possess the spirit of selflessness and obedience to succeed.

Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

The Golden Plover has very long travels from its summer home to winter quarters. In the spring it follows the Mississippi valley north, stopping from the vicinity of Fort Churchill, or northwest of that. In the autumn if comes east to the Atlantic coast and from there takes the jump to South America in one long flight, thence to the pampas of Brazil and the Argentine.

A fair number are found inland in the fall migration. This has been said to be following strong storms from the Atlantic, but Mr. P. A. Traverner of the National Museum at Ottawa believes that the number of juveniles seen inland at this season are following an inland course.

At one time the Golden Plover was extremely numerous, and after the Eskimo Curlew became so depleted in number that shooting it for the market was unprofitable (about 1890), the Golden Plover took its place. Due to the havoc wrought by the market gunners, the birds became very scarce. Then the governments of Canada and the United States passed laws prohibiting the shooting of them at any season. Since then they have increased considerably, and the observer who is out regularly is likely to see them two or three times during the fall, perhaps even more frequently.

If Golden and Black-bellied Plover are together in a flock, several small points become noticeable by comparison, through binoculars. The slendered bill and darker, more sharply defined crown become marks which lead thee observer to note particular birds carefully when they fly to see the final recognition marks of rump and axillars.

Dowitcher Has Snipe's Bill

The Dowitcher is sandpiper with a long bill like a snipe. In summer it is speckled golden and black on the back, with a bright rust-colored breast. It was commonly known as the "Robin Snipe." The Dowitcher feeds like a Snipe, probing violently up and down in the mud.

In flight, it has an excellent field mark in any plumage. A white patch on the rump is shaped like a lance-head, with the point toward the bird's head. This stands out so well that with one glance you can pick a Dowitcher out of a mixed flock of sandpipers at several hundred yards through a glass.

In winter plumage it is grey on the back and whitish below, with a white line over the eye. The name Dowitcher is said to come from its note, a three-syllabed whistle. To me it is ratheer far-fetched to make this whistle into such a clear word as Dowitcher, and many birds named like this seem to be highly imagined, although it is surprising how close the chickadee comes to his name.

Thrush Call Is Soft

Switchin our attention to the small land birds, we are likely to see Thrushes. Their call notes, a soft "quirt" seem to be the same for most species, and are the sort to be overlooked, unless one is on the watch for them. The Olive-backed Thursh is olive-brown above and white below with black spots on the upper breast and a rich buffy eye-ring and wash on the uper breast and sides of the face.

In the Middle Ages, brides carried or wore wheat ears and the guests, hoping for prosperity, threw grains of wheat over the bride.

Nations Called to Prayer On War's 5th Anniversary

On the fifth anniversary, Sunday, September 3, of the beginning of the war the King and the Dominion Government have called the nation to a day of prayer and thanksgiving. A letter from Rt. Rev. A. R. Beverley, acting for the Primate of the Church of England, has been issued to the clergy of that Church calling for whole-hearted co-operation in the observance of the day. Dr. S. J. Farmer, president of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, expressed his hope that every Baptist in Canada will unite on that day, as one voice, in thanksgiving an supplication; Benjamin Orames, Territorial Commander of the Salvation Army, has assured the co-operation of that organization; Catholics, United and Presbyterian churches will lend their whole-hearted support, and men and women who have no denominational preference are urged to attend some church on that day to join with a grateful nation in acknowledging the goodness of God in the turn of the tide of battle.

New World Order

LONDON, Sept. 1—(AP)—Pope Pius XII, speaking over the Vatican City radio, said last night that "on this fifth anniversary of the war, the spirit of injustice is dying out."

"This barbaric world is going to end and a new world of humanity and christianity is to be created," the pontiff continued.

"The new world must be one of social justice and fraternity of all the human family," the Pope said. "After so many years of uncertainty, humanity expects of the world a better social order. This social reform must be based on divine justice."

The address was recorded by The Associated Press.

Primary Truth Revealed In Great News of the Day

This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.
1 St. John 5; 4

General Montgomery has given us good news that victory is in sight. As a devout Christian did you say: "Thanks be unto God"? Do your thoughts go back to the dark days of four years ago? Perhaps they were the darkest days of our history when we stood alone against the might of Germany. In very truth Hitler's armies had overthrown Europe. Truly Hitler could say: "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our mighty armies."

A little more than 19 centuries ago a young carpenter from Nazareth of Galilee calmly said to 11 men: "Be of good courage. I have overcome the world." In 18 hours He was dead and buried. Yet He saw beyond the darkness and the apparent failure of death on the Cross. He put His whole trust and faith in the Father. With His dying breath he cried: "Father, into Thy Hands I commend My spirit." On the third day God raised Him from the dead thus proving Him to be the Son of God in a mysterious sense of the word. He was obedient even unto death. He put His whole faith in God the Father.

The Son of God came to establish a new social order. For over 50 years the beloved disciple, St. John, pondered over the message and looking on the mightiest Empire of his day with calm assurance he wrote: "This is the victory which overcometh the world, even our faith." He believed and taught that a new supernatural power had entered into this world in the person of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. He came to found the society of men and women whose lives were transformed by His Holy Spirit. They would reveal such goodness, purity, uprightness and honesty to one another that men would be attracted to the Society. They were laying the foundations of the new social order on earth, the Kingdom of God in this world.

As you will remember Our Lord's primarly teaching as He went up and down the land was: "Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand". He taught the new truth that the Kingdom of God is within the individual, changing his character. Naturally only a handful of men accepted the teaching, for the teaching was so revolutionary that very few could accept it. Have you ever thought of Christianity being revolutionary? Knowing this the Master calmly tells His Apostles and us: "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but, be of good courage: I have overcome the world."

Persecution began from the Jews who clearly recognized how upsetting this new teaching was. Truly it was new wine, which would burst the old wine skins.

The new teaching required real repentance and amendment of life. This was too much for the orthodox Jew who considered himself to be a righteous man because he kept the law. Yet his heart might be bitter with hatred.

The movement spread throughout the Roman Empire. The Roman authorities were quick to see that this new teaching contained a profoundly new and revolutionary idea. The teaching emphasized the importance of the individual; that the individual had right of conscience before God and the Government of Rome. The policy of the government was very tolerant towards the religions of the conquered people; even supporting their tempies from state funds. Cynical statesmen looked upon such religions as a form of dope, especially if it kept the people contented. These religions were licensed by the government. Christianity was not licensed. It was an unlawful association. It was teaching a revolutionary idea that the individual was important; that the common people were of importance.

Christianity refused to compromise. Roman judges recognized that many of these people were the very salt of the community. Yet they put them to death for their obstinacy.

The Christian Society or Church grew because of its brotherhood. It was a true fellowship. Unfortunately many Christians do not emphasize this side of the truth. The idea of brotherhood is unknown to them. True brotherhood reveals itself in acts of fellowship and help. Will you try to practice Christian brotherhood in your own little community. It will work marvels. It is the outward and visible sign of your salvation. You are being saved for this purpose.

Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of my brethren ye have done it unto me.

Saul Rejected

Scripture—I Samuel 13, 15, 31

By Alfred J. Buescher

After Saul had reigned two years, he gathered the Israelites and started to battle with the Philistines, but his people were afraid, and Saul made a sacrifice to the Lord.

Samuel came to Saul and asked him what he had done, and when Saul told him he said Saul had done foolishly, and prophesied that Saul's kingdom would not last.

Samuel told Saul to do battle with the Amalekites and kill them all and everything they had, but Saul took the king Agag prisoner and let his people keep the sheep.

Samuel rebuked Saul for this and slaughtered Agag with his own hands; then he went away and never saw Saul again as long as he lived.

Victory Pattern Emerging

Five years of war, years with a heavy burden of hard blows, disappointments and suffering, lie behind the British Empire, while ahead the pattern of victory emerges more vividly with each new blow at Germany. Looking back on other anniversaries of the day Britain went to war—September 3, 1939—followed rapidly by the Dominions, the people of the Empire can see how their fortunes turned, though just where that turning point was, few can say.

There was that Sunday when the tired voice of the late Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain reached by radio into millions of homes with the word that sent the Empire's sons to war with Germany for the second time in less than 25 years. We went to war grimly as well we might, had we known what the coming year held — the fall of Poland, Norway, France, Denmark, and the Low Countries. The first anniversary found Britain shaken, but still standing doggedly under a rain of German bombs. Behind her the Commonwealth rallied its strength, and settled down to the task that lay ahead. By the time another year had rolled around the Empire's leaders were predicting with assurance that an Allied invasion of Europe would come—some day. Churchill told the House of Commons that Hitler still retained the initiative, and Russian cities were falling so rapidly before Germany's sudden drive to the east that Hitler was proclaiming Russia was "already broken and will never rise again."

By September, 1942, the Germans were still advancing in Russia and were nearing Stalingrad. In Egypt they were almost in the Nile Valley, wincing outside El Alamein from an audacious attack by the British 8th Army which was to roll them back across the desert and eventually out of Africa. By 1943 British and Canadian troops stepped off from Sicily to invade Italy. The Red Army was advancing in Russia, heavy American bombers were flying from bases in Britain to help the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. pound Germany, and the evil threat of the U-boat had been all but conquered in the Atlantic.

Now the fifth anniversary has come, full of promise that it may be the last to be observed while the war in Europe is still in progress. The battle of France is won, the battle of Germany will be next. Germany is reeling under heavy blows from the east, and west and south, and the signs are that the Allies may soon be able to turn their full might against Japan and eliminate the last remaining member of the much-dreaded Axis.

We as a people have much to be thankful for. An ever-guiding Hand has watched over us, hence let us to our churches tomorrow go to give thanks from grateful hearts for all His mercies.

A Force For Progress

With Canada entering her sixth year of war, at a time of year set aside to honour the thousands of men and women who have been behind the men who manned the guns, it is fitting to review the great strides labour has made in these years. In that period Canada has become a great industrial country, and this unparalleled expansion of Canadian industry has been reflected in the growth of the labour movement.

Labour Day this year finds the labour movement larger in numbers and with greater economic strength than it has ever had in its history. While at the present time labour is striving to win the war, and the building of a better national and world order, it is also fully aware of its own possibilities and of the opportunities for far-reaching constructive activity which the war has made available. The war has speeded up the discovery and application of new materials and processes, in the field of production which otherwise might have waited decades for development.

Labour unions are primarily formed for the purpose of promoting the economic interests of the workers in a plant or industry, and while they must recognize the function and status of the technical, managerial and professional classes, the workers are demanding their share in the determination not only of wages and working conditions in Canada, but of the political and social structure under which they live. Labour today is asking that industry be managed with proper regard for the human factor involved, that enterprise and initiative be directed towards the most efficient utilization of our human and natural resources and the equitable distribution of the resultant product, rather than towards their exploration for the sake of profit.

Ancient barriers of progress have proven too often to be illusions and with a co-operation between labour and industry the way is open for the attainment of a life of abundance, of happiness, of well-being for every citizen such as no one had ever dared to evisage in his most optimistic moments.

Canadians have courage, they have showed it in the past five years, and if they face the future with the same courage and determination we can make Canada a country where poverty and insecurity do not exist.

A Worthy Enterprise

The joint enterprise of the Peterborough Women's Auxiliaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force in arranging an attractive and extensive program of entertainment for citizens remaining at home Labor Day deserves the generous public support which this holiday celebration commends.

The proceeds will be expended entirely in the purchase of Christmas gifts for the Peterborough men and women on active service. This is a labour of special love by the women of these three organizations. They have planned the affairs for the observance of the holiday, and early this fall they will undertake the details of buying and parcelling the gifts for Christmas to ensure their secure and early delivery.

This is an unusually heavy project for a group of women to assume, and their effort needs only generous public support to make it a heart-warming success for Peterborough's young men and women in the active forces. The program includes a parade at 1 p.m. Monday from the Armouries, a card of races for children up to fourteen, ball games, swimming exhibition by Y.W.C.A. girls, specialty contests, a radio quiz, merry-go-round and other attractions.

The ladies who are joining their forces are doing a splendid act of remembrance for the city a sa whole, and it is to be hoped their efforts draw a big crowd. It extends through the afternoon and evening.

Eight-Hour Shift Is Solved

We read that in Ashville, New York, thirteen women have organized a female fire department. Twelve of these women are mothers and five, grandmothers, and the department is composed of two drivers, two nozzlers, two truck hose connectors, four hose handlers and three trained extras. They were all trained by the fire chief and other members of the department, and now have done a "yoeman job". The chief says they have developed into "a real fire fighting team which knows what to do and isn't afraid to do it".

With this information we think Fire Chief George Gimblett and Alderman Jack Sullivan and his Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council should be paged for is not this the solution of all their troubles? The department has not been able to put into effect the eight-hour shift as sufficient men have not been available.

A fire is always a spectacular thing, and the ladies would just add that colour needed to make it a real show. Then, the ladies might add that tone to things around the fire hall that is just needed. We can picture them at a fire, pulling the hose around, and when the Fire Chief would call for the axe from an upstairs window. Well just what would he say?

NOTE AND COMMENT

How do the girls manage to keep thimbles on over those long fingernails? Or do they?

One of the healthiest features of the New Brunswick election is that the total vote was larger than five years ago.

A Quebec man has been fined $100 and ordered to pay $4,346 for poisoning bees and damaging hives. He'll have to be a real optimist to extract any honey out of that sentence.

A Swedish correspondent predicts that Hitler may replace Von Kluge with a younger field marshal. Sounds like a waste of time. The way things are going in France would make an old man of any commander—and quickly.

Britons Facing Rationing For Six Years

(FROM THE WINDSOR STAR)

FIVE years of war have inured the Englishman to rigid rationing of foodstuffs. He has put up with it, consoling himself with thoughts of the eating spree he would enjoy when peace comes, L. W. Luce writes in The Vancouver Province.

It has been a shock to him to learn that his land will not be flowing with milk and honey and other foodstuffs until 1950. The ministry of food has issued a statement to that effect. In the past all the gloomy predictions of this department have been realized. The food experts who have analyzed the prospects for the future are pretty sure to be right once again, worse luck.

The forecast is based on the assumption that the war will end in 1944 or early in 1945, and that imports to Britain from those countries not ravaged by the enemy will be on the same scale as in the late thirties. A large proportion of these foodstuffs, however, will be diverted to the starving people of Greece, France, Belgium, Holland Denmark Norway and probably Germany.

BY the end of this year the British meat ration may have to be cut, but there will be more mutton. Recent subsidies to sheep breeders have proved a failure, and large flocks are headed for the slaughter house. Fats will be short, and so shall eggs. By Christmas there will be a good supply of oranges, lemons, figs, dates, nuts and raisins coming from Spain, Turkey and Italy.

In 1945 Australia will be sending mutton and lamb, and Argentina beef, but local supplies will be dwindling as herds decrease. Fish will still be scarce, as many small boats will be engaged in mine sweeping, and others will be short of equipment. Ample fruit will be coming from the Mediterranean. Milk may be scarcer, and rations may have to be cut.

Today milk allocations fluctuate from three to four pints a week for adults. Children get a pint a day at home, and can get an additional pint a day at school for 10 cents a week. Many children get more milk now than they did in peace times.

A TRICKLE of imports is expected from Holland and Denmark in 1946, chiefly pork, eggs and butter. Tinned foods will still be restricted, and potatoes will be insufficient. Sausages will continue to be the housewife's stand-by. (The 70 per cent non-meat filling has recently been replaced, in part, by soya bean flour, greatly improving the quality.... It is said that it is possible to taste the pork in pork pie these days, but opinion on this is not unanimous.)

RATIONING will ease in 1947. Fish will be plentiful, and so will stone fruit. Potatoes and tomatoes will be coming from the Channel Islands, and cheese and butter from New Zealand. Margarine will be derationed as edible oils increase. A greater variety of imported fruits will appear, including peaches, grapefruit, pineapples and bananas. Canada will be sending many cargoes of apples and flour.

By 1948 the Englishman will be thinking of such luxuries as strawberries and unlimited tea, more sugar, more canned goods (which had been going to the liberated countries), and more liquid milk. The Low Countries will again be exporting large quantities of dairy products, though it will be a long time before the 1939 figure of $300,000,000 is reached.

Chocolate and sweets will come off the ration in 1949, and there will be enough jam and marmalade for everybody. Fruit, fish and meat will be back to normal ,and guests will no longer bring their supplies for a week-end visit.

EGGS will be bought without difficulty by the dozen, and it will be no great calamity if the housewife smashes one, as it was in the dark days when the ration was 12 a year.

Luxuries will be available to those who have the price in 1950. Real ice cream will be peddled on the streets by men on tricycles, and stout Conservatives in London clubs may have their choice of Gruyere, Camembert, or Brie cheese, the product of a France that also supplies a fine selection of wines.

Shopping queues will be only a bad memory, points and coupons something to remember with a wry smile. The Sunday roast need no longer be the only joint of the week, and the official British restaurants can shut up shop for the duration of the peace.

But that will not be until 1950, still more than five years away!

General Eisenhower

Lord Halifax, back from a visit to England to resume his British Ambassadorship in Washington, spoke to the American people on Saturday night, said among other things this:

"When I was in England, I went to see General Eisenhower, and I would here say again what I have said more than once before. Quite apart from the priceless value of his services in a military sense, I believe that no one has done more for Anglo-American relations in the broadest sense. He never asks if this or that man is British or American; all he wants to know is if he is the right man for the job. In this way, in France as in North Africa, he has made two fighting forces into one."

No one pretends that General Eisenhower is a great military genius. What has become clear is that, what is perhaps equally important, he is a great, good man, gifted with the genius of tact and common sense. He does not thnik of the armies under him in terms of British armies or American armies; he thinks of them in terms of the common armies of liberation, as soldiers of democracy with common valour for a common end. It is one of the great things to come out of this war.—Ottawa Journal.

Food or Racing?

"And the winner will receive the richest purse in the history of the Pimlico racetrack."—Radio announcer.

It has been suggested to a number of State Granges that they forego their conventions because of transportation shortages. These convenitons deal with the problem of an organization engaged in food production.

With shortages of men, shortages of transportation, shortages of gasoline seems wrong when we are breaking records in purses on horse racing and urging food producers to let up on their organization activities to save transportation. One big race costs more in time, money, transportation, gasoline, and equipment than a score of State Grange conventions.—National Grange Monthly.

MEDITATIONS OF MUSSOLINI —By Thomas

Conference Background

(By B. T. RICHARDSON)

OTTAWA: The Dominion-provincial correspondence since January, which failed to produce an agreement upon holding a conference, was more than a Drew vs. King interchange. Where do the other provinces stand? Some of them have been cautious. Two of them—Manitoba and Alberta—have seized upon the problem of Dominion-provincial relations as a dominant issue of their futures, which it obviously is. New personalities have appeared in the provincial line-up; old personalities have re-appeared.

When the next Dominion-provincial conference is held, at least half the leading characters engaged in it will be different from the cast that played their parts when the 1941 conference collapsed. The voters of Canada have changed some of the leading actors in the crisis in our confederation, and may change more before the conference is held.

The correspondence tabled by Mr. King just before Parliament rose is intensely interesting. It serves to turn the spotlights on, and upon the stage we see the actors beginning to assemble. The prologue has been completed and, while everyone knows the real play will go on, no one knows what drama lies hidden in the script. Everyone knows the crisis will have to be met, for the Dominion-provincial report just before the war dramatically revealed the basic clash and lack of balance in our national structure. The war has only deepened the conflict, while postponing it, and it cannot be restrained now even while the war still rages.

The internal conflict of Canada is within the understanding of our newest voter. It is inherent in all these great loose-jointed federal systems which have appeared in the world in the last 150 years—U.S.A., Canada, Australia, U.S. of Brazil, U.S.S.R. Concentrations of wealth, political power, industry and population give some regions marked economic advantage over others. A sense of inferiority in one region, a sense of colonial subservience, is fatal to a nation. Eighty per cent of the wealth and the economic opportunity in Canada is concentrated in Ontario and Quebec, and the unbalance is more acute today than it was when the Sirois Commission investigated in 1937-8.

So a great struggle in our internal politics, in which the balance of our national structure will be altered one way or another, is already under way. The characters of the leading actors become of paramount importance to the Canadian people. In his first year as premier of Ontario, Mr. Drew seized the initiative, began strongly to urge that a conference be held. This was, we think, what Mr. King was waiting for, since the federal government's efforts to hold a successful conference in 1941, came to nothing and fell back upon makeshift Dominion-provincial relations for the duration.

But Mr. Drew's outline of the need of a conference, (which Manitoba's Mr. Garson described as "perfectly clear and unambiguous") was followed by letters in May, June and August in which he complained he could not understand "the general basis" of the conference; and he did not even acknowledge receipt of a draft agenda upon which Ottawa requested the provinces' comments.

Mr. Drew impatiently sacrificed the initial advantage he had, which properly belongs to the premier of the leading province, and he has undoubtedly thrown other provinces on their guard. In dealing with Mr. King, so the Ottawa tradition runs, a politician must proceed with patience and caution or invite his own ruin. Mr. King plainly won the first round. But of course, Mr. Drew may have Mr. Duplessis on his side, when the conference is held, and he possesses an advantage over Mr. King, in not having to face an election in the meantime, unless he wastes the credit he won in Ontario at the polls last year.

Mr. Godbout, who played a cautious and non-committal role in the 1941 conference, appears in the same character in the correspondence relating to the new conference. He has passed from the scene as one of the probable actors in the next conference: his successor, Mr. Duplessis won his election strictly on pledges to "regain" what he calls Quebec's "rights" from Ottawa. As Mr. Duplessis' course unfolds, it will be watched everywhere in Canada.

Premier MacMillan of Nova Scotia, who attended the 1941 conference, has been co-operating in preparations for a new conference. He has not changed his mind. He wrote that Nova Scotia must know what postwar expenditures Ottawa will bear before it can plan its own future. Premier McNair of New Brunswick, who also attended in 1941, has co-operated in the new conference preliminaries, but he left his case over until the election in his province on Aug. 28. From Prince Edward Island, Premier Jones will come to the new conference and his attitude will not differ much from the full co-operation in reform of financial and constitutional relations agrued so brilliantly by his predecessor, Thane Campbell, in 1941.

Premier Garson warmly welcomed the new conference. Manitoba must either receive federal adjustment grants, he wrote, or surrender to Ottawa a large part of its constitutional responsibility for postwar policies. He is ably carrying on the tradition established by his predecessor, Mr. Bracken, in the 1941 conference. He was first to respond to Ottawa's request for comments on a proposed agenda, and he set out his views at length. He is obviously prepared to enter fully into the new conference, and he left no doubt of his position.

In 1941, Saskatchewan's Mr. Patterson ably supported Manitoba's Mr. Bracken in arguing the cause of the prairie provinces. But after co-operating in preparations, Mr. Patterson handed the reins of office over to Premier Douglas last July, and the correspondence gives no hint of Mr. Douglas' position.

Two points regarding Mr. Douglas emerge from his recent public comments. He generally favours reform of Dominion-provincial relations, and he will undoubtedly argue Saskatchewan's case with great skill. But in one speech in Alberta, he recently promised to tax outgoing interest payments from his province. This big stick is easy to pick up, less easy to drop (as Alberta found) and Mr. Douglas' gesture in this respect fits into the picture in juxtaposition to Mr. Drew's recent talk about 'Ontario dollars" which he said he would seek to prevent being used for another province.

If all the provinces place Mr. Douglas' kind of barrier across the existing channels of business relations within Canada, obviously Mr. Drew will find that Ontario has fewer dollars and, in one sense, the concentration of wealth will be remedied—but the existing national srtucture will fall to pieces.

The correspondence as it affects Alberta's Mr. Manning is a revelation. Before Mr. Aberhart came to the 1941 conference, his government had curtailed the movement of interest payments out of Alberta, as far as provincial bonds were concerned. This curtailment has now reached a total of $28,000,000. This and the deep sense of provincialism in the Aberhart crusade supported a feeling in the Alberta government in 1941 that Alberta could waive the economic factors and concentrate on selling its doctrine to the rest of Canada. Mr. Aberhart did that in able fashion, though with few converts.

But a great shift has taken place in Alberta. Mr. Manning's government, which seeks to redeem its credit, is evidently becoming more co-operative in Dominion-provincial relations. Mr. Manning was prompt, as his correspondence shows, in putting forward his government's ideas for a conference agenda. Like Mr. Garson, Mr. Manning has plenty of good ideas and appears ready to participate in a conference with other provinces to seek results.

Big Inch Makes Good

Without more than a few kind words from its patron saint, Harold Ickes, this time in his role as Petroleum Administrator, Big Inch, the world's largest oil pipeline, observed its first anniversary. On August 14, 1943, the first oil which had been pumped into the line at Longview, Texas, completed its underground journey of 1,254 miles to Phoenixville Junction, Penn., from which it was distributed to refineries in the Philadelphia and New York areas. Since then 96,292,000 barrels of crude oil have been carried through the pipe, boosted along by twenty-four pumping stations. It would have required 23,000 tank cars operating on an eighteen-day turnaround schedule to have accomplished that. If it had not been for what Big Inch has done, Mr. Ickes says the needs of the United Nations forces in Italy and France could not have been met without causing a "catastrophic" oil shortage along the Atlantic seaboard. Even though it got off to an inauspicious start, with frequent breakdowns and delays. Big Inch, it must be agreed has made good.—New York Sun.

GRIESBACH'S GUESS

Two months ago Maj.-Gen. Griesbach, inspector-general of Canadian forces, ventured the prediction that the war in Europe would be won by August 21. Now August 21 has come and gone and the war in Europe still is raging. Maj.-Gen. Griesbach's prediction seems to have been just another that didn't come true. However, the trend has been most decidedly toward the end which the gallant officer thought he foresaw.—Fort William Times-Journal.

A Bible Message

Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that see him with the whole heart. They also do no iniquity: they walk in his ways.

Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently. O that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes! (Ps. 119: 1-5.)

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it....

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. (Matt. 7: 13 14, 21.)

FAVOURS OLD-FASHIONED SPANKING

"Is spanking necessary? Does sparing the rod mean only spoiling the child?" Questions like these can start arguments in any group of parents for there are some very decided views both for and against. However, Channing Pollock, discussing the matter in Coronet magazine, advances the opinion that spanking is certainly necessary.

He thinks the more he comes in contact with modern youth, the more he regrets that nowadays, the paternal hairbrush and the paternal heir are so rarely turned bottom side up. He feels that his ultra-progressive friends may be horrified at this old-fashioned view but he asks why the era of "spare the rod and spoil the child" produced so fine a race of men and women while the fruits of the newer theory appear less dependable. — Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer.

Resistance To Death

(FROM WASHINGTON STAR)

AMERICANS may regard the German "last stand" at Saint Malo as fool hardy, while respecting the soldierly determination of Colonel Andreas von Aulock and his men to continue their resistance as long as it was humanly possible to hold out.

Something similar happened in the history of Texas one hundred and eight years ago. The revolt against Mexico in 1835 swept the province clear of Mexican forces, but, as Sam Houston expected, the Mexicans came back the next February. Between four and six thousand of them appeared against San Antonio under the leadership of the famous General Santa Anna. The Texans, captained by William Barret Travis, James Bowie and Day Crockett, took refuge in the Mission San Antonio de Valero, commonly called "the Alamo" after the cotton wood trees in the vicinity.

What followed is a familiar folk legend of the Southwest. The total number of defenders of the makeshift fort was one hundred and eighty-seven. To Santa Anna's demand that they yield Col. Travis replied: "I have sustained a continual bombardment and cannonade for twenty-four hours and not lost a man.... Our flag still proudly waves from the wall. I shall never surrender or retreat.... Victory or death!" The battle raged for thirteen days. About five hundred Mexicans were killed. Then at 4 o'clock on the morning of March 6, 1836, Santa Anna stormed the Alamo on all sides. Marquis James in "The Raven," explains:

"The first and second assaults were broken. Day was dawning when the Mexicans attacked again. The Texans' guns were hot, their ammunition nearly out and, though casualties had not been numerous, men were dropping from exhaustion."

Finally, the walls were breached. But the valiant defenders never thought of giving up the struggle. The fighting moved from building to building, room to room, within the mission compound until it reached the chapel. Crockett and a dozen volunteers from Tennessee were the last to fall. The garrison's fate inspired the raising of a new arm which, with Houston's cry "Remember the Alamo!" defeated and captured Santa Anna at San Jacinto on April 21 the next year.

The difference between Von Aulock and the Texans, of course, is a difference in purpose. Travis fought for high ideals; the Germans at Saint Malo were brave, but their courage was the courage of fanatics.

Author Flays Radio, Cinema

HAMILTON, Sept. 2—The motion pictures and radio, which, for a time seemed to be offering a new field for authorship, have not measured up to their potentialities in this regard, Professor Watson Kirkconnell of McMaster University, said here last night in his presidential address to the convention of the Canadian Authors' Association.

Dealing with the difficulties facing Canadian writers, Prof. Kirkconnell said the story is "an old, familiar one, we have in Canada about 5½ million people of English-speaking stock, many of them scarcely a generation removed from those pioneer conditions in which unremitting toil left little time for books or higher education. As they were emerging from that stage into unprecedented prosperity, they were engulfed in a wave of inventions — the automobile, the cinema, the phonograph, the radio and the juke-box—which offered unlimited opportunities for amusement, mostly of a non-literary sort.

"Two of these—the cinema and the radio—seemed for a time to be offering a new field for authorship" Prof. Kirkconnell continued "That is no longer true of the cinema, which today simply buys movie right for some book that has already proved itself successful and then runs it through a production grinder at Hollywood. As for the radio, most of its time is taken up with barbaric squealing and moaning of the most appalling sort unworthy of any civilized society. Some drama and some talks have been used, but nowhere approaching the potential range.

"In fact, I know of one Canadian radio-dramatist of the highest ability, a complete master of his technique, who cannot find a market for his work in Canada and has had to turn to the writing of advertisements to make a living. All of this militates against the encouragement of Canadian writing."

Apples Tossed By Dieppe Folk Give Few Canadians Black Eyes

By BILL DOWNS
C. B. S. Correspondent
Distributed by The Canadian Press

WITH BRITISH - CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Sept. 2 — I was with the Canadian troops who entered Dieppe soon after noon Friday. They had advanced more than 15 miles last night.

They took the city without a struggle.

There were only a few German snipers scattered throughout the port. A number of prisoners have been taken in the area, but there has been no exact total released. I saw about 100 of them as I drove into Dieppe.

The same Canadian units which participated in the Dieppe raid two years ago were selected to take Dieppe. The men were charged with avenging their comrades killed in the Dieppe action, and later German actions which resulted in a number of Canadian prisoners taken at Dieppe being put into chains.

This was more a day of glory than a day of vengeance, because there simply were not enough Germans around to defend the city.

First to Channel

In the capture of Dieppe, the Canadian army has achieved one of the decisive strategic goals of this campaign. They were the first troops to reach the English Channel north of the Seine. They've already captured a number of flying bomb sites in the Dieppe area. They have isolated Le Havre, and the German troops and bomb installations in that region. And now they are established in a position to clear the Channel coast of France and the low countries in one clean sweep.

No Roman emperor ever received any greater welcome than the people of the Dieppe region have given the returning Canadian troops. From Rouen to sea people lined the roads, waving flags, cheering, applauding. If any army car happened to stop, it was immediately surrounded by shouting civilians, mothers who wanted their babies kissed. In fact, everyone got kissed. And everyone shook hands.

Several times I saw instances where military convoys were held up by people who just couldn't quit thanking the Canadians for the liberation.

The wine is mostly gone and there has not been much food around lately. But they stood by the side of the road offering us water. And they picked the ripening apples from the trees. And they went into their gardens and gathered tomatoes, and they tossed them into your car as you sped past. Their aim was not always good, and there probably are a few black eyes among the troops hit by the victory apples thrown by the enthusiastic residents of Dieppe.

Drove Over Flag

Entering the city, a large crowd made a funnel for the entering troops. We thought at first the crowd wanted to stop us. But then we saw the reason for the lane they made in the centre of the road. In th middle of the street was a huge Swastika flag, and the crowd forced every Canadian vehicle entering the town to drive over that flag. It was their demonstration of contempt for the Nazis.

A large oil dump in the north part of the town was burning when we entered at noon. But the town is surprisingly intact. The Germans were carrying out demolition of the port when the Canadians approached. They did not get a chance to complete the job. Explosions were going off intermittently as time bombs blew up.

But never have I seen such enthusiasm in any city in this part of France. "We were so happy to see you," the proprietor of a restaurant said. "I wish I could give the whole army a free meal.

I ran into Bill Gray from Chicago, out Cicero way, in this same cafe. He joined the Canadian Army in 1940 and was one of the men at Dieppe. "These people have gone through it," he said. "I never saw anything like it. But if you think they are glad to see us, just imagine how happy we are to be back at Dieppe—back here, after what happened two years ago."

Second Boy In Army Brother Casualty

This week Walter Hully, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hully, 133 Stewart street, enlisted in Canada's Active Army, "to get over there with the rest of the boys". His brother Gnr. Cecil Hully, was reported injured in action some time ago, but a letter received recently by Mr. and Mrs. Hully indicates he is on the path to health.

In the letter, Gnr. Hully says he is almost completely recovered from his injuries, and is about to take a seven day leave, prior to returning to action. He is presently in a hospital in England, but expects to be released soon. "By the time I get back to France, the war will be over", he said in the letter, and that, it appeared, was his only concern about being injured,....he wanted to get back into action before Hitler's Wehrmacht collapses.

Free For All Seeks Crown

CHICAGO, Sept. 2 — (AP) — Free For All, undefeated 2-year-old colt owned by John Marsch retired Chicago contractor, will continue his quest for the United States' juvenile championship Saturday by going to the post against six rivals in the rich Washington Park Futurity.

With seven starters, the stake will have a gross value of $62,300 with $49,400 going to the owner of the winning thoroughbred.

Streaking to four consecutive victories, Free For All's most impressive victory was in the Arlington Futurity, companion piece to Saturday's race. He probably will go to the post as favorite in company with his stablemate, Errard. Others in the field are Sir Bim, owned by Don Ameche of screen and radio fame; Fighting Don, entry of Gertrude Donovan, Philadelphia; Icangetit, Father Neptune and Limestone.

Sir Bim ran second to Free For All in the Arlington Futurity. Fighting Don won the Great American Stakes at Aqueduct in June and was a close finishing second to War Jeep in one of Saratoga's juvenile events at Belmont.

If Free For All should score it will be the ninth rich juvenile stake won by Marsch's representative since Occupation began his celebated sweep in 1942.

Plazas Squeeze Out 5-4 Win Beating Oshawa In 10 Innings

Following the pattern of the two games here with Trenton during the past week, Plazas eked out a 5 to 4 tenth-inning victory over Oshawa Main Office before the biggest crowd of the season at Riverside Park Friday evening and thus kept their championship hopes alive. The over-time win tied up the O.A.S.A. intermediate series and the teams will settle the argument at Oshawa tonight, the Motor City team having won the toss to decide where the third game should be played.

Mike Conroy's ringing single into left field with two out in the tenth and the bases loaded drove in George Hawks with the winning run and brought to a dramatic end a tense and exciting ball game in which Plazas once more had to come from behind to take the verdict. They set up an early lead of 2 to 0, blew it in the sixth when Oshawa scored all their four runs, tied it up with eighth inning rally with two out and finally grabbed the decision after an extra frame.

Dave Wilson was the Plaza gunner for this crucial battle and the big twirler justified his selection by pitching good ball, even if one bad inning nearly beat him. Outside of the sixth frame Wilson had the Indian sign on the invaders, fanning ten of them, and he levelled away after that rather disastrous session and blanked Main Office in the last four innings, allowing only one single in that stretch.

Bennett Gets Loss

Oshawa assigned Dutch Hiller, a stocky right-hander to the pitching chore and although he did not seem to have a lot of stuff the Plazas did not fatten their averages very much at his expense. However, the homesters broke through his service in the eighth to tie the score and when he ran into trouble again in the ninth Harvey Bennett, the gangling southpaw who beat the Petes in the first game, was sent in to the rescue. He put the fire out in that frame, only to get credit for the loss when Plazas reeled off the winning run in the tenth.

George Hawks was the Peterborough batting hero with three hits in four official trips to the plate. The Plaza third baseman batted in a run with a double in the second, drove another marker home with a single in the eighth, and his third hit of the ball game started the winning rally in the tenth and he scored the million dollar counter. Eddie Starr with a double and single was only other Peterborough batter to get more than one blow.

For Oshawa, Frank McGarry, former hardball player, let the attack with three singles in five trips to the plate, and Shortstop Brudek had a two-run double and a single.

The fielding features were supplied by the rival centrefielders, each of whom had a couple of fine running catches to his credit, and by Leftfielder Mike Conroy of Plazas who made a diving grab of a short drive to left by Trott and came up with the ball.

Although Trott led off with a single for Oshawa in the first it did not mean a thing for Wilson struck out Petrie and Rospond, and got McGarry on an easy roller to Hawks.

Plazas Score First

The Plazas got one in their half and might have had more but for some off-color base running. Eddie Starr led off with a double past Brudek and went to third on a wild pitch. Heal drew a walk and when he started to steal second and Simmons threw down, Starr broke for the plate and was out on the return peg. Heal took third on the play and scored when a third strike on Conroy got away from Simmons. Blewett struck out and Ellis rolled to McGarry.

The Petes scored again in the second. Tucker walked, was sacrificed to second by Burton and scored when Hawks doubled past third into left field. Wilson moved Hawks over to third with a sacrifice but Starr fouled to Petrie.

Oshawa did not seriously threaten until the fourth, and then good defensive ball by Plazas kept them off the score sheet. McGarry opened with a single through short, Brudek singled to right and when Burton fumbled the roller McGarry went to third. When Brudek started to steal Starr threw him out at second, McGarry holding third. Joe Blewett ran a country mile to take Covert's high shot fly, keeping the runner glued at the red-light corner, and then Wilson retired the side by striking out Way.

Plazas blew a good chance in the fifth when Wilson slashed a double that bounced off Petrie and Starr was safe on Trott's miss of his fly to left. Heal, however, struck out, Conroy flied to right and Blewett to short.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Big feature of Monday's Labor Day celebration will be the two softball games to be staged at 3 and 5 o'clock, bringing to Peterborough one of the best girls' teams in Toronto in the Toronto Simpsons outfit and an outstanding men's club in the fast-travelling Oshawa Colts. The Simpsons will meet a picked Peterborough girls' team with Norma Strickland and Isobel Bullock doing the pitching for the homesters and the game will be called at 3 o'clock. It should be an exhibition of girls' softball at its best. The Toronto team is strong in every department of the game and they will prove tough opposition for the local team. However the latter have profited by their experience with the Toronto Sunday Morning Class and they are hopeful of giving the Queen City girls a real argument for the honors. Simpsons anxious to help the worthy cause for which the game is being held are bringing their full team to Peterborough. They are taking the game seriously and expect to encounter a tough argument. The Peterborough selects will do their best to see that they are not disappointed.

* * * * * *

The men's game is billed for 5 o'clock and it will find the Oshawa Colts in full strength battling with a representative Peterborough team, picked from the City League. There is no need of saying much about the Colts. Peterborough fans know just how strong they are and they have a wholesome respect for Oshawa's two-man pitching brigade of big Preem Whiteley and drop-baller Dean McLaughlin and for the defensive and offensive ability of the twice Ontario intermediate champs. The Colts responding to a last minute call to replace the Toronto Bowsers are bringing their whole roster here and that means they will be really strong. The Peterborough team will include Eddie Starr, Holly Mowry, Ronnie Akers, Dave Wilson, Terry Woods, Ossie Anderson, Jack Tucker, George Hawks, Art Heal, Mike Conroy, Jack Playford, Gib Brockley and other players and the Peterborough representatives who have been trying to knock off the Colts for several years would love to celebrate Labor Day by taking a fall out of the classy visitors. They may not succeed but at least they should make the effort one of the most interesting of the season.

* * * * * *

The Hard Way

Plazas' habit of winning ball games the hard way surely has the Peterborough fans almost dizzy with excitement. For the third time in a week the local champs pulled out a sensational 10th inning victory last night and by the same identical score of 5 to 4. In two of the battles the Plazas had to come from behind to turn the trick. Their win over Oshawa last night on Mike Conroy's single with the bases loaded and two out tied up the series and the teams are battling in Oshawa this evening in the third game to decide which outfit will meet Kingston Ordnance in the next round of the O.A.S.A. intermediate A race. Frank Stokoe who held the Motor City team to two hits in the opening game of the series and yet lost 3 to 2 will be sent in against the Main Office team in this all-important battle and Oshawa will call upon tall Harvey Bennett the southpaw with the eccentric windup, Bennett beat the Plazas the first time out and they tried last night to save him for the third game but he got into the battle just in time to be tagged for the loss. Stokoe with any luck should grab off the rubber game. Oshawa only got five men to first base in Wednesday's game on two hits, a walk and two errors and yet got three of the base-runners home. They can't hope to be that fortunate again.

* * * * * *

It looked for a while last night as if one big inning was going to win for Oshawa once more. They got all their runs Wednesday night in one frame and in the Friday night battle they repeated the feat by packing in four markers in the sixth to more than wipe out the Plazas early innings 2 to 0 lead. But Dave Wilson stopped them cold after that and the Peterborough representatives who have plenty of fight kept on battling until they had tied the score up in the eighth and then they put the finishing touches on the win in the 10th at the expense of Southpaw Bennett who was called upon to save the game and failed in a relief role. The stubby right-hander Dutch Hiller who started the game for Oshawa did not look very impressive but he had a lot of success in keeping Plazas from bunching their hits. Outstanding in the victory was the batting of George Hawks. The fast-fielding third baseman won the final game against Trenton by a single in the tenth and last night Hawks hits figured in three of the Petes' runs. He drove in two and scored the winner himself. Dave Wilson was another hero. He came back after a tough frame to completely dominate the visitors for the rest of the game.

* * * * * *

Nothing To It

An unusual incident marked the exciting end of last night's Plaza-Oshawa game. After Mike Conroy had cracked out the winning hit with two out he only ran part way to first and had turned to go back to the bench when Art Heal, coaching at first grabbed him and informed him of his omission after which the Plaza left fielder ran to the bag. Some of the fans argued after the game that the hitter should have been out for interference by the coacher and in fact the manager of one of the City League teams eliminated by Plazas in the playoffs—and we don't mean the Switchgear—was one of those who declared that should have been the ruling. There is nothing in the argument. In the first place the rule in regard to coacher's interference only applies to the third base coacher and in the second a base-runner cannot be called out for interference by the coacher even at third base unless a play is being made on him. The rule is clear. It says that a base-runner is out if in the judgment of the umpire the coacher at third base, by touching or holding the runner, physically assists him in returning to or leaving third base. "The runner however" says the rule "should not be declared out if no play is being made on him." There is no reference anywhere in the rules to interference by the coacher at first base. Another angle of the same play seems to have been missed by everybody and we will let it go at that.

* * * * * *

Detroit Tigers clawed their way into second place in the hectic American League race last night, one percentage point over the Yanks by defeating the St. Louis Browns 6 to 3. Hal Newhouser, picking off his 22nd win of the year, held the league leaders to six hits while Potter and Hollingsworth were hit hard. Dick Wakefield and Rudy York powdered homers for the Bengals. Boston Red Sox, on good pitching by Joe Bowman, won over the A's and as a result are only 2½ games behind the leaders, although in fourth place. It is a blanket race right now with any one of the four first division clubs having a royal chance to come through. In the National League Pittsburg made a news item by beating the St. Louis Cards—something that is not being done very often this year. The final count was 3 to 2. Bucky Walters, pointing to his 20th win of the season was beaten by the Cubs 3 to 2.

Close Tussle In U.S. Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 2 — (AP)—Two officers who are soon due for overseas duty staged the closest and most exciting duel of the third wartime United States tennis championships today as Lieut. Don McNeill of the navy whipped Lieut. Seymour Greenberg of the army, 6-3, 4-6, 3-6, 6-1, 8-6, to enter the semi-final round.

McNeill, the 1940 National champion who has been attached to the American Embassy in Argentina for the last two years, now is stationed at Norfolk, Va., where he has been assigned to an aircraft carrier as an intelligence officer. Greenberg, the Chicago southpaw who made his tennis reputation as a clay-court player, is an air force communication officer at Grenier Field, Manchester, N.H., and also is expecting to ship out soon.

Pancho In Semis

Joining McNeill in the semi-final round were top-seeded Pancho Segura of Ecuador and fourth-ranked Sgt. Frankie Parker of Muroc Field, Cal., who scored easy triumphs over unseeded victors of early-round upsets. Segura routed Major Alexander H. (Zan) Carver of Philadelphia, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4, and Parker whipped Charles W. Oliver of Perth Amboy, N.J., 6-2, 6-4 6-1. The other quarter-final match between third-seeded William Talbert of Indianapolis and sixth-ranked Cadet Bobby Falkenburg of Hollywood Cal., will be played Saturday.

California's "Big Four" of Pauline Betz, Margaret Osborne, Louise Brough and Dorothy May Bundy, seeded in that order, filled the semi-final brackets in women's singles, although three of them were extended to the limit to win today's matches.

TORONTO, Sept. 2—(CP)—It's beginning to look as though those opposition junior hockey teams which have been crying "get Oshawa Generals" these many years, may have their hopes realized this winter as the result of a mass flight of enlistments.

The proud Generals, last winter's Memorial Cup champions and a power in the junior hockey realm the past seven years, will have few familiar faces when they hit the ice for their first practice session. Don Batten, Bobby Love, Floyd Curry and Ken Smith all are in the Navy, Bill Barker has just signed himself into sailor-blue "Tiddleys", Bill Ezinicki is in the R.C.A.F. and Johnny Chenier, Bob Dawes and Bobby Porter have joined the Navy.

That doesn't leave much of the championship machine, and even the remnants aren't certain of being around long. "Soup" Campbell of the Oshawa Times says an unnamed pro club is after Jack Taggart, Al Schewchuck will be trying out with Boston Bruins again and Goalie Harvey Bennett also will get a chance with the Bostonians.

Though everyone growled about the Generals monopolizing the junior hockey bracket, it's our guess the fans will be a mite sorry to see a colorful team, and a game team, leave the picture.

More Female Encroachment?

Mike Rodden of the Kingston Whig-Standard, eyeing askance the dozen-and-one suggestions put forward to find a successor for N.H.L. President Frank Calder and temporary managing-director Red Dutton, puts his own candidate in the field. Mike suggests the governors might elect Miss Dorothy Pinard, the league secretary, "who is quite capable of directing operations."

Incidentally

Perhaps the next think in ring circles will be a genuine "white hope" from the great frozen white spaces of the far north. Jack Peppin, a former Winnipegger and fight manager, writes Harry (Calgary Albertan) Scott about a heavyweight find he uncovered at Fort Nelson, B.C. The newcomer is a six-foot-three young Irish giant, schooled in the rough-and-tumble Alaska highway battle rules, and Peppin thinks he has the stuff to go far in the ring....Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith comes out for President Frank Sargent of the C.A.H.A. in the current N.H.L. President Derby. His record at the head of the amateur body has shown his organizational ability, Smith says, and besides he is still young—"and we are sure the governors of the N.H.L. don't want to be electing a new president every five years or so."

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 —(AP) —A battle right down to the wire between teammates Eddie Kobesky and Mayo Smith of Buffalo for the International League batting title is in prospect.

Including games played Wednesday, Kobesky is leading Smith by four points, .330 to .326, as the season enters the final two weeks. Both improved their averages during the last week, with Smith gaining six points to Kobesky's two to narrow the gap between them.

Tony Bastano of Toronto, early-season leader, remained in the running with a third-place mark of .317. Stan Benjamin of Baltimore jumped from seventh to fourth with a .311 average. Another Bison Bobby Maier, who was recently purchased by Detroit, and Chico Rodrigquez of Syracuse were tied for fifth with .309.

Baltimore's Blas Monaco and Howie Moss with .305 and .301 respectively, Syracuse Al Lakeman with .300 and Buffalo's Otto Denning with .298 round out the big 10.

Bob Malloy of the last place Syracuse Chiefs led the pitchers with a 14 and 5 won and lost record, though Al Jarlett of Toronto won the most games, 18.

The midget title of the Western Counties Baseball Association was won by London yesterday at London with a 6-4 victory over Sarnia in the third and deciding game of the final series.

Galt Terriers almost tumbled London Majors last night at Labatt Park in the Inter County senior baseball playoffs but the Londoners emerged with a 3-2 score to capture the title in three straight games.

The Inter County junior baseball championship was won last night in the sixth game of the tight playoff series when Galt Terrier Pups turned back Kitchener Rangers 3-2 in 11 innings at Galt.

Toronto Splits Twin Bill With Montreal

By The Associated Press

Famous for their fast finishes, the Newark Bears continue to narrow the gap between themselves and the first-place Baltimore Orioles in their quest for their second International League flag in three years Neward won the pennant in 1942.

Last night's triumph over the Orioles 14-0 made it two straight for the Bears over the Flock, with three games remaining in their five-game series.

Yesterday's game was a walk-over for the Bears, who hammered three Oriole pitchers for 16 hits with everybody in the Newark line-up hitting safely.

Buffalo retained third place by an even split with Rochester, winning the nightcap 10-4, after losing the opener 5-2 in a twilight-night twin bill before 8,620 fans. Eddie Kobesky regained the home run leadership, hitting his 26th in the nightcap and also drove in four runs to edge nearer to Baltimore's Howie Moss. Otto Denning, Buffalo's all-around man hit his 21st round tripper in the opener.

Toronto moved a step nearer to the playoffs by dividing a double-header with the Montreal Royals, winning the finale 5-1, after the Royals had copped the lid-lifter 11-4. Luther Knerr won his 12th in the nightcap, after Montreal had broken a jinx by routing Alex Mustaikis in the opener. Mustakis had beaten his Canadian rivals four times this season.

Bob Barthelson hurled the Jersey City Giants to a 5-1 victory over Syracuse.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP). — One record the Cardinals won't break is Chicago Cubs' 1906 mark of winning 100 games by Sept. 9.... The cards were a day ahead at the No. 90 but there are too many blank spaces in the schedule for them to add 10 more in 13 days....No other National League club ever reached the 100 mark before Sept. 20 and only the 1909 Pirates and the 1942 Cards did that....Since Bobby Jones has returned to civilian life, the P.G.A.'s Freddie Corcoran thinks the Augusta masters' golf tournament may be revived this year....Replying to a scribe's query about Mississippi football prospects, Coach Harry Mehre wrote, "You have the schedule O.K. If you can fix us up with a few tackles, ends, guards, backs, etc., send them night press collect."

Fanning Bee.

After Armando and Rolando Vega of Mexico barely skinned through to win a doubles match at Forest Hills the other day, when Rolando ruefully admitted he couldn't do anything right, Armando gave this explanation in rapid-fire Spanish: "It was like a baseball game where I was the pitcher with the bases full and none out. And the best batter against me was—Rolando."

Mel Hein, who "retired" two years ago, may turn up in a football Giants' uniform again this fall. The four-game schedule for the Union College team Mel coaches ends the day before the Giants open their campaign.

Pitching Woes Slice Browns' Lead

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Pitching miseries in St. Louis gave the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees a chance to pass the stumbling Brownies this week-end as Luke Sewell's battle-worn leaders saw their once-robust lead fade to two skimpy games.

Only seven St. Louis pitchers were able to go the route in the last 28 games.

Nelson Potter, 32-year-old veteran, was able to halt the last previous slump in Detroit a week ago. Last night at Sportsman's Park, Potter was batted off the hill and solidly spanked for seven hits in two innings as the Brownies fell before Detroit 6-3. The Tigers thus surged past New York into second place.

Joe McCarthy's Yanks blew a chance to sneak up right behind the leaders when they bowed to the last place Washington Senators, 10-7, after muffing several chance to win.

Boston had to go hard to top the troublesome Athletics, 4-3, with the help if Jim Tabor's 13th homer as Joe Bowman earned his 11th decision over Don Black. Chicago's Joe Haynes won his own game with a 12th-inning single to shade Cleveland's Al Smith, 5-4 in a night tilt.

Fritz Ostermueller allowed 11 St. Louis hits but scattered the blows for his 12th win with the help of Babe Dahlgren's two-run double and Frankie Gustine's single in the sixth.

Bucky Walters' attempt to become the first National Leaguer to capture 20 games missed fire when Chicago's Paul Erickson took a relief verdict over Cincinnati, 3-2.

Boston trimmed the Phillies twice in a twi-light doubeheader, 3-2 in 10 innings on Damon Phillips' single and 7-4. Brooklyn's Art Herring stopped New York for the second straight time, 8-1, on a four-hitter, beating Harry Feldman.

3 Manitobans Win In Horse-Shoe Tilts

PORT ARTHUR, Sept. 2 —CP)—Three Manitobans, all of them farmers in civilian life, won premier honors in the Veteran Gaurd of Canada National Horse Shoe pitching championships here yesterday.

Pte. Jock Turnbull of Portage La Prairie, Man., topped the singles play with Pte. Thomas O'Neill and Neil McCrae, Manitobans representing the western group, Lethbridge, Alta., won the doubles competition.

Twenty one veterans, representing eight military districts and survivors of a Dominion-wide competition that had a starting field of 10,000, took part in the tournament.

Canada To Use Maple Leaf On Its Exports

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 2—(CP)—Canada's flag—the red ensign with the Dominion's coat of arms—has become known among the nations but the maple leaf design probably will be the banner under which trade will march to the corners of the world.

Officials say there is general agreement that the maple leaf means Canada when it appears on a truck, a tin of salmon or any other product in distant places. One suggestion is that all export goods leaving Canada should bear the maple leaf in addition to the trade mark and label of the manufaturer.

Goods sent out under the mutual-aid program bear markings showing they are from Canada and the same may be done with supplies provided for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration.

The maple leaf on a plow provided under mutual aid for U.N.R.R.A. will, if the plow is a good one, remind even an operator who cannot read that he should buy equipment bearing the same emblem when he can begin purchasing his own supplies after the war.

Unless there is some simple universal emblem for Canada and the goods she supplies officials think that any advertising which might be obtained from the contribution to world reconstruction will be of little value.

Gossip: Members of parliament back in their homes after seven months in session at Ottawa are making no promises of staying there for the remaining months of this year. The official point is that the House resumes in January, but the unofficial opinion of several members is that they will be on Parliament Hill before then.

A common argument is that the war probably will end suddenly and that a special session will be necessary. Opposition members say that Prime Minister Mackenzie King may call Parliament together and then dissolve it for a general election as soon as the victory bugles sound.

A new suggestion is that Parliament will be assembled to deal with a government motion to introduce the proportional representation system of voting in federal elections, to be in operation before the next general vote, expected in the Spring at the latest.

500 Tons Of Rum Ordered For England

LONDON, Sept. 2—(CP-Reuter)—Britons' mouths watered today with the news that the importation of 500 tons of rum had been sanctioned by the Ministry of Food.

The Rum Importers' Association was given permission to import the equivalent of about 1,200,000 bottles to replenish Britain's sadly depleted stocks of rum—and of all liquor, for that matter.

"I do not think we have more than about eight per cent. of our pre-war stocks now," a Ministry of Food official said today.

This is the first rum imported since 1940.

10-Year-Old Lands Two Muskies

BEWDLEY, Sept 2—(ENS)—A proud young fisherman is Douglas Lugtig of Rochester, New York. With his mother, Mrs. Wilhemna Lugtig, Rochester, ten-year-old Douglas has been spending two weeks' vacation at the Kennedy Hotel, Bewdley.

Until the last day of his visit, Douglas had had no luck, but that day out with his mother and their guide, Will Kenndey, he realized a fisherman's dream. Not too far out from Bewdley in the morning he hooked an eight-pound muskie. He was using a silver flash loaned by Mr. Kennedy as he had no fishing tackle of his won. After a struggle of twenty-five minutes and carefully coached by his guide the fish was in the boat.

This was not enough for one day, but on the return trip to Bewdley after lunch a fifteen-pounder took his bait and again the excited boy landed the beauty.

With this exciting climax to a perfect holiday, Douglas and his mother returned to Rochester by ferry from Cobourg.

Wodehouse Says He Made Great Mistake

LONDON, Sept 2 (AP)—Author P. G. Wodehouse, who made five broadcasts over the German radio during his internment in Germany was quoted in a dispatch from Paris yesterday as saying he believes he made "a terrible mistake" but meant no wrong.

In an interview with a London Daily Sketch correspondent, J. Darcy Dawson, at the French capital, the 63-year-old Wodehouse said:

"While I was in camp I had received 50 letters or more from readers in the United States and I thought I would like to answer them more or less in a broadcast about how I got along in camp.

"I arranged for a series of five broadcasts describing my life in the five camps where I had been. I never intended to do any more than these and never did."

The British author, creator of "Jeeves," the all-wise butler known to millions of readers, was caught by the Germans late in May, 1940, in his villa at Le Touquet, France, and spent several months in prison and internment camps. But in 1941 he was allowed to move around in Berlin on his own.

"I assume it was mainly because I reached the age of 60," he said yesterday. "At Loos prison all men of 60 had been told they were free."

He said he requested his transfer to Paris a year ago and was allowed to go.

BROTHERS IN WAR THEATRES — E. W. Bailey, 3rd avenue, has two sons serving overseas, one in France and one in Italy. Gnr. Herbert Bailey (Left) was wounded in Italy May 23 in the Liri Valley fighting. Recent letters have told of his complete recovery and he is now back in the lines. He met Art McGrath of Western avenue, Tommy Rose, Homewood avenue, and a Parsons boy, who lives at Murray street. His brother, Rfmn. William Bailey of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles (Right), is fighting in France. He was overseas 18 months, came home for training and went back recently. Shortly after he was in France he met his cousin, Johnny Lavery of the S.D. and G. Highlanders, and was able to talk about an hour before he shoved off up the lines.

LIKES PUPPIES

Those five little pups a farmer brought to the Market this morning will go back to the farm with a fair share of affection for one day, because a 5-year-old, catching each one in her arms at a time, lavished enough good-natured hugs, kisses and squeezes on them to last a Sultan a lifetime.

FIVE PETERBORO MEN ENLIST

Five Peterborough men have enlisted in the Canadian Active Army during the past week. They are: Herbert M. Martin, 423 Braidwood Avenue; Walter Hully, 133 Stewart street; D. N. Tivey, 751 Water street; F. E. Laroche, Ford street, and E. Jack Basciano, 378 Dublin street.

BUYS TRENTON WEEKLY

The Trenton Courier-Advocate has been acquired by the Times Publishing Company of Oshawa of which Arthur R. Alloway is president and managing director. Mr. Alloway was at one time publisher of the Trenton weekly which now returns to his managment. The company owns the Oshawa Times and Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

THERE'S A WAR ON

Now and again, some little incident pops up that causes doubt as to whether some people know there is a war being fought. In a lunch room Friday afternoon, two women were seated at the counter waiting to be served. Several times they shouted their order to the waitress, who was still too busy to serve them. When the waitress asked them if they would please wait their turn, the women got up in a huff of anger and left.

A MISTAKE

A sign in a jewellery store window reads, "New hand-painted breaches". Brooches, isn't it?

CHASING PICTURES.

Gnr. Ernie Foote, of Cobourg, who will be well-known to those who followed baseball when Peterborough teams played Lakeshore town opponents, is a photographer on the staff of the soldiers' paper, "Maple Leaf," in Italy.

ON EXECUTIVE.

E. A. Outram, city clerk, has been named to the executive of the Ontario Municipal Association which has been meeting in Toronto. H. A. Webster of Windsor was elected president of the association.

PRAYER SERVICE.

Under the auspices of Branch 52 Canadian Legion, a prayer service will be held at Riverside Park, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. If it should rain, it is planned to hold the program in the Armouries. The parade will move off from the Armouries at 2:30.

ESCAPE

When the family comes into town to do business at the Market, some of the teen-aged sons have different ideas. At the market this morning, one boy, about 14 years old, was being given the scolding of his life, for allegedly slipping down town when he was supposed to be helping sell vegetables.

SERVICE

The opposite to the hen-pecked husband was seen on Water street Friday afternoon, as a man in a car received the last word in service from his wife, who was feeding him grapes while he drove along. Whether he was afraid to take his hands from the wheel of the car, or whether he was just an extremely pampered husband was left in doubt, as the car sped away, the driver still eating grapes out of his wife's hands.

Non-illustrated postcards containing messages of a purely personal or family nature may now be accepted for places in the following areas of liberated France: Cantons of Douvres, Creully Ryes, Bayeux, Caen, Tilly, Balleroy, Trevieres, Isigny and Department of Calvados. Also all cantons north of and including St. Malo-de-la-Lande, Coutances, St. Sauveur-Lendelin, Periers, St. Jean-de-la St. Claire-Sur-Ielle in Department of Manche. NOT MUCH EXCHANGE

According to the table of statistics for August 1943 and August of this year, there were 98 births this year, as compared with 100 last year, 38 marriages as compared with 31 last year, and 33 deaths, the same number as 1943.

Stoney Lake Launch Destroyed By Fire

A big gasoline launch used by Robert Hamilton, McCracken's Landing, as a ferry, caught fire and was completely destroyed at Stoney Lake this morning.

Hamilton was transporting two men from McCracken's Landing to an island when the boat took fire.

Another boat put out and rescued the owner and his two passengers. They had a narrow escape.

Pte. J. A. Conroy Fights With The Black Watch

Strong in the pride of their regiment and with faith in the job they had to do, the unit advanced. Under murderous fire, the men clung tenaciously to their exposed positions, as they were relentlessly cut down. A few returned to tell the tale of hroism of a gallant Canadian Scottish Regiment. That was the story of the Black Watch of Canada.

Pte. Johnny A. Conroy, one of the originals of this unit, has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Conroy, 280½ McDonnel street, that he is fine. Whether he was one of the few to escape the deadly trap he did not say. Instead, in his brief letter, he enclosed an article with the terse statement, "You might be interested in this." The story was written by Alan Wood, and handed to the men in the front lines in Normandy.

When war broke out, Pte. Conroy was anxious to get into the Army and he joined the R.C.A.M.C. and was stationed in the hospital at the Training Centre when it first opened. After 1½ years of such a quiet existence, he yearned for livelier surroundings and finally managed to enlist with the Black Watch of Canada and went overseas with the unit May 13, 1942. He was driving a transport, after he arrived overseas.

Beat Supermen

"These Canadians. They beat the supermen," is the tribute paid by soldiers in France to the men who died so gallantly in the attack south of Caen, and the following is the story which Pte. Conroy sent to his parents.

"They fought unknown at the time, but the names are being made known and honored throughout Canada. I think they will be honored in Britain too. For these volunteers, every man of whom could have spent the war in Canada, had he chosen so, had homes in Britain for three or four years before thy came to France to fight and some to die.

"This is the roll of honor: The Calgary Highlanders, Royal Highlanders of Canada (The Black Watch), Royal Regiment of Canada, Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Cameron Highlanders of Canada.

"Of one of these regiments I have already told some of the story—The Battalion of Heroes.

"Soldiers from another regiment fought forward to ground which was their objective, and held on there, though the enemy had every advantage. They went forward in the face of fire from 100 guns. They threw themselves against a crack division of the German Army, Nazi supermen.

Held On

"The Canadians do not call themselves supermen. They are themselves tough, but theirs was not always the courage of men who know no fear, but sometimes the courage of men who overcame it. I think of the soldier who said how scared he was, but who swore, and held on.

"I think of the captain who told me, 'The Major was the real hero of the piece. If I had been in command then I would have gone up in the air, and if I hadn't gone too far up in the air, I would have tried to withdraw. But he walked coolly in the open getting things sorted out after we had been hit, and then we went forward again.'

"If you ask the Major, he will tell you what a grand job the captain did.

"And I think specially of the ambulance drivers, the signallers, the men carrying ammunition and all the others who went backwards and forwards along the shelled and mortared roads between our foremost positions and those just behind.

Ignored Fear

"The strain and terror of the battle showed more and more on the faces of some of these men as they came back. One or two seemed at times almost to have reached the breaking point. But they would rest a little, nerve themselves afresh, and then always go back into the battle again.

"A few short weeks ago most of these Canadians had never seen action. Many of them were young, many inexperienced. They had losses. They did not win much ground. But today they are seasoned troops, veterans who have mauled Hitler's strongest troops. They are ready to fight again. And in all this, they are more than conquerors."

Pte. Conroy's letter home was written August 17 and he mentioned that he had been running across a lot of Peterborough men who had been assigned to his section. He said that many of their faces were familiar, but he could not recall their names, and everyone had been too busy to take time to find out.

Story Of First Council Meeting Told In 1850 Cobourg Paper

"The new Municipal Council for Peterborough held its first meeting on Monday last," wrote the local correspondent of the Cobourg Star as published in its issue of January 30, 1850.

The one hundredth anniversary of that year of Peterborough's municipal incorporation will turn up with time five years hence in 1950, and although they regard it as still a long league ahead of the community, members of the council occasionally express the hope their successors of that centennial year celebrate the occasion with a fullness that will be long remembered.

And in the meantime it is hoped that the city's five year plan which is now being approached with expansive and certainly not unnecessary ideas and projects for the aggrandisement of the Peterborough of its second century of civic status, will be completed and that home-coming native sons and daughters will be pop-eyed at the splendid estate built up in their old home town.

The reference to the centenary of 1950 arises out of a clipping from the Cobourg Sentinel Star of this week entitled Peterborough News 1850 in the column of Edwin C. Guillet's selection of news of the district from the last century.

Appoint Mayor

The account of Peterborough's first town council meeting, this community having skipped the stage of village incorporation, continues: "The only business of importance transacted was the appointment of Mayor and Townreeve and some of the other officers of the Council.

Thomas Benson, Esq., was unanimously elected Mayor and was also chosen Townreeve. William Henry Vizard, Esq., was appointed clerk and William Cumming Chief Constable.

Police Office

"We learn that the Council have it in contemplation to obtain immediate possession by purchase or otherwise, of the building now standing on the Market Square, which might be fitted up at a trifling expense as a Post Office and Council Chamber, and might also be made to serve as a residence for the Chief Constable and a place of deposit for the fire engine.

Should Have Fire Brigade

"We trust that no time will be lost in organizing an efficient Fire Company, and we take the liberty to suggest to the young men of the Town the propriety of their meeting together to ascertain who will be willing to serve, and sending in the names of such to the Mayor. A Hook and Ladder Company should also be organized, as well as a protecting Company ....

Inspection of Stoves Pipes

"While on this point we may as well direct attention to the dangerous state in which many stove pipes and chimneys in the Town are now allowed to remain and we may just hint in the gentlest manner possible that the persons in fault in this matter may possibly be astonished some fine day having heavy fines inflicted on them for their culpable negligence and disregard of their own and their neighbors' safety. We would therefore recommend them to remove all causes of complaint in this particular in time, as the Council will most probably, at its next meeting appoint a fire inspector to visit every house." Cobourg Star, January 30, 1850.

Tomatoes Reach Peak At Market

Viewed from any angle, the Farmer's Market presented a colorful picture this morning, with large amounts of tomatoes and green watermelons contrasting delightfully. The tomatoes, most of which were at the peak of quality and size, were selling like wildfire at 25 cents a 6-quart basket, and the watermelons did business anywhere from 15 cents to 75 cents each, depending, of course, upon size.

Other commodities that were in demand this morning were corn, at 25 cents a dozen, celery, ranging from 20 to 25 cents a head, and cucumbers, at 25 cents a 6-quart basket for the most part, but others remaining at 5 cents each.

Onions sold for 40 cents a basket, with green onions at 5 cents a bunch. Green tomatoes were 30 cents a basket, and potatoes held firm at 40 cents a peck. Carrots sold at 35 cents a 6-quart basket. Sweet potato squash was 5 cents each. Chinese lettuce went for 5 cents each, and Gherkins sold for $1.00 a 6-quart basket, with the dill-pickle size going at 75 cents a basket.

Apples became more plentiful this morning, and the main variety seemed to be the Wealthies, which sold from 50 cents a basket; Melbas went at 50 cents; Duchess at 40 cents, and a few pears vanished at 75 cents a basket. Some sugar plums made an appearance, selling initially at 10 cents a pint basket.

Eggs ranged from 30 cents to 45 cents a dozen, spring chickens at 35 cents a pound, year-olds at 32 cents and tender roasted fowl at 50 cents a pound.

Pumpkins started at 15 cents each for the small ones, green beans were 2 boxes for 15 cents, yellow beans were 10 cents a box, and egg-plant sold at 15 cents each.

Muskmelons displayed a variety of sizes and shapes, and also a variety of prices. Starting at 10 cents each, they ranged up to 25 cents.

Pickling-onions were 25 cents a basket, and a few cauliflower sold from 15 cents to 25 cents each. Green and red peppers were 5 cents each or 3 for 10 cents.

Million Dollar Lake In The Heart Of City So Polluted Public Bathing Not Allowed

Possibly Reg Faryon, manager of the Quaker Oats Company, surprised the members of the council at Friday's Memorial and Community Centre meeting with an allusion to Little Lake that indicated a knowledge of Peterborough's skeleton in the closet which might be expected of citizens of longer residence than his or those who follow the Examiner's reporting of municipal news.

"Some day I suppose we are going to get Little Lake cleaned out," Mr. Faryon remarked. "Just about every other city in the country would give their eye teeth to have that lake right in their midst as we have."

Agreement with that estimate was expressed around the table in the board room at the city hall, and Mr. Faryon added: "Worth a million dollars," but he did not venture beyond the bounds of evaluation and nice propriety. But there was knowledge of the council's recent considering of when the long deferred sewage problem is to be faced with determination of thorough remedy.

Just to paraphrase the Faryon comment, it would sound like this: "A million dollar lake in the heart of our city, and we have so polluted it that the Board of Health warns the public to shun it, not to swim in it; the Officer Commanding the Military Camp has placed out of bounds Little Lake and the river immediately above, and downstream for two or three miles; a beauty spot that often stinks, and that's unvarnished phrasing."

Riverside Site Chosen For Health Centre

The upper level of Riverside Park, its southeastern section along Burnham street, was proposed as the site of the Memorial and Community Centre by a representative committee meeting for that specific purpose at the City Hall Friday afternoon.

Although three ballots were taken on four locations, and the final choice went to Riverside, in preference to the neighboring north side of Hunter street by a division of 11 to 6, the result was made unanimous as a further pledge of united effort to carry through this community, memorial and health undertaking to a shining success.

Ed Riley, chairman of the site committee, reported at the outset that the foundation committee of which J. A. Jebson is chairman, had surveyed the city, west, south and east, to obtain information and also for the purpose of recommending a choice of localities. The four properties which had most frequently recurred in conversations were: the Exhibition Park at Lansdowne and Lock streets; the block acquired by the city, bounded by Rink, George and Townsend streets; and the two Ashburnham areas on opposite sides of Hunter street at the east end of the bridge. Mr. Jebson also mentioned that the McDonnel street property across the road from the Bowling Club's greens and premises had been visited, but it was considered too far from the centre of things, however satisfactory it has proved to the lawn bowlers.

According to the foundation committee's planning for the discussion of the site question, seventeen men were present representing the City Council, Chamber of Commerce, manufacturers, labor, business men and so on, as thereby eligible to vote. Several others attended presumably reflecting their interest in the proposed Memorial Centre and its progress through these first stages of organization, planning and financing.

Out In First Vote

The Townsend street block was eliminated on the first ballot which gave it 3 votes, Exhibition Park 4, Riverside Park 4 and Hunter street, north side 6.

The Exhibition location vanished on the second voting with 4 votes to 7 for the north side of Hunter street and 6 for Riverside Park.

In the discussion of the four places, Walter R. L. Blackwell, referring to the Townsend street block, recalled that most of its easterly section facing on George street was once Spaulding's Bay that was filled in with sawdust from McDonald's lumber mill. If the proposed building were to face on George street it would involve considerable extra cost to sink adequate foundations. If it fronted toward Townsend street where the ground was firm its sides would face toward George street and the general effect would be chiefly an architectural loss. Besides, it was said that purchase of some extra proyerty from the Canadian Canoe Company and two small houses would have to be made.

Mr. Riley also reported that the property on the north side of Hunter street, along Driscoll street, that spacious and level area at the east end of the bridge, was owned by the Quaker Oats Company and Percy Edwards.

Too Expensive.

The Quaker Oats, it was saiad, was willing to make a gift of their land, but Mr. Edwards wanted $16,000 for his store at the corner, and two small houses up Driscoll Terrace and his other land. He was established there and was loth to move the business he had developed there.

Mr. Faryon incidentally remarked by way of value confirmation that several properties on the west side of the Quaker Oats plant cost $15,000.

In the voting on this location, north side of Hunter street, it was understood that Mr. Edwards' property would have to be bought at $16,000.

Finally, when the meeting had decided for the Riverside Park site, Mr. Blackwell recommended the purchase of two or three properties on the west side of Burnham street, immediately south of the park, to provide additional ground and an overall space into which the new building and present ball parks would comfortably fit.

Mr. Blackwell sugested that the structure should probably extend along Burnham street, and face north. The alternative east-west placement on the park would run into substantial extra cost in building because of the sharp slope in the park down from Burnham street.

George A. Macdonald was one of those who remarked that the suggestion of property expense, as virtually advised by Mr. Blackwell, should have been known to the committee prior to their voting.

Parking Space

Parking space for 300 automobiles is available at Riverside, in fact for either site, before resorting to street accommodation.

Reg. Faryon said that if the Community and Health Centre interfered with and crimped the baseball diamond, the Quaker Oats Company would be willing to give to the city any ground that was needed, either on the upper level or on the river level north of the bridge, where a high and steep bank would provide a natural "bleachers."

Those present were: Mayor Hamilton, George A. Macdonald, Aldermen Dutton, Bradburn, Glover; J. A. Jebson, Frank Buckland, Vern Selkirk Ed Riley, Sam Whitehouse, William S. Johnson, Roy H. Parsons, city engineer; J. E. Girven, W. H. L. Blackwell Paige Rowell, Reg. R. Faryon, P. J. Scollard, C. L. Upper, John E. Keyes, C. B. Neal, J. J. Dorris.

Young Children Do Good To Robot Victims

School holidays are fast approaching an end, and one can sense that some at least are looking forward to the task of settling down to the duties that will aid in fitting themselves for the sterner tasks of life that the future will hold, since there has of late been a remarkable sequence of young folk who have been at work doing something that was not only constructive, but also of real value in giving assistance to the victims of robot or flying bombs in Britain.

During the month of August, this column on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund reported no less than sixteen different efforts by the young folk, and now today another four are added to that number, covering a wide field which should at least send some children back to their school duties, with the happy conviction that they utilized a part of their school recess in doing some good for others in distress.

Four Girls Make $30.40

Playing a leading role in this day's report, four girls Lona Martin, Lou Anne Kempt, Betty Whitmore, and Marlene Constable, ranging in age from 8 to 13 years and all attendants at the Prince of Wales School, held a bazaar at the residence of the first named at 462 Sherbrooke street last Saturday, with a sale of canned goods, cake, soap, lemonade and chocolate milk, which with the aid of cash donations realized the fine sum of $30.40.

This marks their second effort for the fund, and all were deeply appreciative of the help given them by their neighbors and Campbells, particularly desiring that their assistance should be acknowledged, and their sincere thanks for such expressed at this time.

The five young lads who only as recently as August 12 were reported in this column with money raised from a circus which they held, got ingeniously to work and held two shows a day in what they styled the Palace Theatre, charging 2 cents admission for adults, and one cent admission for children, Edwin Curtis taking the part of the clown, Douglas Woods acting as operator for the moving pictures, and Jack Coursey, Robt. Curtis and Carl Brioux handling the business management at 558 Romaine street the scene of their operations.

Just how zealous they were in their labor of love, from which admittedly they had much fun themselves, is visualized when they raised $4.60 by this means, for it takes a lot of admissions at the sum named to make up that amount.

Three girls, Geraldine McFee, Joan Hartley, and Beryl Aker, also held a sale or bazaar with a small draw in East City last week-end, and realized the sum of $5.15. The draw for this prize was made under the supervision of the secretary of the fund, which resulted in A. W. Jones of 186 Prince street being the winner with ticket No. 186.

The tiny tots of the Primary Class at Bridgenorth United Church Sunday School, none of whom are over 7 years of age, have through their teacher, Mrs. W. J. Robinson added another $3 to their really splendid previous record, their contributions coming through a collection taken amongst the group, which for youngsters of this tender age is very good indeed.

RISING POPULARITY — The "more hat" trend doesn't care too much in which direction it expands itself. Sidewise, all around, straight up, or futuristically angled, the bigger the better is its intention. The soaring draped turban is perhaps the least strange looking of the new bigger hats... we love turbans always, and the last we had were on the soaring side rather than the queen mother ideal. (By "strange," we don't mean freakish, rather "not familiar.") If your hair is piled high, a turban slicks over it; if you wear a chignon, it is tucked beneath the turban.—By Prunella Wood.

Pastry Cloths Stop Toughness

Probably you've often wished you knew some way to keep from toughening your pastry by rolling too much flour in it. An easy way to avoid this is to use a pastry cloth and rolling-pin cover. They also allow you to roll pastry or cookies out really thin without danger of sticking.

Pastry cloths and rolling pin covers of moisture-proof material can be bought or women can make their own. A piece of heavy, closely-woven, white canvas or duck, about 18 inches by 30 inches in size is needed. Hem the raw edges and sew short tapes on one end. Wash the cloth in soap-rich suds, rinse well, and when nearly dry, iron lightly to remove wrinkles. Use the pastry cloth instead of a baking beard or on top of one.

To make rolling pin cover, cut a baby's white cotton stocking, previously washed in a good suds, to the required length, and fit over the rolling pin. Rub flour well into both the pastry cloth and cover, brushing off excess flour, that is not absorbed. After each use, brush off the excess flour and bits of pastry with a clean vegetable brush, and keep both cloths fresh by a frequent bath. For convenience, roll the pastry cloth around the rolling pin, ready for next baking-day.

All white settings of gladioli decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Brampton, for a charming wedding this afternoon when Charlotte Graydon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Stanford Thomas of Blair became the bride of Robert Lockhart Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Henry Graham, Aberdeen avenue. The service was performed by the Rev. A. Neil Miller. Mints Attractive At All Parties

One of the minor, but more important items at a successful party, are the candies served by the hostess, to tease the palates of her candy-hungry friends. Here are some recipes for mints, which have proved popular and which can be used for anp occasion.

One-eighth pound butter. 1 teaspoon peppermint essence, 1 pound icing sugar, sweet cream, vegetable shortening.

Cream butter, add 1 teaspoon peppermint essence, confectioners' sugar and enough sweet cream to form a firm mass, 1 tablespoon at a time. Now work up well with the hands and knead until pliable, adding a little more sugar if at all sticky, Divide into several portions and color as desired.

Sprinkle a sheet of heavy waxed paper with icing sugar and pat out amount needed to ¼ inch thickness. Sprinkle a little sugar over top and smoooth over until sugar disappears but surface remains dry.

Choose a tumbler or small glass dish with a deeply cut pattern on bottom and press this down quickly aud firmly all over mixture, making as many attempts as possible. Now with a tiny round cutter about 1 inch in diameter, (inside circle from doughnut cutter answers very well) cut centre from patterns you have marked out. Lift out each one as you cut it, and lay in paper candy cup to harden. Make these in pastel shades and put in white cups. Cuttings may be worked up and stamped out as before.

For decorated mints, proceed as first stated, but do not stamp out patterns. Cut circles out of mixture with cutter and decorate to conform with occasion needed.

For Christmas — Use plain white mints and decorate with tiny Christmas trees cut from citron or angelica. Into these press a few miniature colored decorettes (sold at all grocers) to represent ball on tree Cut tiny holly prays from the same and press in a couple of the same tiny red candies for berries and sprays of mistletoe, with small silver dragees for the berries. If you have lots of patience you might manage Christmas wreaths around edge of each mint with the tiny red berres. Place each one as you complete it in a paper candy cup of desired color.

For Weddings —Cut white mints after having first stamped out pattern and place a silver dragee in centre of each. Place in white paper cup.

For Valentie's Day — Make plain mints, some red and some white, and decorate with tiny red candy hearts. Place in red and white candy cups, reversing colors.

TIPS ON FURNITURE ARRANGEMENT

DEAR HOMEMAKER—

Small rooms seem larger if chesterfields and sofas are against walls. The men groan and make a lot of remarks about the women always wanting to move the furniture from here to there.

But, as a matter of fact, arrangements have to be tried out to find out whether they will work or not.

On the other hand, there should be a good reason for placing each piece of furniture where it is. In short, furniture arrangements should be, first of all, functional.

Here is how to start planning the arrangement of a room. First of all, it should "work"—that is, be usable, livable, convenient. Here you want to consider such things as the traffic lanes through the room and remember not to block them with furniture that must be gone around or stumbled over all day long.

Next, be sure that lamp tables and floor lamps are placed so they provide light where it is needed — near easy chairs, chesterfields, game or work tables.

As for easy chairs—place them where people are going to want to sit, so they won't always be lifting or shoving the chairs across the room to somewhere else. Don't place easy chairs off by themselves, away from convenient tables or out of conversational distance of other easy chairs. Large tables should be placed where they will be most needed and used.

These points having been thought out, you can then consider the question of looks and the first thing to think of here is the focal point, or centre of interest about which the furniture is to be arranged. This may be a fireplace or the family stove, a lovely big picture window, a wall of books, a big mirror, a big table, a piano. If the room is small and intimate, the rug may be the focal point.

Don't place furniture catacorner or slantwise with the wall and the same thing goes for rugs. The main reason for this is that it wastes space, but besides, it looks awkward.

Don't put a large piece of furniture against a wall space just barely big enough to accommodate it. Don't put too many big pieces of furniture in a little room. Consider balance as well as proportion in arranging matching walls and spaces.

As for the question of whether to have the furniture hug the wall, or be placed out from the wall—that depends entirely on the circumstances. Both ways can be correct. As a rule, a room seems larger if the furniture is kept back against the wall as much as possible, so that is a good idea for a small room. But in a room that is big anyway this is apt to be monotonous.

In a small room, you will usually want just one grouping; in a big room you may want several. Chesterfields may be placed against the wall, or out in the middle of the floor as space permits, or at right angles to the wall or fireplace, all depending on the floor space and plan of the room.

Plazas Squeeze Out

Oshawa's Big Frame

Oshawa broke out in front in the sixth. After Petrie had fanned, Rospond walked, McGarry singled to centre, sending Rospond to third and taking second on the throw. Brudek golfed a low pitch into left field for a double, scoring Rospond and McGarry and tying up the game. Covert drew a pass. Way's liner to the box was knocked down by Wilson and went for a hit, and Tucker who recovered the loose ball made a needless throw to first and tossed past Ellis, Brudek scoring and Covert going to third, from which post he scored when Heal was tossing out Simmons. Hiller also rolled to Heal and that was the last scoring inning for Oshawa.

Plazas had two runners on in their half on passes to Tucker and Hawks but the needed hit was not forthcoming. The Peterborough team finally tied things up in the eighth. Covert robbed Blewett of a hit by a neat catch of his low liner to right centre and Ellis was called out on a close play at first on a roller to short. With two away Tucker doubled to left, another close one. Burton drew a pass. Hawks dropped a single into centre scoring Tucker and sending Burton to third and the tying run came over on the next play when Wilson rolled to short and Brudek threw wide to first, Burton scoring. Covert made a fine running catch of Eddie Starr's good bid for a hit to left centre.

Plazas threatened again in the ninth and drove Hiller out of the game. Heal drew a pass to open the innings. Conroy flied to Rospond in trying to sacrifice. Two wild pitches moved Heal around to third and when Hiller tossed the third bad one in a row to Joe Blewett he was yanked and Bennett took over the pitching job.

The southpaw completed Blewett's pass but got out of the jam by forcing Ellis to pop weakly to first and Tucker to short.

Wilson shot the invaders down in order in the tenth and then Plazas proceeded to clean up in their half.

Burton struck out but Hawks lined a single to right. Wilson was safe when Bennett fumbled his roller and Starr filled the bases by beating out a hit to McGarry. Heal's best was a fly to Rospond for the second out. It was up to Mike Conroy. The left-fielder took one ball and then drove a line single over Brudek's head into left and Hawks ran in with the winning run.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It is expected that to-night more than the "usual" mixed crowd will be out. There is going to be a little extra this evening. This Saturday night "crowd" is what you might say a family all their own. They do have one grand time. Everybody is everybody's friend and everybody is happy—and all for fifteen cents. Besides playing a couple of short games we understand that there will be a little social gathering afterward. We are not going to tell any more about it. Come out and see. 7.30 o'clock is the hour.

To those who intend to play on the holiday, remember the games are called for ... p.m. Mixed rinks, draw from the board.

This is meant for the skips—Have you made up a rink for the special competition? The entries close on Wednesday, September 6.

In conjunction with the Labor Day committee, who are staging big doings on the holiday, with all the proceeds going for "Christmas cheer" for the boys overseas, our club is holding a big mixed tournament on Wednesday evening next at 7.30 p.m. It will be rinks and a draw from the board. The fee is set at 50c per bowler. The three sets of prizes have been donated and that means that all of our entry fee will go to the fund. Keep this date in mind. More later.

The attendance last night at the week-end jitney was just about the same as usual. These free and easy series are quite popular and some bowlers would prefer these games to others.

The winning rinks were as follows:

First—V. Hill, F. Reed, W. Cathcart, S. Lowe, skip.

Second—B. Jeffries, R. Gamble, C. Williamson, P. McFadden, skip.

Third—O. Williamson, W. Garrow, R. Martin, F. Dearborn, skip.

All received a parcel of groceries.

W. MacFarlane 20 Yrs. On Fire Department

Working as usual....that's the way W. J. MacFarlane, 292 Park street, is celebrating his 20th anniversary of service with the Peterborough Fire Department. Looking back over the stretch of years in the business, Mr. MacFarlane said there had been enough excitement along the way to keep him satisfied.

Born and educated in Peterborough, he joined the Fire Department September 2, 1924. Before that, Mr. MacFarlane had been a sheet-metal worker, and had been employed in several different places in Peterborough.

Among the most spectacular and disastrous fires he can recall, the oil tank explosion and blaze of last November seems to stand out the most, he said.

"Are you working to-day?" he was asked.

"Not to-day," he answered, "you see, I'm on the night shift at present."

VIRTUES OF PIONEERS NEEDED
Girls Should Prepare For Careers; Practical, Homely Things Will Be in Demand.

A mother says: "I have a little 13-year-old daughter. What can I teach her that will fit her for life in a world that will be so different from that in which I was brought up"?

What the women of thce future are going to need are not drawing room tricks, but the virtues of their pioneer grandmothers. They are going to need courage and iniative and the strength and determination that will fit them to meet any situation. So after you have grounded your little daughter in the moralities, which are the basis of all character, teach her to be independent, for that will do more to secure her happiness than any other one thing.

Teach her how to work. After the war practically every able-bodied woman is going to have to support herself and perhaps others, and by the time a girl is 14 years old she should, with her mother's help and guidance, have picked out her career and begun preparing herself for it.

Impress upon her that work isn't a curse. It is a blessing. It is the consolation prize that humanity received when it was evicted from Eden. No idle woman is ever happy. It is the busy women who are doing useful, constructive work in which they are interested who are the contented ones.

Give your daughter the higher education, if she will take it, but, anyhow, teach her how to do the practical, everyday, homely things for which there is an eternal need. In the fture the great majority of women are going to have to be their own cooks, and it will be a lot more valuable an accomplishmene to be able to perform on the gas range than it is on the piano. Any girl who has been taught how to juggle the pots and pans and know how to make her own clothes is going to rise up and call her mother blessed.

Also, cooking will be rated among the headline attractions that any girl can possess if she is on the look-out for a husband. And if she wishes to capitalize her talents and ability along that line, she will be able to command a far higher salary in the kitchen than she could in any office. Most of the women who have made fortunes have done so by keeping boarding houses or running hotels or millinery or dress shops. For it is eternally true that people will wear a path to the door of any woman who can bake a cake that melts in your mouth, or who can cut a dress that makes a fat woman look thin, or tie a bow so that other women ask "where did you get that hat"?

And, anyway, no matter what her lot is in life, every woman at some time needs to know how to cook and sew and how to take care of the sick, and no mother has done her duty by her daughter who has not taught her these basic skills.

Above all, teach your daughter to take love and marriage in her stride, but not to let her whole life's happiness depend upon them. After the war many thousands of women will not be able to marry, and it is up to their mothers to prepare them for this contingency.

END-PLAY A BAD NAME

"End-play" is the name used by many players to describe the device whereby one opponent is thrown in the lead and thereby compelled to make a return which costs his side one or more tricks. It is a misnomer, as that kind of play can come on an early trick and frequently does. Chess experts use "end-play" in its proper sense, to indicate any type of finishing maneuver. "Lead thrower" is a more accurate description or, if the play comes near the end of the hand, the cumbersome "lead-throwing end play." A squeeze, for instance is as truly an "end play," in its proper meaning, as is a lead-thrower.

West hated to lead away from any of his honors, so picked the spade 9. South decided to put on dummy's Q and the A won. After thinking a moment, East returned the spade 7, on which South put the 6, and the 10 won. East had, in effect, "end-played himself," as many would describe it. He had really presented a trick to South, who now got two tricks in the suit, plus five in clubs and two in diamonds by virtue of a winning finesse, giving him nine and game.

If East had been smarter, he would have made the second trick a lead of his heart 5 toward dummy's weakness, hoping West could take it. He would have, and would have returned his second spade. East could have forced out the K, as South's only spade trick, and later would have regained the lead with the heart A. When he did, he could have completed the declarer's defeat with spade tricks.

Blood Plasma Cheats Death Saves Wounded Soldier In Italy

After seeing blood plasma save a soldier who seemed too far gone to help, Sgt. A. Thompson, a former C.G.E. employee, now fighting in Italy, expresses the gratitude of the men in the fighting lines for this gift being sent by the people at home, and stresses the need for shipments to be kept up.

"I am sleeping at the moment about three feet from where a British officer is buried. We were near an advanced dressing station a few days ago and I watched them bringing in the wounded. I certainly give the Medical Corps credit — a fellow has a chance if they get him into a dressing station. Both German and our own casualties are treated alike.

"I saw them give one chap three bottles of plasma and bring him back from death's door. You cannot imagine how much that blood is appreciated here. It has saved many lives and we send our thanks for it."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WAS IT A DIRECTOR?

THERE IS a big difference between a bid clearly intended as a lead-director and one not primarily for that purpose. If the suit bid by your partner was after the opponents had shown strength in the auction, his purpose might well be that. But when your partner opened the auction in first or second position, it is likely he bid for general purposes. Hence, since you were not virtually commanded to lead that suit, in case the opponents get into No Trump, you should not do so as a rule if you hold only a singleton. And if you do lead it, he should generally count you as having at least two cards in it.

North: ♠ 9 6 4 ♥ 10 8 ♦ Q 10 9 8 6 ♣ Q 7 4

West: ♠ 8 3 ♥ K 9 7 4 3 ♦ A 5 2 ♣ 5 3 2

East: ♠ A K 7 5 2 ♥ 6 5 2 ♦ 4 3 ♣ K 10 8

South: ♠ Q J 10 ♥ A Q J ♦ K J 7 ♣ A J 9 6

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1♠	1 NT	Pass	2♠
Pass	3 NT

West led the spade 8, and East quickly scored the K and A, firing back a third spade, which South won with the Q. The declarer had to stake all on finding the diamond A with West, which he did. As the latter had no spade to return into the now established suit, the contract was assured, plus an extra trick. East had no way to regain the lead, since his club honors sat under a double tenace. So South got four tricks in diamonds, four in clubs and one each in the majors.

East could have beaten that contract if he had counted his partner for two spades. His own bid was not a lead-directing call, since he had opened in dealer position. So he could have felt sure his partner did not have just a singleton when he led it. If he had counted West for two spades, and the declarer therefore for only three, he should have ducked the first trick. Then, when West won a trick with either of his red suit honors, he would have had a spade to return, and East could have run the deciding tricks in a bunch.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A 8 ♥ 9 8 ♦ A K J 9 6 3 ♣ 8 5 2

West: ♠ K J 9 6 3 2 ♥ A Q 3 2 ♦ Q 7 ♣ 3

East: ♠ Q 5 4 ♥ J 10 6 5 4 ♦ 10 5 2 ♣ A 6

South: ♠ 10 7 ♥ K 7 ♦ 8 4 ♣ K Q J 10 9 7 4

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

After East wins the club lead with the A, what should he return in striving to beat 5-Clubs by South? What reasoning should point the way?

Canucks Strip Tanks To Repair Others

By DOUG. HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, Sept. 2—(CP)—The tanks needed 15,000 yards of white marking tape and 25 Hurricane lamps and Sherman clutch plates and portable cookers and a lot of other things.

For more than a year the ordnance services of a Canadian armored brigade have filled the multiple requirements like these, and many others, of the three combatant units and the other branches that have worked in support of them.

The record of the men under Maj. T. R. Hunter of Toronto in one of the most difficult phases of the entire Italian campaign—the battle of the Gustav and Hitler lines—was the best of any ordnance unit in the 8th Army. Of all items requested the ordnance field park immediately supplied 82 per cent.

There are official channels through which an ordnance field park works. Most of its requirements can be filled immediately or ultimately by application to higher command, but the demands that come flooding in lead to the development of what most soldiers call "scrounging" methods but which the O.F.P. officially knows as "cannibalization," a procedure which can be either "legitimate" or "illegitimate."

Mileage Mounts.

In a brigade in which the Calgary, Three Rivers and Ontario Regiments are fighting to a great extent with tanks and vehicles that saw service in Sicily—some of the Shermans have nearly 2,000 miles on them—the difficulties of supplying the innumerable parts grow with each month. That's where resourcefulness, and often "cannibalization," come in.

At least three trucks of the O.F.P. are on the road every hour of the day. In many cases they are acquiring supplies from base depots. Or it might be Sgt. Jack Hallam and Cpl. Art Ingram, both of London, Ont.—this is a London unit—heading for a nest of brewed-up or disabled tanks to strip them of parts. That's "legitimate cannibalization."

Among the privates of the control office are F. L. Charron, Wallaceburg, Ont., Bob Hewitt, Chatham, Ont., and A. J. Joudin, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., all storemen.

Property Clause Aims At Excluding Jews

TORONTO, Sept. 2—The Workers' Educational Association and the Canadian Jewish Congress plan to carry on at once a fight in the Ontario courts against what they feel is discrimination in prohibition of sale of property in a section of O'Connor Drive, Toronto, to "Jews or persons of objectionable nationality."

Recently the W.E.A. undertook to purchase a 57-foot lot on O'Connor Dr. just east of Broadview Ave. on which to build a "model home." Drummond Wren, W.E.A. general secretary, said the project was to draw attention to the possibilities of low-cost housing and that the model home would be given to the holder of a lucky ticket, the proceeds going to aid the work of the W.E.A.

When the constructive clause in the deed was objected to, the vendor, William Vanderbent, through J. F. Dales, made a motion at Osgoode Hall, that the clause be removed. Hearing was adjourned a week until yesterday to permit other property owners in the affected area to appear.

Another Motion Expected

In weekly Court yesterday before Mr. Justice Roach, Mr. Dales announced that he was withdrawing his motion but said that another motion would probably be entered. He explained afterward that since the sale of the property to the W.E.A. had been completed Wednesday, the vendor had no further concern.

Speaking for a special committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress which will act in this particular matter, J. M. Bennett, barrister, said after the withdrawal of the original motion yesterday: "We are going to launch a motion immediately to have the court recognize the Canadian Jewish Congress as representing the entire Jewish community.

Want Other Representation

"We are all directly affected by this restriction and we feel that the court should direct that we be served in the same manner as were other property owners affected. We think, too, that there should be representation in this case of any other natonality which feels itself affected by the deed clause concerning Jews or persons of objectionable nationality."

Information is that the new moton and the move for representaton by the Jewish Congress will be made before the Ontario Supreme Court within a week.

Hit 72 Times Flier Bags German U-Boat

LONDON, Sept. 2—(CP Cable)—Flying Officer John Alexander Cruickshank, of Aberdeen, a young R. A. F. pilot who trained at Toronto, has been awarded the Victoria Cross for pressing home an attack on an enemy submarine after he had been wounded in 72 places, his navigator and bomb aimer had been killed, and the second pilot and two other crew members injured.

'His determination, fortitude and devotion to duty were in keeping with highest traditions of the service," the citation said to-day.

Pilot and Captain of a Catalina flying bombs. Cruickshank released the depth charges on to the submarine himself when his navigator and bomb aimer both lay dead, and carried on for five and a half hours, refusing relief from morphia, until he had assured himself his aircraft could be landed safely at a home base.

The aircraft was hit when he made the first run over the target and the depth charges refused to release. Knowing he no longer had the advantage of surprise, Cruickshank nevertheless made a second run, straddled the sub and saw it sink. Among his wounds were two serious injuries to the lungs and 10 penetrating wound in lower legs.

The award to FO. Cruickshank brings to .7 the total of men given the Empire's highest gallantry award since the outbreak of war, and to 20 the number of V. C.'s won by airmen of this war.

PRODUCTION UPPED

ACCRA, Gold Coast — (CP) — Considerable progress in vegetables growing has been made in the Gold Coast and this year's production from government farms is estimated at 1,000,000 compared with 3,000 pounds for the previous year.

3,500 Transferred To New Jobs

OTTAWA, Sept. 2 — (CP) — Production of three small arms ammunition plants in the Montreal area is to be sharply curtailed to enable transfer of 3,500 workers to heavy ammunition plants, the munitions department announced today.

The three plants affected, all operated by Defence Industries Ltd., are Westmount, Verdun and Montreal Works.

The Munitions Department said National Selective Service had been advised of the change in schedule and arrangements were being made for an orderly transfer to the heavier ammunition plants. The workers who will be released are urgently required, particularly at Cherrier and other plants in the Montreal area.

While reserves of small arms ammunition are considered adequate, labor needs for the production of heavier ammuntion are acute and for some weeks an effort has been made to obtain 10,000 new workers for heavier ammunition plants.

"The workers in the three plants have done a magnificent war job," Munitions Minister Howe said in today's announcement. "The greater part of our production of 4,000,000,000 rounds has come from their effort."

Paris, Unlike London Was Spared Bomb Damage

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Associated Press War Correspondent

PARIS, Sept. 2 — (AP) — More fortunate than London, the city of Paris has been spared the fate of heavy damage from the air.

British, Canadian and United States bombers have flown over and around it hundreds of times but held their blows for military targets

Bomb damage has been confined almost entirely to the suburban industrial districts at a minimum cost to civilians. The big railroad yards, airfields and the vast Renault Motor Works and its subsidiary plants were the scenes of greatest destruction.

Two of the best examples of the devastation caused by Allied bombers—an indication of how large sections of Germany must now look —are the Renault Works on the southwestern edge of Paris and the mammoth Villeneuv-St. Georges freight yards outside Vincennes.

The Renault factory is a mass of wrecked and burned out buildings and twisted steel.

A Paris newspaperman said the bombing never caused the plant to shut down completely, but "obviously slowed down production greatly."

"It usually was thrown out of gear for two or three days after each big raid," he declared.

Thousands of wrecked railway cars are scattered over the Villeneuv-St. Georges yards, through which the Germans had to move vast quantities of material. One area three-quarters of a mile square is almost a solid mass of crumpled cars and locomotives and twisted rails.

The heart of Paris around the Eifel Tower was never touched. Few if any of the historic buildings suffered any damage.

Need Is Growing For Farm Help

TORONTO, Sept. 2—(CP)—An appeal was issued to-day by Alex Maclaren, director of the Ontario Farm Service Force, for women and girls to help with the harvest. The need became urgent this week with about 1,200 secondary school girls leaving the farm camps to return to school.

With schools re-opening next week and large crops of peaches, apples and grapes still to be harvested, Mr. Maclaren said the growers are depending on farm service camp girls to do the job. In some districts the camps will be forced to close within a few days as the school girls go back home.

Canadian Wounded Get New Privilege

OTTAWA, Sept. 2 — (CP) — Members of the Canadian Army who have been wounded three or more times, other than trivially, will be permitted to apply for service near their next-of-kin, Defence headquarters announced last night.

The privilege, which is dependent on the exigencies of the service, may also be accorded those whohave been wounded twice and have had more than three years' continuous service with the Canadian Army overseas.

The tour of duty, which is confirmed to Canada and the United Kingdom, will be approximately six months. The soldier will be granted the usual disembarkation leave on arrival.

Proximity of the place of employment in Canada will depend on the needs of the service and the particular qualifications of the individual, the announcement said.

FREDERICTON, Sept. 2—(CP)—Possibility that declaration day would have to be postponed was seen here today as a result in the delay in arrival of returns from active service voters.

Dr. J. Miles Gibson, special returning officer for the active service vote, said no signed returns had come in from any of the areas where assistant special returning officers were posted, although returns have come by telegram from all parts of Canada.

Declartion day—the day fixed for adding up the votes given candidates in the provincial election and when successful candidates are declared officially elected—was set for Sept. 5.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 2—(ENS)—A threshing machine, owned by Basil Bell, Garden Hill, which was at work in a field on the farm of Delbert Olan, Carmel, this week was the cause of considerable alarm, when a ball of fire from the blower ignited a straw stack. Mr. Bell managed to move his machine out of danger. The stack was completely burned, but no further loss was suffered, though the fire did get a running start in the stubble.

NO MISTAKING HER "SIDE"—There is no mistaking this Parisian mam'selle for a collaborationist. She greets one of the hard-fighting Americans who liberated her native city.

"BLOOD, SWEAT and TEARS"

Not so precious as blood nor so poignant as tears, but for all that, the power behind the fight . . . that's the Labour, the Sweat that turns out the weapons of war. It's not heroic, not in the common sense of the word, not by comparison. It's often monotonous with long, hard hours at lathe or drill, blast furnace or blow torch. It's often dirty with oil and grease, soot and smoke. It's frequently dangerous with angry machines, touchy explosives, lightning-edged tools, searing cohesives.

But it's Labour . . . the stuff that since the world began has earned man's daily bread, has built his house, raised his family, guarded his pride and self-respect. Now it does more, this Labour . . . this Sweat. From its hands come fleets of ships . . . flights of planes . . . phalanxes of guns. From mine, from forest it takes the materials . . . in mill and factory it shapes and welds them . . . until to the soldier's hands goes the weapon that fights for Victory and Peace.

For five years Labour has kept up the flow . . . its toil behind the boys that fight, behind the boys that wait and hope in prison camps. For this there are no medals, no fancy ribbons . . . just toil and sweat . . . an honest living made, a just cause worked for.

Soviet Units 312 Miles From Berlin

Must Go 50 Miles To Join Forces With Yugoslav Army

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Sept. 6—(AP).—Russian troops pushed across the Narew River north of Warsaw today and struck toward East Prussia on a broad front against the heaviest kind of German opposition, front dispatches said.

At the southern end of the long eastern front, troops which captured Craiova in southwest Romania drove along the Walachian plains on the approaches of Yugoslavia for a junction with Marshal Tito's Partisan army to cut off all the enemy in Bulgaria, southern Yugoslavia, Greece and the Aegean.

The swift Russian columns in Romania were less than 50 miles from Yugoslavia, less than 55 from the Iron Gate where the Danube cuts through the Transylvanian Alps, less than 140 from seething Belgrade and 175 from Hungary proper. There was no Soviet announcement that Red troops had invaded Bulgaria, upon which Russia declared war last night.

Unconfirmed Report.

(The German-controlled Oslo radio said Russian forces had entered Bulgaria).

Swarms of Stormovik planes paced the renewed Russian offensive in the Narew area, 312 miles from Berlin—the closest reported approach of any Allied army. On one 24-mile sector, the Germans concentrated four divisions.

Front dispatches from Romania said the Germans were offering considerable resistance in Transylvania mountain passes north and northwest of captured Pitesti.

Advancing more than 70 miles in a single day in Romania, Soviet armored force seized a strategic springboard for an immediate united front with Marshal Tito's Partisans and an invasion of the Hungarian plains.

The occupation of Craiova, largest road and rail centre in Western Romania, placed Russian troops less than 150 miles east of Belgrade, 115 miles north of Sofia and 185 miles from the Hungarian border.

Canadians Take Key Ridge In North Italy

By GEORGE TUCKER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 6—(AP)—Powerful British 8th Army forces including veteran Canadian infantry have captured an important ridge running from the key town of Coriano to the Adriatic Sea in furious battling south of Rimini, eastern anchor of the Nazis' Gothic Line, but Coriano is still in German hands, Allied Headquarters said today.

Allied patrols have penetrated the town, but troops have not been able to enter it in force. The Germans were said to be putting up a fanatical defence on high ground to the left of Coriano.

North of Pisa on the western end of the Italian front Americans of the Allied 5th Army continued to register gains, the Germans from Altopascia and sending patrols deep into the important communications centre of Lucca, a provisional capital with a population of 82,000, 10 miles northeast of Pisa.

British columns ran into growing resistance north of Florence, but scored important gains in the high terrain overlooking the city.

The resistance of the Nazis on the Adriatic showed signs of weakening as the Canadians and other elements of the 8th Army severely mauled fresh tank and infantry reinforcements thrown into their path.

The Germans have been compelled to relieve their much-battered parachute battalion by an ill-assorted collection of men from the Turkoman division, which was commanded by Maj.-Gen. Otto Van Viedemayer, who has apparently been relieved of his command.

Huns Losing 10,000 Men Every Day

Canadian Troops Have Taken 25,000 Captives

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(CP Cable.)—German armies in the west, racing back to the insecure frontiers of their homeland, are losing an estimated 10,000 prisoners a day to Allied forces which are moving so quickly official count of their latest roundups are delayed for days.

Never since Tunisia have British and American troops brought in so many prisoners as in the last month of the western front campaign. Never before in this war have the Canadians been able to share in such a bountiful haul.

Unofficial estimates place the prisoner total for France and Belgium at close to 350,000. The Canadian share of this is more than 25,000.

Many Trapped.

As the mop-up is completed before the expected general thrust into Germany, and as the ring closes on approximately 50,000 Germans still left in the Pas de Calais area, the total will mount. With 65,000 taken in Southern France it should reach the 500,000 mark.

Measured by the count of prisoners alone, the western front fighting has been a far greater victory than the long, hard-fought Tunisian campaign, which is the only comparable period for the British and American forces so far as prisoners are concerned. The North African struggle brought the Allies 267,000 prisoners, the majority of them in the closing stages of the battle when the defeated enemy had no choice but to surrender or be pushed off Cap Bon Peninsula into the sea.

Then, as now, the German armies were soundly beaten, though their defeat was scarcely as overwhelming as that suffered in France. The Germans in Africa might have held out longer, for they were comparatively well supplied.

In France the enemy was thrashed on the ground and had his supplies blasted by the most terrific air pounding any armies have ever taken. Yet many Germans fought on frantically as some still are fighting in Brest and Le Havre.

The imminent threat to their fatherland probably is the main reason why the Germans are resisting so fiercely in pockets. There is no hope of escape for the men of Brest or the other beseiged ports, but very day they hold out they contain Allied soldiers who could be used in the invasion of Germany.

2,877 Missing

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 6—(CP).—Japan has failed to send information about 2,877 Australian soldiers still in Japanese hands, Army Minister Forde said today. Japan, through Geneva, by capture cards and by radio, has accounted for 20,042 Australians. The others are officially listed as missing.

Bulgaria Seeks Armistice With Russia

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP).—Bulgaria appealed to Russia to-day for an armistice, a few hours after the Kremlin declared war. Cairo advices said a joint peace with Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union was expected as a result.

The German radio at Oslo said the Russians had marched into the Balkan kingdom. There was no confirmation from Moscow or Sofia.

The Bulgars asserted thir government had ordered strong measures against German forces, accused of attacking Bulgar army units—claims countered by the Russians, who said the rulers of the country were tools of the Germans and tied to the enemy war chariot.

Whether terms drafted by Britain and United States for the abortive peace talks in Cairo would be revised or presented in the same form in the name of all three Allied governments, including Russia, has not yet been decided. The Russians have been consulted on the Anglo-American terms and it was learned in Cairo that little if any change would be necessary.

There was no immediate reaction from Moscow and no indication whether Red Army troops had already crossed the northern border of Bulgaria, along which they had been poised for several days after a swift advance through Romania.

It appeared, however, from the trend of events that should Bulgaria succeed in making peace with Russia she might find herself at war with Germany.

The Sofia radio said the Bulgarian Council of Ministers was still in session early today after directing the armistice appeal, but whether this meant that further steps against Germany were being contemplated was a matter of conjuncture.

Fight With Huns

The council meeting was summoned at 3 p.m. yesterday, Sofia said, to "take decisive and firm measures" against German troops who attacked Bulgarian Army units engaged in disarming Nazi soldiers fleeing across the border from Romania. The disarming order had been given in conformity with Bulgaria's previous declaration of "neutrality."

While the meeting was in progress word was received of Moscow's declaration of war, and a foreign ministry official was dispatched imme-

Allies Poised To Assault West Wall

Patrols 30 Miles Inside Reich On September 3

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(CP).—Strong forces of the United States 3rd Army established themselves firmly across the Moselle river today in preparation for an assault on Hitler's west wall while 1st Canadian and British 2nd Army troops thinned hourly the Pas de Calais coastal strip where an officially estimated 50,000 Germans are caught.

Five thousand of the enemy are in Boulogne, with 1st Canadian Army patrols only a mile distant, and another 5,000 in Le Havre.

Meanwhile, Gen. Eisenhower declared the battle of Germany was about to begin.

"Battles soon will be fought on German soil," he said in broadcast instructions to foreign workers in Germany on ways to aid Allied troops in combat areas.

He spoke while the Americans were poised for the west-wall assault after their armored patrols, reconnoitering the path of the advance, had crossed the German border and then returned to the main elements.

Patrol Action.

Supreme Headquarters officially described the penetrations of the German frontier as actions perhaps 25 to 30 miles ahead of the main front. The 3rd Army permitted disclosure only to-day that these had occurred Sunday — the first officially reported army entry into Germany by land since the fall of France.

What has happened since Sunday on the 3rd Army front still was under the secrecy of security but it was announced officially that the 3rd Army's breaching of the Moselle, last river barrier short of the Rhine itself, had occurred midway between Metz and Nancy, some 40-odd miles short of the nearest point of the German frontier.

Headquarters said the 3rd Army was across the Moselle in strength. Presumably there was a second bridgehead near Nancy.

What little information did come back to Supreme Headquarters through the screen of silence suggested that stiffened German opposition was being met in the preliminaries to the main battle for the border.

British units of the 1st Canadian Army probed Le Havre while patrols of that army pushed to the Channel on either side of Calais, Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported.

Ghastly Crime Committed By German Guards

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ORADOUR SUR GLANE, France, Sept. 6—(AP).—Oradour is a ghastly village of charred and tottering walls set in the midst of a lovely rolling countryside. It has no inhabitants because 12 weeks ago the Germans burned the village and its population.

Between 1,200 and 1,500 persons, most of them women and children, were locked in the village church, in the school and is houses, and perished in flames.

Only 17 escaped and 10 of these now are in mental institutions.

Oradour, 12 miles west of Limoges, was swollen with refugees, especially children. Many mothers from Paris and other cities in danger of being bombed came with their children to pass the summer. Other families placed their children to board at homes in the village. No one knows exactly how many persons were in the village on the days of its doom, June 10, but it is known the number was between 1,200 and 1,500.

Canucks Mop Up Channel Ports

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY ON THE FRENCH CHANNEL COAST, Sept. 6—(CP Cable)—The Canadians today pushed patrols through to the Straits of Dover on both sides of Calais, and Canadian units closing in on Boulogne were within a mile of that port. Polish troops fighting with the Canadians under command of Lt.-Gen. Crerar moved strong forces of armor and infantry into the outskirts of St. Omer, 28 miles east of Boulogne.

British 2nd Army troops on the Canadians' right flank are approaching the Netherlands border, and an estimated 50,000 Germans remain in the narrow coastal belt between the Boulogne-Calais-St. Omer area and the Schelde River, 75 miles east and just inside the Netherlands frontier.

British infantry of the 1st Canadian Army already is probing the outer defences of Le Havre, north and east of the city.

Canadian Navy Ready For Pacific Battles

OTTAWA, Sept. 6—(CP).—Ships of the Canadian Navy provided 100 per cent. of close escort for all trade convoys from North America to the United Kingdom during the summer months of this year, Navy Minister Macdonald said today at a press conference.

Detailing the rôle of the Canadian Navy in the invasion of Europe, Mr. Macdonald said 109 ships manned by approximately 10,000 officers and men took part.

The ships included 30 large infantry landing craft; 16 Bangor minesweepers; 19 corvettes; 12 frigates; 10 escort destroyers; six large destroyers, and two Canadian infantry landing ships, the Prince Henry and the Prince David.

Canadian ships made up approximately 30 per cent. of all support force units in the North Atlantic during the summer. The support force units do not travel with the convoys, but range the sea ready to attack at any point where the enemy may appear.

Mr. Macdonald said that since war started the Canadian Navy has sunk 15 submarines and 12 surface ships. It has captured one surface ship and damaged 16 or 17. Forces of which Canadian ships formed a part have sunk 23 surface ships and damaged nine.

Plans for demobilization of the Navy will depend on the end of the war in Europe and conditions in the Pacific, said Mr. Macdonald. The Navy is certain to take part in the Pacific war, but some of its present ships may not be suitable for the longer distance operations involved there.

90,000 Men.

The Navy has an authorized post-war complement of 9,000 officers and men, but Mr. Macdonald said he personally would like to see a post-war permanent navy of about 15,000. The present war strength is more than 90,000, and this will go up to 94,000 by the end of the fiscal year, March 31, 1945.

Starting with this month plans call for recruiting about 500 men and 250 women a month until March. This is slightly lower than the intake prior to September and there might be further curtailment if war developments changed the requirements.

A post-war naval strength of 9,000, said the Minister, would permit Canada to man two cruisers, two aircraft carriers and about eight destroyers. Before the war Canada

French Forces Nearing Dijon

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 6—(AP)—French forces chasing the Germans from southern France were believed tonight to be approaching Dijon, ancient capital of Burgundy, after occupying Chalon-Sur-Saone apparently without opposition.

Chalon is a strategic communications centre and district capital 37 miles south of Dijon. From Chalon highways and rails fan out toward central France and southwestern Germany.

American troops occupied the village of St. Germain-du-Plain between Chalon and the Swiss border.

Allied headquarters gave no indication of the position of the main German force. Latest reports had the Germans fleeing toward Dijon, which is less than 90 miles southwest of Belfort and the Nazi escape pass into southwest Germany.

Occupation of Dijon would put the 7th Army within 60 airline miles of American 3rd Army units last reported at Bar-Sur-Sine, southeast of Troyes.

Allied Units Battle Near Belfort City

AT THE SWISS-FRENCH FRONTIER, Sept. 6 (AP)—French and other Allied forces were reported today to be fighting against motorized German unit at Baume-Les-Dames, 30 miles southwest of the German-fortified city of Belfort and the last serious obstacle before the Belfort gap leading into southwest Germany.

Advises from across the frontier said the city of Besancon, 10 miles farther southwest on a railway and highway from the Rhone Valley, had been occupied.

There was no confirmation of these reports in official Allied announcements.

ROME, Sept. 6—(AP).—French troops of the 7th Army chasing the Germans out of Southern France are approaching Chalo sur Saone, a little more than 90 airline miles from U.S. 3rd Army units last reported at Bar sur Seine southeast of Troyes, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

American units of the 7th Army have captured Louhans and Lons Le Saunier in the area between the Saone Valley and the Swiss border, headquarters said. Louhans is 21 miles southeast of Chalon sur Saone.

Soldier Overseas Five Years Thinks Time He Had Trip Home

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, Sept. 6.—(CP).—The advance went well. The battery was on an hour's notice to move up only a few hours after its eight guns had blazed 1,700 shells across the Metauro river in three hours of support for the infantry in the first phase of the assault on the Gothic Line.

The No. 1 and the crew sat around one of the 25 pounders, sunning themselves in the camouflaged pit they had dug into the reverse slope of a hill overlooking the river. They chinned awhile about the shoot because we asked them questions.

They talked about the war because we asked them to. Then the No. 1, Sgt. Vernon Kipp of Toronto, asked us what we knew about the Zombies back home and the conversation turned to things that, to a soldier, are fundamental things.

Finally we asked him: "Sarge, let's get this thing down to cases. If they did conscript men for overseas service and you found a Zombie in your gun crew what would you do?"

Mind Made Up.

He didn't hesitate, didn't even have to think. He said:

"I'd train him as a gunner and treat him as a man."

The sergeant's mind was as clear, as certain as that on this and kindred subjects. He'd managed a Dominion store in Toronto. He'd come overseas in January, 1940. Back home he had a mother, a wife and a child to care for on a sergeant's pay.

He spoke with the solid convictions of a man who had had five years to make up his mind, and those the five formative years he had spent as a soldier on foreign soil. And as he spoke you recognized in him the voice of a thousand others, the voice of the Canadian soldier who came overseas in 1939 or early 1940 and is is wondering about the future.

"We aren't concerned so much," he said, "about rehabilitation. They seem to have that pretty well planned—on paper at least. But what we'd like is a policy for getting us home. Five years overseas is a damn long time.

"Most of us know we've got to start all over again. We're scared the fellows over there are going to get the jobs and we're going to be left holding the bag. It's not so much that we feel or don't feel that these fellows should be conscripted. It's just that we feel that five years overseas entitle us to a trip home. You ask me if I think they should be brought over to take my place. I say 'it's only fair.'"

750 Bombers Hamper Retreat

LONDON, Sept. 6 (CP)—Some 750 United States heavy bombers flying from Italy bombed concentrations of German troops moving northward from south of the Danube today, along with enemy retreat routes in the Balkans.

They struck as wave upon wave of smaller American bombers battered besieged Brest for a solid hour and ranged behind the western front and into Germany, snarling transportation.

One large formation of heavy bombers from the south bombed a mass of enemy troops, tanks and vehicles jammed into the small town of Ofleskovac, 150 miles southeast of the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade. Other heavies bombed the Oradea railyards, 125 miles southeast of the Hungarian capital of Budapest.

Before dawn, R.A.F. British Mosquitos battered Hannover without loss and Typhoons attacked shipping off Holland with rockets, sinking a medium sized vessel, set another afire and damaging three others.

British coastal and naval planes kept harrassing German shipping along the coast, although weather worsened during the day.

New Pacific Raids Whittle Japanese

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Sept. 6.—(CP).—In new attacks on the Philippines, Halmahera and the East Indies, Allied bombers destroyed or damaged 37 more Japanese cargo vessels and barges, including 13 filled with troops, it was disclosed to-day. This raised to at least 57 the three-day toll of enemy ships in this theatre.

Warn Germans To Halt War

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—(CP).—The BBC in a broadcast directed at Germany to-day warned the Germans that unless they cease fighting within the next few days "it will be too late to save the German nation from total collapse."

The broadcast, recorded by the CBC listening post here, was made by the editor-in-chief of the BBC's European service and said:

"Unless the cease fire order is given in the next few days by those who are still in power to do so, or unless the German soldiers spontaneously stop fighting and the German workers stop working it will be too late to save the German nation from total collapse."

Canadian Navy Supplies Protection

OTTAWA, Sept. 6 (CP)—The largest convoy "ever to sail the seas" arrived recently in the United Kingdom entirely under close escort of the Canadian Navy and under air cover by the R.C.A.F. and R.A.F., Navy Minister Macdonald said today at a press conference.

Arrival of the convoy was confirmed by a congratulatory message from the Admiralty which said its "safe and timely delivery" was a great credit to all those concerned.

Senior officer of the escorting ships was Cmdr. George L. Stephen, Halifax. Ships under his command were Canadian frigates and corvettes, some of them virtually brand new, and others veterans of the harrowing winters of 1941, 1942 and 1943, when the Germans claimed 1,000,000 tons of shipping sunk monthly.

An officer, whose ship was detached to check on pennant numbers of the merchantmen, said it took five hours, travelling at full speed, to go up and down the convoy lanes.

Cornwall Repairs Damage

122 Carloads Of Building Material Needed

CORNWALL, Sept. 6—(CP).—Orders have been placed for 122 carloads of building materials to repair damage to public buildings, stores and homes in this city in the series of earth tremors early yesterday which rocked this town severely and was felt in most of Ontario and Quebec and the northern United States.

This was announced today by town officials who said a meeting of the town's contractors had decided 100 carloads of brick, seven carloads of lumber and five carloads each of plaster, flue lining and roofing will be needed.

Repair work was started today at the public school, where several sections of brick were loosened in the tremors, most severe of which came at 12.40 a.m. Damage to the public school, collegiate and churches was estimated at $100,000, and Mayor Aaron Horowitz said that total damage to buildings is about $1,000,000.

City Engineer W. H. Magwood announced that seven dwellings, three of which are more than 50 years old, have been condemned as unfit for use and will be torn down.

Huns May Turn Robots On Army

LONDON, Sept. 6 —(CP) — As London enjoyed a quiet night — the fifth in a row broken only by one brief flurry of flying bombs early yesterday — the Germans hinted they would turn their "V-1" robots against Allied armies on the continent now that most of the buzz-bomb coast has been lost to Canadian and British armies.

Conceding that the flying bombs "may not be launched against England with the same regularity as hitherto," a Nazi radio commentator declared: "The V-1 can be employed againts other targets on the European continent. The weapon will lose nothing of its importance.

Londoners, while naturally suspicious of the Nazis, are about ready to hail their own "liberation" —the freedom from four years of bombing.

While the British Government has warned the thousands who left London at the height of the robot raids to stay where they are for a while anyway, railroads report a growing trickle of returning evacuees—mostly adults.

Any mass return would lead to a serious housing problem. In addition to the thousands of homes blasted so badly they are uninhabitable thousands of others are in such bad condition that only one or two rooms are livable.

rapid drive from the Seine was first into the Calais area.

There is no indication yet of the type of opposition met by these forward troops, but there are believed to be 5,000 Germans in Boulogne, and resistance to the Canadian advance on that port is stiffening.

Occupy Hills.

German artillery in Boulogne was in action last night, trying to shoot up roads leading to the port. Canadian tanks and infantry, however, edged closer from the south and east and now occupy several hills in the vicinity.

For Polish troops on the outskirts of St. Omer, within 15 miles of the Belgian border, the immediate obstacle is the crossing of the Aire Canal and the network of small streams in the St. Omer area. This is an engineering problem, and Polish-Canadian supply men are working around the clock to keep the advance rolling.

There are also many streams in the Calais area and between Calais and Dunkerque they must be bridged, for the Germans have blown many of the regular bridges.

Of the estmated 50,000 Germans in this area, 30,000 are believed still organized in effective fighting units, with the remainder wandering about aimlessly. Their lone possibility of escaping the trap is to cross the Scheldt, which is from three to six miles wide.

Barges could be used, and efforts to escape by them likely will be made behind a rear-guard action which may be fought by three coastal divisions which were not engaged in the earlier fighting in Normandy.

The action likely will be fought along the Albert canal.

Americans Cross

Allied Supreme Headquarters confirmed that the British 2nd Army was driving somewhere in the Netherlands, but did not indicate where or in what depth. It offered no confirmation of a Paris radio report that the British were advancing within sight of Rotterdam, the great Dutch port 50 miles north of Antwerp.

It also was announced that the U.S. 1st Army has liberated the fortified Belgian city of Namur at the confluence of the Meuse and Sambre rivers. Namur is 32 miles from Liege and 55 miles from Aachen in Germany.

The announcement concerning the British advance lifted the 24-hour news blackout of this operation to the north, but headquarters continued into the fourth day the secret of the reported American penetration of Luxembourg and the eastward sweep of the Rhine.

The exact position of the Americans thus hung somewhere in the balance between unconfirmed French frontier reports that U.S. troops had captured Aachen and Saarbrucken in Germany and reached Strasbourg and the disclosures by headquarters only of advances toward those points.

Location Unknown

The front dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Wes Gallagher of the penetration of American patrols into Germany did not specify exactly the present position of Lt.-Gen. Patton's line but obviously much could have happened since last Sunday.

This dispatch said the Moselle River bridgehead was established in the face of stiff German resistance and tended to confirm earlier front advices that German troops were putting up a more determined stand against American units driving toward the western borders of the Reich.

Today main 3rd Army forces poured over a firm bridgehead near Nancy in a drive toward Strasbourg, 70 miles to the east.

The patrols, a front dispatch said, crossed the boundary Sunday, ranged about in German territory and then withdrew to the main American position on the Moselle—their reconnaissance mission apparently accomplished.

Another front dispatch said an American column — presumed to be the one which crossed the Meuse at Commercy — had reached the Moselle at Pont-A-Mousson, halfway between Nancy and Metz, and had encountered heavy German artillery fire.

The most advanced officially-announced American position between Metz and the Luxembourg frontier was 18 miles northeast of Verdun. This would be some 45 miles from Saarbrucken.

Cross Meuse River.

In Belgium the U. S. 1st Army crossed the Meuse against slight enemy opposition at Dinant, 15 miles south of Namur, and at the French town of Givent on the border. This army drove the Nazis from Charlerio, a city of 27,000, swept on and liberated Namur and pushed on toward Liege.

Prisoners in the American two-day mop-up near Mons rose to 14,000.

The British push into Holland presumably was [illegible] north of liberated [illegible] miles northwest of Brussels the British widened their wedge to the southern outskirts of Gent, the largest Belgian city still in German hands. Ghent with population of 162,858, is the third largest city in Belgium.

The cut-off enemy garrison at the French port of Le Havre underwent last night a 1,000-ton raid by R. A. F. heavies. British units of the 1st Canadian Army driving to the outskirts of the city found its approaches heavily mined and covered by gun positions.

The day-long bombing of Brest was followed up last evening by British heavy bombers and the attack presumably went on today.

The German frontier area already was under heavy aerial attack. Blows which American heavy bombers struck yesterday at industrial and communications targets in Karlsruhe, Stuttgart and Ludwigshafen possibly were a prelude to a full-scale assault by Allied ground troops on the Siegfried Line. All three cities are just behind the line.

The Paris radio said American tanks had reached the German border at several new places beyond the Maginot Line, but gave no specific locations.

Huns Attacking

The German Propaganda Agency Transocean said in a broadcast dispatch that Nazi troops were attacking in some areas on the western front and asserted they had recaptured several inhabited places on the Luxembourg-French border.

"It is typical of German defence tactics that some units sacrificed themselves so as to enable larger units to withdraw to new lines," the agency said, indicating these operations were only delaying actions.

Headquarters announced yesterday that American 1st Army troops had captured Namur, 40 miles from the point where they penetrated Belgium.

Free Belgian broadcasts already have been recorded from Namur and also from the fortress city of Liege, 32 miles farther into Belgium and only 25 miles from Aachen, suggesting the Germans had been driven out of Liege or had fled.

The British 2nd Army column which swept north through Belgium, capturing Brussels and Antwerp, was reported by the Paris radio to be operating within sight of Rotterdam, great Netherlands port 50 miles north of Antwerp. The British took Antwerp practically intact and that important Belgian port now is being cleared. It cannot be used, however, until the Germans are driven from other fortress points commanding the Scheldt River estuary.

witnesses:

In the late hours of the afternoon a battalion of the Das Reich Elite Guard Division unexpectedly appeared and took positions on all roads leading into the village, blocking them by setting up machine-guns.

Troops then entered the town and ordered all women and children to go into the church, all men into certain specified houses. Some 600 women and children crowded into the church. Some wheeled their babies in perambulators. Other women and children who could not be squeezed into the church were ordered into the school adjacent to it.

Locked Buildings.

The Germans then locked the church and school and the houses into which the men had been herded.

At a given command the Germans suddenly opened fire with machine-guns, rifles and machine-pistols on all the huddled groups.

Weapons were thrust into windows and the occupants of the structures were mowed down.

The Germans mounted improvised ladders to fire through the church windows at the women and children packed there.

The cracking of the shots was accompanied by the terrified screams of women and children, the helpless crying of babies and the groans of wounded men.

Then the Germans hurled phosphorous grenades through the windows and soon the whole village was a huge bonfire.

There are bloodstains on the walls and floors of the wrecked church, school and houses. All the bodies later were collected and buried in common graves.

7 Are Sane.

The phosphorous grenades generated such heat that crucifixes and other metal fixtures of the church melted and poured in rivulets over the floor, then hardened. The altars are black and chipped.

These details came from the seven survivors who are sane. Their accounts were gathered by Commandant Marchel, chief of the French forces of the interior of the Limoges region and supported by photos taken of the bodies before burial.

A farmer, Pierre Milord, whose farm is a mile from the town, lost 12 relatives.

"Why did the Germans do it?" I asked him.

"No reason," he replied.

Marchel said reports published abroad that the burning was in reprisal for the killing of four German soldiers in the town were incorrect. There were no Germans killed there and no Maquis activity in that area, he said.

Missing Flier Now Reported Safe

COBOURG, Sept. 6—(ENS)—Previously reported mising, Flying Officer Leo O'Grady is safe in England, his family had been advised by cable. FO. O'Grady enlisted in August 1942 with the R.C.A.F. at Toronto and after graduating in August of 1943 went overseas in October of the same year. He was missing on June 8 after operations over enemy territory and is believed that he had to land in occupied France and had been hiding out until he had a chance to get out of the country. The arrival of the Allies gave him that opportunity.

FO. O'Grady has a wife in Toronto. His mother, Mrs. Michael O'Grady, lives in Cobourg, his father being dead for many years. There are two sisters, Mrs. Clarence Bevan of Cobourg; Mrs. W. Ware, Preston and a brother, Tom, in Batavia, N.Y.

Gordon Cook Wins Gordon K. Fraser Trophy

New members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society are conspicuous in the results of the Society's lawn and garden competition for this summer, of which the awards are announced by the secretary, W. C. Wilks. In five classes, comprising fifteen awards, twelve of them have been won by new members.

The report of the judge, Jan Jessen, follows:

Class A—For the best amateur lawn, garden and floral display, lot 40 feet and over. 1st, Mr. Gordon Cook, 125 Prince street, wins G. K. Fraser, M.P., Trophy, 94 points; 2nd, Mrs. S. O. Shields, 9 Anne street, 81 points; 3rd, Mr. W. J. Bull, 539 Downie street, 79 points.

Class B—For the best amateur lawn, garden and floral display, lot under 40 feet. 1st. Mr. Lorne Ritchie 255 McGill street, wins Horticultural cup with 85 points; 2nd, Mr. Bert Lucas, 294 Reid street, 82 points; 3rd, Mr. James Rigden, 364 George street 70 points.

Class C—Best lawn only, any size, not including floral beds or borders. 1st, Mr. Stroyan Leith, 617 Gilmour street, 85 points; 2nd, Mr. P. B. Munro, 276 Monaghan Road, 80 points.

For the greatest improvement open to residents living on the route of the Scenic Drive, which includes all the residential areas, the J. S. Bell Trophy, to be held for one year, was awarded to Mr. C. V. Elliott, 279 Monaghan Road. Mr. Elliott is heartily congratulated by the committee upon winning this trophy for the first time. Out of a rough building lot he has completed a veritable beauty spot. Terraced lawns kept in fine condition bordered by a lovely show of evergreens. Certainly a show spot amidst a locality of beautiful homes.

Rock Gardens

So many entries were received in the rock gardens contest that it was necessary to divide it into two classes. Many new rockeries are being built this year and indications point to this section becoming the most popular competition to be sponsored by the Society. Frank Biddle was selected to judge this competition, being an expert in this class of work, as well as possessing a fine garden of his own, though not entered in these competitions. Mr. Biddle reports as follows: "The number of entries in this particular section of gardening and the difficulties that have been overcome in some cases, prove the ever growing popularity of this phase of gardening and leads one to hope that many more will take up this fascinating hobby. Often an ugly spot or corner not suitable for ordinary planting can be converted at little expense into a beauty spot. A little planning and a free use of elbow grease combined with the groundwork of rough uneven rocks, mostly limestone, where possible, is all that is required. Most rock plants, like the Dianthus, Sascifragrs, Aubretias, Thymes and many others, particularly Semperverviums, give of their best when on or around Limestone. Results were:

Rock garden and pool—1st, Mrs. S. O. Shields, 9 Anne street. A well balanced, well tended exhibit of great variety. A miniature creek with hidden entry and exit cascading through it add to its attractiveness. 2nd, Mr. J. A. Smith, 150 Benson avenue, gains second award with a fine exhibit well planned and cultivated. 3rd, Mr. George Benton, 782 Water street, an outstanding feature of this exhibit is a very fine collection in variety of Semperviviums.

Rockery without pools:—1st, Mr. D. G. H. Melton, 508 Monaghan Road. The lay-out and foundation of this exhibit is an example of rock gardening at its best. 2nd, Mrs. W. Goodwin, 298 Edinburgh street. This exhibit must be seen to be appreciated. It has entailed tremendous work and bids fair to displace previous winners in this class. 3rd, Mr. Ray Stabler, 541 Bethune street. Appreciatively simple and pleasing design.

Several other entries were of high merit but were feeling the effects of the long spell of dry weather."

In all rock garden classes the first judging took place in June and the second judging during early August. All lawn and garden entries were first judged in early July and the second judging took place in mid-August. The Society appreciates the efforts of all competitors whose entries made for a very successful competition, and it is hoped the same large number of entries will be made in the Victory year of 1945.

Grateful appreciation is extended to Messrs. Frank Biddle and Jan Jessen, whose work as judges was of a high standard. Theirs was a most difficult task. A token of appreciation to A. D. Butcher and W. J. Smith for the efforts which made this an outstanding competition from its conception.

Mr. Wilks completes his report as follows:—

"Many of the entries in the recent flower show were from new members, and they very successfully competed against the older exhibitors. The results of the lawn and gardens competitions show the same trend. In a total of 5 classes comprising 15 awards, a very few of the older members won any recognition and we believe this is an indication of a renewed interest in horticulture by many who, having beautiful gardens, never thought they had much chance of winning. Out of 15 awards only 3 veteran exhibitors won any recognition.

These gardens are open to those interested in beautification and the winners are proud enough of their achievement to welcome visitors. Much of our success this year is due to the very energetic leadership of Mrs. G. K. Fraser, who gives unstintingly of her time to further the work of the Horticultural Society. Mr. W. J. Smith deserves great credit for the attractive prize list and the amount of time spent in arranging the various classes. We have had the largest number of entries this year, than in the past decade. Mr. Jan Jessen proved a very capable judge and we gratefully appreciate the time he gave to the task, judging the lawns and gardens."

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 6—(ENS)—A severe electrical storm accompanied by a deluge of rain terminated the long dry spell Tuesday morning. The Campbellford Cloth Co. plant was put out of commission for some time. The wires on the antenna of the Canadian National station were burnt off and many transformers in the town and district were disabled.

Military Training

Five years ago in discussing military training and our lack of preparedness we were often heard to say that we would never let it happen again. After the last war the pacifists took hold of things and the result was that we found ourselves in a most humbling position in September, 1939. The same thing can happen again, in fact we fear that it actually is happening at the present time. While military training after the war is a subject that is exciting much discussion and planning in the United States, little or nothing is being said in Canada. It is time right now that we started considering what we are going to do.

After the war will be too late for then the pacifists will spring into action. It will be a repetition all over again of the propaganda which rallied against cadet training in our schools. They will want our navy, our air force and our army starved. The Axis aggressor, they will say, has been crushed, so why keep men under arms; and we fear a war-weary people is likely to listen to them.

Canada's young men should all be compelled to put in a period of compulsory training not merely in militia units training a couple of nights a week, but on a full-time basis.

Such training necessarily will interfere with the education of our youth, but United States is considering proposals for the continuation of scholastic and technical courses in conjunction with its military training. Such a system is possible but we must get started right now on our plans.

Robot Bomb Came Too Late

Hitler's obsession, the robot bomb, has been claimed to have aided greatly in the fall of France and the collapse of the west front. He insisted upon concentration on the robots at the expense of airplane construction and by reason of lack of air defences the German Seventh Army lost more than twenty trained men, killed, wounded or captured for every man, woman or child in England killed by the weapon.

But the day of dread of the robot bomb is practically past. Many of the bases have been captured and the Second Battle of Britain has been won. The English took this latest menace in their stride. It was the sort of spirit which we had learned to expect from Englishmen. But in spite of all the courage displayed and their determination not to show their emotions we must not underestimate the agony and the strain that this manner actually hides. The bombs that fell on England tore English hearts and minds and nerves as terribly as those of any other race on earth. The English are not a hard or insensitive race; they are not dull or cold.

The modern English writer, E. M. Forster, has pointed out in describing that English manner which is too often misunderstood, "The trouble is that the English nature is not all easy to understand. It has a great air of simplicity, but the more we consider it, the greater the problems we shall encounter. It has depths that do not reveal themselves at the first gaze. We know what the sea looks like from a distance: it is of one colour and level. But if we look into the sea from over the edge of a boat, we see a dozen colours and depth below depth. The sea is the English character—apparently imperturbable and even. The depths and the colours are the English romanticism and the English sensitiveness—we do not expect to find such things but they exist".

Underneath the firm control which we have seen in recent months is the soul of England, hating darkness, destruction and cruelty, and loving light veneration and the decencies of peace. The sufferings endured are none the less deep because they are resolutely concealed.

But as the robot bombs cascaded across the English Channel to visit death and destruction, the world got a preview of the shape of wars to come. Robot bombs, with their destruction and death, may have been trying to teach mankind a lesson it has so far refused to learn—that mankind must banish war or war will destroy civilization itself.

The robot bomb has not affected the course of this war any more than the last one was by the airplane and tank. But it is laying bare a pattern which modern wars are following. At present it is highly experimental, it is not particularly accurate, it is a new weapon introduced too late to be a decisive factor; but it is a weapon of far greater potentialities than either the tank or the airplane and therein lies its danger to mankind.

A Big Task Ahead

Plans for the physical restoration and succor of 84,000,000 victims of Axis aggression must be devolved at the United Nations Relief and rehabilitation council meeting in Montreal next week. A gigantic task for the victorious Allied nations. The first meeting of this UNRRA was held last November and the Hon. Herbert Lehman, former governor of New York, was named director-general. In the nine months an international staff of about 1,000 workers has been built up. These are located in Washington, London and Cairo with investigators working in China, Italy, France and Geneva.

The geatest decision the council is going to have to make, is whether to extend the scope of UNRRA to cover relief and rehabilitation of enemy territories. This subject was bitterly discussed at the first meeting. At that time there was little sympathy for German and Italian peoples, particularly among those delegates whose countries had suffered conquest, murder, torture and looting at the hands of the Axis.

German deeds and actions in recent months we believe have not shown any tendency to improve the minds of these delegates. Should the proposal to further aid to the peoples of enemy countries once the war is over be accepted it must be a charge against war reparations which may be exacted from the conquered nations.

Supplying The Chinese Army

Getting supplies to the Chinese armies has been one of the greatest tasks the Allies had to face in the Far East. With the capture of Burma by the Japanese the Burma Road was cut off. But this road never did prove of a great advantage, for passage was difficult and transportation problems so serious that there was a general conjestion at the seaports and at main points along the road. The Ledo Road much further to the north leading from India to China was next built through unmapped country and over mountains. This has only been able to give to China a small fraction of the supplies which her armies required. Air transport has also been used and to great advantage, but the handicaps have been great.

All these have only supplied a mere trickle of the amount required. The Allies have made every effort possible and their latest move has been to send in caravans over the ancient trans-Himalayan route to China. The lodge journey, by narrow finding roads, perilous edges and deep defiles has been made by an Indian Army convoy. Where the road finally peters out, Thibetan ponies took over to carry the supplies on the last stage of the journey and over a 12,000-foot pass to the Chinese base at Leh.

The Allies' effort has been tremendous but so also has been the gallant fight put up by the poorly equipped Chinese armies against the Japanese.

A "Career Man" Wins

Peterborough friends of L. B. Pearson, one of the outstanding personalities of the Department of External Affairs, will be interested to hear that he has been elevated from the rank of Minister-Counsellor of the Canadian Embassy at Washington, to that of Minister Plenipotentiary.

Mike Pearson, as a boy, attended the old Peterborough Collegiate Institute under Dr. H. R. H. Kenner when his father was minister of the then George Street Methodist Church. His most recent promotion is richly merited. For the past two years he has done an able job at Washington. His personal popularity and capacity for hard work have advanced Canada's cause and equally with the embassies and agencies of the United Nations in Washington.

Apart from his diplomatic duties Mr. Pearson is chairman of the United Nations Interim Commission on Food and Agriculture, and chairman of the Supply Committee of the UNRRA. He is also a member of the Board of the United Nations Information Board. An able speaker, he is constantly in demand as an interpreter of Canada and a speaker on Canadian topics. Mike Pearson is what is known as a "career man" and the choice of him over one outside the service is to be commended.

Dewey Re-writes Party Platform

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

WHILE the Republican party admittedly failed at its last convention to lay down a clear or consistent policy in foreign affairs, its candidate, Mr. Dewey, is moving rapidly to repair this damage. From his utterances of the last few weeks it is possible now to see a positive and detailed Republican policy emerging, and it does not much resemble the Chicago platform.

Evidently after long thought and consultation with competent advisers, Mr. Dewey has developed his own platform to include the following main principles:

(1) The United States must enter a new league of nations which must be truly representative of all peace-loving states and must not be dominated by a few great powers. The Titan theory of a power-balance, maintained by the Big Three, is suicidal for the world's peace.

(2) The covenant of the new league must be divorced from the immediate post-war settlement. The settlement itself must be enforced by the victors in closest collaboration. "This responsibility to keep Germany and Japan disarmed," says Mr. Dewey, "should be shared with liberated peoples, but it cannot immediately be delegated to a world-wide organization while such organization is yet new and untried."

(3) The maintenance of peace must have force behind it. "Force is essential in any realistic program for the permanent maintenance of peace. But in the long-term solution of international problems, peace and security cannot be left to the sanction of force alone. To leave them exclusively in the hands of a permanent military alliance of four victorious powers would be immoral. It would be a denial of the ideals for which we are fighting.... We are fighting for our own freedom and to establish once and for all the rights of people everywhere to live in peace and freedom, safeguarded from the coercion of more powerful nations.... We must not sink into the abyss of power politics. We must rise to a new high level of co-operation and joint effort among respected and sovereign nations to work for and to preserve the peace of the world through all the years to come, based on freedom, equality and justice."

(4) Maintenance of future peace means an economic reorganization of the world, and it will be impossible without the removal of trade barriers and the maximum possible movement of goods throughout the world.

THIS statement from Mr. Dewey is, of course, a direct repudiation of the high-tariff policy enforced by his party throughout the inter-war period with results disastrous to the United States and the whole world. It is also a repudiation of the party's recent platform declaration in favour of continued protection. But the platform also included a demand for greater world trade, and Mr. Dewey insisted from the beginning that the latter was the governing clause in the trade plank. He has elaborated that clause in his subsequent public statements.

Most of Mr. Dewey's utterances on foreign affairs have been made in the company of and apparently under the tutelage of Mr. John Foster Dulles, the eminent lawyer who, though a Republican, has always been a vigorous fighter for the League of Nations. It is believed that in the event of Mr. Dewey's election Mr. Dulles would become secretary of state.

Since M. Dulles has explained Republican policy to newspaper correspondents in the presence of Mr. Dewey and with his approval, Mr. Dulles' statements can be taken as reflecting the mind of the Republican candidate. They represent the widest measure of international collaboration both on the political and economic levels.

MR. Dewey's political views, as here stated above, are buttressed by the strongest support for the integration of the world's economy. To this end Mr. Dulles has advanced, with Mr. Dewey's approval, the interesting proposal that the whole Ruhr industrial area of Germany, the economic heart of Europe, should be internationalized and administered by a commission responsible to the new world organization, so that its output of industrial goods would be available to every part of the continent, and its machines could never be used to re-arm Germany.

Mr. Dewey's economic views are further represented by his statement that Europe is a firetrap which has twice started a world conflagration in a single generation and that one of the chief reasons for its instability is its economic division. "High on the list of those causes (of war) is the fact that Europe consists of 350 millions of people divided into twenty-six watertight compartments," Mr. Dewey said. "Not one of these is self-sufficient. One of our prime objectives must be to build for a better opportunity for economic expansion and find the markets between the European countries."

While all these views agree in general with the policy of the Roosevelt administration, Mr. Dulles says it is not desirable to prevent the discussion of these larger questions during the campaign. The quadrennial election debate, he says, is the nation's great democratic educational process, and it should be used not to suppress discussion of foreign policy but to crystallize the people's views in favour of the best policy.

The Teachers Know

Nothing unreasonable is asked by Mr. Norman McLeod, President of the Ontario Teachers' Federation, when he proposes that teachers should have some voice in preparing the curricula for Ontario schools. The fact that they have been so long ignored in this matter reflects a short-sighted attitude on the part of provincial education authorities.

The teachers are the people who get right down to the root of the problems of education. They have the experience which fits them to decide what subjects should be taught, and how they should be presented to the students. They have generally been debarred, however, from putting this knowledge to any constructive use, and have been forced to follow arbitrary regulations laid down by officials who, at best, are not in intimate touch with the classrooms.—Windsor Star.

$100,000 For Buster

Mr. Woodbury Rand, a prominent lawyer of Brookline, a fashionable suburb of Boston, has left $100,000 for the benefit of his eight-year-old cat, named Buster. A codicil to the will cancelled bequests of $20,000 each to seven relatives "because of their contemptuous attitude and cruelty towards my cat." Of Buster's total inheritance $60,000 goes to a Boston safe deposit and trust company for the shelter and maintenance of Buster, and $40,000 to Mr. Rand's former housekeeper to be used for Buster's welfare. —London Times.

"FLYING EXPERTS"

Footnotes To Dittmar

(FROM THE NEW YORK TIMES)

IT is interesting to speculate as to what a Nazi thinks about as he reads the war news. He turns to the east. Bulgaria is out of the war. Hungary is looking for a way out. The High Command hopes to get some divisions alive out of Greece and Yugoslavia—maybe it can and maybe it can't. He turns to Romania. The Russians are in the oil city of Ploesti. In France the Allied invaders were allotted by Hitler himself Dieppe's nine hours and no more. They have been there twelve weeks. They have whittled the Nazi armies down to one-third or less of their original strength. They have liberated Paris, and wherever the Nazi goes in Germany itself he knows that millions of slave labourers are joyous at that news and sneering at him behind his back. The Allies are sweeping over the old battlefields, striding at full pace over lines that the German Army in the former war bitterly defended. If the Nazi is a highly placed official, he knows more than what is in the news. He has figures on raw materials, production and present strength of German units. This further information, not yet available to his public or to any public, is certainly not of a sort to encourage him. He cannot be sleeping well. What are his thoughts as he lies awake at 2 in the morning?

We may assume that the thoughts are blacker than anything he openly admits. But his open admissions are not calculated to cheer up a German public which submitted to seven years of shameful slavery in order to be able to win a war, and now, after five years of fighting, is about to lose a war. Let us listen to Lieut.-Gen. Kurt Dittmar, broadcasting on the Berlin radio. He says: "It is the intention of our enemies to deprive us completely of power, to enslave us economically, and even to destroy our people physically." He says: "The apparent course of events seems to justify greatly this hope of theirs. He says: "The greater part of France has slipped out of our hands". He admits that "it would be stupid to deny" that the defection of Romania "is unwelcome to us in every respect". On the military front he can only urge the troops and the civilians who feed and supply them to "fight to the last". But a chance to fight to the last is not, and he knows it is not, the reward Hitler promised his sheep and his wolves for twelve years of hunger, crime and horror.

So General Dittmar throws out a hint that the Nazis, who started their career by butchering and torturing their own people, are now fed up with "the primitive instincts of hatred, of killing and of deadly enmity". He wants to know what is "the purpose of the sacrifices and losses, those of the past as well as those of the future, those in the military as those in the political spheres", that the Allied governments appear to demand. One can read a little of what is in his mind. In this hour of their tribulation the Nazis would be glad, indeed, to bury all the millions of the innocent dead fallen at their hands not only on battlefields but in prisons and in murder camps. They would be glad to bury them and to leave the graves unmarked and forgotten. They would be glad to take off their uniforms and to sit in beer gardens, singing old folksongs and looking very jolly indeed. There would be an abundance of soap in this Nazi dream-world, enough, perhaps, to wash the blood off Nazi hands.

World's Most Exclusive Family

(FROM LONDON DAILY MIRROR)

YOU won't find the name Pedlingham in Debrett or Who's Who. It's not listed among the ancient names of Britain.

But the forty or fifty men and women who bear this name, which can be traced back hundreds of years, claim to be the world's most exclusive family.

They do not own vast estates or town houses. They are the ordinary folk of Britain—grocers, butchers and traders in other lines.

Their claim to exclusiveness was made in a BBC broadcast, a descriptive panorama of their native Herefordshire, called "Red Soil, White Faces."

The commentator told of the Pedlinghams—how they had all been born within five miles of the village of Colwall (pop. 1,990; 13th century church; once the home of Jenny Lind, the famous singer).

He told of their claim that there was no other branch of the family.

In the old gabled pub at Colwall, the Yew Tree, the two oldest Pedlinghams meet to smoke their pipes and sip the cider which once they used to make. And they talk over the 500 years of Pedlingham family history whcih they have been able to trace.

"Yes," says 76-year-old John Pedlingham, "we go back to 1456. That is the earliest record I can trace.

"We probably go back much further than 1400. I haven't looked, but I should think we were mentioned in the Domesday Book."

Of the forty to fifty members of this exclusive family, one is in Sydney, Australia. Another two are in Canada.

Old John tells how two of his father's uncles went to Canada and staked their claim on the site of what was to become Toronto. But the adventurers returned to England.

Oldest of the Pedlinghams is Albert, who retired ten years ago when he was 70 from his trade of cider making.

One of the two brothers in Canada is Charles Edward Pedlingham, R.R. 1, Barrie, and the other one is Samuel Pedlingham, Tillsonburg. Charles Pedlingham has two sons, Geoffrey, 6, and Peter, 5, to carry on the name. Samuel Pedlingham's only son John, is overseas with the R.C.A.F.

No Payment For The Peers

(FROM ST. THOMAS TIMES JOURNAL)

THERE is a common impression that the men who are Lords in Great Britain are all rich. A man is sometimes described as "drunk as a Lord," or "rich as a Lord." As a matter of fact a drunk Lord is a rarer sight than a dead donkey. Lords have got drunk, we suppose, but if so they have observed the niceties and confined their indulgences to the privacy of their homes. Not all peers are rich, either. Many of them are quite poor, much poorer than most of the members of that democratic body, the House of Commons; poorer even than some of the Labour representatives.

Someone mentioned in the House of Lords the other day that some of the members were unable to attend the sessions because they could not afford to maintain a residence in London and one in the country as well, and a suggestion was made about paying the Lords as the members of the Commons are paid — $2,400 a year and railway tickets. Lord Cranborne, speaking for the Government, said that payment of members of the Upper House would be "quite contrary to tradition."

The members of the Canadian and United States upper chambers are far better off than the members of the upper chamber in the United Kingdom who do not receive a nickel of pay or expenses. Tradition works a hardship on the members of the House of Lords, but it has one great advantage over the American system at least. As they never have to face an electorate they pass honest judgment on parliamentary bills.

In that respect they are also on the same footing as the members of the Canadian Senate. But in another respect the sometimes abused House of Lords is even a more impartial and more intelligent legislative body than our Senate. It is composed of men, the majority of whom are there because of their ability and all of whom have been well-educated, and have not been appointed by way of consolation after political defeats, or political services.

There are 783 titled men who are entitled to sit in the House of Lords—Viscounts, Lords, Barons, Earls and Dukes—all of whom, except the Dukes, are generally referred to as Lords, but comparatively few regularly attend the sessions. If they all took it into their heads to attend on the same day there would not be se[...] for half of them. Some of the titles have be[...] handed down from generation to generation [...] six or seven hundred years, but over half of th[...] were created during the past 50 years. T[...] latter are mostly scientists or industriali[...] nearly all men of means. The rest are the p[...] Lords; hereditary peers, who were just la[...] owners and had no professions or factories [...] bring them in large incomes, nothing but [...] rents from their estates. They are poor beca[...] Lloyd George began putting enormous taxes [...] their estates and castles 35 years ago, and, a[...] well-known, many of them have sold their [...] tates and castles because they could not af[...] to maintain them. A Bible Message

Paul, a servant of God, and an apostle of Jesus Christ, according to the faith of God's elect, and the acknowledging of the truth which is after godliness.... To Titus, mine own son after the common faith: Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ our Saviour.

For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee.... For there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, specially they of the circumcision: whose mouths must be stopped, who subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake....

Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled. They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate....

But speak thou the things that become sound doctrine.... For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world. (Titus 1: 1, 4, 5, 10, 11, 15, 16; 2: 1, 11, 12.)

'NO AGE' SCOTCH

The bottom of the barrel is said to have been reached by some Scottish distillers with respect to eight-year-old Scotch. According to reports from the New York area—an important market—"no age" Scotch of several brands will soon be reaching there from overseas, despite the earlier hope that the high reputation of this product would be maintained. No one who has any consideration for his health or his expectancy of life would knowingly drink "no age" Scotch any more than he would consume any other raw, immature liquor. Better to take Scotch off the market entirely until stocks are repleted after the war, than to invite deterioration and a loss of precious good will. The Canadian market is concerned in this matter, too.—Hamilton Spectator.

BRIGHTER AND HAPPIER

The story of the liberation of 130 Canadians held in a German concentration camp near Paris since 1940 makes good reading. With the turning of the tide in Europe, Canadians can expect to read more of these brighter and happier incidents of war.—Ottawa Journal.

Two In Line For Cabinet Posts

Ever since that C.C.F. meeting in Lethbridge when a heckler was thrown out and beaten up by four men for asking a question about Jewish bankers, there has been some discussion about the C.C.F. attitude to the Jewish people. There should be no doubts on that score.

BAMBINO MITTS BROWN BOMBER—This big moment in the life of Gunner Owen G. "Bambino" Holt, Oxbow, Sask., occurred in Italy recently, when he shook the mighty mitt of Sergeant Joe Louis, world heavyweight boxing champion. Holt was among those present when Louis and his troupe, just back from Corsica, put on a show for Allied troops at Lido di Roma. (Canadian Army Overseas Photo)

LSBA ERIC A. CLARKE

Leading Sick Bay Attendant Eric A. Clarke, R.C.N.V.R. who is stationed at HMCS Stadacona, Halifax, is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Clarke, Fraserville. He has just returned from escorting a patient to a Vancouver hospital. LSBA Clarke enlisted in January, 1943 and has just completed a 6½ months course at Halifax. His work is mostly surgical and he spent three months assisting in the operating room in the hospital and the rest of the time he was on ships. Prior to enlisting, the sailor was employed at Ivan Gray's Drug store in Millbrook.

Completely Destroyed

Most of the villages through which Allied troops have passed in Italy are entirely in ruins, writes Sgt. Samuel Calladine to his wife at 446 Wolsley street. He recently sent her a few souvenirs from his travels in Il Duce's domain and among them were some pictures of a waterfall outside of Terni. The men found it a restful spot after so much desolation. The falls were in a series in a beautiful glen. He also sent some of the lire invasion currency issued to Allied troops.

Sgt. Calladine is with the R.C.E. and has been overseas 4½ years. His wife and baby have been living in Canada for nearly a year.

Grateful For Kindness

The Victory Workers of Peterborough recently received a letter from Pte. W. Nelson, who is serving in Italy. In his letter, Pte. Nelson enthusiastically thanks this group for the cigarettes which they sent, and commented that they were scarce there at the present time.

"May I send my best wishes and regards to the Victory Workers for we appreciate the work they are doing for us. It is making Victory come that much quicker. May God bless and keep you and when we return we will certainly come and see you all."

Victim of Bombing

Gnr. Cecil Hully, R. C. A. was one of the many Canadian troops who were bombed by the R.A.F. in France recently. After many weary days in the lines, he and his comrades were being moved back for a rest, when the R.A.F. mistakenly bombed their own men.

As the bombs fell, he and his comrades threw themselves on the ground. One of the bombs hit an ammunition dump and a big concrete block fell on his neck and shoulder. When Gnr. Hully regained consciousness, his pals were no longer there and in clearing away the injured, he had been missed. It was thought for a time that the arm was fractured. The injured man walked to an advanced dressing station where he was fixed up and sent as a stretcher case to an English hospital. Since his arrival there it was found that there was no fracture and the arm is almost as good as new. After a short leave, he expects to be back in action.

This soldier too has seen blood plasma at work and tells of the important job it is doing.

"If you could see the blood coming back into the faces of badly wounded boys when they are given the plasma, you would realize how much it means. Over here the men are not only fighting, but giving blood donations as well and we hope that the people at home are doing their share of blood giving. It is so little to do and can save so many lives."

Receives Souvenirs

Mrs. Clair Dettman, 723 New Romaine street, has received a package of souvenirs from her brother, Pte. James Allen of Kinmount, who is serving in the Mediterranean area with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

Included among the articles were some delicate, hand-made chesterfield sets and there was a bronze medal, given as a souvenir for the soldiers among the first to arrive in Rome, June 4. One side of the medal is an impression of the gates of th Holy City.

Pte. Allen is the son of James Allen, Sr. of Kinmount and he joined the Army in December, 1941, going overseas two years ago in October. The parcel which was mailed August 14, was received here in less than two weeks.

GNR. JOHN V. SHANNON

During the past few weeks German resistance in the Canadian sector has noticeably slackened writes John V. Shannon of Deloro, who is serving in France with an artillery unit. The letter was to his cousin, Mis Ann Paquet of Deloro.

"Everything has been rather quiet here for the past few days. No Jerry planes or shells to speak of. I guess they had their fill of it at the beginning of the week. You probably read about it in the papers. Really a stupendous sight. It was a very dark night and all you could see were flashes of light from an enormous concentration of artillery guns and the thunder of Allied bombs. The earth actually shook. What a shellacking they took. I tried to feel sorry for them but could not. The following day we advanced as planned.

"I've seen quite a few Jerry prisoners, plus dead bodies—not at all a pleasant thing to look at. The infantry fellows must see some gruesome sights. It would take a long time to forget and no wonder they don't care to talk about it after they come home.

"We had a big inspection the other day by Field Marshal Montgomery. He is very informal, but has he ever got sharp eyes. You probably did not know that he was our commander-in-chief and gave use a little speech about what good fighters the Canadians are."

Gnr. Shannon went overseas in September, 1942 and prior to enlisting worked at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Comptany. He has two sisters in the armed forces, Staff Sgt. Margaret Shannon with the CWAC at Ottawa and Lieut. Teresa Shannon with the RCAMC overseas.

Runs In Family

Cpl. Daniel N. Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Carr of Musclow, 14 miles north east of Bancroft, is serving as sports officer at the local training centre. He has been in the Army almost three years and his wife lives on Bethune street. Three brothers, in the forces, and all sergeants. One is in Italy, one in France and one is at Mountain View.

Plays In Band

Enlisting three years ago, Alex Cumming whose wife lives on Bethune street, is serving with the R.C.A.S.C. Band at Camp Borden. Prior to enlisting he worked at the Fish and Chips store and used to play in the Salvation Army Band.

Doing A Job

The men of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders who have seen some of the toughest action in France, don't look on themselves as heroes, but that they are there to do a job, writes Sgt. Herbert Bowen to his family.

"All we figure here is that there is a job to do and it's up to us to do the best we can. And there sure are lots of men doing it too. In fact, I have the best bunch of men in my platoon one would ever want to meet."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen, 3 Grandview avenue.

Make Their Own Fun

Although prisoners of war, many airmen manage to relieve the deadly monotony with several ingenious ideas, Warrant Officer Cec. M. Bradburn of Janetville, who is held by the Germans, recently wrote about a sports day the men in his camp had.

"Last week we had a carnival and sports day here. The RAF built a 10-foot model Lancaster for the tableau. It was made entirely from Red Cross wooden and cardboard boxes, and we also had a very good day of sport. It was quite a success."

While on a bombing mission over Germany, nearly two years ago, the plane of which he was a crew member was riddled with enemy flak and he was forced to parachute from the plane. He was serving as a gunner in a bomber.

Brintons Whip Marines In Play-offs

Driving through to a 9 to 7 victory after nine innings of play at Ashburnham Bowl Tuesday evening, Brintons defeated Outboard Marines in the third game of the Intermediate Girls' League play-offs, leaving only one more game for Brintons to take for the championship.

Six errors by the Marines accounted for many of the Brinton runs, and the Marines also were hampered in that they didn't have their strongest team in the field.

The Marines started the scoring in the first frame. Ollie Smith singled to first, and with one out, scored on Helen Mark's hefty home run. This rang up a couple of counters for Marines in the first inning, and established an early lead for them.

Another run by the Marines came in the second inning; but the Brinton girls retaliated in their section of the second, scoring twice. Gertrude Lawson walked, scoring on Elsie MacKenzie's long double. MacKenzie came home when Jean Vass also donated a double base hit.

Another run for Brintons in the fourth inning, boosted their count to four up to that time; Maxine Monson scored when Bertha Phillips shot one into left field.

Came Brintons' turn at bat in the fourth, and three runs crossed when errors at first base, and second gave Brintons the opening to score Marg. Thompson, Gertrude Lawson and Jean Vass. And so on into the fifth, when another trio of runs came home, this time, made on two errors and three hits. Betty Hamblin, Marjorie Walling and Marg. Thompson came down the home stretch.

Marines fought back in the fifth inning, but managed to push across only one run, that by Ollie Smith scoring on a hit by Marjorie Smith.

Cracked Out Double

Another run by the Brintons in the sixth frame, ended that team's scoring for the evening, with the total of 9 runs, made on eleven hits, and six errors. Thelma Batley scored on a single by Doris Walker.

In the ninth inning, the Outboard Marine players made a determined attempt to sew up the game, and the score at that time favored Brinton 9 to 5. However, the batling intermediates could cross only two runs, which made the final count. Rita Barnes came home on Helen Mark's timely double, and Mark was brought in by another two-base hit, batted by Marjorie Smith.

Helen Mark pitched for the Marines, fanning two, walking one, and allowing 11 hits. Doris Walker went the entire course for Brintons, striking out two, walking one, and allowing nine blows.

Helen Mark batted best for Marines, contributing a home run in the first inning, a single in the seventh, and a double-base smack in the ninth. Ollie Smith struck three blows in four trips to the plate.

For the Brintons, Elsie MacKenzie and Jean Vass each had two-base hits, while no Brinton batter made more than two blows in four trips to the plate.

Joe Says

Don't let this happen in your home—

If you're going to keep the family warm this winter, you've got to start now and do something about it, by ordering your supply of coal. This year there is a definite coal shortage. Maybe, even now, you will be able to secure a limited quantity, only.

So don't wait. Every day makes it more difficult to meet the growing demand. And, remember, every day brings winter nearer to your home!

Westclox, Peterborough's sole hope for a provincial championship now that Plazas have passed out of the picture will swing into action here Saturday in the second game of their second round series with York Brass of the Toronto Olympic League, Queen City representatives. The Big Bens are playing the first game of the round at Sunnyside this evening, with the second fixture and the third if necessary here Saturday. The series with the Toronto team should be about the best girls' softball of the season and the Westclockers will have to come up with their best brand to meet the York Brass girls who have been travelling along in good style all season and probably will prove tough enough in the Ontario playdowns. However the Big Bens have plenty of class and if they keep their heads up in this all-important engagement should emerge victorious and be ready for their third clash in three years with the Western Ontario representatives. The Westclockers played some ragged ball in the second game of the Belleville round but they got rolling on end and finally over-powered the Reliance girls by scoring ten runs in the ninth and tenth inning.

Peterborough fans will have an opportunity this week to see a military championship decided when the team representing the local Military Training Centre will meet the Radar team A23 from Barriefield Camp in a series for the military championship of No. 3 District. The Soldiers will use their regular City League team against the Barriefield outfit and the first game will be played after the Westclox-Toronto battle at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon and the second fixture on the camp diamond on Sunday afternoon. By kind permission of Lieut.-Col. Turnbull, officer commanding the camp, the public will be invited to this Sunday afternoon battle and a silver collection will be taken up in aid of the British War Victims' Fund. If a third game should be necessary to decide the series it will be played at the local camp on Sunday evening. The Radar team is reported to be a strong outfit and they will undoubtedly prove lively opposition for the local soldiers. The series should produce a lot of good ball and no doubt the fans will take advantage of the invitation to attend the Sunday afternoon fixture.

Softball's Contribution

The two softball games on the program at Riverside Park Monday raised a very substantial sum for the Christmas parcel fund, with around 2,500 paid admissions and a hearty vote of thanks is due the Oshawa Colts and Toronto Simpsons girls' team for the readiness with which they accepted invitations to be here and for their contribution to the great success of the occasion and to the members of the two local All-Star teams for the willingness with which they sacrificed holiday trips in order to be here to do their bit for the cause. Thanks is also due to the umpires and other officials for their co-operation in this worthwhile effort. Incidentally it is worthy of note that softball has really done its share this summer in raising funds for war charities. The visit of Toronto Tip Tops and Sunday Morning Class helped to raise over $700 in two exhibition games, the City League staged benefit games in aid of the Navy Auxiliary, British War Victims' Fund, and the climax came Monday when the two games drew the biggest crowd in the history of local softball, an attendance that only a few games in the annals of ball have beaten.

Former members of the Prince of Wales Rangers active unit will be sorry to learn that Archie Minarsky, former St. Catharines ball player who joined the Rangers when they were in camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake and went to the Pacific Coast with them and played on the battalion ball team is missing in France. Bill Gaynon of the Niagara Falls Gazette has the following to say about it in his sport column: "A St. Catharines friend informs us that Archie Minarsky is reported missing in fighting in France. One of the most popular players ever to show in peninsula ball, the Toronto boy has been attached to the armed ranks for three years and this most recent report is bound to cause provincial regret. Archie played centre field for those fine St. Catharines clubs that extended Brights in the 1940 and 41 races and his work in those seasons will not soon be forgotten by students of ball in the years mentioned. He was a polished fielder and steady hitter and rates with the finest flychasers ever to show in these parts. Before being brought to this area by the late Touch Woods, Archie did much effective playing on Toronto sandlots and unlike so many imported workers, he did no advance boasting, but delivered to the satisfaction of peninsula followers. A grand fellow and outstanding athlete, we hope the worst hasn't happened to the fine chap, and we're certain to have numerous sport fans sharing similar wishes."

Now A Farm Club

"Over the week-end Pres. Peter Campbell concluded negiotiations with Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics to resume the relationship severed two years ago," says J. P. Fitzgerald in the Toronto Telegram. "As a preliminary the Pittsburg Pirates agreed to the change of connection with the Leafs which has been in vogue for two years though there was no traffic in players between the two clubs this season. It goes without saying that a major league connection is absolutely necessary to the success of every minor organization. No smaller league or any club thereof can hope to compete with the big fellows in the securing of players of class. This season Toronto spent some $45,000 for players and not one of them is saleable to go higher up. After all the business of a minor league club, working on its own, is to develop players for the major league market. Toronto has some pitching talent ripe for trial with the higher-ups and none of them has been begged, borrowed or stolen from any big league club or any farm attached. What talent Connie Mack can send here for next season must remain a problem but he says that he has several right now capable of helping Toronto materially."

There wasn't much baseball under the big top yesterday but what there was proved highly interesting. In the only game played in the American League Detroit Tigers gained half a game on all its opposition by defeating the Chicago White Sox 6 to 0 with Hal Newhouser tossing a neat six-hit shutout to grab off his 23rd victory of the season. The win pulled the Tigers to within two games of the league leading New York Yanks and a game and a half behind the Brownies. The American League race is getting hotter all the time and it looks like a dash down the stretch with possibly a photo phinish. The Yanks are favorites right now but any of the other three might do it. In the National League two of the game's best pitchers had the satisfaction of winning their 20th triumphs of the season. Mort Cooper did the trick in the first half of a double-header with the Cincinnati Reds, the champs winning 4 to 0 and then old Bucky Walters repeated the feat by blanking the Cards 4 to 0 in the second half of the twin bill. Each of the winning pitchers allowed the opposition only six hits.

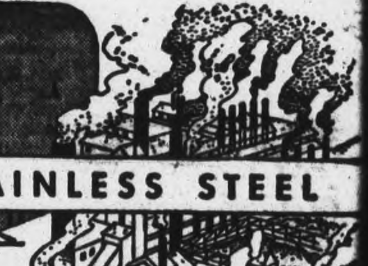
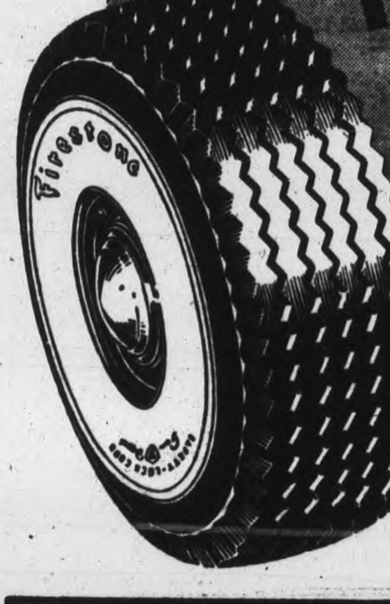
STEEL + CHROME = STAINLESS STEEL
RUBBER + VITALIN
means Firestone VITAMIC RUBBER





THE effects of atmospheric conditions on the rusting of ordinary steel is well known to all. By the same chemical action, the oxygen of the air causes deterioration of rubber compounds.

Just as the addition of proper alloying metals to ordinary steel prevents rust and corrosion, so does the addition of Firestone's Vitalin to ordinary rubber—synthetic or natural—prevent corrosion due to oxidation or from sunlight.

But this isn't the only advantage of Vitamic Rubber. Being fortified with Vitalin, Firestone tires are greatly improved in toughness, durability and heat resistance. And these all add up to even longer life and mileage. When you obtain your Tire Ration Certificate, insist on having Firestone Vitamic Rubber tires.

John Katan Wallops Referee; Dr. Len Hall Blamed

Dr. Len Hall, eminent citizen of San Francisco and doctor of pharmacy, who also does a lot of wrestling, left Peterborough last night demanding to know what a Californian had to do to get justice in Ontario when battling in a mat argument with a Canadian.

The Doctor had some right to complain, too, for he was the victim of circumstances, in his main bout battle with John Killer Katan at Tuesday night's Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena. After losing the first fall because his head didn't prove as tough as the apron of the ring, Hall squared the match with his favorite pile driver hold, only to be disqualified in the third round because Katan happened to lay a right upper cut on the chin of Referee Bert Maxwell.

The official went down for a long count and when he finally got to his feet in a dazed condition he blamed Hall for the punch and disqualified the Californian, awarding the fall and the match to the Palermo Panther. Probably everybody in the arena but Maxwell knew who had delivered the k.o. blow and Hall was so surprised at the disqualification that he couldn't think of half the things he wanted to tell the referee.

The screwball decision ended a battle that was just that. There are few things about roughhouse wrestling that Katan and Hall don't know and they trotted everything out during the course of the torrid tilt. The Panther used his headlock, supplemented with plenty of punches, worked on Hall's eyes and employed all the skulduggery he knows. The Doctor met him at his own game, tossed rabbit punches until Katan was dizzy and took a particular delight in demonstrating the Hall stomp which consists mainly of stepping on the other fellow's fingers and toes.

Katan Takes First

Katan had all the better of the early going. He had Hall in difficulty several times with headlocks and his gouging specialty had the Californian in distress. The Doctor fought his way out on two or three occasions with a punching barrage that slowed the Panther down for a while but Katan kept coming in and the climax came when the two battlers rolled out of the ring and continued their battle on the floor of the arena. As Hall fought to get back in Katan grabbed him and tossed him against the edge of the platform, the Californian's head striking the apron. He fell to the floor and was almost counted out.

Before the "10" was called, however, Hall managed to get back into the ring, but he was groggy and a pushover for Katan, who flopped him a couple of times with body slams and then spread him for the first fall. The round lasted 16 minutes.

Hall came back in good shape for the second round and began to carry the battle. He used a two-fisted attack on Katan that had Honest John making peace overtures but the Californian would have nothing that suggested a negotiated armistice. He kept on pounding and finally subdued Katan completely with a series of rabbit punches that dropped the Panther to the mat and it was an easy matter to apply the pile driver and take the fall.

It was fast and furious in the third round and Referee Maxwell had his hands full trying to maintain law and order. He was bowled over once when he took an elbow smash from Hall on the point of the jaw, and he warned the Doctor that a repetition of the offence would result in his disqualification. The result was that when Maxwell went in to break the wrestlers at the ropes when Hall had a headlock on his opponent, Katan cut loose with a right upper cut intended for Hall but that landed right on the referee's chin. Maxwell went down in a heap and remained down for some time. When he finally got to his feet he staggered over to Katan and raised that battler's right arm in token of the fact that Hall had been disqualified and the Panther was the winner. The Doctor's opinion of the verdict would have to be printed on asbestos.

Another Wild Battle

That wasn't the only wild battle on the bill. Absence from Peterborough doesn't appear to have worked any improvement in Strangler Bob Wagner, for that sturdy battler from Seattle looked and acted as ornery as ever in his semi-final argument with the hot-headed Frenchman, Pierre DeGlane, who handed out a receipt for every item of abuse he took—and he took plenty. The two gladiators hammered each other and occasionally Referee Maxwell, for as rough a half hour as has been seen here It ended in a draw with the two trading punches in the centre of the ring. There were several high lights. One came when Wagner bunted the heads of DeGlane and Referee Maxwell together and both were momentarily out for the count. When he tried the same stunt again a few moments later the two were waiting for him and they joined forces in dropping Wagner to the mat with a bang that must have been heard in Seattle. Badly shaken up, Wagner rolled out of the ring to save further punishment, but he managed to climb back in time to save being counted out, and he was still going strong when the bell rang.

Making his first appearance in Peterborough for a decade, Frankie Hart, who has been going strong for years in the Detroit-Windsor territory, met Jumping Joe Maich in a lightning fast and clever preliminary, and although Hart was outlucked and lost the match when his head collided with that of the Brantford acrobat, the Dutch Adonis showed little signs that the march of time was catching up to him. He was fifteen pounds heavier than when he used to battle Alex. Kasaboski and Jack Kogut here, but showed the same speed and dexterity, and he and Maich put on a clever demonstration of fast wrestling in which honors were about even until the head-on collision. Hart dropped to the mat after the crash and the Brantford boy only had to drop on him to win the argument.

Referee Bert Maxwell took a lot of punishment in handling the three bouts while Fred Scates held the official watch and introduced the battlers to the crowd.

Oriole Slugger Hits Homer To Clinch Game

By The Associated Press

Baltimore is in first place again in the International League pennant race and the Orioles can thankfully say they rode in on the potent bat of Outfielder Felix Mackiewicz.

With the score locked at 3-3 in the eighth inning of the first game with Syracuse last night, Felix blasted a grand slam home run to give the Birds a 7-3 decision. Previously he had poled a homer in the seventh to tie the game as the Birds trailed 3-2.

As the Orioles took the second game, 12-2, Felix gathered four for five to bring his batting total for the night to seven hits and seven runs batted in.

While the flock was forging back to the lead, Jersey City levelled Newark, 13-4 with a 16-hit offensive.

The Little Giants decided things in the third when they batted across six runs to chase Johnson.

The rejuvenated Montreal Royals whipped Buffalo's ace Walter Wilson, 3-1, and almost tumbled the Bisons from third place. Charley Fuchs pitched all the way for the Royals and together with Eddie Basinski led the attack, each getting three hits.

Toronto lost a chance to gain third place, losing to Rochester, 5-2. Bill Emmerich turned in a neat four-hit pitching job as the Wings tagged Red Kress for 11 blows. The margin of victory was three runs scored on Toronto errors.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—(CP).—Talk of six-man football being taken up in Winnipeg by service teams, prompted J. Colling of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer to recall that the game was brought into Belleville about seven years ago. He says Beleville was the first city in Canada to take up the new game, which was first played in Nebraska.

Capt. George Laughlin, now with the Canadian artillery in Italy, physical director at a Belleville school, made a special trip to Nebraska to learn the rules, and rudiments of the game. Belleville schools are proud of their record in winning all inter-scholastic playoffs held in Ontario since the game first caught on, and are hoping now to see a junior Ontario Rugby Football Union established, with the regular game slated for play, of course.

Colling says Peterborough, Belleville, Lindsay, Oshawa and Cobourg all are interested in a possible Junior O.R.F.U., though probably nothing definite will come of it until the war is over, and school athletics gain a new lease on life.

Like Mother?

This is really building for the future. Olive Bend Little, all-star hurler last year with Rockford Peaches of the All-American Girls' Professional Softball League, has a three-months-old daughter who is getting an early start on possible stardom. The Littles, Olive and friend husband, say baby Bobby has received a professional contract, effective 16 years from now, offering a salary of $100 weekly. If pitching prowess is hereditary, the baby has a good chance, since her mother tossed Peaches' only no-hitter last year, and plans to rejoin the club next year for another try.

It will be a sad blow if the urchin doesn't like softball when she grows up! That has happened all too often with children of famous athletes, who tried to make stars of their offspring.

Incidentally.

Herman Besse, who used to serve them up for Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League and Philadelphia Athletics of the American loops, will pay a return visit to Canada when the Sherman Field Flyers of Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, meet London in the International sandlot baseball tournament this month.....Ken Drouillard of Windsor, Ont., who played hockey last season with Pasadena Panthers of the Pan Pacific Hockey League, has nabbed himself a screen star for a bride in the shape (no pun intended) of Peggy Ryan.

Tigers Look To Trout And Newhouser

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Newhouser or Trout pitching and Trout or Newhouser warming up appears to be Detroit's success formula today as the Tigers crept to within two games of the American league-leading Yankees.

On paper the race still was between New York and St. Louis, separated by only a half-game, but Steve O'Neill's Bengals were feared most by the three other contenders.

O'Neil has been criticized by some sources all season for "overworking" the strong-armed pair, but the box scores continued to give the answers on the right side of the ledger.

It was Hal Newhouser's turn to take up the burden last night, and the 23-year-old southpaw did his job with a six-hit shutout over Chicago, 6-0.

With the bulk of the double-headers out of the way, it was probable that the pair would do most of the work in the 23 remaining games, eight of which were with Cleveland. Twenty-five games won appeared to be within easy reach of each.

All other contenders were idle yesterday so the Tigers gained a half-length on the field.

Mort Cooper and Bucky Walters blossomed forth as the National League's first 20-game winners as St. Louis Cards and Cincinnati took turns dividing 4-0 shutouts. Cooper outpointed Tom Delacruz on a six-hit effort in the opener, but Walters came back to match Cooper and beat Max Lanier in the finale.

BACK TO MAJORS — Willis Hudlin, for many years a pitcher with the Cleveland Indians, has been purchased by the St. Louis Browns from the Little Rock club of the Southern Association for the flag drive. Hudlin, 38, has been pitching for Little Rock, of which he is part owner. He has won 11 and lost four this season.

Friends Entertain Newlyweds At Party

LIFFORD LINE, Sept. 6.—(ENS). A party was held in the community hall in Janetville in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Howe, who were married in Toronto recently.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Howe was Miss Helen Hopkins, Reg. N., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hopkins, of Kinmount. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Howe of Janetville. The bride is on the nursing staff of the Toronto General Hospital, while the groom holds a position with the Massey Harris Co., Toronto.

Their friends at Janetville took advantage of their Labor Day visit to the village to make a presentation. The evening was spent in dancing. Grant Campbell and Leonard McNeil spoke briefly prior to the reading of an address. Guy McGill of Janetville, made the presentation of a sum of money, a gift from the community.

A family get-together was held Sunday at Scugog Lake, when about 36 friends and relatives of the bride and groom sat down to a picnic supper which was preceded and followed by boating and swimming. Friends were present from Toronto, Port Hope, Hamilton, Millbrook, Bethany and Omemee.

Hole In One

BRANTFORD, Sept. 6 — (CP).—A new kind of hole-in-one was noted at the Arrowdale golf course this week when George Wood, well known Hydro employee, became the victim of some good-natured joshing. The seventh hole at Arrowdale parallels a street on which a number of wartime houses are being built. On the job is a primitive but solid 'comfort station.' Driving off Wood landed the ball right in the open door of the 'rest room.'

Cobourg Stores Plan New Saturday Closing

COBOURG, Sept. 6 — (ENS) — Commencing on Saturday, Cobourg stores will all close at nine p.m. On Wednesday they will close at their usual hour of 12:30 noon and on the other evenings in the week the stores will close at 7:00 p.m.

Last week at a meeting of the merchants it was decided to close meat and grocery stores at seven and drygoods and other stores at nine in the evening, but this was later revised to nine o'clock closing for all stores. The nine o'clock closing will coincide with Port Hope and prevent business going out of town to Port Hope as might have been the case had Cobourg closed at seven on Saturday nights.

It was referred to the Board of Works.

Council Rejects Plan For Holding Rodeo

Requests for the use of Riverside Park and the market hall for two approaching public assemblies were rejected by the council Tuesday night.

Canadian Legion asked for permission to stage a rodeo show at Riverside, and Rev. Clayton Kidd of Nazarene Gospel Hall, Charlotte street, desired the market hall for a prophetic conference which Nathan Cohan Baskin, school companion of Stalin, will conduct September 27 to October 8.

The report of the property committee, as presented by Alderman Swanston, disposed of the market hall request by informing "Reverend Kidd that this committee feels the market hall is not suitable for the purposes for which he wishes to use it."

The ground at Riverside was considered too soft for the pounding hoofs of rodeo animals and there was always the danger of them getting loose among the spectators. Alderman Glover recalled a rodeo that was held at the Peterborough Exhibition some years ago and remarked that it was a "headache" to the directors worrying about the safety of the people for a whole week.

Two Months Sentence Given In Theft Case

Blake McNaughton, employee of Canada Packers, who pleaded guilty in police court last Saturday to stealing a chicken, two ham butts and a casing back from that firm was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee this morning to two months imprisonment in the county jail, to date from last Saturday.

John A. Bradshaw, after presenting character evidence, asked for a suspended sentence for the accused, pointing out that it was his first offence and that the carrying off of goods at the plant had become almost a practice.

"This man had his warning," remarked Magistrate Gee. "Another man was sentenced to two months in this court recently for the same kind of stealing from the same firm".

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry remarked that it was not the kind of case upon which the law looked leniently.

IN NORMANDY — L.-Cpl. H. Richardson, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Noble, 429 Chambers street, is now serving in Normandy. He has been overseas several months with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

Council Takes Further Steps Toward Hospital

To discuss with Bishop MacDonald "matters pertaining to hospitalization," the council apointed Tuesday night Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Sands and Dutton.

The council also suggested to the county council that if rural Peterborough intended to participate in the establishment of a civic hospital it should nominate and send representatives to a meeting at which the various phases of the project would be considered.

Mayor Hamilton reminded the members Tuesday night that the months were advancing, and that several important details of the preliminaries had not yet been decided. One was whether the county was going to join hands with the city in providing a hospital for all the people, and the other was "who would vote on the hospital bylaw" which would have to be submitted to the people for approval.

His Worship said the idea the council had in mind, as elected representatives of the citizens, was a general hospital. If that was to be the objective, then all citizens should vote; but if it were to be carried through in the manner of the establishment of Nicholls Hospital the voting would be restricted to the Protestant citizens.

Suggest Interview

Alderman Glover said that the special committee had apparently reached a stage of preliminaries at which Bishop MacDonald should be interviewed for the purpose of discussing the hospital plan, and that the Mother Superior of St. Joseph's Hospital should be visited by the committee.

Alderman Sullivan remarked that the procedure seemed timely and also correct. St. Joseph's Hospital was administered by the Sisters of St. Joseph, and Bishop MacDonald could be consulted as representing the Catholic people of the city and county.

Alderman Glover said he had heard that the Sisters of St. Joseph were planning a 50-bed addition to their hospital, but, even if that were so, the enlargment would bring the projected total of hospital beds in Peterborough to the number required for proposed provincial assistance.

County Relations

As to county relations, Alderman Dutton said the special committee had invited representatives of the county council but Warden Isaac Anderson and his associates had not attended them.

The motion by Aldermen Dutton and Sands observed that for intelligent and complete understanding of the civic hospital project the county council should be represented at the planning sessions which are being held.

Mayor Hamilton remarked that his information intimated that Warden Anderson was quite prepared to attend a meeting that might be arranged between the two municipal bodies.

Three Appointments

The council made three additional appointments to its special hospital committee, Mrs. Vern Morphet, G. Wilson Craw and a representative of labor.

Alderman Sands, chairman, said the members had felt of late that several interests were not deputized in the present personnel of the committee. He particularly mentioned the women of the city and the press.

"There ought to be a representative of labor, too," Alderman Bradburn suggested. "Not so long ago they said they were being overlooked in this kind of appointment, and here is a good chance to begin."

"A mighty good suggestion," Alderman Glover commented.

When the motion was formed the council did not know with certainty which way to look for a labor man who would be generally representative of the trades.

Mayor Hamilton said he understood some of the unions were planning to revive the Labor Council. Alderman Sands phrased his motion, which Alderman Glover seconded, to the effect that the Labor Council, when and if it is organized, be requested to name a representative to the special hospital committee.

Gramophone Needed By Sailors On Ship

Men serving on merchant ships haven't much opportunity for entertainment and the long convoy trips across the ocen, broken only by action now and then become very wearisome for the crew. Gunner Bill Hewitt, 213 London street is a DEMS gunner on loan from the Navy to the Merchant Marine and he is appealing to the people of Peterborough on behalf of his pals.

In their travels, the gunners have managed to collect a few records and have ransacked Halifax on the hopeless task of trying to find a gramophone. Gnr Hewitt is now hoping that perhaps he will be able to find a portable phonograph to take back with him to his post.

"We have four hours on watch and are off eight and the time goes very slowly. Occasionally they have the loud speaker on and we get snatches of English music, but it cannot compare with Canadian orchestras. We looked in Halifax, even thought we knew it would be impossible to find one, and now I am trying to find one in Peterborough to take back".

Although he only arrived Monday, the gunner is leaving Thursday morning, which doesn't leave much time to get after the gramophone. Anyone wishing to help the Navy lads along can get in touch with him by phoning 9655.

Picnic Planned For Children Buying Stamps

For all the school children of the county, including their city contemporaries, a picnic at Nicholls Oval is being planned for Wednesday afternoon October 4 for their sale of War Savings Stamps to the total of $25,000 for the purchase of a Hurricane fighter plane.

This celebration of an important "victory" on the junior home front is being arranged by the War Savings Stamps group of the War Finance Committee. Its convener is Gordon Monkman who in a letter to the council Tuesday night proposed that the council authorize the declaration of a public holiday for that Wednesday afternoon in order that the urban elders might go along with the boys and girls of the schools.

Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Sullivan expressed doubt as to the industries of the city wishing to suspend their operations for an entire afternoon.

As to the holiday for the children of the schools in the city, Alderman Dutton said that was surely a matter to be decided by the two school boards. The reply of the council to the letter from Mr. Monkman requested him to express to the children the council's warmest congratulations upon the success of their fine effort. The council also affirmed its sympathy for the celebration but felt that was as far as it should go.

Youth 18, Fined $5 For Careless Driving

Donald Wade, 18, who pleaded guilty to careless driving following a recent accident, was fined $5 and $2.50 costs. Provincial Constable Price Morris who laid the charge said that the damage done had been to the accused's own car.

Roy Wager pleaded guilty to having liquor in a place other than his residence and was fined $10 and costs, after Provincial Constable Price Morris had told the court that the accused had had a couple of pints of beer at a dance.

Joseph Nezezon, 60-year-old Roumanian, charged with assaulting a soldier on a C.P.R. train, occasioning actual bodily harm, was remanded for a week. Crown Attorney McElderry said that the injured soldier, badly cut on the back of his neck would be in hospital for some time.

SERVING OVERSEAS — Pilot Officer Joseph Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Sullivan, 666 Downie street, is serving overseas. He received his commission when he graduated as an air gunner at Macdonald, Manitoba.

Council Praises Holiday Program

Warm praise for the members of the committee in charge of the Labor Day program was extended by the council Tuesday night.

Mayor Hamilton and his associates were not only delighted with the success of the program in its variety of detail, afternoon and evening; they were actually amazed chiefly by the attendance figures and the co-operation of everybody in the splendid cause of buying Christmas gifts for Peterborough's men and women on active service in the Navy, Army and R.C.A.F.

Alderman Swanston's motion of appreciation was seconded by Alderman Bradburn and included Alderman Sullivan's suggestion that similar letters of thanks be sent to the Officers Commanding the three air stations from which the planes came for the afternoon's demonstration of aerobatics speed and precision flying.

Ken Currie was the chairman of the general committee directing things for the women's auxiliaries; W. J. Hamilton was vice-chairman; Ron McGrath secretary, and so on down the list of helpers, including Frank Buckland as announcer, all of whom may feel that they have received an extra-special orchid from the city council.

Flt. Sgt. Snider Awarded D.F.M.

Flight Sergeant E. A. Snider, son of Richard Snider, Haliburton, is one of three men to have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal, it was announced by Air Force Headquarters today.

The citation read: "Flight Sergeant Snider is a most capable and determined air gunner and has taken part in many sorties. On a recent occasion on the outward flight to Villeneuve St. Georges, his aircraft was attacked by a fighter. Cooly and skillfully, Flt. Sgt. Snider directed the necessary manoeuvres. As the attacker broke away, he delivered bursts of fire which struck the enemy aircraft, causing its destruction. This airman has proved himself to be a most reliable and courageous member of aircraft crew."

Aldermen Suggest Victory Celebration

Planning for a fitting celebration of victory was proposed by Alderman Dutton in a resolution seconded by Alderman Sullivan, authorizing Mayor Hamilton Tuesday night to call a public meeting to be representative of all interested groups of citizens.

"It would be presumptuous to act in the capacity of a prophet," Alderman Dutton said, "but it may not be too far away to consider plans for a proper celebration. Everybody is gratified and happy about the trend of news from Europe, and it would appear from the daily press reports that the Allies are bringing victory at last in sight."

The motion authorized Mayor Hamilton to call a public meeting "at an early date."

Council Refuses To Issue Permit For Gas Station

City council's relations with the two oil and gasoline companies with storage tanks in Ashburnham virtually marked time Monday night even through a discussion that sounded a note of court action against the Canadian Oil Company.

Since the fire last fall that destroyed the latter's company's service station on Hunter street east, the council has been trying to persuade both companies to remove their big tanks to some location beyond hazard to property.

British-American have tentatively expressed a willingness to meet the wishes of residents across the river who were deeply alarmed by what they considered a serious threat to property and lives in the possible event of fire reaching the gasoline storage tanks. Recently this company intimated that they were finding difficulty in obtaining a substitute site that would be convenient to them. A letter last night from the secretary to president informed the council that the president in temporary absence from Toronto had directed that a full investigation be made of the discussions and proposals.

Following the routine receipt of that letter Alderman Glover said he understood a Canadian Oil Company is refitting its service station pumps to resume retail sale today.

City Solicitor Hycke stated that a local bylaw of 1931 required a permit "to be taken out for those things, and if the company goes ahead all we can do is to issue a writ for an injunction."

"The company had a license prior to that bylaw, and the difficulty is to anticipate what a judge would say," Mr. Huycke added.

Alderman Bradburn remarked that the old service station pumps were still in position, and if they were to be used again without a building being erected the company might say that the bylaw did not apply in those circumstances. He said he was opposed to the company being allowed to do anything "over there."

At one stage of the earlier conversations, according to reports in council some time ago, some representative of Canadian Oil agreed to come to Peterborough and meet any Ashburnham citizen who would be interested enough to come out to hear him, but nothing came of that undertaking, and possibility of harmony has developed into discard since then.

Subsequently Mayor Hamilton telephoned an official of the company and his recollection of that incident was to the effect Monday night that "he swore all the time, used the most irritating kind of language and told me that if the city wanted a fight we could have it. He telephoned me once after that from Toronto, but I simply refused to talk any more with him. We are winning a war in Europe, and at home we are losing if a tyrant like that can force through things of that kind. I just want you to know the attitude of this man. He even said he could get a petition from the residents of the Ashburnham neighborhood for them to keep their tanks where they are."

The outcome of the discussion was a motion by Alderman Glover, seconded by Alderman Sullivan, that the corporation of the city will not issue a permit for a gasoline service station, according to the city's bylaw.

Alderman Glover remarked that the Canadian Oil Company had so far only repainted the old pumps, but there was no information as to whether they intended to proceed with the building of a new service station.

Perry St. Group Neighbors Add $11 To Fund

About two weeks ago, this column on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund reported an effort by three young girls living on Perry street, a bazaar they held having raised $7.50 to assist the victims of robot or flying bombs in Britain at that time.

In turning over the money, an intimation was made by the mother of two of these girls that the neighbours were uniting in an effort to raise money for comforts for boys serving their country in the very near future, and this having been duly accomplished with considerable success, this same group found they still had a quantity of things in hand to sell, so they decided to hold a yet further event, to once again give assistance to the sufferers from bomb attacks over Britain.

Some of these articles were disposed of through bingo games, and tea-cup reading proved also a factor in helping the proceeds, so that in all, the nice sum of $11.60 was raised, and is to-day credited to Perry Street Neighbors, who centre around the terrace of houses on the north side between George and Aylmer streets.

Neighbors uniting in working for such a worthy cause as this, extend their own spirit of neighborliness to a much wider field which must surely be felt by the recipients in far off Britain, and exhibit a real community spirit worthy of emulation in a great many ways.

Children Continue Aid

For the 4th report in a row, the efforts of young children continue to hold the spotlight, two more of such being recorded to-day, with Peter Carveth, Eldon Conroy, Hubert Panter, Jack Storey and Marilyn Edgar combining to hold a bazaar at 505 Sherbrooke st. in aid of the fund. Their efforts produced the sum of $6.06 included into today's receipts.

The second of these efforts concerns the work of Phyllis and Leonard Vyse and Joan Parnell, held in East City last Friday, from which they raised the sum of $5.23 from donations given them by merchants and friends, a small number of left overs being reserved or inclusion in a similar event later on.

Personal Gift List

Another list of purely personal gifts has been started, already a few of such being on hand, and it is hoped that others will come forward to swell this highest form of personal participation in such a worthy cause as this represents.

Oscar Jessen Hurt In Battle

Formerly with the production department of Genelco, the 22-year-old soldier has been in the army for more than two years, going overseas in 1943.

Crusher Kills Bancroft Man

BANCROFT, Sept. 6 (ENS) — Sanford Woodcock, Monk Road, died in a few minutes this morning after he was caught in an electric stone crusher which he was operating at the Mica and Stone Products Mill, here.

The 55-year-old man was working his machine when his heavy overalls became entangled in a clamp on the shafting. No one was close, to him at the time, and he was whipped around many times before the power could be turned off. Another workman hearing his cries of agony, tried to pull the stricken man away, but the force of the turning machinery tore Mr. Woodcock from the other man's grasp.

Dr. O. W. Anderson, coroner, who lives close to the plant, was immediately called, but when he examined the operator, he was dead. Mr. Woodcock had both legs and one arm badly crushed and both feet were cut off.

Surviving beside his widow are seven small children, his mother, three sisters and one brother.

City Purchasing Snow Loader To Cost $7,950

"I think we'll be very severely criticized if we buy that," said Alderman Mark as the council decided Tuesday night to purchase for $7,950 a Barber-Greene snow loader for delivery some time prior to Christmas.

Several members of the council who have seen this type of machine in operation, including Alderman Sullivan who knows of its capabilities from reports and observation in Verdun, P.Q., and Kingston, have been advocating for several years the advantages of this machine as an additional unit of the street cleaning department.

A Barber-Greene agent showed a reel of motion pictures taken of actual operations in Buffalo and other cities. The screen was set up in the committee room last night, and after the council returned to its chamber Alderman Dutton proposed purchase in a motion seconded by Alderman Sands.

Alderman Mark was the solitary dissident. "Do you think we should put that amount of money into that loading machine?" he objected. "It will do the work of men who may find themselves on relief again. It happened before."

"And we are all hoping it's not going to happen again," Mayor Hamilton said.

Pays Quickly

"I was told in Kingston," Alderman Sullivan said, "that this kind of machine saved its cost over and over again in a comparatively short time. After they had found out what it would do they wondered why they had waited so long to make the investment."

Alderman Bradburn advised that the cost of the snow loader be spread over ten years, "and not ask the ratepayers to pay for it all in one year." The members agree with his suggestion.

The leader has a capacity of 10 to 20 cubic yards of snow a minute, and eliminates the shovelling job in the removal of snow from city streets. Snow plows pile up snow along the gutters of streets and the loader follows in its train. Its operating feature is a six-inch hardened steel scraper blade 7 feet 6 inches wide on which are fastened at intervals steel teeth; also a spiral feeder with notched, replaceable wearing strips, cutting into the accumulated snow and conveying it to an endless belt travelling upward for unloading into attendant trucks.

Liquor Purchases Described To Court

Two Norwood youths swore in police court this morning that they had driven out to the home of Arthur Lee in Dummer township on August 5 and bought a bottle of Canadian whisky for $10 and six pints of beer for $2.40.

Lee was charged with illegally selling liquor and pleaded not guilty. He was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair.

The two crown witnesses Leslie Peoples, 18, and Thomas McGarvey, 17, both identified a bottle produced in court as the one containing whisky that had been bought from Lee.

Peoples swore that he himself had bought the beer and had seen McGarvey buy the whisky and that he was an eye witness of the transaction by which Peoples obtained the beer.

The case is proceeding.

Women Urged To Make Catsup

Nutritional authorities suggest that you take some of those fresh tomatoes—when they are available—and turn them into catsup.

You will be able to find many uses for this catsup later on when fresh tomatoes aren't so plentiful. One of its most common uses is with hamburgers. Some families like catsup on sea food and on scrambled eggs. It gives added flavor and interest to many dishes.

For two pints you will need about fifteen medium sized tomatoes. You will get best results with ripe red tomatoes that have plenty of juice. Slice them and dice a couple of medium size onions. Simmer the onions and tomatoes together for about half an hour, or until they are soft. Then press them through a sieve.

Now get together the spices—one stick of cinnamon, one teaspoon of whole cloves, and one large chopped garlic clove. Tie the spices in a clean thin white cloth. Drop this back into one up of vinegar and simmer for about half an hour. Remove the spice.

After that, add the spiced vinegar to the strained tomato mixture—which has been boiled down to one-half its original amount. Also add one-half cup of sugar, salt, paprika, and a dash of cayenne pepper. Boil these ingredients together for about ten minutes or until the mixture has begun to thicken. Be sure to stir it constantly to keep it from sticking.

Then pour the catsup into hot sterile jars. Use on the jars with glass lids—the lighting type jar, or jaw with three piece top. Zinc or metal lids aren't recommended for keeping catsup because the acid is likely to eat into the metal and corrode it. Fill the jars with catsup and seal them so they will be airtight. Paraffin isn't enough. Catsup should be sealed with glass tops.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Vegetarian dishes make agreeable variations in the diet and also reduce the food bills. They are welcome in any household where the program of using meat only once a day is being followed. Dishes containing a large percentage of milk, eggs or cheese, nuts or gelatine are nutritious and typically vegetarian. People not accustomed to meatless menus may experience an unsatisfied feeling at the end of a meal that is entirely made up of vegetables. This is largely due to the fact that meat is a very highly flavored food. The housewife will do well therefore to offer some well seasoned dish in a vegetarian menu.

Mock Sausage

1 cup dried lima beans, or 3 cups cooked beans of any kind, 2-3 cup bread crumbs, 3 eggs, 2 tablespoons fat, ½ teaspoon sage, salt and pepper. Pick over and wash beans, cover with water and let soak over night. Drain, cook in boiling salted water until tender, then force through a strainer. Add remaining ingredients, shape into the form of sausages, roll in crumbs, egg, and crumbs again. Saute until brown and serve with tomato sauce.

Vegetable Luncheon

1 lb. kidney beans, 1 cup diced carrots, 1 green pepper chopped, 1 onion, 2 cups cooked tomatoes, ½ cup rice, ½ dozen large mushrooms. Soak the beans in cold water overnight. Drain and cook in boiling water, slowly, for about 4 hours. A ham-bone or a piece of bacon cooked with them adds to the flavor. Drain and add carrot, pepper and thin slices of onion and the tomatoes. Simmer until tender. Boil the rice separately in the salted water, drain, and add to the vegetables. Garnish with sauted green peppers and mushrooms. Served with some milk, egg or cheese dish, this dish has plenty of flavor and iron. The rice water can be saved and used in soups or gravies.

Vegetable Loaf

½ cup cooked green peas, ½ cup cooked green string beans, ½ cup chopped boiled carrots, 1½ cups milk, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 egg. Press peas through a sieve, cut beans in small pieces, then combine all vegetables. Add to them the milk, slightly beaten egg, crumbs and seasoning. Turn into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 or 400 degdees) until firm.

Carrot Loaf

2 cups ground carrots, 2 cups bread crumbs, 2-3 cup chopped nuts, 3 eggs, 2 cups strained tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons minced onion. Mix the ingredients in order given. Shape the mixture into a loaf and place in a greased baking pan. Steam the loaf for one hour, then brown in the oven (450 degrees F). Serve with a cream sauce.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, September 7

STEADY and well-organized efforts to achieve uncommonly promising and productive objectives are encouraged by this day's lunar and mutual aspects. It is probable that a unique, novel and ingenious attack of strange openings or propositions may reach a new high in the way of accomplishment. While in such projects the influence and financial assistance of those in standing may be counted upon there may also be many conflicting and menacing circumstances, which may involve change, travel and entirely new and original tactics. In all emergencies be conservative with funds and do not provoke antagonisms.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is have the encouragement of a year of great and enduring achievements in which strange and perplexing problems or propositions arise to tax the ingenuity, acumen, and brave attack under opposition rivalry and probably unique factors. Concentrated efforts well-laid plans and strategies may attract the attention and hearty co-operation of those in high places, and in the long run reach new levels of accomplishment. Work for security, sound foundations and worthwhile triumphs but be conservative with funds and friends.

A child born on this day may have staunch and dependable tallents, skills and aims, with ingenuity, intuition and novelty or progressive ways and means of achieving worthwhile objectives even against rivalry and jealousy.

Unfortunate Victims Must Either Decide to Endure Browbeating or Leave Home

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married two years. Nothing that I do pleases my husband. He nags me until my life is not worth living. He has scared me into trying to be everything I think he wants me to be until I feel like a puppet that he works with a string. I have tried everything, consoling, encouraging, reasoning, giving into him, but to no avail. He just nags.

I don't want our marriage to break up if we can manage to get it on an equal basis, but I don't know how to do it. What can I do?

NAGGED WIFE

Woman Must Take It

ANSWER: We must always think of nagging -- a feminine vice, but women have no monopoly on it. Men have it too, and a man nagger is ten times worse than a woman because he sits in the boss's seat, whether he is a husband or an employer. A woman, in especial, has to submit to all of her husband's moods and tempers, have him object to her every plan; criticize everything she does; blame her for everything from the price of food having gone up to the weather, and take it, and like it. Or take it without liking it.

But the woman nagger's style is more or less cramped by the fact that she is dependent on her husband, and that he can get away from her most of the time, and she is practically reduced to doing her nagging at the breakfast table and the hour or two after dinner. Also she is handicapped by the curious ability that husbands acquire or being able to shut their ears to nagging and not hearing a word that Friend Wife is saying when she tells them for the millionth time of their faults and shortcomings.

There is no way of reforming a nagger, whether male of female. Not even a miracle-worker could pull off such a stunt as changing him or her. The only thing their unfortunate mates can do is either to make up their minds to spend their lives being harried and browbeaten, or else put on their hats and leave.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am not happy. Have been married eleven years. Have a fine wife and two boys. Am 30 years old. But I am sad. The most pleasant period of my life was while I was working away from home and only going back on week-ends twice a month, and I'd like to repeat that experience.

I have a good job that can support two homes. My secretary and I are much in love with each other and between dictating letters we have planned our future together—our little home, a baby girl, Angora rabbits, etc.

What is your advice? Continue with my wife and family? Or take Secretary and live the most ideally happy life that ever was? Or both?

BEN

America No Place For Bigamist

ANSWER: Well, Ben, I would suggest another alternative. Move to some country where polygamy is more openly practiced than it is in this, for the laws and customs and the high cost of living in our fair land do not suggest multiple families as a cure for the blues.

But, seeing as how you are 30 years old and have intelligence enough to hold down a good job, what makes you think that having two wives and families would secure you an ideally happy life? Have you ever known a man to wreck his home without cause who ever found peace and happiness in another home? Have you ever known a man to leave a good woman for a bad one who didn't regret it? Did you ever know a father to forsake his children and forfeit their love and respect who didn't come to the time when he would have given his very soul to have their affections? Did you ever know a love nest to endure more than a very few years?

Believe me you won't find any happiness in setting up a harem.

You CAN have brighter teeth!
Impartial laboratories made hundreds of tests. Scientists checked their findings with photoelectric measuring devices and authorize this statement: Pepsodent Powder produces a lustre on teeth twice as bright as the average of all other leading brands . . . brighter than any of them — bar none! These results have been double-checked by identical twins who made practical in-the-home tests . . . by technicians in dental clinics . . . by dentists in their own offices. The result is always the same: Pepsodent Powder makes teeth far brighter. Get Pepsodent Powder to make your teeth brighter . . . today!
Teeth Can change your Personality!
Crooked, crowded teeth often do more than mar a person's looks. Frequently, they make that person shy and self-conscious; give them an inferiority complex. But this can be corrected. For today, modern dentistry can do wonders in straightening crooked, misplaced teeth. Or, like the movie stars, you can have chipped and broken teeth recapped. Your dentist will tell you what needs to be done and how quickly you can expect results. Yes . . . it's the truth . . . your dentist can help you have sound, good-looking teeth; but it's up to you to keep them clean and bright through careful daily brushing!

Aircraft Team Beats Packers

Highlighted by the steady hurling of Hefferman, Aircraft won a decision against Packers in an Industrial League softball game at Brinton Field Tuesday evening, as they beat their way through seven innings of fast play to a 8 to 4 victory.

Striking out six batters in the first four frames, Hefferman kept the tilt in control all the way, and turned back the last 12 batters without allowing any to reach first base. Foley, pitching for Packers, became wild in spots, but played good ball during his steady spells.

For the Aircrafters, right-fielder Florence struck the hardest blows, connecting three times out of four trips to bat.

The game was an exciting one, but the only time Packers were allowed to threaten, was in the fourth frame, when they lagged one run behind Aircraft, and almost tied the game. From then on, however, the game belonged to the Aircraft players, the decision was theirs already, as far as the spectators were concerned.

The teams:

Aircraft—Goodson, lf; Hefferman, p; Beesley, 3b; Morrison, cf; Patterson, c; Florence rf, 1b; O'Dette, 1b, rf; Robertson, 2b; Hawley, ss.

Packers—S. Downer, ss; A. Downer, c; Foley, p; Begley, 3b; Detlor, 1b; Godfrey, cf; Todd, lf; LaFave, 2b; N. Downer, rf.

By innings:

Aircraft	302 003 0—8
Packers	211 000 0—4

Lions' Ball Team Defeats Wildcats

Cavanaugh Wildcats and McGrath Lions met in their eighth hardball tussel at Riverside over the week-end, with junior Lions coming out on top 12-8, making it their fifth win against Wildcats one, with two no games.

The Wildcats started off well, bringing in 3 runs in the first inning on one walk and five hits. However, the Lions were not caught napping and pushed over seven runs on two walks and eleven hits. Wild pitches and a few errors looked bad for the Wildcats at the end of the first but from the second on, both tems settled away for a real good game.

Killingbeck, on the mound for Lions, was touched for 24 safeties and 2 walks, with 4 strikeouts. Heffernan, southpaw hurler for the losers, allowed 14 hits and 3 walks, with 4 strikeouts. Casey replaced him on the mound near the end of the third and allowed 5 hits but was backed up in the field and no runs were scored.

The next junior game will be held on Thursday night between the Beavers and Lions and a senior game has been arranged for tonight, when it is hoped that Umpire Alex Kay, who was out of town for the junior game, will be on hand to give the boys a little personal supervision.

Line-up for Saturday night's game:

Cavanaugh Wildcats— Heffernan p, Duignan c, Wyatt 1st, Cavanaugh 2nd (capt.), Casey ss, J. Driscill 3rd, Ferguson lf, Fitzgerald cf, H. Driscoll rf. Subs, Plumpton, Penglase.

Final play-off draws in the Ontario Softball Association were announced at Hamilton last night with a best-of-seven series in the senior final between either St. Catharines or Hamilton and Toronto. This series opens Sept. 26 at Toronto.

The Senior B finals are set for Sept. 28 and Trenton, Oshawa, Toronto, St. Catharines, Brantford, Guelph and Hamilton are still eligible. The all-Ontario final is slated to start at Sudbury Oct. 7.

Intermediate A finals will start Sept. 30 with the all-Ontario final starting Oct. 7, and Intermediate B finals are set for Sept. 16.

Youthful baseball aspirants from all parts of Ontario will be able to show their wares at the baseball school which the St. Louis Cardinals pain to hold at Hamilton Sept. 14, 15 and 16. Three coaches will be on hand from the National League Club.

Atlas Steels of Welland took the jump on St. Catharines-Merritton Combines last night at Welland, winning the opener of the best-of-seven Niagara District senior championship final 7-0. The O.B.A. in a meeting at Hamilton, however, put the Hamilton Co-Ops back in the picture after they had been ousted by the Niagara District League. The district league found Hamilton erred in using five American players in one game, but the O.B.A. upheld Hamilton's appeal and ordered the series between Welland and St. Catharines cancelled. The O.B.A. ruled that Hamilton and Welland must meet for the title with the first game at Hamilton Sept. 7 or 8.

Brantford Stelcos face elimination from the Ontario Intermediate "A" softball playdowns. Last night's game at Guelph was awarded to Guelph Adams in the second innings after Outfielder Easto of Brantford objected too strenuously to a baseline decision and was tossed out of the game. The whole Brantford team walked off and the game was awarded to Guelph although tied 1-1 at the time. Guelph won the first game and if the umpire's decision is upheld they will win the series in two straight.

The Toronto Cricket Club's annual invitation tennis tournament ended last night with Henri Rochon of Montreal beating another Montrealer, Bren Macken, in the men's singles final. The score was 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

TRUMP YOUR OWN ACE

TRUMPING YOUR partner's ace isn't in it with trumping your own. The main difference is that the former is usually bad play, whereas the latter is seldom seen except in the case of a spectacular declarer who is engaged in developing the possibilities of an interesting hand. On occasion, you may even see a declarer trump both the ace and king of one of his suits in the dummy, or use his own trumps on a couple of the dummy's top honors.

How South mismanaged the matter of entries here after West led the spade Q. He discarded a diamond from dummy, won with the spade K, and led the club 2 to the A, so he could promptly finesse the heart J

Pleased at the success of that play, he then studied to plan the rest of the hand—much too late. He discovered that he had only one remaining entry to the dummy, which was by ruffing the spade A. This he did so he could finesse hearts again, once again winning, but being shocked by finding West out of trumps and East still with a guard to the K. There was no way to get into the dummy for a third heart finesse, or for any finesse of diamonds. So he had to lose two tricks, one to each red king, and was set.

Here was a beautiful opportunity for South to trump an ace and king of his own. He should have ruffed the spade lead, finessed hearts, ruffed his other spade, finessed hearts a second time, led the club K to the A, finessed diamonds, led the club 2 to the 10 and finessed diamonds again, scored his diamond A and then led clubs until East ruffed. Thus his contract would have been been made certain.

Canadians Cut Mighty Gothic Line In Two Days

By DOUG HOW

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Sept. 6 (CP)—The smashing of the Gothic Line was one of the most amazing feats of the war. Field Marshal Kesselring expected the vital line to hold three weeks. The British 8th Army smashed it in two days.

Days before the assault opened Nazi paratroopers opposite the 8th were read an order from Kesselring explaining the line's importance to Germany as the last strong defense before the Brenner Pass. Kesselring said the line must hold for at least three weeks.

But the brilliant tactics of Lt.-Gen. Leese, 8th Army commander, the brilliant planning of Gen. Alexander, Allied ground commander in Italy, and some luck caught the enemy napping. The enemy's eyes were kept in the centre of the Italian front while the knockout blow was being made ready near the Adriatic.

The Germans' Adriatic defenses were formidable, but the cost of overrunning them was only a fraction of what was expected.

A few hours after the Canadians launched their attack with other 8th Army troops, Lt.-Gen. Burns, commander of the 1st Canadian Corps, said the task of cracking the line was divided into four phases:

1. Crossing the Metauro River Aug. 25 from positions where the giant striking force was secretly built up;
2. The advance, which took four days and covered four miles;
3. Breaking the line—a two-day job;
4. Exploitation into a pursuit, which is continuing.

The Metauro was crossed Aug. 25 at night, without an artilery barrage to herald the coming offensive. The infantry were unopposed.

High Ridge Taken Over.

From August 26 to August 30 infantry of the 1st Canadian Division and British tanks pressed forward from the Metauro bridgehead. Despite stiff opposition, by August 29 a ridge of high ground before the Foglia River was won by Ontario and Western infantry, and patrols crossed the valley to probe the line itself.

(Ontario infantry battalions of the 1st Division are the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Picton, Ont., and the 48th Highlanders of Toronto. Western infantry battalions are the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, and the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, Vancouver.)

Meantime, Maritime and Eastern infantry took over the left sector of the four-mile Canadian front. Huge masses of material were moved up. The air force hammered the line.

In breaking the line, 8th Army infantry crossed the Foglia River late on August 30. A Maritime battalion twice was driven by heavy fire from sheer fights dominating Montecchio, eight miles southwest of Pesaro.

On the right, an Ontario battalion gained high ground overlooking Montecchio strongpoints. With artillery and tank support a second Ontario battalion worked behind Montecchio and reduced it after a long struggle.

A Maritime battalion forded the river early on August 31, suffered heavy casualties and pulled up, but a Western battalion on its left punched through. The advance up the slope began.

By daylight, September 1, infantry and tanks held two solid positions on the slope, and infantry and British tanks were in a similar position on the right. An Ontario battalion entered the burning town of Tomba di Pesaro and another battalion with Western tanks seized high ground behind the town.

The going had been tough, the Canadians had suffered casualties, but they took a much bigger toll of the enemy, his guns and tanks.

The high ground taken was quickly consolidated and fresh forces began a drive toward the Adriatic early on September 2—a drive that is still going on and threatens to engulf the Germans in what may be the final and decisive battle of the long Italian campaign.

British Bombs Hit 35,000-Ton Tirpitz

LONDON, Sept. 6—(CP)—British naval planes scored hits on the great 35000-ton German battleship Tirpitz and damaged at least 16 other enemy vessels in a series of recent attacks on enemy shipping in northern waters, the Admiralty announced tonight.

The Tirpitz, previously crippled in a Norwegian Fjord by British midget submarines and fleet aerial attacks, has recently been reported repaird and making tst runs.

The attacking planes damaged six enemy radio stations, hangars and other installations along the Norwegian coast in the Hammerfest area north of the Artic Circle near North Cape. They shot down nine German planes and damaged a number of others. Eleven British planes were lost.

The planes operated from carriers under command of the Home Fleet Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sir Henry Moore.

The Tirpitz was in ajten Fjord, where sht had previously been damaged grevously.

CANADIAN MILESTONE

In the invasion Canadian men in the three services were assigned definite objectives and treated for the first time as separate units within the invasion forces.

A Bathing Hazard

MAHANT, Mass., Sept. 6—(AP).—An 11-foot shark, weighing 500 pounds, was caught yesterday off Egg Rock, less than a mile from thousands of Labor Day bathers at Lynn and Swampscott beaches. The shark was the largest seen off the Massachusetts coast in many years.

ROCKETS ASSIST TAKE-OFFS—Rocket power is successfully helping heavily laden planes into the air, it is announced at Wright Field, Ohio, after four years of intensive experiments. Originally designed and developed as a means of lifting heavy loads into the air from short, front-line runways, the rocket take-off units are doing their job. However, these units may never see tactical use, as engineers have found their use to be extremely limited. Experiments emphasizing sustained rocket flight, dream of pseudo-scientific fiction writers, continue despite problems involving fuel, weight and range. The above photo shows a B-25 medium bomber—not afire—but with flames and smoke issuing from a fixed take-off unit under test where rocket-assisted take-offs have been tested since 1940.

BRIGADIER AT 27—Brig. R. W. Moncel of Montreal became Canada's youngest man to hold that rank when promoted recently from the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He was formerly commanding officer of an armored regiment overseas.

Robot Casualties Very Heavy

LONDON, Sept. 7—(CP).—Disclosing new details of the robot bombings, the Government declared today the battle of London is over "except possibly for the last few shots." With their wartime blackout due to end 10 days hence, Londoners received more cheer in the announcement by Lt.-Col. Edwin Duncan Sandys that perfected defences and Allied encirclement of the robot bomb coast had virtually ended the menace of the German "vengeance weapon."

Col. Sandys—a son-in-law of Prime Minister Churchill—disclosed 2,900 Allied airmen and 450 planes had been lost in the 18-month campaign against the robots, in addition to more than 5,000 deaths in England as a result of the bombs that landed. He said only 2,300 of the 8,000 bombs launched since June 12 had reached their goal whereas the earlier bombs each took a life, on the average. The campaign against them made such progress that lately an average of three of the robots have been expended by the Germans to kill one person in Britain.

The figures announced today were the latest since Aug. 24 when the government disclosed the Germans had sent about 7,250 winged bombs against Southern England.

Some of the newsmen at Col. Sandys' press conference brought away the impression that the Allied advance along the French coast had knocked out the Germans' V-2, reputedly a much heavier rocket bomb

8th Army In Heavy Fighting Reports Only Slight Gains

By NOLAND NORGAARD—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 7—(AP).—With heavy fighting but slight progress reported from the British 8th Army's Adriatic front, American troops of the Allied 5th Army have occupied the important Italian city of Lucca, 10 miles northeast of Pisa and driven the Germans back to within less than six miles of the main Gothic line defence beyond the town, Allied headquarters announced today.

In the Adriatic sector Allied forces entered Riccione Marina on the coast about four miles southeast of Rimini and captured Besanigo, 2½ miles inland.

These advances were achieved after bitter fighting by infantry and tanks against the dogged and well-entrenched Nazis.

Fighting was reported heavy along a 14-mile front from the coast, with the 8th Army steadily hammering a way through German tank and anti-tank gun defences.

British troops crossed the Ventena River and were within five miles of the eastern border of the tiny principality of San Marino. A little farther inland British and Indian units captured 2,000-foot Monte San Giovanni, dominating the upper Ventena-Conca valley.

The Germans put up a brisk fight there and left 60 dead on the slopes.

On Broad Front.

American troops were advancing toward the western end of the Gothic line on a broad front. Patrols were reported operating just south of Monsummano, 15 miles east of Lucca. The Americans were within sight of Pistoia and controlled the highway leading into the city from the south.

In the coastal sector 5th Army patrols encountreed considerable small arms, mortar and machine-gun fire as well as extensive minefields. The Allied command said "It is expected the enemy will offer resistance by delaying action until the 5th Army reaches the Gothic line, which he probably will defend stubbornly."

Planes Riddle Enemy Bases

ROME, Sept. 7 (AP)—Flying from new bases in Southern France, American fighters have smashed at a fleeing enemy convoy within 20 miles of the German frontier, the Mediterranean Allied Air Force announced today.

At least 30 vehicles were destroyed.

Three locomotives were blown up, nine others were damaged, it was announced. A tank, field gun and 15 railcars were destroyed.

During September's first five days, tactical fighter bombers in Southern France and Northern Italy destroyed or damaged 1,563 vehicles, 130 locomotives, 746 rail cars, 12 boats and 49 pontoon bridges, mostly in the Po Valley, it was announced.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Forces also announced that many hundreds of Allied bombers and fighters have shattered Northern escape routes of German divisions fleeing the Balkans by aerial blows co-ordinated closely with the newest Red Army drive.

The M.A.A.F. sent up to 750 American heavy bombers yesterday against railyards and bridges in Yugoslavia, northern Romania and Southern Hungary, through which Nazi troop trains must pass en route to Germany.

At the same time hundreds of British and American fighters and fighter-bombers roamed the skies of Yugoslavia and Hungary, attacking enemy trains and convoys wherever they found them.

R.A.F. pilots met four enemy fighters over Yugoslavia and shot down three of them in the only aerial encounter. The M.A.A.F. lost five planes from 1,400 sorties.

Tito's Forces In All-Out Push

ROME, Sept. 7—(AP)—Allied land, sea and air forces and Marshal Tito's Partisan army have started a combined all-out offensive in Yugoslavia in conjunction with the Russian offensive to seal off all German escape routes from the Balkans, Allied force headquarters announced tonight.

The official report from Gen. Wilson's headquarters said the offensive had been in progress during the last week with the "land forces of the Adriatic" and Slovene patriots participating. Land Forces of the Adriatic is the official title of Allied troops penetrating Yugoslavia.

"On land, the National Army of Liberation (Tito's) has attacked systematically the main lines of communication of Croatia, cutting in many places the line from Zagreb to Sunja and from Sunja to Bihac, and rendering unusable the line from Zagreb to Ogurlin," the announcement said.

Nazis Mobilize Students

Universities Closed, Periodicals Cut

LONDON, Sept. 7—(CP).—Germany today ordered its eighth grade pupils into war work and sent thousands of Red Cross men and women into armament plants in far-reaching extensions of total mobilization decrees.

Joseph Goebbels, German plenipotentiary for total mobilization, announced also the dissolution of the Prussian Finance Ministry, the wholesale curtailment of "the majority of 1,500 periodicals still published in Germany," and the closing of a number of universities.

All travelling shows and shops for fairs were abolished.

The Berlin radio, announcing the decrees, said most German students would "have to give up studying in order to do important war work and from now on, only war wounded will be allowed to begin study at universities."

"Pupils from the eighth grade of German public schools are employed to a major extent in war work," the broadcast said. "Those who for health or other reasons do not participate in war work will be employed as leaders in evacuated children's camps. Boys and girls who have not participated in the evacuation of their bombed-out schools, and therefore have no lessons for the time being, will also be employed in war work."

Canadians In Belgium Reach Ypres

Americans Move Closer To Siegfried Line

LONDON, Sept. 7 (CP)—The 1st Canadian Army plunged into Belgium today, thrusting a Polish armored division into the famed First Great War battleground of Ypres, 10 miles inside the frontier, while British 2nd Army forces took Gent and entered Courtrai in the relentless clean-up of the Channel coast between Pas-de-Calais and the Netherlands-Belgian border.

The United States 1st and 3rd Armies hammered eastward on two broad front toward Germany, heading for the Siegfried Line where a decisive battle, perhaps the last great battle of the war in Europe, may be fought.

Moving up the Moselle River on a front of more than 50 miles from Luxembourg to Nancy, the Americans wedged into the outskirts of the fortress city of Metz on the river's east bank. They ran into fierce artillery fire both north and south of Metz as German resistance stiffened under orders to hold out in front of the menaced westwall.

Armentieres, French town of the legendary Madamesoiselle, fell to British forces who pushed 18 miles beyond Lille to Merville in a drive on the Channel coast. To the north, the British drive through the Netherlands came under an official ban of secrecy.

The Canadians, with forces on both sides of Calais, on the Channel coast, advanced to within seven miles west and southwest of Dunkerque, graveyard of 1940, and prepared to besiege Germans in the Belgian coastal strongholds of Ostend and Zeebrugge.

At Ardennes

The U.S. 1st Army, striding well beyond the Meuse River in southeastern Belgium, plunged into the Ardennes Forest today on a 40-mile front, sending the Germans backtracking along the route on which they invaded France in 1940.

Separate columns, moving generally in a direction that would take them across the northern tip of the Duchy of Luxembourg, drove through bridgeheads forged across the Meuse in the vicinity of captured Namur and Givet, 22 miles to the south.

While this 1st Army bulge was developing directly south of the Belgian fortress city of Liege, the U.S. 3rd Army to the southeast steadily built up its Moselle River bridge-

Trail Of Money

PORT MOODY, B.C., Sept. 7—(CP).—When the Canadian Pacific eastbound passenger train passed through here yesterday it left a blizzard of money in its wake. An estimated $27,000 was scattered up and down the track when a mail bag, thrown from the moving train to the station platform fell under the wheels and split open. Destined for the Royal Bank of Canada here the money was the Thurston-Flavelle Lumber Company payroll. Postal officials said most of the money was recovered.

Bulgars Break Off Relations With Germany

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(CP).—Bulgaria has broken off relations with Germany in a last-minute effort to avoid invasion by Russian troops massed on her frontier.

Dispatches from Ankara said Bulgaria also had declared war against Germany, but these lacked confirmation in Sofia and Berlin broadcasts. Such a declaration would make the Bulgars technically at war with both Germany and the Allies, in the midst of armistice negotiations with the latter.

A flurry was created when Transocean broadcast from Berlin a dispatch quoting a German foreign office spokesman as confirming that Bulgaria had declared war against Germany, but an hour later the agency put out a correction saying that the spokesman confirmed the breaking off of diplomatic relations and not a declaration of war.

The collapse of Hitler's Balkan house was complete except for Hungary.

German forces in the Balkans appeared to have been trapped, with surrender their only out, and Cairo dispatches said six German divisions in Greece alone were "virtually in the bag."

To Return to Athens

The Greek Government-in-Cairo was reported preparing to move to Athens, believing the day of Greek liberation was near.

Ankara dispatches dated yesterday said Bulgaria declared war Tuesday night and the decision was communicated officially by the Bulgarian minister to the British and American ambassadors yesterday after the news had been given to the Russian envoy.

The decision was reached by the Bulgarian cabinet Tuesday after-

Japs Must Mass Strength Emperor Tells Parliament

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito warned the Japanese diet today that the war situation was "becoming more intense" and Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso said the empire must concentrate its total power to combat mounting Allied attacks and possible invasion.

Domei News Agency broadcasts from Tokyo reported these developments at the 85th extraordinary session of Japan's law-makers:

The emperor, appearing in military uniform, said Japanese soldiers were fighting bravely, that relations between Japan and the occupied countries were strengthening and that "the construction of greater East Asia is progressing step by step."

"However," he said, "the counter-offensive of the enemy is becoming increasingly fierce and the war situation is finally becoming more intense. Truly today is the time for Imperial Japan to decide the victory by massing her total strength."

Premier Koiso, making his first speech to the diet since he took over the government from Gen. Hideki Tojo last July, said that "in the face of the present grave situation, the existence of a single idle person or a single bystander, regardless of age or seb, cannot be tolerated."

Need More Planes

He demanded maximum effort under Japan's total mobilization plan and declared the rise or fall of the empire and "the life or death of the Yamato (Japanese) race" were at stake.

He told the diet he was continuing former Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo's policy of integrating all military and civilian functions and co-ordinating command state affairs to conduct total war.

The premier emphasized the necessity of stepping up production of planes and improving air raid defences and called for a strengthening of the fighting spirit of the Japanese people as a whole.

Warning that Japan could look forward to more frequent air raids, the premier declared that "no matter how frequently these planes come over the people must reinforce their fighting spirit and devote their entire efforts to the defence of the country."

Turning to the war in Europe, Koiso passed lightly over German reverses.

"Germany is continuing to fight," he said. "We admire her confidence and wish her every success. We believe she will surmount all difficulties."

Advance 160 Miles In 2 Days 2nd Army Enters Yugoslavia

791,000 Germans Wiped Out During Past Summer

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 7—(AP)—Swift Russian troops were reported fighting within 90 miles of Belgrade today and were believed already to have ferried the Danube and reached Yugoslav soil south of the Iron Gate gorge where the mighty river cuts through the Transylvanian Alps.

The Red Army might be using parachute troops in an effort to establish a junction with Marshal Tito's Partisan Army scattered through the rugged mountains inside Yugoslavia's northeast frontier.

Turnu-Severin, on the frontier, was captured yesterday and the Russians pursued the Germans through the Iron Gate and were reported fighting today for Orsova on the Danube, well beyond the gorge and 90 miles due east of the Yugoslav capital.

In Northern Poland, a great battle that may liberate Warsaw and carry the war into East Prussia increased in violence with two Russian Army groups attacking along a 35-mile front along the Narew River and on the close eastern approaches of the Polish capital. The Narew fortress town of Ostroleka was toppled yesterday and the Russians moved on within 23 miles of the southern border of East Prussia.

791,000 Killed

Red Star declared 791,000 Germans had been killed on the long eastern front in the summer offensive from June 23 to Aug. 31, and said "this means the Red Army in nine weeks has exterminated a German army greater than that sent against the Allies." Other hundreds of thousands have been reported captured.

"Until now, the Germans kept their main forces on the Soviet front, shifting their divisions from occupied European countries and from Germany itself," the army newspaper said. "The Hitlerite command does not conceal the fact that its main task is to prevent invasion from the east."

Join Forces Soon

An imminent large-scale junction of the Red Army and Tito's forces on Yugoslav soil was expected to block the Germans' last overland escape route from the Balkans.

A 50-mile fringe of foothills at the southwestern base of the Transylvanian Alps was all that separated the Red Army from the great plain which embraces Budapest and most of Hungary and includes Hitler's most important remaining wheat basin. The Hungarian frontier itself was 122 miles distant.

Before Warsaw, Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky drove the Germans from the ruins of Wolomin, seven miles from the capital's eastern limits and sent tanks thrusting almost to the edge of Praga, Warsaw's industrial suburb on the east side of the Vistula.

Bridges Destroys

Thousands of German dead were strewn grotesquely in woods and swamps further north on the east side of the Narew, silent witnesses to the effectiveness of Red artillery and dive bombers which blasted to bits 11 pontoon bridges on which the enemy relied for escape. Eighty German tanks counter-attacked be-

Just A Trifle

WINDSOR, Sept. 7—(CP).—Police Constable Hector Lariviere marvelled the other day, when he picked up a car door on the street. He couldn't figure out how anyone could drop a thing like that without knowing it. Some time later he chased and caught an alleged speeder in an ancient car. The driver was taken to police station. Entering the station he stopped short at the sight of the car door. "Oh!" he said, "I see you have my door."

Southern Army Close To Swiss Border

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 7—(AP).—American and French troops attempting to frustrate the German withdrawal from Southern France have swept up a number of additional towns and the Americans are approaching the strategically important Doubs Valley adjoining the western border of Switzerland, Allied Headquarters said today.

The Allied communique indicated the main German force was still outdistancing its pursuers, and a headquarters statement contained no word of major fighting.

After occupying Chalon Sur Saone the French troops reached nearby Givry and advanced up the west bank of the Saone to Allerey. The Americans, operating farther east, drove northward to the Doubs and Upper Saone Valley, occupying Poligny, Arbois and Bletterans, and passing Chaumergy, about five miles from the Doubs River. The Rhone River canal flows through the Doubs valley.

Arbois is 26 airline miles southwets of Besancon, which lies 47 miles from Belfort, and a possible exit leading toward southwest Germany.

A naval communique told belatedly of a 24-hour bombardment by American destroyers Sept. 4 on the right flank of the 7th Army.

The U.S.S. Ludlow poured 376 rounds against batteries, strong points and troops in the area between Cape Marpin and Monaco on the Riviera, with results described as "very good" despite some shore retaliation.

Meanwhile the work of clearing the harbors of Toulon and Marseille and other ports continued.

EXTRA!

LONDON—CBS reported unofficially from Rome today that American armies from west and south France has joined forces at an undisclosed point near the German border.

BERN—The Swiss newspaper Der Bund reported tod y that Pierre Laval, Vichy chief of government, had reached the German island of Mainau in Lake Constance, five miles from the Swiss frontier.

ISTANBUL—The German garrison holding the town of Pythion in the Greek triangle between Turkey and Bulgaria has surrendered to the Turks after crossing the frontier and will be interned, it was announced today.

Police Raid 13 Gas Stations

TORONTO, Sept. 7—(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police today announced that 13 Toronto service station operators have been arrested on charges of "depositing counterfeit gasoline coupons in the ration bank accounts." They added that at least six more arrests are expected "before the day is out."

While all 13 face the charge of depositing counterfeit coupons police said that some are held on as many as six charges, including selling gasoline without the necessary coupons and being in possession of counterfeit coupons.

They were lodged in police stations throughout the city.

Police did not give any further details.

Bulgarian Army Opposition Seems Negligible

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—(AP)—Russian troops have driven across Bulgaria into Greece, reaching the Turkish frontier in the Demotica area after a sensational 160-mile advance in two days, the German radio said today in an official D.N.B. broadcast.

Another Russian tank column was reported advancing toward Sofia, the Bulgar capital of 400,000.

Bulgaria, against which Russia declared war Tuesday night, was invaded at three points, the Germans said, adding:

"No resistance worth mentioning seems to have been put up in consequence of the muddled-up political conditions there."

Berlin announced earlier that Bulgaria had broken relations with her and unconfirmed Turkish dispatches said Bulgaria declared war on Germany to put the Balkan country at war with both sides. The Bulgars pleaded with Russia for an armistice soon after the Kremlin declared war during a time in which armistice negotiations with the United States and Britain were bogged down.

The Germans said the Russians crossed the Danube in the area of Giurlu and Ruse, Romanian and Bulgar towns facing each other across the river, and in the area north of Sofia. The Russian plunge to the Iron Gate of the Danube yesterday gave them control of all the north frontier of Bulgaria.

Demotica (Didymoteikhon) lies in Thrace, the eastern extremity of Greece which Bulgaria seized and occupied after the German conquest of the Balkans. It is 60 miles north of the Aegean, 190 miles east of Salonika and 130 miles northwest of Istanbul, the former Turkish capital on the Bosporus.

"The general direction of the march is toward the Aegean coast," said the Berlin broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press. The first Russian incursions into Bulgaria took place Tuesday, the day Russia declared war, the enemy said.

"The new Bulgarian leftist government which characteristically is being called the "Kerensky government" (the transitory Russian regime between the Czar and the Soviet Union) is said to have reached an agreement leaving Bulgarian ground to the Soviets without fighting," the Berlin radio said.

Buzz Beurling On Way To U.S.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7—(CP)—Flt.-Lt. George "Buzz" Beurling Canada's ace pilot, arrived in Montreal last night "to clean up personal matters" before returning to the United States where he has applied for citizenship.

Beurling, whose resignation from the Royal Canadian Air Force becomes effective next week, said he was planning to join one of the two U.S. air forces. He said he had talked with "army officials" about enlisting but had made no contact with the naval air force.

He did not say when he was returning to the United States but said he will address a group on "deflection shooting and offensive and defensive tactics" Sept. 16. He did not say which group it was nor where it will take place except that it was "120 miles north of New York."

The R.C.A.F. pilot added that the invitation was extended to him by Lowell Thomas, well-known radio commentator, whom he met a few days ago. He said that Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker was to speak before the same group this week.

Dewey Campaign Underway

First Wartime Tour Since Lincoln's Time

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—(AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York set forth today, accompanied by 97 persons on an 11-car train, for the first war-time presidential speaking campaign conducted by any candidate since the era of Abraham Lincoln.

With Mrs. Dewey and a 21-member staff, the Republican nominee planned to leave New York City this morning for Philadelphia, where tonight he will open his active drive for the presidency.

Gov. Dewey made it plain he expects to devote major attention during the campaign to a discussion of foreign policy despite the gratification he expressed at the progress made by the Dumbarton Oaks conference in Washington toward what he called "a non-partisan approach" to the establishment of permanent peace.

In an exchange of letters made public last night by the State Department, Gov. Dewey said he believed that a "new attitude toward the problem of peace" had been found as a result of recent discussions between his foreign affairs deputy, John Foster Dulles, and State Secretary Hull.

Increase Rate Navy Retirement

OTTAWA, Sept. 7 — (CP) — An increase in the rate at which officers of the Royal Canadian Navy are retired was announced today by Navy Minister Macdonald.

Mr. Macdonald said the granting of the increase was not to be regarded as an indication that a general or partial demobilization was impending.

"As the Canadian Navy comes closer to the peak of its expansion the rate at which officers are retired will increase," he said. "It is characteristic of an Navy which has become relatively static in numbers that certain categories of officers must be retired to open avenues of promotion for junior officers and ratings.

"There categories include officers who, though they have completed long and useful service, must be retired on account of age; officers who have been performing tasks which have come to an end and for whom no other suitable appointment exists; and officers whose services are no longer required by reason of alternations to complement."

For Friday, September 8

STRANGE AND astonishing events may characterize this day, moving to dramatic crises with swift and bewildering tempo. While all pertaining to the more personal activities are under this dynamic promise, affecting romance, social, spiritual or cultural aspirations and ambitions, yet the more practical and commonplace interests may also have perplexities and unique situations to unravel intrigue and strategem are rampant in both public and private relations. There are threats of loss of funds and standing, through extravagant feelings, conduct and finances, unless stern and rational management be exercised. The higher urges of love, charm, beauty and romance may prove safe inspiration.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of strange and perplexing if not fantastic or unique experiences or adventures, in which the higher aspirations, emotions, romance and creative ability, may reach startling culminations. Much activity in such directions is seen with parties, celebrations, probably some sort of public or community acclaim. But shun all show of extravagance, dissipated funds and energies, and be not carried away by queer and hasarous temptations or illusions. Maintain balance and commonsense.

A child born on this day may possess much versatility in many forms of creative talents and skills, with love of charm, beauty and romance as the motivating factor of its living. It may have strange adventures.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

I have had many requests for some nice cake recipes in my column so today, I am going to heed those requests and I hope everyone will like the recipes.

Dutch Apple Cake

2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 egg, 2 sour apples, ½ teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup milk, ¼ cup butter, 2 tablespons sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, all except the sugar and spices. Cut or rub in the butter and add the milk and beaten egg gradually. Spread ½" thick in a shallow greased pan. Pare and cut the apples in sections lengthwise and set in rows on the dough with the sharp edges pressed lightly into the dough. Sprinkle the top with mixed sugar and spices. Bake in a hot oven from 25 to 30 minutes. Serve hot with lemon or hard sauce.

Lemon Sauce: 2 tablespoons flour, pinch salt, 1 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, little lemon extract, or rind, and lemon juice. Mix sugar, flour, salt well together, add gradually the boiling water and cook, stirring constantly until there is no taste of raw flour. Remove from the fire and add butter and flavoring. This recipe, as you will note, can be used as a dessert for dinner, if you use it hot with the lemon sauce, or as a cake, if you let it cook and ice with your favorite icing.

Caramel or Burnt Sugar Cake

½ cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup of either water or milk, 2¼ cups flour, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 to 2 cups flour, 2 teaspons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 to 2 tablespoons of caramel syrup, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cream the shortening until very soft. Add the sugar gradually, keepnig the mixture foamy by vigorous manipulation. Beat the eggs till very light and add to the sugar mixture. Add vanilla and caramel and beat well. Mix and sift the remaining dry ingredients and add to the first mixture, alternating with the liquid. Beat only enough to mix ingredients thoroughly. Bake as a loaf or in a layer in a moderate oven (loaf 350 degrees or 375 degrees F), 45 to 60 minutes, layer, (375 degrees F) 20 minutes. Use either white boiled frosting or a caramel frosting on top and between layers.

Caramel Syrup: Into a smooth frying pan put one cup of sugar. Place over a slow fire. When it begins to melt shake the pan occasionally and when it begins to smoke add one cup of boiling water. Let boil until a heavy syrup is formed.

3 Die After Meal

NANAIMO, B.C., Sept. 7—(CP)—Botulism, a form of poisoning which paralyzes the motor nerves of the grain, was the cause of the accidental deaths last Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Merrick and their eight-year-old son, Lorne, a coroner's jury decided yesterday. The three had shared a meal of home-canned salmon the evening previous to their deaths.

Allied Bombers Wreck Trains

LONDON, Sept. 7—(CP).—Despite dismal weather, R.A.F. Mosquitos based in Britain hammered the German seaport of Hamburg last night, while other Mosquitos based in France strafed Nazi transport from Utrecht to Arnhem in the Netherlands and near Dusseldorf in Germany.

A strong force of R.A.F. heavy bombers, escorted by fighters smashed at the smaller port of Emden just before dark yesterday. The bombing was "concentrated," the Air Ministry said, and several explosions were observed in the dock area.

The Mosquitos blew up a convoy south of Arnhem and a train was set afire near Goch just over the German border.

A recapitulation of results achieved yesterday by British-based U.S. 8th Air Force fighter-bombers showed 135 trucks, 56 locomotives, and 35 oil tank cars destroyed and 63 motor vehicles damaged. All planes returned safely.

The American fliers destroyed 15 coaches full of German troops in Northern Holland, it was announced.

Otonabee I.O.D.E. Plans Fall Tea

The Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E. held its Fall meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A., with Mrs. A. A. Leach, regent, in the chair. During the evening, plans were made for the tea to be held at the home of the regent on Wednesday, September 20. Donations of six pairs of mitts, and one afghan were received, and it was decided that the members should meet at the home of Mrs. Leach on Monday, September 11, to pack a bale. Members voted that a delegate would not be sent to the convention to be held in Windsor. Plans were also drawn up for a bridge party, to be held in the Y.W.C.A. on October 18.

noon, it was said, after news reached Sofia that the Germans had disarmed Bulgarian troops at Nis, in Southern Yugoslavia, who had orders to evacuate Yugoslav territory.

Ankara dispatches added that the Soviet ambassador to Egypt, recalled to Moscow for consultation, now was on his way back to Cairo, where a Bulgarian armistice delegation is waiting to reach terms with the Allies.

The Soviet Government is understood to have felt that Bulgaria should conduct armistice talks through Soviet intermediation and not directly with the Americans and British, Ankara dispatches added.

Moscow also desires to see some members of the Communist party in the Bulgarian Government, it was said.

The Paris broadcast said the German minister in Sofia was preparing to return home.

(The United States Federal Communications Commission quoted a Bulgarian broadcast as saying Sofia also had broken relations with Mussolini's puppet regime in Northern Italy and with the puppet regimes in Croatia and Slovakia.)

There was no word here concerning Russia's reaction to Bulgaria's appeal for an armistice, delivered by the Sofia government yesterday only a few hours after Moscow had declared war upon Bulgaria.

Bulgaria's action in breaking relations with Germany was said to have been taken because German troops attempted to disarm Bulgarian forces withdrawing from Yugoslavia.

The Sofia radio asserted there no longer were any German troops in Bulgaria.

"Those who remained after the deadline have been disarmed and interned," the broadcast added.

Thus far there was no indication that Russian forces had crossed the Romanian border and entered Bulgaria. Latest advices from Moscow early to-day said that while the Soviet government had made no public move toward granting Bulgaria's request for an armistice it apparently had restrained the Red army from starting an invasion.

Authoritative sources here said they had no information concerning a Bulgarian break with Germany.

glare of publicity away from the Tommy and his Canadian fighting brother of the United States' doughboy.

No one tried to take any credit away from the fighting Americans whose great achievements have been headline news in the British press since the break-out in Brittany, but many writers felt that too little emphasis was given to the importance of the bitter Normandy battle.

In an outspoken editorial called "The Back Seat," the Daily Mirror said:

"The blimps of the war office seem to have an idea that to let the world know the truth about the achievements of the British Army would in some grotesque way be tantamount to disclosing an important military secret to the enemy . .

"The battle of Normandy was won at Caen through the great work of British and Canadian troops . . . . the plan was Monty's from beginning to end. Yetit would appear that the policy of our Government is to hide these facts and give the whole credit to the Americans."

Favorable war developments induced trades to release holdings and despite some local and southern support prices dipped along with values at Chicago where wheat was off the five-cent allowable limit at one time. Hedging of new-crop rye was also reported.

heads north of Nancy and edged into the outskirts of Metz against Nazi resistance stiffening into a buffer front before the Siegfried Line.

Canadian troops battled their way into the outskirts of Boulogne. At Marguiese north of that port they had cut off the German escape. Other British, Canadian and Polish troops isolated Calais with spearheads to the coast north and south of the town. They last were reported closing in to its outskirts.

Just back from the coast the British advanced beyond St. Omer and Cassel into the zone where the Germans were reported to have built concrete emplacements for their threatened 10-ton vengeance rockets.

Build For Push

American forces, now 400 miles from their Cherbourg supply port, apparently were building up their next push-off positions facing Germany even while continuing to batter the enemy back.

The 1st Army was said to be encountering persistent small arms and mortar fire, but apparently it had not yet run into artillery-defended positions.

The 3rd Army, stalled for almost a week because they outran their supply lines, have jumped strongly to the offensive again, with infantry battling to open a path for tanks, but a front dispatch said the Germans there were making their first real stand since the Allied breakthrough in Normandy.

The Germans themselves, in Berlin broadcasts, asserted a firm defence was beginning to take shape, but there was every evidence that the racing speed of the now-won battle of France and Belgium is giving way to a slow but sure gathering of Allied strength for a coming bolt across the border and a fight to a finish within the Reich.

The Germans conceded that what fighting they were doing in Belgium was merely a play for time. "Every day gained is for the protection of the Reich," said one Nazi broadcast —presumably a reference to new grouping of strength in the enemy's vaunted Seigfried Line.

It is declared now at Allied Supreme Headquarters that earlier unofficial reports from the Paris radio and the Swiss-French frontier saying the Americans had reached Liege or the German border city of Aachen apparently were incorrect.

3 Bridgeheads

Headquarters announced last night U.S. 1st Army forces had thrown three bridgeheads across the Meuse River at and south of captured Namur, 32 miles southwest of Liege.

Prisoners were still coming in from the pocket formed by the 1st Army around a huge enemy force near Mons. The latest tally showed 25,000 Germans taken there, including two major-generals, raising the 1st Army's total since D-Day to 184,-000. Full Allied total now may be in excess of 500,000.

British forces in Belgium previously captured Malines and Leuven (Louvain) on the Albert Canal, the latter town with its bridges intact.

Canadians, Poles and British assaulting the pocketed Germans along the Pas de Calais robot bombs coast made steady strides. Canadians and Poles reached Cassel, 10 miles northeast of captured St. Omer. They also plunged to Margueize, between the besieged ports of Calais and Boulogne. One unconfirmed report said patrols had reached historic Ypres, 30 miles east of St. Omer.

Bracken Will Run In Neepawa

CARLETON PLACE, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken, who has been without a seat in parliament since he became party leader two years ago, has announced his intention of running as a candidate in Manitoba's Neepawa constituency in the forthcoming Federal election if nominated.

Mr. Bracken made his announcement last night in an address before the Lanark County Progressive Conservative Association's annual meeting. He said:—

"A number of largely-signed petitions have reached me from Manitoba, including one from Neepawa. Canada is still a democracy and one does not dictate to constituencies whom they should choose. If, however, the nomination convention in Neepawa should favor me as a candidate, I would be honored by such a choice and would accept."

On Home Grounds

(Neepawa constituency now is represented in the Commons by F. Donald MacKenzie, Liberal member who defeated two candidates—one Conservative and one New Democracy— by a majority of 1,859 votes in the 1940 general elections. Mr. MacKenzie won it from the Conservative member, T. G. Murphy, in 1935.)

Mr. Bracken said he had been asked to run in different seats in every Province in Canada but felt he should seek a seat in Manitoba, where he had been premier for more than 20 years before his election to the Progressive Conservative leadership at the Winnipeg convention in 1942.

"Nothing would please me more to run in my native Province of Ontario and particularly in the County of Leeds, where I was born," he said, "but I felt a responsibility to my adopted Province of Manitoba."

He said he thought it "likely" the Progressive Conservative party would be called upon to form the next Government."

"The only question, he added, "is whether the Progressive Conservative party will be returned with the largest group or majority over all."

than the V-1 launched against London, before it could be used.

"I am a little chary of talking about V-2," Sandys said. "We do know quite a lot about it. In a very few days I feel that the press will be walking all over these places in France and will know a great deal more then than we do now."

In an earlier report Mr. Churchill said on Aug. 2 the first 5,340 bombs launched had killed 4,735 persons mostly in London and injured another 14,000 seriously enough to require hospital treatment.

In the same report the Prime Minister disclosed that 17,000 houses were destroyed and 800,000 damaged, although a large proportion of these only had windows broken and 600,000 were restored quickly to habitability.

It is unlikely that the final casualties and damage from the robot bombardment will be disclosed prior to the reassembling of Parliament Sept. 26.

Lt.-Col. Edwin Duncan Sandys, who as chairman of the War Cabinet committee was in charge of counter-measures against Hitler's secret weapon, told a press conference:

"Except possibly for the last few shots, the battle of London is over."

The defence afforded by the balloon barrage, anti-aircraft guns and fighters was perfected to such a high degree that 97 of 101 bombs fired at England Aug. 28 were shot down, he said.

This, coupled with the Allied encirclement of the robot bomb coast, has ended all but the threat of robots launched from planes—carried pickaback style on Heinkel-111's.

"This form of attack can, of course, be carried on from airfields in the heart of Germany," he said. "We cannot therefore as yet assure the public that the flying-bomb attacks will cease altogether. We can, however, be reasonably confident that the scale of attack will be very small."

"Our American Allies," Sandys told almost 200 British and American newsmen, "have thrown themselves into the job of beating the bombs with as much energy and enthusiasm as though New York or Washington had been the victim of the attack.

"American batteries provided about one-eighth of the total heavy anti-aircraft guns over the south coast and certainly contributed a full share. Some of their equipment was the very latest.

"Necessary priority was given to our needs here by the President himself, in response to the personal request of the Prime Minister."

The Old Remedy For Children

Few people, especially children, escape an attack of summer complaint during the hot weather.

Summer complaint begins with a profuse diarrhoea very often accompanied by vomiting and purging. The matter excreted from the stomach has a bilious appearance, and that from the bowels watery, whitish, ill-smelling, or even odorless.

When the children show any sign of looseness of the bowels the mother should administer a few doses of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry so as to bring quick relief.

This medicine has been on the market for the past 94 years. Refuse substitutes. They may be dangerous.

fore the Russians stormed into Ostroleka, "where perfect roads go north to the cities of East Prussia, and south to Warsaw," Izvestia reported.

The Russians overwhelmed wide belts of steel reinforced bunkers and dug out extensive minefields in the the Narew area. One tank barrier five miles long was reduced. The Germans frantically tried to stabilize this crucial sector.

Once the Red Army gains a sizeable bulge west of the Narew, Warsaw would be decisively outflanked and the entire front across Poland would be in immediate danger of cracking wide open.

(A broadcast from Marshal Tito's headquarters last night said the Red Army has smashed across the Danube into Yugoslavia. It failed to say whether a juncture of forces was effected, but it was taken to indicate some connection adready e[illegible]ted.)

The Russians recaptured Wolomin, 10 miles northeast of Warsaw, and occupied the Narew river fortress of Ostroleka, 26 miles south of the border of East Prussia. The Polish capital was within range of Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's big guns.

Front advices said the Russians appeared to have defeated a big, heavily equipped German Army between Warsaw and Lomzo, 20 miles northeast of Ostroleka on the Narew, and a break-through to a considerable depth was indicated.

There was no intimation in Moscow that the Russians had crossed the Danube into Bulgaria. West of Bucharest the Red Army filled out a large area on the Romanian side of the frontier, occupying 100 cities and towns.

Obituary

MRS. C. HARTE-MAXWELL

Funeral services for Mrs. C. Harte-Maxwell were held Tuesday afternoon at St. John's Anglican church, and after the burial at Little Lake cemetery, the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary held a special service at the graveside, for the well-known Peterborough woman, active in Legion affairs, and the R.C.A.F. Auxiliary. After the service, Legion women dropped poppies into the grave, in tribute to their dear friend, and keen worker.

Born in Hastings, England, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hazell, Mrs. Harte-Maxwell was one of the first women to enlist her services with the British Women's Auxiliary Army Corps, later known as the Queen Mary Auxiliary Army Corps.

Mrs. Harte-Maxwell died after only a brief illness in St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday. Prominent in church circles here, she leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Cpl. Cecil Harte-Maxwell, with the Veteran Guards at Bowmanville, who expressed their sympathy with a lovely floral wreath; two daughters, Edith at home, and Hazel, with the R.C.A.F. overseas, and four sons, Reginald, Patrick, and Donald, at home, and Albert, with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy.

Canon W. P. Robertson officiated at the service held in St. John's church, from her late residence, 110 Simcoe street, and F. G. Mann was at the organ. The pallbearers were: William Ovens, Arthur Bacon, G. Puffer, Jack Morrow, G. Matthews, and B. Howes. At the special Legion service, Mrs. W. Downer, president, was in charge.

Another Tremor Hits Cornwall

CORNWALL, Sept. 7—(CP)—Another mild earth tremor rumbled through this Eastern Ontario industrial city last night, throwing a momentary scare into quake-conscious residents still jittery from Tuesday morning's severe shock.

Accompanied by a "distinct low rumbling," the latest disturbance came at 9:27 p.m., E.D.T., and shook crockery ware and tables.

Recalling the severe rocking experienced Tuesday morning with resultant damage throughout the city, many residents ran into the streets in fear of stronger shocks but soon returned to their homes.

There were no reports of further damage, although it was feared last night's tremor might have weakened some buildings which have been propped up, and roped off because of bulging walls caused by Tuesday's quake.

The new tremor apparently was not felt in Ottawa, Montreal or Toronto, where the previous disturbances—the epicentre of which was aproximately 18 miles northwest of here—were experienced.

Unconfirmed reports reached here last night of additional tremors being felt in neighboring districts Tuesday night and yesterday afternoon.

The new tremor came as workmen were replacing plate-glass windows which had been shattered along Pitt street, the town's main thoroughfare, and were doing repair work on a number of houses and buildings damaged in the previous disturbances.

Rev. Jesse Arnup Heads United Church Of Canada

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 7—(CP).—A former Methodist minister—Rev. Jesse H. Arnup of Toronto—is the new Moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada.

The 63-year-old secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Church was elected on the second ballot at the opening session of the 11th General Assembly here last night. He succeeds Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, also of Toronto, Moderator for the last two years.

Others nominated were: Rev. E. L. Pidgeon of Montreal; Rev. A. E. Kerr of Halifax; Russell Treleaven, K.C., Hamilton, Ont., layman, and Rev. H. C. Forster of Welland, Ont.

Dr. Arnup said in his acceptance speech that his belief in church union was his only qualification for Moderatorship. He had been identified with Church Union ideas long before the United Church of Canada came into being.

"I expected to die a Methodist," he said, "for I thought union would come only in time for my children." He stated that he had never presided over a presbytery or a conference and assured delegates he would never forget foreign missions.

Dr. Arnup was born in Norfolk county and was educated at Aylmer, Ont., Collegiate before going to Victoria College, Toronto, where he received his arts degree in 1909, and won the Prince of Wales gold medal. He received his Doctor of Divinity in 1924 from Wesley College, Winnipeg.

Before the election Dr. Sclater spoke of church unity and called unity the pre-eminent need of Canadian Christianity — "a gathering together of all the reformed churches into a diversified and co-operative union."

Action Delayed Again Over Appointment of Clerk

COBOURG, Sept. 7—(ENS)—The knotty problem of appointing a successor to A. W. Young, town clerk and treasurer, came up at Tuesday night's council meeting but nothing was settled. Last year an effort was made to appoint Roy Dodge, former reeve of Cobourg, to the position but so much argument ensued over the proposal that Mr. Dodge withdrew his name.

Councillor Reuben Jackson at Tuesday night's meeting asked what action was being taken in regard to the motion of June 19, by which Mr. Young's services were to terminate on September 1. Mayor Jack Burnet replied that Mr. Young was appointed by by-law, some 20 years ago, and could not be dismissed unless the by-law was rescinded.

Councillor Jackson asked why the by-law was not ready as there had been nine weeks in which to prepare it. The clerk's office was costing the town about $4,000 a year in salaries of Mr. Young, and his assistant, Hattie Hawkey.

Councillor Alan Field declared that someone should advise Mr. Young that there is not enough work to be done in the clerk's office to warrant two people in that department. Councillor Field informed the meeting that he had someone in view who could act in a temporary capacity until after the war and a returned man had been appointed.

A motion of Councillor Jackson that a by-law be brought in at the next meeting, rescinding Mr. Young's appointment, did not receive a seconder.

Councillor Field then suggested that, for the time being, the tax collector, E. A. Hircock, should take over the town clerk's job along with his own until after the war, but this was voted down. The matter then was shelved for the time being.

WMS Hears Talk About Bermuda

ROSENEATH, Sept. 7 (ENS) — "Bermuda, Queen of the Seas, Keeper of the Western Gate" was the subject of an address delivered by Mrs. R. C. White, Tuesday afternoon.

The occasion was the "At Home" of Centenary United church W.A., held in the church. Mrs. White told of five years ministry by her husband, Rev. R. C. White, and herself, in the United church service in Bermuda. The story was principally of the service rendered by the church in co-operation with the Red Cross and I.O.D.E. to American and English service men.

Bermuda, a semi-tropical island nineteen miles wide and twenty-two miles long, with a normal population of 30,000, and for the past four years an added 10,000 servicemen; 2,000 persons to every square mile, an island with white coral houses and white streets, she continued.

Dependent on Others

Because of its strategic position, its proximity to submarine dangers, its dependence on the outside world for almost all staple foods and clothing, it was necessary early in the war to transform it into a war base, she said. It was of the beautiful spirit of cooperation among servicemen and inhabitants, the part Bermuda women, white and colored, played in a systematic organization ready for any possible emergency; Of the $14,000 invested in War Saving Certificates, and of the Sailors' Home, that Mrs. White spoke in detail. The Sailors Home in her estimation was one of the greatest organizations. It was established before the war for the Merchant Marine, but now it services all sailors who through the fortunes of war find themselves on the island without clothing, food or home. In addition, woollens, food and other articles go out to those at sea at Christmas.

Prisoners of War

The second speaker, A. L. King, of Windsor, was introduced by Mrs. White. Mr. King is vice-chairman of the National Prisoners of War Committee. After paying tribute to the women of Canada for their magnificent contribution to the Red Cross in all its branches, he spoke on the necessity for prisoner of war parcels, how the work is carried on, and in word pictures showed his audience glimpses inside prison camps, where life flows on in a normal fashion.

Mr. White and the president thanked the speakers.

Miss Hilda Arthur had charge of a short program. Miss Shirley Drope of Harwood W.M.S. sang a solo; the Arthur sisters sang a trio and duet, and ten-year-old Joyce Arthur made a speech of welcome. Mrs. A. Elder of Centenary W.A.; Mrs. W. I. Montgomery, Fenella W.M.S.; Mrs. M. Davey, Roseneath W.M.S. Mrs. G. L. Tucker, Roseneath W.A.; and Mrs. T. Coyle, St. James' Anglican church W.A., also took part.

At The Gates To Germany

Armies of the United Nations are moving rapidly into position to fight the last great battle in Western Europe. The battle for France has been won, the battle for Germany is about to begin. While the struggle in France may be termed the battle of France it has actually been the battle of Western Europe. Hitler's fate was sealed in Normandy and the last stand of German armed might, if it can make a stand, is apparently to be along the German frontier.

The war has developed at a most incredibly swift pace. Last week it seemed possible that the German high command would make a last desperate stand in France, in order to hang onto the robot bomb positions, but the rapid advance of the Allied armies through France, through Belgium and into the Netherlands forced the enemy to fall back to the frontiers of Hitler's Festung Deutschland. What is now left for the Allies outside of Germany is little more than a gigantic mopping-up operation.

On the other fronts the Balkan back door, once thought to be securely barred, has been smashed open by the Russians and Germany's allies are deserting. Russia is moving rapidly to link up with Tito's forces in Yugoslavia and a large German force will then be trapped in Greece. In the north Finland has quit, while in the centre Russian troops are moving into Germany in a renewal of their summer offensive.

But is Germany a fortress and can it be defended? Max Werner, whose record in analyzing the fighting on the eastern front, has been extraordinary accurate, recently said that Hitler's so-called fortress was just another Nazi myth. There are many weak spots in the natural defences and the wide open plains give every advantage to the offence. Germany's much-advertised West Wall was hurriedly constructed in 1938 and 1939. It was not designed or intended to hold such a smashing blow as the Allies will launch. Its prime purpose was to hold back the French until Poland had been smashed. According to Mr. Werner, Germany's real last line of defence was the coast of Europe. The High Command since 1940 neither planned or expected to be forced to make a stand along the West Wall. They planned for a stand at the coast and the fortifications erected there were imposing, but they were smashed in by the Allies.

The Case Of Finland

In writing the history of the present war the chapter telling the story of the part Finland played will be one of the most tragic and pathetic in the book. For it will be the story of a people who have been shamefully misled and betrayed. Other nations have suffered more material damage, but none have presented a more pitiable plight. They have been victims of enemies from without and traitors from within.

Canadians have never been able to look upon the Finns as enemies and our whole outlook toward them has been one of sympathy rather than enmity. They have been in the unfortunate position of being an ally of a nation, whose whole theory of life was repugnant to them. They have remained with this ally, partly through a mistaken sense of loyalty, partly through fear and largely through evil leadership.

The Finns deserve punishment, and while the terms of the armistice with Russia have not been made known, it is hoped these will be tempered with mercy and consideration. If such be the case we are sure they will work out their own redemption.

Relaxing Divorce Laws

Recommendations were offered the Canadian Bar Association at its annual meeting urging a relaxation of the Canadian divorce laws. In other words ways are sought to make divorce easier to obtain. At present Canadian courts only recognize adultery as sufficient grounds for the granting of divorce. The Bar Association suggests the addition of desertion for three years, gross cruelty, mental incapacity for a period of five years and legal presumption of death. Members of the Canadian Bar have been noted for never making recommendations without a thorough study. They are in a position to be well informed on the problems of divorce and hence their recommendations will carry much weight.

After having closely followed divorce conditions in certain other countries where we have seen the marriage ceremony turned into a burlesque show and the divorce courts working as if they were mass production factories, we are strongly opposed to any relaxation of the laws which would bring about such conditions. However, on the other hand we feel that it is possible to find a course between the two extremes. Marriage is just as much a mockery when men and women are forced by it to give lip service to a contract no longer valid in the eyes of reasoning people. The grounds for divorce must be well guarded and there must be no abuse and when such is the case we have nothing to fear in Canada.

Timely Warning

Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, in his radio address talked over with the Canadian people price control problems. He was frank and the Canadians will appreciate him and his problems all the more for being frank. The war news of recent weeks has had such an affect on the people at home, that many of them have imagined that the war is practically over and we soon would be back to the days when we could buy what we wanted when we wanted it.

It might be said Mr. Gordon really brought Canadians down to earth. The dislocations and shortages in our economic set-up are not going to disappear just over night. People are still going to have plenty of money in their pockets and half of productive capacity is still on war materials. The result is pressure on the price level which menaces the controls. Removing these controls would plunge us into chaos.

He emphasized the need for buying only essential goods, for there will only be enough to go around, until production of peace time articles if the utmost restraint is not exercised. Wartime controls, to be successful, must have public co-operation. In the past there has been that co-operation from the public with the result that today we find ourselves in a very fortunate position. A slackening of this co-operation, from now on, will only tend to retard the comeback which we are expecting after the war.

Food supply, except for milk, is reasonably secure. Textile shortages are likely to continue, but Mr. Gordon hopes to avoid the necessity of rationing. Canadians must take the serious view of these price control problems and Mr. Gordon has done much to put them back into a proper way of thinking.

A Timely Visit

In bringing to Peterborough on Monday next Major Eisenhardt, National Director of Physical Fitness, the Local Council of Women is to be congratulated. Major Eisenhardt's visit will time-in very nicely with the campaign to raise money for the Memorial Health Centre.

Physical fitness and the need for it has never been so thoroughly impressed on the people of Canada as during the past five years and Peterborough in proposing a health centre is only carrying out plans which are being discussed in every part of Canada.

Physical fitness is not only physical strength, but physically strong, mentally alert and spiritually developed. While as a whole the general quality of Canadian health seems high, when it is analyzed it leaves much room for improvement. Only 44 per cent. of our young men have been in category A, 12 per cent. in category B, 14 per cent. in category C, 29 per cent. in category D, and between 24 and 25 per cent. in category E.

From these figures the standard of health in Canada is lamentably low. Canadians have been short sighted looking after the achievements of our athletes, a very small percentage of the whole, and forgetting the needs of the tremendous proportion of Canadian youth.

Through physical fitness there is no reason for Canadians not becoming the healthiest race in the world. The program will be adopted to all ages of our population and its ideal will be to create a joy in living.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The approach may be all right as far as most people are concerned, but it would be silly to ask a judge to give one a little of his time.

Woodchopper's Protest

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

THE latest photographs show Mr. George Bernard Shaw, on his birthday, sawing wood. At least, we are told he is sawing wood, but to the expert woodchopper's eye Mr. Shaw is leaning over a sawhorse and holding in his hand an implement about the size of an eggbeater and just as effective. This is supposed to be his saw. Actually, it is a bluff. Mr. Shaw is revealed as no true woodchopper, but as an arrant humbug.

Now, as a skilled woodchopper of thirty years' experience, I do not object to Mr. Shaw's posings and posturings in the realm of literature, where he is a master. I do not object to his infallibly foolish opinions on politics. But when he involves the fine and ancient craft of woodchopping in his pretences, it is time for us craftsmen to protest.

Mind you, Mr. Shaw is not alone in pretending to be a woodchopper, with an eggbeater in his hand for the cameraman. The late Kaiser Wilhelm was another phony axeman. Gladstone also chopped down a few trees when out of office. Mr. Mackenzie King, whom I respect as a great statesman, is another who likes to imagine he knows how to make an undercut, for which I have no respect whatever. Actually, none of these eminent gentlemen has ever sawed wood.

YOU cannot saw wood with an eggbeater. You cannot become a woodchopper between writing of plays or between spells of public office. You must devote your whole life to it, as I have done. Then you may run the country in your spare time or toss off a play now and then as relaxation, but you can never afford to have your mind distracted from its main purpose, the pursuit of cordwood.

The woodchopper is not to be seen in press photographs with an eggbeater; nor in the handsome tweeds affected by Mr. Shaw in England and Mr. King at Kingsmere. He is to be seen only in the deep woods, preferably those of the Pacific coast, and he will be wearing invariably calked boots, stagged overalls and a thick woollen undershirt; nothing more.

Watch him as he stands balanced on a tiny springboard, which he has hooked into the bowl of a five-foot Douglas fir. See with what rhythm he swings his axe, carving out the gaping white undercut, which must determine within inches where the giant will fall, and observe how, with each deep bite of the axe, his face clenches, every muscle grows taut, and the sweat drips from his nose. Then note how his seven-foot saw eats into the main cut on the other side, whispering softly as it goes about its meal. And finally listen while the woodchopper hammers home his steel wedges, with a deep ringing sound through the woods, until the saw crack begins to open, the great tree balances for a breathless second and then falls with the agonizing wrench of torn wood and the dull thud of a hundred tons upon the earth.

A MAN who can saw trees like that feels insulted by pictures of Mr. Shaw and his eggbeater. We do not object to Mr. Shaw playing on a sawhorse if he wants to. We object to the arrogance of his assumption that sawing wood is somehow inferior to writing plays. We object to him pretending that because he is a playwright he is also a woodchopper—that anyone, even a playwright can chop wood.

I will agree that it must take time, experience and talent to write "St. Joan" or "Pygmalion." But it also takes a lifetime to become a real woodchopper, the kind of man who can push a saw and swing an axe all day and carouse half the night. Therefore, if the newspapers persist in interviewing Mr. Shaw on the subject of woodchopping, which he does not understand, they should interview me on the subject of writing plays. With a contemptuous gesture Mr. Shaw represents woodchooping as a mere hobby, an easy relaxation for moments of repose. With equal truth, I could reply that after work, for recreation, I toss off a few masterpieces of drama, and then I could go on to discourse upon the hidden mysteries and the dark craftsmanship of splitting a quarter-cut grain.

In fact, if Mr. Shaw and all the other eminent pretenders are woodchoppers, then my neighbours in this wilderness are all dramatists of genius, and I am probably William Shakespeare, with callouses all over my hands and my shed full of pungent fir.

Prefers British System

If we had a parliamentary system, the executive and legislative branches and all appointees would be merged into a single unit and be compelled to accept responsibility overnight for any blunder. This does not necessarily mean in actual practice a series of elections. It means that the mere threat of an election to test power could force a change in policy or in personnel. This has worked in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and it can work successfully for us because it is true demomracy to give the people an instantaneous check on their rulers.

The Canadian parliamentary system is what the United States should adopt. Then we could avoid the necessity of holding elections in the midst of some national crisis where continuity of administration might be imperative. We could acquire also a new sense of responsibility in the relations of the executive and the legislative branches of the government. Woodrow Wilson foresaw this need as far back as the 1880's and advocated it again as president-elect in February, 1913, in a historic letter to Congress on the subject of presidential tenure.—New York Sun.

Duplicate Taxes

The income tax is the fairest kind of levy, fairer than the sales tax or custom duties, and it must be largely used by the Dominion in meeting its heavy responsibilities after the war, for war pensions, interest on the war debt, continued maintenance of armed forces, and re-establishment of ex-service men, to say nothing of social security measures. The Dominion may share the proceeds of the income tax with the provinces as it does now, for it must assure all the provinces of ability to maintain their services. But we should not return to the expense and inconvenience of duplicate income taxes. The system adopted during the war will have to be continued, with whatever other readjustments may be necessary in the distribution of responsibilities and financial resources between the Dominion and the provinces.—Winnipeg Free Press.

NOT AT WAR

Music of the great composer Jean Sibelius was featured in a concert at Toronto. Sibelius is a Finn and this country is at war with Finland, but, as this goes to prove, not at war with art or with the Finnish people who do not want to fight for Hitler.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

ANOTHER DROUTH THAT'S GETTING SERIOUS

Handicap of Unwanted Materials

(FROM THE NEW YORK SUN)

AN unpleasant possibility that many a returning soldier, seeking his old job in industry, may find that his plant is not operating because it is cluttered up with machinery and materials left over from war contracts is suggested by George Romney, managing director of the Automotive Council for War Production. He says that some provision to guard against this is made in the recently enacted contract termination law, but by citing some extreme examples—he admits they are not entirely typical — he makes it evident that further legislation and administrative planning are needed to guard against a jam of discarded equipment on V-Day which could dam the orderly flow of reconversion.

Thus far about $14,000,000,000 worth of war contracts to the automotive industry have been cancelled. Coupled with cutbacks and modifications of design, these have left many plants with huge stocks of steel, with tools no longer usable and with obsolete parts. Mr. Romney cited the case of one company which is using thirty acres of space to store parts and materials from a cancelled tank contract. This condition prevailed after nearly ten months of attempting to find a market for the high grade steel and the specially designed tools involved in this cancellation.

The assembly line system under which the automotive industry works in this country places a premium on space. Few of the major plants have facilities for housing much more than a week's supply of any of the many items which go into the modern car. If their factory aisles, shipping platforms and warehouse floors are littered with discarded armor, they cannot resume the manufacture of cars for civilian use. It is not enough to relieve the manufacturer of the financial burden of the cancelled contracts. He must be freed from the physical handicaps that will be imposed unless unwanted materials are removed promptly from his plant.

Our Wartime Trade

(By B. T. RICHARDSON)

OTTAWA: A strong note of caution in interpreting Canada's wartime export trade is sounded in an authoritative summary of the export situation by C. D. Blyth, chief of international payments branch, Dominion Bureau of Statistics, just published by the Department of Trade and Commerce. Mr. Blyth pointed out that a variety of special financial measures, such as mutual aid and repatriation of overseas securities, have been developed to make a high level of exports possible. He analyzed Canadian export trade, which amounted to $3,000,000,000 in 1943, and came to the conclusion that "not more than a quarter of the present total of exports represents normal, established commercial trade".

Canada will face a drastic readjustment of its foreign trade as soon as the war ends.

The post-war question, then, will not only be customers for Canadian goods, but customers who are able to pay for them.

"The new export credit legislation", wrote Mr. Blyth, "is a measure designed to meet some of the financial problems. The solution of others will depend to a large etxent upon the general background of post-war trade. The plans for an international currency agreement and an international bank made recently at the Bretton Woods conference point towards the goal of the eventual re-establishment of a multilateral system of world trade. The successful operation of such a system would remove some of the financial obstacles and do much to ensure a large volume of Canadian trade".

Special financial arrangements to make possible a tremendous export trade in wartime will lapse after the war. Some of them have lapsed already. Besides mutual aid, Canada contributed a billion dollars to the United Kingdom in 1942.

Less widely appreciated is the fact that Canada spent $534,000,000 in overseas expenditures on its armed forces in 1943-44, and this has been an important factor in providing the United Kingdom with Canadian exchange with which to make purchases in Canada. Canada also repatriated Dominion and C.N.R. securities held in the United Kingdom, accumulated a large sterling balance in London until most of it was funded as non-interest loan of $700,000,000 in 1942, and purchased the British Government's equity in war plants in Canada in 1943 at a cost of $205,000,000.

These items explain why the United Kingdom has continued to be one of Canada's main customers in time of war.

In his analysis of Canadian export trade, Mr. Blyth finds that most of it falls into the category of special wartime transfer of goods rather than normal commerce. Manufactured products have come to represent a larger proportion of exports than ever before. The production of munitions on a heavy scale in Canada has been for use overseas. These exports have included many components and materials obtained in the United States. "Apart from their foreign exchange implications", wrote Mr. Blyth, "they represent an 'offset' to a considerable part of the value of exports".

But though Canadian exports have included a heavy percentage of munitions, the trade in commodities which Canada exported before the war has expanded, especially in exports going to the United States and the United Kingdom.

"The wartime character of much of this demand is clearly evident", the review continued. "In the case of food exported to the United Kingdom, for instance, Canada has become a principal supplier of some kinds of food which were formerly obtained elsewhere.... Similarly, much of the present level of United States demand for Canadian food and industrial materials is the product of war-time conditions".

Taking export trade figures for 1943, Mr. Blyth reported that of $421,500,000 in exports going to non-British countries other than the United States, only $35,000,000 represented commercial trade. Exports to the United States amounted to $1,166,600,000 in 1943, and those of general commercial character amounted to $780,000,000. Mr. Blyth added: "While it is not possible to tell how much of this $780,000,000 in 1943 represents normal commercial business, it is clear that substantial amounts of these commodities are used for war production in the United States". One example of this is wheat purchased in Canada for manufacture of alcohol in the United States. Another is feed grain.

Applying the same analysis to Canadian exports to the United Kingdom, Mr. Blyth reported that, exclusive of munitions and food forwarded under the mutual aid act, commodities exported in 1943 were valued at $608,000,000. But most of these are not normal exports. "This group," he wrote, "includes a large part of the food exported in 1943 and most of the non-ferrous metals, lumber and wood products, and other miscellaneous civilian commodities. It consequently reflects a large amount of special wartime demand and can be regarded as commercial exports in a very limited sense".

The conclusion of this review is that while Canada's exports in 1943 amounted to $3,000,000,000 in values, civilian commodities represented about half of this amount. But even of these commodities, much of the demand filled by exports from Canada was "temporarily increased by abnormal war requirements outside of Canada". The normal commercial trade involved in 1943 exports was about 25 per cent. of the total.

British War Brides

British war brides of Canadian soldiers have been arriving in Canada for the past year or two and many more will come.

No class of immigrant should be more welcome in this country than representatives of the gallant British people who endured and withstood the worst that a frenzied Nazi hate could send them in the height of German success.

It is all right to provide a haven in this country for refugees from Central Europe, persecuted by the Nazis, but our own kith and kin should come first. The wives of Canadian soldiers constitute a first lien on our hospitality.—Calgary Herald.

A Bible Message

Doth not wisdom cry? and understanding put forth her voice?.... Hear; for I will speak of excellent things; and the opening of my lips shall be right things....I lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgment: that I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures. (Prov. 8: 1, 6, 20, 21.)

And I, brethren when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God.... And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.....

But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things yea, the deep things of God.

For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. (I Cor. 2: 1, 4, 5, 9-12.)

Dutch Quislings Don't Last

The Netherlands will not have many top-ranking Quislings to bring to trial when that country is liberated, the Netherlands News Bureau revealed in a check-up on the Cabinet of Anton Mussert, Dutch puppet ruler. One members was shot and killed before he ever took office; three others have since been shot and killed; one attempted suicide and became an incurable mental case; two were dismissed, one for causing a deficit of several hundred thousand guilders; two resigned. Only one member of the Cabinet, deputy leader of the Dutch Nazi party, is left.

Obituary notices also point out the resistance to the local Quislings. More and more of them tell of Nazi party members meeting "with a fatal accident in the service of the Fuehrer." Most of the men killed are group leaders or organizers for the party.—New York Herald Tribune.

Russian Action Removes Axis Satellite

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Russia's declaration of war on Bulgaria is of far greater importance than appears on the surface, for it not only comes at the right moment to speed Hitler's downfall but it projects momentous questions into the peace deliberations.

So far as concerns Bulgaria, she asked for what she got. Stupidity and cupidity have impelled her to try to play both the Allied and the Axis game.

This Balkan State, which has been at war with Britain and the United States but not with Russia, recently assumed the status of pseudo-neutrality and began armistice negotiations with Anglo-American representatives in Cairo when Hitler's grip on the Balkans weakened badly. Under protection of this "neutrality" the Germans have continued to use Bulgaria as a refuge and military base.

Throughout the war Russia has shown Bulgaria great consideration despite the latter's adherence to the Axis. The racial tie between these Slavic nations is strong. When the Red armies invaded Romania recently they punctiliously halted their drive, not on the pre-war Bulgarian boundary but on the frontier of Southern Dobruja, which Sofia acquired from hard-pressed Romania in 1940. This rich wheat province has been a bone of contention between Bulgaria and Romania since the latter won it in the second Balkan war in 1912.

Moscow has warned Sofia several times lately against playing Hitler's game and the Bulgars should have learned by this time that Stalin doesn't make a practice of flourishing the big stick unless he means business. Now the fight will be intensified against the Nazis in the Balkans even if Moscow agrees to the armistice for which Bulgaria has asked.

This means the Germans can't long hang on in southeast Europe, but equally to the point it's likely to disrupt Hitler's plans to rush troops from the peninsula to Germany to help meet the onslaught of the western allies. He sorely needs these forces in his Siegfried Line at this crucial juncture.

Truly it's a boon for the Allied cause but I think we must look beyond the military aspects to get the full significance. It strikes me that Russia's operations in the Balkans will put her in a powerful position for a challenge to Turkey's control of the Dardenelles Strait — the brighest jewel in the Ottoman crown.

The semi-official Moscow newspaper Pravda more than once recently has charged that Turkey was continuing relations with Germany under neutrality. This has been widely interpreted among observers as spade-work for Russian insistence on having unrestricted access to the Mediterranean, from the Black Sea via the Strait.

Milkweed Pods To Be Gathered

Pods of the milkweed plant, the floss of which is urgently needed to fill life jackets for our fighting men will be ready for picking next week, and already school inspectors and agricultural representatives are arranging the distribution of the mesh bags to be used for keeping the pods after picking. In Peterborough county, the mesh bags may be obtained at no charge from F. C. Paterson, 164 Hunter street, Peterborough, and from Rev. Father Gallogoli, parish priest, Ennismore. The picking of milkweed pods is a vital necessity, and can save the lives of many of our soldiers, sailors, and airmen.

When Java and other islands of the Pacific fell into the hands of the Japs, the world's richest and largest supply of kapok, a substance used universally to fill life jackets before the war, was cut off from the British and American forces. While a small supply remained in India, it was found too small to last long, or to be of any great value to the Allied Nations. Now, however, the floss from the ordinary milkweed plant has been found to be an excellent substitute for kapok, and in order that every fighting man is provided with a life jacket, Peterborough county and other counties in Eastern Ontario are each asked to pick 8,000 bags of milkweed pods.

There will be no charge for the mesh bags, or onion bags, in which to pick the pods. The distribution of the bags has been arranged, and the collection of the bags will be arranged. A payment of 20 cents a bag will be made.

This is a vital part of Peterborough's war effort; a friend or relative may be saved in a life jacket you helped to build, through picking milkweed pods this year!

Westclox Girls Blank Toronto Behind Bullock's Smart Pitching

By FRED D. CRAIG

Brilliant pitching by Isobel Bullock and timely hitting by Jean Castle, who drove in all her team's runs enabled Westclox to get the jump on York Brass, Toronto intermediate champions, in the first game of their second round P.W.S.U. intermediate series at Sunnyside, Toronto, Wednesday evening, the Big Bens winning a smart victory by 3 to 0.

The second game will be staged at Riverside Park at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and if a third fixture should be necessary will be played here that evening.

Isobel Bullock held the Olympic League representatives to four singles, two of them of the infield variety and fanned 11 of the Toronto girls in registering her first shutout win of the season. She walked only two batters and altogether only six of the losers got on the bases for the Big Bens played errorless ball behind this brilliant pitching.

Vera King, who pitched for York Brass, tossed good ball too, keeping eight Westclox hits well scattered but two long smashes by Jean Castle proved her downfall. The first triple came in the second inning and drove in the first two Westclox runs and the second was slammed out in the ninth to chase in the third marker for the winners. Barbara Rome also had two hits and scored two of the three Westclox runs.

Mary Lawrence, tall first base players of the York Brass, was the only one of the losers to get more than one blow. She had two singles.

Westclox outfield did not have a fielding chance, so effectively did Isobel Bullock's brilliant pitching tie up the York Brass attack. The Big Bens' infield handled everything that came their way flawlessly.

Lily Goff in left field for the losers had several nice catches and the Toronto infield turned in some good defensive work.

Score In Second

Westclox broke into the score column in the second frame when Marg. Hawthorne lined a single to left to open and Isobel Bullock singled through short. Beryl Dobbin forced the first runner at third on a roller to short and when Barbara Rome also hit to short the play was repeated on Isobel Bullock. Jean Castle, with two out, boomed a long triple to right centre scoring Beryl Dobbin and Barbara Rome. Verna Patterson walked but was called out for leaving first too soon.

The winners threatened again in the sixth. Verna Patterson raced to second when Vera King fielded her bunt and threw past first. Aggie Anderson bunted safely but was hurt in a fall at first base and Jean Castle who ran for her stole second. Viola McLean's hot shot back at the box bounced off Vera King to Marg. Schram who tossed Verna Patterson out at the plate. Marg. Hawthorne was safe on a fumble at third but Isobel Bullock rolled out with the bases full.

That was the last Westclox move until the ninth when with one out Barbara Rome beat out an infield hit and went on to second on Alice Whalley's bad throw to first. Again Jean-Castle came to the rescue with a hard slam to right field that went for a triple when Jaye Smerdon tried to make a shoe string catch and the ball shot by her. Verna Patterson fouled out to the catcher and Aggie Anderson popped to Mary Lawrence at first.

York Brass got a runner on in the first when Mary Lawrence got an infield single with two out but Marg Robertson popped to Norma Whetung.

Quakers Down Lock Works 17-7

Scoring 10 times in the last three innings, Quaker Oats sent the Lock Company down to a 17 to 7 defeat Wednesday evening at Ashburham Bowl, in the second game of the semi-final Junior play-offs of the Girls' League. This leaves the Quaker team only one win away from ousting the Lock Company from the Junior play-offs race, and the two rivals will meet again Friday evening, in what might be the deciding game on whether the Lock team will stay in the play-offs.

At the end of the third inning, Quaker had beaten out a 2-run lead over the Lock Company, and after that, Peterborough Lock was never allowed to threaten. Although Quaker pitcher gave up 16 blows to the Lock players, only seven of them blossomed into runs.

The sixth frame was easily Quakers most successful one, when a sesies of bad errors on the part of Peterborough Lock and some heavy hitting by Qukaer paved the way for six runs, shooting them out in the lead by 13 to 6 at that time. Again in the eighth, 4 runs were made on two hits, and three errors, to make their final count.

Gertie Masters pitched steady ball for Quakers, stricking out 4, and walking none. Jane Succe occupied the mound for the Lock girls, fanning 5, walking one, and allowing 18 hits.

Ace Quaker hitter Bev. Boutette; and pitcher Bertie Masters went best for that team, each striking three blows, Boutette in five trips and Masters in six.

For the Lock team, Beryl Lee connected with five hits in five times at bat, with Audrey Patton and Audrey Stinson next, each with 3 hits out of six trips.

The teams:

Quaker Oats— Phyllis Thackeray lf, June McGregor 3b, Helen White c, Gertie Masters p, Carlotta Laing ss, Velma Crane cf, Bev. Boutette 1b, Gladys Brown rf, Irene Gandy 2b.

Peterborough Lock — Audrey Stinson 3b, Jane Succe p, Andrey Patton lf, rf, Beryl Lee c, Myrtle Falls lf, rf, Vera Carr ss, Betty McMahon 1b, Mickey McFarland cf, Isobel Mathews 2b.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It was Wednesday—and it rained—but in spite of the rain that came around 10.30 o'clock our boys and girls had completed two games and therefore it was declared a tournament.

A nice crowd turned out to help put over the "Christmas Cheer" Fund and we believe that the tidy sum of $30.00 will be handed over in due time. The prizes—12 baskets of peaches were donated by P. E. Moore and the committee is very grateful for his kindness.

The winning rinks were:

1st—Mrs. Sabin, F Reed, Mrs. J. Baird, R. Hendry, skip.

2nd—W. Cathcart, Mrs. H. Beatty, L. Loftus, skip.

Third—R. Brown, Mrs. J. Reed, S. Williams, skip.

It will be men's rinks for Friday night.

Tonight the entries close for the extra series games. It is entirely up to the skips whether the boys or their rink are entered or not.

SPORTS - Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Although Westclox got the jump on Toronto York Brass, Queen City intermediate champs in the first game of their P.W.S.U. intermediate playdown round at Sunnyside last night with a clear cut 3 to 0 win on four-hit pitching by Isobel "Tommy" Bullock, the series is by no means over. The second game will be played at Riverside Park at 2:30 o'clock Saturday and the Big Bens still have a tough fight on their hands. Last night's tussle was a tight pitching battle between Isobel Bullock and Vera King, Toronto ace and two timely triples by Jean Castle driving in all three Westclox runs represented the difference between the two teams. In other words the Big Bens had to play errorless ball and Isobel Bullock had to come up with her best pitching performance of the season to eke out a win over the Olympic League intermediate winners. Westclox played like champions on the classy Sunnyside diamond and they had to to come down in front for these York Brass girls are no pushovers. They looked strong in every position last night and the Big Bens are not making the mistake of treating Saturday's game lightly. They know they have a battle on their hands.

* * * * * *

The Peterborough representatives should have the backing of a huge crowd when they tie into the classy Toronto team here on Saturday. They have earned it by their fine all-round play in the opening game of the series. As already intimated this York Brass team is good. They have no mean hurler in Vera King, red-headed ace who will undoubtedly be sent back at the Westclockers Saturday. In Mary Lawrence, tall first-sacker they have a classy fielder and a real hitter and the other members of the infield also play smart defensive ball. York Brass haven't given up the series as lost by any means. They say they are coming down here Saturday and tie up the round by beating Westclox in the second fixture. If they should succeed in doing so the third game would be played at Riverside Park at 6 o'clock. Westclox are hopeful that the evening fixture will not be necessary but they realize they have to play headsup ball all the way to take the series in two straight.

Soldier Teams Play

Peterborough fans are sure of at least two games at Riverside Park Saturday for immediately after the York Brass-Westclox battle which starts at 2:30 o'clock the Radar team from Barriefield Camp will meet the local Military Training Centre team in the first game of a best-of-three series to decide the softball championship of Military District No. 3. The Peterborough Soldiers will have the same team which represented them in the local City League with the exception of Tony McIlveen who has been moved out of here. Pitchers Earl Revoir and Pete Procyk are still available and the Military Training Centre will be able to field a team that they hope will be strong enough to take care of the Barriefield outfit. The latter are said to be power-packed and to have smart pitching.

* * * * * *

The series is a best-of-three affair and the second game will be staged on the diamond at the Military Training Centre on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Lieut.-Col. Turnbull, officer commanding the camp has given permission for the public to be admitted for this battle and it has been arranged to take up a silver collection which will be turned over to the British War Victims' Fund. The local Soldiers have a big following in town and the fans will welcome the double opportunity of seeing them in action again on Saturday and Sunday. Incidentally the camp team took a jaunt to Bailieboro on Monday and won a couple of Labor Day games there so they should be in good shape for the tough battles coming up this week-end. The arrangement is that if the series should be tied at the end of the second game, a third fixture will be played at the camp on Sunday evening to decide the round.

Kingston Out

If Plazas had overcome Oshawa they would have marched into the semi-finals through the dropping out of Kingston Ordnance. Says George Campbell in his Oshawa sport column: "Oshawa 'Main Office' advanced to the semi-finals of the Provincial Intermediate "A" O.A.S.A. championship playdowns here on Saturday night, when they staged one big rally, an 8-run scoring splurge in the last half of the 7th inning. It's unlikely if any softball club has ever made so much progress in one inning. Peterborough Plazas had the series all tucked away in that hectic sudden-death game and the 100 or so rooters they had on hand here in Oshawa for the 3rd contest, were really whooping it up. Then Frankie Stokoe tired on the mound and the Main Office team moved in with a vengeance. When it was all over, the Main Office team had scored 8 runs and turned an 8-3 deficit into an 11-8 lead and they won the game by that score. That won the series and once again Peterborough's O.A.S.A. representatives had to bow to Oshawa. However, the big news came this morning when Kingston Ordnance, winners over Belleville in the other Eastern Ontario zone playoff, announced that they would have to default the rest of their season, due to the new regulations governing teams of Armed Forces players competing against civilian teams. So, now Main Office are the Eastern Ontario Inter. "A" champions and will likely next meet the Toronto Intermediate "A" champions in the O.A.S.A. semi-finals, likely some time next week."

Although this immediate district was not very heavily represented in the lineup local fans will be interested in the announcement that the ball team representing the Prince of Wales Rangers (Active) recently won the Northern British Columbia softball title. The championship was decided at an area sports at Terrace, B.C., in a series in which the entrants were the Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury Regiment, the R.C.A.F. team from Seal Cove, the American champion team from Point Edward and the Rangers. In the preliminary round the Yanks eliminated the Air Force and the Rangers knocked off the S.S.M. and S. team. The final game played the next day was voted the best softball battle seen in the Terrace area. The Yanks scored a run in the fifth inning, the Rangers came back with one in the last of the ninth to tie it up and then pushed over the winning counter in the 11th, taking the decision 2 to 1. Several former professional ball players were with the American team but the superb pitching of Sergt. Woodley of the battalion orderly room staff, a Toronto left-hander stopped them cold with five scattered hits. Players on the Rangers were Sergt. Walkowski Hamilton; Sergt. Woodley, Toronto; Sergt. Riley, Toronto; Pte. Armstrong, Hamilton; Pte. Brooks, Sergt. Waxter, Sergt. Taloski and Pte. Wisniewski, Toronto; Sergt. Major Gray, Millbrook, and Pte. Herr Peterborough. The team was managed by Hank Gray of Millbrook who also played right field for the victorious Rangers.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Westclox were lucky last night that the rain held off long enough to get their game in. Two other fixtures, billed to follow their battle were rained out....The Big Bens played practically perfect ball to take the measure of the strong York Brass club.... Isobel Bullock, pitching her first shutout of the year had the Toronto girls subdued all the way and in six of the nine innings had to pitch to only three batters. Only two York Brass girls got as far as second and but one around to third....Aggie Anderson, Westclox centre fielder, injured her knee badly in the fifth inning when she fell at first base and had to have medical attention. However she returned to the field and finished the game....Mary Lawrence, smart first sacker of the losers also was hurt sliding into second base on the last play of the battle, as she was thrown out in attempting to steal....The Big Bens looked as much at home on the classy Sunnyside diamond as if they had always played there....Now they are waiting to hear what the York Brass team will say when they see the local field....They expect it will be plenty.... There will be a junior rugby practice tonight at Riverside Park at 6:30—anyone interested is invited.

3 Leaf Pitchers Go To Athletics

TORONTO, Sept. 7—(CP).—President Peter Campbell of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League last night announced renewal of a working agreement with the American League's Philadelphia Athletics.

Under terms of the agreement, three Toronto pitchers—Righthanders Al Jarlett, Woody Crowson and Luther Knerr—have been sold to Athletics and will join them at the close of the 1944 International League season. The Leafs obtained an undisclosed amount of cash and title to several players in the Philadelphia organization. Selection of the players will be made by the Toronto management at a later date.

Main Office Drops Game To Colts

OSHAWA, Sept. 7.—(Special). — Oshawa Colts defeated Main Office here last night in the opening game of the city championship series for the Miller-Libby Trophy, by a score of 6 to 4.

Dutch Hiller started on the mound for Main Office and worked the first three innings, giving up four hits for two runs. Harvey Bennett took over in the fourth inning and gave Colts only two hits in the last six frames, both singles into right field and both of them went for runs when the rightfielder, in each case, allowed the ball to get away from him and the batter made the full circuit on the error.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—The major and minor baseball leagues have scheduled their winter meetings for the same day—the big leagues Dec. 5-6-7 in New York and the minors starting Dec. 6 at Buffalo . . . . Maybe Jedge Bramham figures that's the best way to keep the major leaguers from interfering with his charges . . . Latest tip on the National Hockey League president is Dr. William G. Hardy, University of Alberta professor and amateur hockey bigwig . . . . The job may be offered to Connie Smythe first, but nobody thinks he'd be interested in the kind of dough it pays.

Dodger Didn't Dodge

When the Newport News Dodgers were playing the Richmond Colts in a Piedmont League game the other day, the Richmond catcher, Cabrera, tried to pull a fast one by falling to the ground and clutching his ankle when a pitch hit the dirt near him . . . The ump didn't fall for it and sent him back to the plate . . . A couple of innings later Cabrera tried to block the plate when a Dodger slid home . . . . When the dust cleared, Cabrera was writhing on the ground again—and that time it wasn't a gag. He had to leave the game.

When the Pirates swept four games against the Cardinals recently it was the first time the Cards had been blanked in a four-game series since July, 1940, when the Bucs also did the trick . . . . Everett McGowan, one-time speed skating champ and pro hockey player, has a new wrinkle in the ice show business. His review will play the Massachusetts State Fair at Brockton on a portable outdoor rink.

Airforce Men Irked By Golfball Famine

WITH RCAF BOMBER GROUP OVERSEAS—"Golf balls!" exclaimed PO. "Porky" Dumart, Beaver base sports officer, "we haven't any; never had 'em and have given up hope of ever getting any."

All of this to a sprog rear-gunner going on leave who figured he'd like to bat a ball around one of the Scottish links. Only the newcomers bother to ask the former Boston hockey star for golf balls. The veterans just don't bother...they gave up long ago.

F-L. Ran Shedd, a Torontonian who flies a Thunderbird squadron aircraft, explained it this way. "We used to go looking for golf balls. Once when I was on leave n London I spent most of a day going from shop to shop trying to buy just one. No dice. Finally I went to the golf course, anyway; rented an old set of clubs; got one ball with the cover half off and just batted it around. Some of us have quit trying and instead of playing the game we just think about it."

Shedd was wrong in one little instance. It is possible to buy the odd golf ball over here. There are a few leftovers from pre-war stock if you are in the know and if you are willing to pay. There was an item in the London Daily Mail the other day of golfers paying anything between ten shillings and 30 shillings for them. Figure that out in Canadian money—it's a heap of cash.

Our Canadian lads shouldn't have to trudge from shop to shop in London almost pleading for one golf ball. Sports Officer Dumart shouldn't have to tell sprog gunners that he never had any.

What's the matter with the golf associations and clubs back home? These fellows are doing a job for you over here...right now. They're taking a beating from flak may'be at the very second you're poking one out from the first tee at the Scrub Hollow Golf Club, anywhere in Canada.

Frank Edgar Heads New Ice Club

The second annual meeting of the Ice Club of Peterborough (figure skating) was held Tuesday evening, September 5, at the Y.W.C.A. rooms.

Some new members joined up. Frank Edgar, well known and popular in community activities, was chosen as president.

C. Weiss has accepted the position of representative to the Canadian Figure Skating Association and will attend skating tests and competitions in neighboring clubs as junior judge in preliminary and first tests.

The club is proceeding with final levelling operations on its rink on Paterson St. West and will build 6 foot enclosure early this fall and begin on 24 foot clubhouse directly after.

The club strongly recommends support of the new civic centre.

By HYE BOSSIN

Newsreels will be easier on the ears shortly. The sound recording level will become the same as that of entertainment films. Perhaps newsreel makers have learned that shouting doesn't make the thing being shouted about seem important —and if it's really important, it doesn't need theatrics . . . "Flesh and Fantasy," if you remember, was made up of four distinct episodes. There were five originally but one was dropped when the film proved to be overlong. It was the story of a blind girl and featured Gloria Jean, Alan Marshall and Tom Craven. It was so good that Universal will make a full-length feature out of it, adding Martha O'Driscoll to the cast . . . Film patrons are sick of those Sinatra swooners who squeal and whine. In San Francisco the other day, during the showing of Sinatra's "Step Lively," the audience scorched the kids verbally.

Hollywood has a property man named Irving Sindler who tries to get his name before the cameras in every picture he works on. He often gets it on store windows. Recently it appeared on a tombstone. In "The Wonder Man," Danny Kaye's next, all the canned goods in the kitchen scene bear the label, "Sindler & Son". . . . Raymond Massey, discharged from the Canadian army not so long ago, returns to films in "God is My Co-Pilot." It's his first in two years . . . Even telephone numbers, used in a crime scene, can become the basis of a lawsuit if they happen to match that of private citizens. So Billy Wilder, while directing the Fred MacMurray-Barbara Stanwyck starrer, "Double Indemnity," made use of his own number. But the word get around and now curious callers keep the phone busy.

Arthur Treacher, the screen's best-known butler, has been honorary president of Butlers, Inc. since 1938—that is, the butlers' union. Years ago he was a Broadway juvenile musical star but once he became a butler in films other roles ended. He's the victim of type casting and would give anything for another type of role . . . Bing Crosby made $311,111 for his film work last year . . . Kisses and emotional close-ups are banned from Japanese movies as immoral. Perhaps the Japs' warped mentality comes from repressing honest feelings, which change form and come out in cruelty, violence and lust . . . Mavis Murray, ex-Vancouver cub reporter who got a job as a messenger girl at Paramount, was "discovered" and chosen for a role in "I Love a Soldier," in which Paulette Goddard and Sunny Tufts star. Now Miss Murray has been signed to a contract.

British films are receiving much greater circulation in Canada this year, the quality having improved considerably on the whole. "San Demetrio—London" is a crackerjack of a thriller. It stars Robert Beatty of Hamilton and is but one of a number of features made in the Old Country that exceed most Hollywood efforts . . . Carrie Jacobs Bond, 82-year-old writer of "I Love You Truly" and "The End of a Perfect Day," was honored in Hollywood recently. Her songs have sold 7,000,000 copies . . . Groucho Marx was bitten by a dog the other day and when the police wanted to shoot it he stopped them by buying it. Now it's chained up in his back yard and he's afraid to go out there . . . Catty crack by one actress to another: "You look wonderful—who's your embalmer?"

Tigers Move Closer To Yankee Team

By The Associated Press

Steve O'Neill hopped up with another route-going pitcher in Rufe Gentry to-day as the Detroit Tigers moved to within a game and a half of the Yankees in the American League but the veteran Roger "Doc" Cramer took the play with his .537 nine-day batting splurge.

The Detroit club could be composed of two fellows named Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout for all the average fan know but the all important matter of base hits was being taken care of by the 38-year-old Cramer.

Known best for his days of stardom with the Philadelphia A's, Cramer has set the pace for the Tigers with 22 hits in his last 41 at bats, boosting his average from a sub par .196 on June 15 to .280.

Cramer continued his spree with a triple and single, scoring two runs in last night's 3-2 edge over Chicago, only game in the majors. Gentry scattered eight White Sox singles in his second complete game since June 22. It was Rufe's eighth win and Johnny Humphries' ninth loss, winding up the season series between the two clubs with Detroit holding a 13-9 margin.

International Race Tightens

By The Associated Press

Although Baltimore holds the International League lead by 8-10ths of a percentage point, Newark Bears have hoisted themselves to a virtual tie with the Flock.

Frank Hiller pitched for Newark as the Bears smothered Jersey City yesterday, 8-1, while Baltimore lost to Syracuse, 2-1. Hiller racked up his 15th win aided by 10 hits off three Little Giant pitchers.

Baltimore was scheduled to play a doubleheader with Syracuse, but rain halted the nightcap. Ben Geraghty decided things in the Chiefs' favor in the first game when he tripled Dutch Mele home with the clincher in the eighth.

Gene Dellinger clouted Montreal Royals to a 3-2 win over Buffalo as Wayne Collins scattered four Bison hits. Going four-for-four, Dellinger doubled Walt Chipple in with the winning run in the eighth after Buffalo had knotted the count at 2-2. Montreal's victory puts the Royals one game away from the fifth place Giants and drops the Bisons to within half a game of the fourth place Maple Leafs.

Three Nations To Pay For War Relief

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—(AP)—Liberated France, Belgium and Holland will pay their own way in relief work, officials of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration said here today.

They won't have to tip into the United Nations' "world community chest," it was explained, because they have foreign exchange resources which will be used to defray relief expenses according to the U.N.R.R.A. agreements drawn up last winter.

Norway, it is understood, may have to call on U.N.R.R.A. for part of the money needed to relieve hunger and suffering and to rehabilitate Nazi-ravaged industries.

While U.N.R.R.A. contemplates furnishing no funds for France, Belgium and Holland, it will, according to the Atlantic City agreements, act as a go-between in helping these governments to get their needs filled.

While U.N.R.R.A. will act only as an agent and expediter for countries in Western Europe, it is preparing to initiate quite a different program in Eastern Europe when the time comes. There most countries have little or no foreign exchange balances with which to pay for relief and rehabilitation, and their needs will be met out of the common fund subscribed by all U.N.R.R.A. member nations, proportionately according to the national incomes.

Methodist Bishop Passes At Age 79

CHICAGO, Sept. 7—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, 79, Methodist churchman, who gained national prominence through his work for the defeat of Alfred E. Smith for the presidency in 1928, died today in Wesley Memorial Hospital.

The Bishop had come to Chicago for a meeting of the Anti-Saloon League, an organization in which he was active for years. He became ill last week.

For much of his lifetime Bishop Cannon was the centre of ecclesiastical and political controversies. A bitter foe of liquor, he once described his work in that line as more than 40 years of "active anti-liquor warfare."

During the 1928 political campaign he was accused of opposing Al Smith because Smith was a Roman Catholic, and Senator Carter Glass of Virginia called Bishop Cannon "the Methodist pope." The Bishop, however, contended his opposition to Smith actually was based on his own long fight against liquor.

Soldiers May Take Leave Jobs

OTTAWA, Sept. 7—(CP)—Soldiers, sailors and airmen in Canada may accept "casual" civilian jobs while off duty or on leave.

Spokesmen for the army and air force said today that under routine orders issued in July servicemen, with permission of their commanding officers, can accept jobs which do not interfere with military duties.

"Such jobs must not be considered permanent and they must be in some essential industry," said a spokesman. "And it is unlikely that permission will be granted if civilian labor is available."

There is no hard and fast rule governing the employment of seamen in civilian jobs.

"We don't care what the sailors do with their off duty hours or while on leave as long as they are back to their ships or establishments on time," said a Navy spokesman.

Public Buildings After War Boon For City

Three public buildings which are being projected for Peterborough represent an aggregate outlay and investment of approximately $1,000,000 which may be regarded as a triple gift to the city and its community.

They are the City Hall, for which close to $500,000 has been provided by the will of the late W. G. Morrow; the customs-postal building for which the federal government had bought the site on Charlotte street, roughly estimated at $250,000; and the Memorial Health and Recreation Centre for which $200,000 has been set as the objective of subscriptions.

The prospectus of the Memorial Centre indicates that the manufacturing industries of Peterborough are to subscribe $100,000, and it is expected that an additional $100,000 will be raised by voluntary contributions from the people of the city and county.

Not one nest egg, but three, as post-war projects, and the Health Centre an undertaking to be launched as soon as its financing has been completed and permission obtained from the controller of supplies.

Boon To City.

Apart from the aspect and consideration of post-war employment, which may possibly be amplied by the proposed civic hospital and certain industrial enlargements which have been motted, even within recent weeks, the trinity of public buildings must convince citizens of Peterborough as a most desirable enlargement of community property values and services.

From all information which has reached public channels there is no doubt about the city hall and federal building. The municipal council regards them as assured. Doubt attaches only to the Memorial Health and Recreation Centre, and its promoting committee refuses even to think of any doubt about that project. Their recent reports indicate that the $100,000 from Peterborough's industries "is in the bag." The next step in their plans is an appeal for individual subscriptions, and finally for public support to a by-law to be voted on in December for an amount that has been estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000, probably depending on the response to the campaign which is now being organized.

FLIER SAFE—FO. J. B. (Bun) Armstrong, who was reported missing early in May, has cabled his wife, 47 Dennistoun avenue, that he is safe.

Bun Armstrong Reported Safe

Reported missing May 3, Flying Officer J. B. (Bun) Armstrong has cabled his wife, Dennistoun avenue, that he is safe and well, and a letter is following. The good news reached his family this morning.

FO. Armstrong who went overseas in March 1943, had completed his first tour of operations overseas. He elected to stay on and do 15 more bombing trips, which counted as a second tour, in order to be finished with operational flying. Shortly afterwards, he was reported missing. He had taken part in some of the heaviest raids on Berlin, Mannheim, Cologne and Stuttgart.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong of Toronto, who formerly lived on Bolivar street, the young flier has five brothers, three of whom are in the RCAF. Prior to enlisting, he was employed at Ed. Riley's men's store.

Canadian Legion Gifts Pass A Full Donation

When the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund first began to operate, the sum of five hundred pounds was set as the amount that would comprise each donation, this representing the sum of $2,240.00 in Canadian currency.

This is quite a sizable amount when it comes down to being raised by any one individual group, so it stands very much to the credit of the Peterborough Branch No. 52 of the Canadian Legion that they have now achieved a total that surpasses that amount, and emphasizes that same loyalty to the cause of the Empire which charactersed their services some 25 years or more ago.

At the same time it should not be overlooked that the source of all the gifts that have been made, came in the first instance from their work on behalf of the welfare needs of their own group, which as the years proceed do not lighten to any considerable degree, and in sharing this with those who have become the victims in this present conflict, they do so with a first hand knowledge from actual experience of the distress that war inflicts on a civilian life in the zone of hostilities.

This latest gift amounts to $51.45, and now gives them an overall total of $2,261.21 so far given to the fund, exceeding the needs to make one full donation by a little over $21.00, something that has been achieved by only two other sources amongst the many who have given their support in a practical way to the humanitarian project for which the fund keeps on operating.

In addition to this, they render a further service in the present conflict by holding a second bingo each week on Friday nights for the purpose of sending smokes to members of all the armed forces on active service, a further assist which adds lustre to the part they have played in the operations of this fund.

Fund Nears $80,000 Mark

The total amount that the fund has raised to date is now fast approaching the $80,000 mark, the sum of $113.38 actually being required to make that an established fact, and since an amount of £17,700 has already been sent to the Lord Mayor of London, it is now proposed to make this next donation one of £300 to bring it up to the even £18,000. This will require a total sum of $1,346, of which there already is $639.42 on hand in the bank, so it is hoped that with the prevailing need of the moment due to the devastation and loss of life caused by the robot bombs, this will be speedily completed and sent over to help them.

Previously acknowledged	$79,835.17
Branch 52, Canadian Legion per G. Gimblett and G. G. Torrance ..	51.45
Total to date	$79,886.62

BELIEVED KILLED — Flt.-Sgt. Earl David Kidd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Kidd, R.R. 3, Indian River, is reported missing, believed killed, through the International Red Cross sources.

Flt. Sgt. E. Kidd Believed Killed

Flt. Sgt. Earl David Kidd, RCAF, previously reported missing, is now said to be missing, believed killed, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Kidd, R.R. 3, Indian River. This latest piece of information was sent through the International Red Cross and is based on information from Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Kidd declared that they had still not given up hope that their son might be alive. Only one member of the crew has been accounted for and he is a prisoner in Germany. The rest are still on the missing list.

Flt. Sgt. Kidd set out on a bombing mission headed for the Ruhr, in the latter part of June, and nothing further has been heard of him since that time.

He worked at the De Laval and the Johnson Motors before enlisting in December 1942. His training began in March 1943 and he got his air gunner's wing September 1943. Flt. Sgt. Kidd went overseas in October 1943.

A sister, Mrs. Gordon Dickie, is with the RCAF, WD, at Rivers, Man. and her husband, Flt. Sgt. Gordon Dickie, is with the RCAF overseas. Two brothers, Milton and Norman are at home, and a sister, Dorothy, attends Norwood High School.

One-Day Drive For Paper September 21

Instead of the monthly campaign under the direction of Mrs. R. Whalen, for the collection of waste paper and salvage, September 21 will be the big day in Peterborough for a one-day drive, and every man, woman and child is asked to collect 10 pounds of waste paper, so that soldiers in France will not be denied food, medical supplies, and ammunition they need to keep the Nazis fleeing in the other direction.

In the evening, all the paper that has been collected will be picked up by trucks, leased by many industrial firms in the city, and driven by men also from the firms. The pick-up campaign will begin at 6 o'clock in the evening.

Residents of Omemee, Norwood, Millbrook and Lakefield are asked to save paper too, as this will be a district drive, and includes communities bordered by those villages.

Need Cartons

"A Pound a Day Keeps the Nazis Away"....is the slogan for the drive, and old newspapers, magazines, books, paper boxes, soap paper, wrapping paper, paper board and cartons collected by you; and placed in bundles for the trucks to pick up, can help speed the day of victory, and save lives, as blood plasma and all-important medical supplies for troops in France are shipped almost exclusively in cartons. Other uses for paper in the war theatres are: As paper parachutes for dropping supplies to paratroopers, in plastics for plane parts, and helmets.

Remember a dozen old letters will make a cartridge box; six old books are a mortar shell carrier.

The entire success of the forthcoming September 21 drive, depends upon the efforts of every person.

OVERSEAS ONE YEAR—Flying Officer Henry Lewis Shepherd, R.C.A.F., who taught school for 7½ years in the Peterborough district, has been overseas a year. Mrs. Ada Craig, 413 Rogers street, received a letter telling of a recent leave he enjoyed. His wife is living in Keene. His last teaching post was at Central School.

Public Schools Set New Record

An estimated 3,500 children are attending the Peterborough Public schools this term, and while figures showing the number of new enrolments have not yet been completed, a new record in attendance will be shown, according to School Inspector K. S. Wightman.

Increased attendance in all schools have been noted, and King Edward and Prince of Wales schools in particular are well-filled, as the two schools are handling some of the overflow of Mays and Confederation Schools.

Queen Mary schools, with more than 475 pupils is filled to capacity and at the present, although new enrolments are still being made, Prince of Wales school is accommodating more than 700 children.

The wartime housing school on Park Hill Road is handling 77 pupils.

At the Collegiate and Vocational School, figures are not yet complete as to the number of students attending. Many of the forms have not been reported yet, and until the complete list of figures comes in, it would be difficult to determine how many students have remained at their summer positions.

Thousands Of Starlings Spend Days In Otonabee Weed Beds

"Ten million starlings," was Ford Campbell's ample estimate of the tremendous flocks of these nuisance birds in their daytime habitat in the rice and weed beds along the Otonabee river and its arms in a long stretch from Rice Lake up to the bridges.

Mr. Campbell admitted that his figure might be off the target, a couple of million either way, but the general impression was a vast flight of these birds whose part-time urban habits have been observed by many citizens. This report from down the river affords answer and information to the wonder of many people who have seen the starlings taking off in the morning and returning by the same route in the evenings, but who have never had a clue as to where the birds put in their days. Ford Campbell spent the holiday week-end down the river below the old T.A.S. park, and his casual account of the multitude of starlings feeding in the rice beds which have grown up along the river and in its forks spans the gap of information about these birds which, by many citizens, are classed with the pests.

The evening flight of the starlings, arriving in numbers from straggling twos and twenties up to huge swarms, but hardly millions, presumably crosses Otonabee, generally following the river's course to the Hunter street bridge, and then a whirring zoom to the trees across the river from the Quaker Oats mill. They rustle about for a while with a great volume of chatter and gradually settle down for the night, until morning when they take off again for the river spots they like. According to Mr. Campbell, and other citizens who have watched their evening returnings for the last few years, Peterborough's colony of starlings has mounted to vast numbers.

Better Spot.

According to complaints of starling nuisance in Kitchener and other cities, it seems something is to be saaid of Peterborough's flocks, even if it is only a negative and utterly dubious credit. The site they have pre-empted is fortunately in the trees on the river bank and on the islands over the flowing water. They might just as thoughtlessly settled in the west end for dormitory purposes, and by this time Peterborough would have been thinking up ways and means of getting rid, as in Kitchener, of "the starling problem."

REPORTED KILLED — Word was received today by Mrs. William Guerin, 678 Armour road, that her son, Pte. Cecil Guerin, has been killed overseas. Formerly employed at the Quaker Oats Company, Pte. Guerin has only been overseas about two months. A brother, Spr. Martin Guerin, is stationed in Canada, and he was a cousin of Sgt. Emmett Guerin, killed in Italy.

Cyclist Hurt In Collision

Thomas Skinner, 535 Park street, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Wednesday, after he had been knocked off his bicycle in a collision with a truck. He is suffering from bruised chest and back muscles and cuts and bruises on his left leg.

Skinner was riding his bicycle north on Park street and at the Townsend street intersection was struck by a truck, driven by Maitland Carter, 57 Crescent street, which was making a left turn off Reid street into Townsend.

The cyclist was knocked to the pavement and was taken to the C.G.E. surgery for first aid. Afterward he was removed to hospital.

October 2 Deadline For 1943 Tax Roll

Return of the 1943 tax roll to the township clerk by October 2 was directed by Otonabee council Tuesday. By-laws were passed increasing the salary of the road superintendent who reported that the Blythe Construction Company would be ready to begin spreading crushed gravel within the week of September 8. Another by-law pertaining to dog licenses was also given its three reading.

The council has received complaints of flood water damaging market garden crops, and will investigate them at once.

The following accounts were passed:

Road Accounts — Fred Nelson $74.25, Mac. Short $74.50, Wm. McElroy $3.15, A. C. Curtiss $8.85, G. S. Taylor $5.50, Herbert Godfrey 90c, the Pedlar People Ltd. $276.19, Canadian Oil Co. $30, Wm. Weir $6, John Wood $28, Bruce Davidson $36, Thomas Weir $8.33.

General Accounts — Otonabee Telephone System $9.45, Alfred Elmhurst $2, Chris. Plunkett $10, Hydro Electric Commission $2.70, Workmen's Compensation $58.37.

QUIET NIGHT

Firemen at the local station had a quiet night, with not even a false alarm to bring out the engines during the night or early today, the Fire Department reported.

Suggesting Payment Of Travelling Fare

That Peterborough's municipal corporation is an entity of sympathy and feeling is reflected in a clause of the finance committee report presented by the acting chairman, Alderman Ovens, Monday night: "That the city pay the railway fare and expenses, if necessary, of one member of a family related to a patient in any of the hospitals or sanitoriums in Ontario who are chargeable to the city; payments of their expenses to be made on the approval of the chairman of this committee and the Welfare Officer."

This provision applies only to indigent persons, and stems from the experience of the welfare committee, of which Alderman Glover is chairman, and Welfare Officer Metheral. For example, some member of a Peterborough family, unable to pay hospital or other institutional expenses, is sent for special treatment to Toronto or some other city.

The patient is separated from nearest kin. Lack of money prevents any of them from going to Toronto to be with the patient for a time. To relieve a sense of lonesomeness, and thereby probably aid in recovery of health.

In these circumstances city officialdom has let its heart dominate a little change of policy which is to be carried on with discretion.

PORT HOPE LEADS

After challenging the Peterborough Lions' Club to a softball game to be played Wednesday evening at Bewdley, members of the Port Hope Lions' Club were leading 10 to 9 when the game was called after the fourth inning. The game may be replayed at a later date.

SERIOUSLY WOUNDED—Mrs. K. E. Sanderson, 520 Bonaccord street, has received word that her brother, Spr. E. R. Spencely, has been badly wounded while serving with the R.C.A.S.C. in Italy. He went overseas with the Engineers in 1940, took part in the Dieppe raid, later serving in Africa and Sicily.

Capt. J. Young Leaving Norwood

Captain Jack Young, Hollywood character who has been living in Norwood, will leave October 25 for New York, to star in the new play, "Action, Forward March," scheduled to open on Broadway sometime in December. In the play, Captain Young, with a supporting cast of 45 players, will enact the story of President Roosevelt's public life, from the time he first took office until the present day.

A staunch supported of the President, Capt. Young has made many corrections and revisals of the script, and is particularly pleased with a scene wherein the President falls asleep in a White House study, decorated with portraits of Lincoln, Washington and other famous American leaders, from which he receives inspiration.

The actor who has portrayed President Roosevelt on the screen in such productions as "Missions to Moscow", and "This Is The Army," told The Examiner he is very proud to have been made an honorary president of the local Kiwanis Club. He plans to live in New York.

Marines Pitcher Has Fractured Ankle

Ray Bennett, 26-year-old pitcher for Outboard Marines Industrial softball team, is in St. Joseph's Hospital today, with a fractured ankle received in a freak accident while playing against Westclox at Memorial Park Wednesday evening. No one, not even Bennett himself, seems to know just what happened. The damage was done apparently after the pitcher had slid into third base in the sixth inning, and although the Westclox third baseman was not there, and the base was not fastened down in any way, Bennett caught his foot in it and the injury resulted.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the past week ending today amounted to $1,151,865 as reported by the secretary of the Peterborough Clearing House.

Peterborough Sailor Given Gramophone

An appeal made Wednesday through the Examiner for a gramophone to be given DEMS Gunner Bill Hewitt, R.C.N.V.R., on loan from the Navy to the Merchant Marine, brought quick results, and the music-maker, offered by Provincial Constable Price Morris was gratefully accepted, and will help to pass away long dreary hours on the Atlantic for many sailors.

Three offers to donate a gramophone were made to the young sailor, who with his ship mates, had combed Halifax fruitlessly in a quest for one. Mrs. J. L. Edwards, 211 London street, was quick to offer her phonograph to the young seaman for their boat, and Mrs. W. N. Hales, of 484 Driscoll Terrace, was another generous Peterborough citizen who wished to help the sailors. However, Mr. Morris' offer came first, and it was entirely suitable for the ship.

Already, some of the boys on the merchant ship have collected some records....Canadian music they like, and the sailor expects to get a warm reception when he displays his gift.

Director Of Physical Fitness Plans To Make Visit To Peterborough

Major Ian Eisenhardt, National Director of Physical Fitness, Department of Pensions and Health, will address an open meeting of the Local Council of Women, at the Y.M.C.A., Monday evening, September 11. Major Eisenhardt's visit comes at a most appropriate time, as Peterborough citizens are conducting the opening phases of a drive to build a Community Health Centre.

A strong contender that recreation centres should be established everywhere on a large scale, Major Eisenhardt has said that physical fitness does not only mean physical strength, but physically strong, mentally alert, and spiritually developed Canadians.

Speaking of the National Physical Fitness Act, passed in October 1943 and brought into effect at the beginning of this year, Major Eisenhardt told the National Council of Women of Canada at Fort William recently, that the Act is necessary for Canada, because it would not only promote muscles, but happy, healthful and useful citizens.

"While the quality of the health of Canadian people seems high in the main," he said, when analysed, leaves much room for improvement. Through physical fitness and with the wonderful opportunities afforded us in Canada, we will be able to produce the healthiest race in the world," he declared.

Major Einsenhardt's visit will be widely awaited, in view of the fact Peterborough's Community Centre is no more than a "talked about" scheme.

Miller—McCaig

BRANTFORD, Sept. 7—Elm Avenue United church was decorated with pink and white gladioli and ferns recently when Marjorie Isobel McCaig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hector McCaig, Brantford, became the bride of John Vincent Miller, Peterborouh son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Miller, Burford. As this was the first wedding to take place in this church since it was built 30 years ago, the bride was presented with a white Bible by the church. Rev. T. M. Wesley performed the ceremony and Miss Jean Bowden played the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white faconne, fashioned on long torso lines. Her fingertip veil of white tulle was held by a feathered headdress and she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and bouvardia. Miss Mary McCaig, maid of honor, was her sister's only attendant, and wore a street-length frock of blue faconne, with blue feathered hat to match and carried a bouquet of roses and bouvardia. Pte. George Miller, Camp Borden, brother of the groom, was best man; Brock Miller, also a brother, and Gray Thyme, were ushers.

At the reception at the home, Mrs. McCaig received wearing a floral crepe dress with matching hat; Mrs. Miller, assisting, wore black crepe with a black hat. For the honeymoon trip to Haliburton, the bride donned a rose wool suit, with navy accessories and corsage of pink gladioli and cornflowers. They will reside in Peterborough.

Original Ideas Add Zest To Home Parties

Do you want to be a popular hostess? There is one sure way to make your home the sort of place guests always enjoy being invited to. Discard the bridge table idea every time you entertain and introduce new party ideas, something that everyone can enter into and have fun.

In the past few weeks many weiner and corn roasts have been held along Peterborough's canal and river sites, and their popularity is beginning to lag a little. Why not try something slightly different? For a peppy outdoors party, find a nice spot on the canal bank and organize a scavenger hunt.

Since the whole affair must be timed when it is held outside, the range of articles to be listed in the hunt must be reduced so that they may be found within a narrower radius. Set a time limit and turn the searchers loose searching for cigarette cartons, flowers, matches or broken glass. When a hostess can allow more time the list of articles can be greatly extended. As a reward for their efforts, the hungry hunters might be fed hamburgers and a cold or hot drink, in place of the weiners and corn.

Breaks The Ice

When entertaining a mixed group who may not be known to one another, a good opening game is needed to break the ice. In order to choose partners for the evening, send the men of the group into a room where the feminine members of the gatherings have left their wraps. Have them each select a hat, which they think is becoming to their particular personality. Then have a style parade, with each man modelling the creation he has selected. This is guaranteed to produce hilarity. After the showing, then the women guests find their hats and the men under them are their partners for the night.

If there is a fairly large crowd, divide them into groups of about four and name one person as captain. Then give each group the name of an animal, for example, rooster, cow, dog or donkey. Have hidden around the front rooms jelly beans or other small articles behind pictures and furniture.

This game is somewhat like a treasure hunt with one exception. Although every member of the group searches diligently, when he locates something he cannot pick it up. Instead he must stand there, making the noise of the animal he represents, until the leader comes and collects. The team having the largest number of articles at the end of the game is the winner. This is definitely not recommended for any home, where quietness must be maintained. The barnyard chorus produces some amazing results.

Another old timer, which has proved to be popular in selecting partners for the evening, is the auction block. The women of the party should be shut off behind a screen or sheet and an auctioneer will list the charms of a prospective partner. Then the men bid. The auctioneer is in the delightful position of being able to describe his "wares" in any terms he cares to. A most desirable client may be listed as being cross-eyed and having buck teeth. The auctioneer should be a person with a gift for talking fast and having a flash of humor. This can add a zestful period to any party.

The trend at the present time is to be able to entertain a large number of people, particularly with servicemen, and have something to make them lose their shyness and something unusual enough to intrigue a guest's interest.

Evelyn Elizabeth Rigby Takes Vows at Havelock

HAVELOCK, Sept. 7.—(ENS). — Havelock United Church, decorated with gladioli, asters and ferns, was the setting Wednesday afternoon for the marriage of Evelyn Elizabeth Rigby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rigby, to Marvyn Wallace Preston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Preston, of Hastings. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, of Havelock, officiated, assisted by Rev. J. E. Glover, of Hastings.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of white lace over satin was effective with coronet headdress and shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Edna Rigby, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, wearing maize facoune sheer with matching headdress and brown accessories, while the bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Wilson, of Toronto, wore a similar gown of Queen's blue with blue headdress. Both carried bouquets of Sweetheart roses. Darlene Johnston, niece of the groom, was the flower girl, wearing pink satin trimmed with lace and carrying a nosegay of butterfly roses.

Willis Preston, of Hastings, brother of the groom, was best man, with Basil Johnston, of Hastings, brother-in-law of the groom, and George R. Rigby, brother of the bride, as ushers. The wedding music was played by John S. Cheyne, of Toronto, and during the signing of the register Mrs. E. Riley, of Cataraqui, cousin of the bride, sang "Oh Perfect Love."

For the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's brother, George R. Rigby, and Mrs. Rigby, the bride's mother chose a navy sheer gown with blue accessories, and the groom's mother, who assisted, was attired in a gown of light blue sheer and wine accessories. On their return they will reside in the Hastings district.

Junior League Giving Membership Tea

The first annual membership tea, sponsored by the executive of the Catholic Junior League, is being held this evening in St. Mary's Convent from 7 to 9 o'clock for the purpose of reuniting present members and introducing new members.

The Catholic Junior League was organized in May, 1943, with thirty-five members. To date the membership has increased to over eighty. Since its organization, the activities of the Junior League have been numerous. War work has been given an important place, as well as social service and educational undertakings. A welcome is extended to prospective members who wish to join in the work of the Junior League.

The president, Miss G. Costello, and the first vice-president, Miss Louise Hickey, will receive. Misses H. Sullivan and A. Donoghue will pour tea, and the guests will be served by other members of the executive: Mrs. T. McKenna, Mrs. M. Crough, Misses H. Burke, G. Perdue, C. Corkery, N. Corkery and H. Hickey. Mrs. J. A paper on current events was given by Mrs. T. J. Carley, reviewing outstanding events of the great invasion.

The opportunity chest is proving to be a great success under the supervision of Mrs. W. L. Hardwicke, and the members were urged to continue their donations, as these articles are selling so rapidly. During the summer months 450 magazines were given to the isolation ward of the local Training Centre hospital.

Word has been received from provincial headquarters that the new adopted ship is the H.M.C.S. Buctouche, it was announced. Miss Mabel Patterson was appointed as the chapter representative on the board of the Women's Auxiliary of Nicholls Hospital, and a letter was also received from Major Otter overseas acknowledging receipt of 10,000 cigarettes distributed to boys of the R.C.A.F. upon returning from operational flights.

It was decided to continue again this year with the bridge tournament, and anyone wishing to play can hand in her name to a chapter member. The annual Christmas tea will be held December 2 at the Y.W. C.A., at which time the novelties and chicken dinner draw will be the outstanding features. Post office parcels to be used at the Christmas tea should be turned in by the members as soon as possible to Miss Myra Baird.

All member were also asked to continue with the knitting as there is an urgent need at the present time for knitted articles.

HOME FRONT NEEDS HUMOR

Married Folk Can Save Tears by Cultivating Funny Bones; Children Affected, too.

The chief thing that is the matter with the domestic situation and why there are so many casualties on the home front is a lack of humor. Husbands and wives take each other too seriously. They make issues of every little diversion of opinion. They turn each other's funny little ways into tragedies and break their hearts over things that they would think amusing if they happened to someone else.

Human nature being what it is, every couple who get married are bound to go through family crises, and whether these end in divorce, or estrangement, or drawing the husband and wife closer together, depends upon their sense of humor. But they must laugh WITH each other and not AT each other.

For if laughter is an emollient that smooths over the rough places on the domestic pathway and brings husbands and wives closer together, ridicule is the sharp sword that slays love and parts them. No husband or wife ever forgives the mate who holds him or her up as a figure of fun before a guffawing audience, or whose best dinner stories are an exposure of his weakness.

Needed In Handling Children

Also, if a sense of humor will do more than any other one thing to make marriage a success, it is equally potent in managing children, for you can jolly them into doing things that not all the king's horses nor all the king's men could drive them into doing.

When youngsters are at the adolescent age, they are water-proof to their parents tears and deaf to their arguments and entreaties. Their one vulnerable spot is their vanity. They may snap their fingers at the moralities, but they cannot endure being ridiculed.

Mother and Father may wear their tongues off trying to convince Tom that he will wreck his life if he marries the pretty little nitwit, without manners or grammar, that he has picked up on the other side of the tracks and with whom he thinks he is in love. He will not listen to them. But let someone laugh at the way she eats peas with her knife and he never goes near her again.

Parents may pray on their knees for Susie not to marry the drunken-no-account wastrel with whom she is temporarily infatuated and she will be ready to elope with him as soon as he can borrow the price of a marriage license. But if, instead of aspersing his morals, they joke about wondering whether he gets his clothes at the Bundles from Britain place, or the Relief for China station, it works an instantaneous and permanent cure.

All of this being true, what a pity it is that married people do not devote more time and energy to cultivating their funny bones and less to developing their tear ducts.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore I received a prize for the recipe I am sending you for Orange Rolls. They are a yeast mixture and so easy to make anyone who has never made bread can have success with them. I taught my daughter of 14 years how to handle yeast mixtures by starting her on these rolls.

Orange Rolls.

(Prize recipe contributed by Marie Jonson).

Three tablespoons butter or butter substitute, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup scalded milk, 1 cake yeast, 3 slightly beaten eggs, 3½ to 4 cups best bread flour

Orange filling: grated rind 2 oranges, 1 cup sugar, 2-3 cup butter or substitute.

Add butter, sugar and salt to scalded milk and cool to lukewarm. Add crumbled yeast and slightly beaten eggs. Add enough flour to make a very soft dough. Beat or knead until smooth and elastic. Brush with melted butter and cover let rise until doubled in bulk. Cream softened butter with sugar and orange rind and spread evenly over dough. Roll up as you would a jelly roll and cut 1 inch slices crosswise of dough. Place cut side dow in greased muffin pans. Let rise until doubled and bake in hot oven of 400 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes. Delicious for Sunday Tea.

Delicious for any meal, don't you mean Thanks.

PLAYING 'POSSUM PRETTY—For tough weather (cold or cold and drippy) one can't beat natural oppossum for performance, warmth and smartness. Nowadays, its bulk is tamed by the "letting-out" system of sewing the pelts, such as is used for mink and ermine, but the innate coziness of a thick, puffy skin is preserved even so.—By Prunella Wood.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question—I am taking advantage of your offer to give advice on that very important subject "diet."

Years ago I thought I knew something on that subject, but now, at the age of 88, I cannot trust myself.

I feel a little gall bladder trouble, and will thank you to tell me what foods to avoid in addition to fat. Thanking you, G. J.

Answer—The fact is so obvious that I hardy need mention it, nor can you for yourself. However the diet routine I am outlining will do you nothing but good, for it is what is prescribed in chronic gastritis and is mild, easily digested, nourishing and also fat-free.

It may help you to eat small meals five times a day. If this is too difficult to manage disregard the hours, but do follow the kinds of food.

Eight o'clock: 2 eggs, 2 oz. French white bread toasted, 1 pat butter, 1 cup tea with milk, 1 level teaspoon sugar.

Ten-thirty a.m.: 8 oz. orange juice if it is not found indigestible (if so 8 oz. skim milk), 2 crackers.

Twelve-thirty: 2 oz. tenderloin of steak or chicken meat, 4 oz. fluffy boiled rice or mashed potato, 2 oz. toasted white bread, 1 pat butter, 1 cup mild cocoa.

Three-thirty p.m.: Same as ten-thirty a.m.

Six-thirty p.m.: Rice boiled in milk, or farina made with milk, 1 scrambled egg, 2 oz toasted French bread, 1 pat butter

For the sake of variety you may substitute chicken broth and chicken broth with rice, and cream of chicken soup, and cream of vegetable soups, for the orange juice or milk in morning and mid afternoon occasionally. You may have soft cooked eggs in shell in place of scrambled or poached. If you do not have your orange juice you must have ascorbic tablets (Vitamin C) and other vitamin tablets your doctor recommends.

I think you should show these suggestions to your doctor. There might be some new knowledge he would rather prescribe than these old established routines.

QUESTION: I can remember that the only pickles I knew anything about as a child were mustard pickles, and we used to hunt for the onions and cauliflower—there was always less of these than cucumber. I would like a good recipe for mustard pickles—if you could recommend one. Thanks for the recipe for angel food cake you printed for me last spring. Molly Browne.

ANSWER: This recipe can stand any changes you would like to make as long as the total measure of vegetables is not any more or less.

Mustard Pickles

Three quarts cut up cucumbers, 2 quarts small onions, 1 quart green tomatoes (not a necessary ingredient), 2 small cauliflowers, 2 large sweet peppers, 1 gallon vinegar, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 oz. turmeric, 1½ cups mustard, 6 cups sugar, 2 cups flour. Place vegetables in a brine to cover of 1 cup salt to each gallon water and let stand overnight. In the morning scald, do not boil, in water to cover, for 10 minutes. Drain well; mix the dry ingredients to a paste with some vinegar, and stir into remaining vinegar which is very hot. Add vegetables and bring to boiling point again. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

Barbecue Sauce for People Who Like Good Cooking

By MARY MOORE.

A French gentleman of 86 years, whose father studied cookery under Escoffier, the famous French chef, gave me the barcecue sauce which follows

Gagnon's Barbecue Sauce.

(My friend Gagnon made this recipe he carried in his mind — and I have seen him do it twice and have made it 3 times myself following his method— and am the only person up to this sitting who has this recipe written down in any form. He was proud and jealous of it. He calls it Steak Sauce too).

Brown down well until they are a paste-like substance, 2 or 3 onions and 2 or 3 tomatoes, and plenty of butter to keep them from sticking. Then add 2-3 bottle catsup, 2 cans button mushrooms and juice, 3 teaspoons mustard, 4 heaping teaspoons horseradish, paprika, salt and pepper to taste, 4 tablespoons Worcester sauce, 1 can tomato soup. Cook these down until very thick and tender and add ½ to 1 pint sherry. Serve boiling hot over tender filet migron or broiled well-hung sirloin steaks with undercuts which have just come off the fire. Gagnon says serve this only to people who can appreciate good cooking.

Superior Chili Sauce.

Four quarts chopped and peeled tomatoes (or for the fruity chili sauce so many people like use 3 quarts chopped and peeled tomatoes and 1 quart peeled and chopped mixed ripe peaches and pears), 2 cups chopped onions, 1 cup chopped sweet red pepper, 3 tablespoons salt, ½ to 1 cup brown sugar (add sugar according to whether you like it fairly sweet), 1 tablespoon white mustard seed, 3 sticks cinnamon bark, 1 tablespoon whole allspice, 2½ cups vinegar. Tie spices in cotton bag. Combine vegetables and let stand ½ hour, then pour off the juice which collects (this procedure reduces cooking time). Add salt, sugar to vegetables, cook until mixture begins to thicken. Add vinegar and whole spices in bag and cook until mixture becomes a thick sauce —stirring very frequently. Pour into hot sterile jars and seal immediately.

Because I can't always find mint when I have some lamb to go with it in the winter I make the follow-

Corn Relish.

For it is second best to mint sauce with lamb.

Twenty medium-sized ears corn, 3 sweet green peppers, 3 sweet red peppers, 3 medium sized onions, 1 hot red pepper (small), 1 small firm head cabbage, 1¾ cups sugar, 1-3 cup salt, ¼ cup flour, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 tablespoon ground mustard, 2 tablespoons white mustard seed, ½ tablespoon turmeric, 2 quarts vinegar (preferably white spirit vinegar). Cut corn from cobs, add the seeded and chopped peppers, chopped onions, cabbage chopped or shredded and 3 pints of the vinegar Boil, add salt, flour, spices, sugar and turmeric all made to paste with remaining vinegar and boil slowly 30 minutes, stirring often. Pour into sterile jars and seal. A small amount of this is a nice addition to the mayonnaise you use in the winter with your coleslaw.

Hundevad-Grant Vows Pledged

WARKWORTH, Sept. 7—(ENS)—Banks of cut flowers, pink and white streamers and white bells was the setting for a pretty wedding which took place at the home of the bride's mother, Norham, recently, when Anne Marie, fourth daughter of Mrs. Grant and the late William Grant was united in marriage to James Hundevad of Smooth Rock Falls.

Rev. C. A. Mullen officiated. Mrs. Lorne Watson, Dauphin, Man., sister of the bride, played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, AB. Ronald Grant, R.C.N.V.R. wore a floor-length dress of white satin, fashioned with a torso bodice, long sleeves and sweetheart neckline. She wore a shoulder-length veil which was held in place with a small white satin hat. Her bouquet was red roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. S. F. Lawson, Mimico, sister of the bride. She wore a street-length dress of turquoise crepe with accessories of brown and carried a nosegay.

Mr. Stewart Graham, Sarnia, was best man.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. Mrs. Gordon McCubbin presided at the attractively arranged tea table. She was assisted by Misses Winnifred Metcalfe, Peterborough; June Betts, Rochester; Ruth Lawson, Mimico, and Mrs. Robert Carlaw.

Later the couple left by motor, for Kingston, Montreal and Ottawa. For travelling the bride wore a purple suit, a two-tone matching hat and navy accessories. Following their honeymoon they will reside at Smooth Rock Falls.

The gift to the bride was a bracelet, to the matron of honor a cosmetic set, to the pianist, a pressed wood serving tray, to the waitresses cups and saucers, and to the best man a pipe.

Westclox Girls

That was all until the fifth when Jaye Smerdon walked with no one out. Isobel Bullock, however, struck out the next two batters and got the third on a pop fly.

Only One Threat

The only serious Toronto threat came in the sixth after the first two York Brass batters had fanned. Alice Whalley drew a pass and Marg Lawrence got her second hit, a single to short centre, sending Alice Whalley to third while the batter went to second on the throw to the hot corner. Isobel Bullock disposed of that menace easily when she forced Marg Robertson to pop weakly to Marg Hawthorne at third.

Only three more York Brass batters got on bases. Moss Doane singled to centre with one out in the seventh but was out stealing. In the ninth Alice Whalley beat out a bunt to open the frame but was forced at second on Mary Lawrence's roller to Verna Patterson. Marg Robertson fanned and Beryl Dobbin tossed out Mary Lawrence when she tried to steal second and that was all.

6,000 Bags Ready To Be Filled With Milkweed

Six thousand empty sacks, delivered Wednesday to the office of the Department of Agriculture, present another and important challenge to the boys and girls of this city and district. Received from the United States they are intended to be filled with milkweed pods whose downy content is to be used as a substitute for kapok in the lining of airmen's service uniforms for buoyancy in the event of fliers being shot into the sea by Jap "Zeros" or ground gunnery.

This milkweed campaign has been planned as a patriotic contribution by the boys and girls of this country, and especially of Ontario, but they will also be paid twenty cents a bag as a little extra inducement for their best efforts and also to provide them with some spending money as an appreciation of their help.

Announcement has been made from time to time of this undertaking by the federal authorities, at the request of United States departments facing an extreme shortage of kapok as a result of the Japanese wresting of East Indian sources. The milkweed pods begin to mature this month. Frank Paterson said today that they should be picked before they burst their seams. It will probably be better to collect them while they are "still a little on the green side," and hang the filled bags to dry in the sun.

Have Advantage.

Rural school children are probably better acquainted than their city friends with the milkweed and where it flourishes in the country, and their being asked to begin this campaign to gather every last pod. If they keep in mind that their work may actually save the lives of airmen in Pacific waters and possibly elsewhere they may succeed in packing those six thousand empty bags with pods.

School teachers are also being requested to give stimulus to this autumn work, and parents are expected to encourage their children to comb the fields and road sides of their localities. This may possibly be the last appeal to the young folks to take a hand in a necessitous phase of winning the war, and from now on the milkweed gleaning is going to be largely up to them.

Harvest Work Nearly Finished

In the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture they have reached the mopping up stage of the harvest—cutting buckwheat and filling silos. That is one of the reflections from Hastings county, and as a common note from the Central Ontario district. Rain has arrived at last to soften up the ground for plowing and the planting of fall wheat, and pastures are refreshed.

Otherwise the story from Ontario farmlands has been told for this year. Variety if incident has passed for this season. Frontenac corn crop is short about 40 per cent. Some farmers in this area and elsewhere have been hauling water and digging wells. Prescott finds still a fairly active demand for dairy cattle for delivery across the border. Simcoe county reports excellent yields of potatoes from fields that received good care, but the August drought is expected to clip the late crop. Tomatoes are down to 20 cents the six-quart basket in Lincoln.

Rain Spoils Racing Meet

STRATFORD, Sept. 7.—For the second time this week the three-year-old Futurity trot and pace has been rained out. Originally scheduled for Labor Day, this rich race was finally called after the track was flooded by a cloudburst.

Yesterday afternoon a crowd of 2,000 sat in the stands through a drizzle to see two heats run in each futurity, but another deluge inundated the track before the events were finished. Officials of the harness meet have now arranged to have the six remaining heats Friday afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 7 (CP)—They are reviving the old argument over who should be classed as the world's outstanding athlete, and a United States publication has plumped for Canada's own Lionel Conacher as logical contender for the crown. Usually the great track star, Jim Thorpe, is nominated for the title, and it is a startling change to see a Canadian get such mention.

Commenting on it, Elmer Ferguson of the Montreal Herald points out that Conacher never was great at individual athletics, but made a specialty of starring at team games, where he truly excelled. Thorpe on the other hand was more of an individualist and made his name as such, except for his prowess at football.

Conacher at his best was a great team man. He has often been called Canada's greatest in this game, and stood out above the crowd as much as Thorpe did in U.S. pigskin circles. Besides that he was a star at Lacrosse, one of hockey's greats, a fair baseball player—though not as good as he might have been if he had exerted himself, a good boxer and wrestler, and he even golfed a bit.

All that certainly qualifies him as one of the greatest of the greats.

Meat and Poison:

Apparently the wrestling fraternity is hoping to make capital out of football's sad state in Western Canada, Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh reports. With Winnipeg out of the senior game, and Regina's prospects very dim without Winnipeg competition, the wrestlers want to move in and corral some fan interest. Dryburgh reports they have ideas for educating Edmonton, Moose Jaw, Regina and Winnipeg in the whimsicalities of the mat game.

Incidentally:

Watchim, classy trotter owned by Halifax Alderman Frank Adams, is much in demand after his record-breaking performances on Maritime tracks this summer. United States interests are said to have offered $13,000 for the horse. That's one of the best prices mooted for a Maritime racer since the Fredericton horse, Bill Sharon, was knocked down for $25,000.—Gordon Thompson, former Western Canada welter and lightweight champion, is still flying high these days—he just earned his paratrooper wings at Camp Shilo, Man.... International League Umpire "Butch" Henline may get a big league trial next summer.... English and Scottish football enthusiasts are always ready at the doffing of a Glengarry to argue the merits of their respective games, but the boys at Peterborough, Ont., decided to settle it for sure. The English and Scots, none under 40, will tangle in a special international match, with the Irish providing the officials.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

Coach Hap Emms has issued a call to players of the St. Louis Flyers, new team in the American Hockey League, to report for training at Port Arthur, Ont., Sept. 25. Several recruits are expected to be drafted from the Port Arthur amateur club.

Vera Baldwin, driven by her owner, Louis Floyd of Johnston, Va., last night paced to victory in the mile feature defeating David Mack and Belle Dale, the favorite, in 2:09¼ and paying $32.70, the event being part of the Grand Circuit card at Wesbury, N.Y.

The senior western baseball championship was decided at Saskatoon last night when the Saskatoon Pats vanquished Edmonton 8-2 in the fourth and deciding match of the final series.

Horse racing returns to Toronto this Saturday after an absence of more than two months when the Fall meeting gets onder way at the Woodbine race track. The meet will take on the aspect of an international contest with a number of sprinters from New York and Detroit vieing for the big races.

The Kingston Ordnance softball team has been forced to withdraw from the O.A.S.A. playdowns because of the recent Army ruling with respect to championship competitino, it was announced yesterday by Secretary Frank Feaver of the Provincial Association at Hamilton. Belleville Marines, runners-up in the Western Ontario League, have replaced the Soldiers and are drawn to meet Oshawa in the zone finals.

In the first setto of the O.B.A. Junior "B" playdowns at St. Catharines last night between the Kitchener Rangers and the St. Catharines Lincolns, the home team was swamped 7-0. The Lincolns helped themselves to defeat with a total of six errors.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

TRY TO MAKE CERTAIN

PURE GUESSWORK is applied more to finessing than probably any other part of bridge. The guessing is done usually on either of two questions. One is whether to finesse or not to finesse. The other is which direction to finesse. Of course, there is also the problem of whether to try a single or double finesse. Ofter there is some way to figure out the probabilities. Better still is to make certain, which can be done on some occasions by clear-cut card-reading.

North: ♠ A K 9 8 ♥ 10 2 ♦ K J 7 4 ♣ J 8 3

West: ♠ 10 3 ♥ A K Q J 7 5 ♦ 5 ♣ A 10 9 2

East: ♠ Q 7 4 ♥ 9 8 6 4 ♦ Q 8 3 2 ♣ 7 6

South: ♠ J 6 5 2 ♥ 3 ♦ A 10 9 6 ♣ K Q 5 4

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	Dbl
4 ♥	4 ♠

Both defenders thought they had a chance to beat that, so they did not sacrifice at 5-Hearts. East led his heart 4, the J winning and the Q coming back, to be ruffed in the dummy with the spade 2. North scored the trump K and A, leaving the good Q out, and led the club 3 to the K, the A winning. West sent back his club 2 to the J, and it was followed by the 8 lead, which East trumped with his spade Q.

A heart came back for a ruff by the dummy's last trump and a discard of the diamond 4. North had apparently gained one trick by this device of getting East to lead a heart in order to avoid leading into the diamonds, but further study showed that the diamond discard did him no good. He still had to avoid losing to the diamond Q.

Debating this, he decided that West, who had bid, was more likely to hold the crucial card than East, who had not bid. So he scored the diamond ` and led the 10, intending to finesse. But West discarded a heart, and North now knew East was sure to win with his diamond Q.

Simple card-counting could have made this a sure thing. East's fourth-best lead of the heart 4 placed West with 6 hearts. West had followed suit to 2 spades. East's ruffing of the second club showed West had 4 there. Add 6 and 2 and 4 and you have 12. So West could have had only one diamond. That figuring would have told North to take the first diamond with his own K and finesse against East for the Q.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A ♥ J 10 9 6 ♦ A 7 5 ♣ J 10 9 8 4

West: ♠ Q 10 7 5 ♥ A Q 2 ♦ K Q J 9 3 2 ♣ None

East: ♠ 9 8 6 4 2 ♥ 8 5 4 3 ♦ 8 6 ♣ 7 6

South: ♠ K J 3 ♥ K 7 ♦ 10 4 ♣ A K Q 5 3 2

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play for 5-Clubs on this deal after West leads the diamond K?

Dummer Man Gets Two Months

Arthur Lee, Dummer township, was convicted of the illegal sale of liquor in police court Wednesday before Magistrate E. A. Gee, and sentenced to two months imprisonment. Lee was convicted after two Crown witnesses, identified a bottle produced in court as the one containing whiskey that had been bought from Lee. One swore that he himself had bought the beer, and had seen his friend buy the whiskey.

W. J. A. Fair, counsel for Lee, stated an appeal will be made. Meanwhile, Lee was released under bail of $500.

Rundown Woman Praises Syntona For Helping Her

Nerves on Edge; Always Tired, Had Poor Digestion, Frequent Headaches and Dizzy Spells, Feels Much Different Since Taking the Herbal Compound.

"I am certainly glad I began taking Syntona when I did, and I can highly recommend it to others," said Mrs. May Smith, 216 Fennell avenue, Hamilton, Ont., in a recent report.

"I was in a badly rundown condition. My nerves were all on edge. I last patience with the children and lost patience with the children and was having frequent headaches and dizzy spells with spots floating before my eyes. My digestion was poor. I would pick and choose my food, but, even so, I suffered after my meals with heartburn and a bloated, distressed feeling. I slept poorly, so I felt fatigued and worn out from the time I got up in the morning.

"A friend told me about Syntona and, although I have only been taking it a short time, I feel so much better. My appetite has improved and I enjoy my meals. I am not having the dizzy spells or headaches, or heartburn thatI used to, and I sleep better. I know my nerves are calmed down, because I don't get out of patience as I did, and my entire system seems improved. I have more strength and energy."

MRS. MAY SMITH.

Syntona is made from the pure liquid extracts of 12 herbs and roots. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. It aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

BATTLE FOR SIEGFRIED LINE STARTS

Japs Capture Huge Allied Base

Lingling Air Base Overrun By 5 Jap Divisions

CHUNGKING, Sept. 8 (AP) — The United States air base of Lingling has been lost to five Japanese divisions pressing forward in Southern Hunan province, the Chinese Command announced tonight.

Lingling is 75 miles southwest of Hengyang, where another American air base previously was lost, and is less than 10 miles from the border of Kwangsi province.

The Japanese, driving forward on a 60-mile front, were less than 100 miles from Kweilin, the communique disclosed.

Fighting was in progress near Lengshuitan (cold water town) from which a railroad spur runs southward to Lingling.

A Chinese army spokesman said the Japanese were reported massing troops, in northern Indo-China for a possible invasion of Kwangsi from the south with the idea of joining the forces near Kwangsi's northern borders. This plan, involving a joint thrust of 400 miles across Kwangsi, would be a great step toward the Japanese objective of organizing an overland link from Singapore to Manchuria.

On the Salween front, the spokesman said, the Japanese stronghold of Tengchung was likely to fall "in the near future."

2,000 Bombers Blast Germany

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(CP). — Almost 2,000 R.A.F. and United States heavy bombers attacked installations in Southwest Germany and the besieged German garrison at Le Havre today.

The American bombers were accompanied by 500 fighters and battered chemical and oil plants at Ludwigshafen in the Siegfried Line zone, an ordnance depot at Kastel near Mainz, and an armored car plant at Gustavsburg, southwest of Frankfurt.

All the objectives were in the upper Rhineland opposite the United States 3rd Army, massing in the Moselle River basin for a drive into the German fortifications.

The weather was the best in several days and the bombers were able to see their targets, except at Ludwigshafen where clouds were banked.

More than 1,000 four-engined planes made up the American bombing force and almost an equal force of Lancasters bombarded the 5,000 Germans bottled up in Le Havre with perhaps 2,500 tons of bombs. The R.A.F. planes flew without escort.

There was no report of enemy interception.

The German radio still was shouting warnings of approaching bomber formations as late as 3 p.m.

Low-level attacks by French-based Thunderbolts yesterday destroyed 483 trucks, 217 horse-drawn vehicles and 20 pieces of armor. These operations were without interference from the Nazi air force.

R.A.F. Mosquito bombers loosed tons of bombs last night on the Rhineland city of Karlsruhe, in the German west wall 100 miles beyond where the U.S. 3rd Army is fighting in the Metz area. It was the second attack this week on the city.

Mosquitos last night also battered enemy lines north of Antwerp and Gent. Forty railway cars were shot up by cannon fire.

Many squadrons of fighters raced in the wake of the bombers this morning.

Religious Freedom

LONDON, Sept. 8 — (CP). —The Moscow radio announced today the opening of theological schools in Moscow for the education of priests of the Orthodox Church. Opening of the schools was described as another step in Premier Stalin's program for restoration of religious freedom.

8th Army Meets Powerful Nazi Thrusts

ROME, Sept. 8 (AP)—Canadian tanks and infantry of the British 8th Army fought forward another mile on the Adriatic coast yesterday and reached the banks of the Marano River, only four miles from Rimini, but 12 miles inland the Germans, counter-attacking fiercely with tanks, brought the British offensive to a standstill, Allied Headquarters said today. Near the other end of the Italian front American troops advanced to within two miles of Pistoia, the last important city south of the Gothic line remaining in enemy hands.

Farther west patrols pushed well north of Lucca. Near the coast enemy artillery opened up with heavy shelling of American positions north of Pisa.

Eighth Army units which slugged their way to the banks of the Marano found the Nazis left strong rearguards "beyond which their main forces are firmly established," said an official report from Gen. Alexander's headquarters.

Massing the main weight of their tanks in close support of the infantry, the Germans still held the Coriano ridge four miles inland from the Adriatic and the San Savino ridge, 5½ miles from the coast, after several days of savage fighting.

Just south of San Savio German armor and infantry attempted a fierce counter-attack yesterday, but suffered heavy casualties when they were caught by concentrated fire of the 8th Army's tanks and artillery.

Equally sharp fighting raged along the sector extending inland 12 miles to Casteinuova and Pian di Castello, with enemy defences strongly bolstered by fresh reinforcements of artillery and motorized infantry.

The last ditch fight by the Nazis to hold the thin barrier preventing Lt.-Gen. Leese's armor from shilling out on to Northern Italy's great plains was absorbing Nazi manpower at a fast rate.

Members of one veteran regiment in the San Savino fighting said they had never seen so many German dead as now litter the bloody

All Escape Avenues Closed Along Coast

By ROGER D. GREENE

WITH THE BRITISH 2ND ARMY NEAR THE NETHERLANDS BORDER, Sept. 8—(AP). — Lt.-Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's army poured across the Albert Canal today, blazing a trail for the next phase of the Allied campaign as broken and by-passed German remnants fell back into Channel ports and tried to escape into Holland.

All avenues of the enemy's retreat to the east and southeast have been cut off, and prisoners confess that they are not eager to go back to Germany.

Lt.-Gen. Seyffert, commander of the German 348th German Infantry Division, captured with his entire staff north of Antwerp yesterday, expressed disgust with attempts to continue the war without proper weapons.

Balkan Trap Closing On Germans

German Warships On Black Sea Reported Scuttled

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 8—(AP)—The Red Army slashed through the Balkans today in a three-pronged drive which promised to smash Hitler's fast-weakening hold on that vital area and trap thousands of his troops by cutting all communications with the homeland.

Advanced Russians units moved west toward a juncture with Marshal Tito's forces and Allied troops in Yugoslavia, while others advanced steadily toward the important road and communications centre of Sibu in Transylvania.

Official sources were silent on military operations against Bulgaria and there was no indication of any response to Bulgarian pleas for an armistice.

(A German report said Russian troops fanning out across Bulgaria in a drive toward the Aegean Sea had reached the area of Demotika inside Greece on the Turkish frontier.)

The objective of the Balkan drive is to create a steel wall from the Black Sea to the Dalmatian coast and pocket all the Germans in Greece, Bulgaria and Albania.

In Poland Red Army forces edged forward northeast of Warsaw toward the southern border of East Prussia.

A Tass dispatch from Constanta said that in the Bulgarian Black Sea ports of Burgas and Varna the Germans were permitted to sink 74 Nazi vessels, including seven submarines, 32 minesweepers, 25 landing barges and four transports.

Tass said the sinkings took place between Aug. 26 and Aug. 28 and that from reports it had received the Bulgarian government not only failed to interfere or intern the crews, but sent them to Germany.

The dispatch added there are 112 German vessels at the Danubian port of Ruschuk, 12 of large size.

Front dispatches from Transylvania said the Russians are meeting numerous Hungarian Alpine units which include men who not long ago were moving through these same mountains as tourists.

The Germans and Hungarians are laying numerous mines through the passes and ravines, the dispatches added.

Bombs Demolish All Rail Lines

ROME, Sept. 8 —(AP) — Rail routes along which the Germans are attempting to evacuate troops from Greece into Serbia and thence into Hungary have been destroyed and Yugoslavia's whole rail system is so devastated that organized resistance to the Russian thrust to the Adriatic from Romania will be impossible, Allied Mediterranean air headquarters declared today.

"At the same time a barrier has, in effect, been laid across the Balkans from the coast to Romania to prevent the possibility of any planned retreat back into Germany," said an official announcement.

Rail traffic at present is impossible from Greece to Belgrade, from Belgrade to Ljubijana, from Sarajevo to Uzice, from Bihac to Sunja, from Karlov to Zagreb and from Fiume to Zagrab, the announcement said.

Closing of these lines was attributed jointly to Allied air onslaughts and demolitions by Marshal Tito's Yugoslav partisans.

In contrast with the speed and skill, which the Germans showed in the past in repairing rail lines, the enemy has done virtually nothing to patch up the mots recent devastation of his communications, headquarters said.

R. A. F. planes armed with heavy rockets have proven highly effective in knocking out even substantially constructed bridges, the announcement said.

Despite bad weather light and medium bombers ranged as far east as Salonika and the Danube yesterday, blasting convoys of enemy vehicles and trains moving from Greece to Serbia. At least 25 enemy vehicles were knocked out and one attack left a 40-car train enveloped in smoke.

4 Allied Armies Smash Ahead Along 200-Mile Front 25 Miles From Reich Border

Canadians Advance 35 Miles Driving On Ostend

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the 1st Canadian Army in France, Sept. 8 (CP Cable)—Strong Canadian tank and infantry forces today were in northern Belgium and reached Dixmude, 11 miles southwest of Ostend, in a 33-mile advance from the St. Omer area.

On the Canadians' right, Polish armor and infantry pushed east 20 miles from Ypres through Roulers, and now are in the outskirts of Thielt, 15 miles west of Gent, held by the British 2nd Army.

Another Canadian formation moving eastward near the coast has reconnaissance units at Bergues, five miles south of Dunkerque, which is held by a German garrison.

The Polish-Canadian advance toward the Schelde is going extremely well.

The Poles in a thrust to Ypres and beyond broke through German rear-guard positions covering the enemy's withdrawal over the Schelde, and the further penetration to Thielt and the Canadian advance to Dixmude have been heavy blows to the German rear-guard action being fought by the 711th, 346th and 245th Divisions.

The enemy is throwing in more men to stem these advances, but the effort has availed little. The Poles have been capturing whole companies of them, with their officers.

The Germans now are trying to withdraw their forces into a narrow bridgehead on the south side of the Schelde.

These forces are likely to resist strongly in this narrow strip of Netherlands territory while attempts are made to evacuate larger forces over the estuary into Flushing.

Another purpose of this bridgehead will be to endeavor to deny the Schelde estuary leading to Antwerp to Canadian and British forces as long as possible.

Le Havre was bombed again this morning.

It now is determined that Dunkerque is well garrisoned and the commander there intends to try to hold out in the same fashion as others have done at Le Havre, Boulogne and Calais.

Super-Bombers Batter Manchuria Bases

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—A new Superfortress raid on the Japanese arsenal of Manchuria was announced today by the 20th Bomber Command, and the Tokyo radio reported more than 100 planes had taken part.

The U.S. Army announcement said only that "important industrial targets in Japanese-dominated Manchuria" were the prey of the B-29s.

Tokyo quoted an army communique as saying:

"China-based United States air forces raided Anshan and Penhsihu about 1:30 p.m. today with more than 100 planes. At least three enemy raiders were shot down. Some damage was caused on the ground."

As in previous forays, the 20th Bomber Command withheld announcement of results pending the return of the bombers to their bases.

Anshan, a city of 130,000, is situated on the Yalu river about seven miles from its entrance into the Bay of Korea.

Manchuria, sometimes referred to as Japan's "arsenal of greater East Asia," is the site of important munitions factories. The area was first raided by American planes last July 29, when a powerful force of Superfortresses blasted the key industrial city of Anshan in the Mukden region by daylight.

The announcement said:

"B-29 Superfortresses of the 20th Bomber Command to-day attacked important industrial targets in Japanese-dominated Manchuria."

Eisenhower Keeps Huns Guessing With Fast Moves

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(AP).—Gen. Eisenhower swung a hidden punch at the Siegfried Line to-day as four Allied armies broke the Albert Canal defence and thrust menacingly at possible invasion spots along a 200-mile assault front, while Canadian forces hammered at German garrisons besieged in channel coast ports.

The attack carried to within 25 miles of the German frontier at three places—north of the canal, close to Liege in Belgium and at Metz in France and the 7th army moving up from the Mediterranean completed the line of threat by reaching Besancon, 50 miles from the Belfort gap just above Switzerland.

Blackout On News.

To-night Gen. Eisenhower's Headquarters clamped a tight news blackout on developments, such as screened sweeping developments in the past.

The Germans needed 40 or 50 divisions to hold all the Siegfried Line strongly — forces which they apparently lacked—and Eisenhower's step was intended to take full advantage of the wide-open possibility of keeping the Germans guessing until too late to shift their reserves.

Whether the main blow would come across the level fields of the Dutch "appendix" province of Limburg, through the fortress chain around Liege, the Ardennes Forest, the Metz gap or the Belfort gap was left to the Nazi imagination.

The Germans, stiffening in apparent desperation along the whole buffer front before the Siegfried Line and the Rhine, were putting up their fiercest fight since Normandy along the Moselle River where the U.S. 3rd Army, battling into Metz, was reported 20 miles from the west wall.

Canadian, British and Polish forces of the 1st Canadian Army battered steadily against dwindling German garrisons pocketed along the Channel coast. The Paris radio said advance Canadian units had pushed within half a mile of Dunkerque.

Gains 5 Miles

The British 2nd Army crossed the Albert Canal near Beeringen, 27 miles northeast of Leuven, and smashed on five miles to the area of Bourg-Leopld. 40 miles east of Antwerp and about 25 miles from the German border due eastward.

The U.S. 1st Army captured Huy on the Meuse, after a new crossing of the stream in that area 18 miles northeast of Namur, then drove on almost 15 miles to the vicinity of Liege, 23 miles from the border and 25 from Aachen, German hot-

Farm Incomes Set Record Over 2 Billion Dollar Mark

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 8 (CP)—Canada's gross cash farm income in 1944 may total $1,750,000,000, a figure which would have seemed incredible in 1932 when it was only $383,500,000, Federal authorities estimated today.

Figures describing the income of farmers have been assembled for Agriculture Minister Gardiner who recently piloted through the Commons a bill providing for the stabilization of farm prices, with the Dominion purchasing farm products, if necessary, to maintain prices.

Farm incomes have swung from peaks to valleys in the last 20 years, the survey showed. The average annual gross cash income during 1926 to 1929 was $970,500,000, in a period when agriculture was relatively prosperous and including the bumper year in 1928 when the income was $1,063,800,000, the highest level attained before the war.

Climbs Slowly

Following drought and depressed prices, the 1928 income had been reduced almost by two-thirds four years later. After 1932 a slow pull upward began until in 1939, the last year of peace, it had reached $722,300,000.

Officials said the war did not immediately mean a spectacular gain in farmers' returns and it was not until 1942 the revenue from Canada's contribution to the food supplies of the fighting nations began to show plainly on farm income. In that year the gross income was $1,114,900,000, a record up to that time.

As shipments of bacon, cheese and other products increased the farm income soared. For 1943, it was $1,396,600,000 and returns for the first six months of 1944 have indicated that the increase for the present year will be at least 25 per cent.

The most impressive gains in income since the low year of 1932 have been made by Prince Edward Island with five times as much income in 1943; New Brunswick, up five times, and Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, up four times.

Mr. Gardiner said study of statistics had shown how much farm income was affected both by production and price variations. The production variations were greatest in connection with grain crops, while the meat variations ran in cycles. It took about three years to increase or decrease the cattle population and about 1½ years to increase or decrease the hog population. Dairy products figures of production remained more constant than any others.

New Earthquake Rocks Cornwall

CORNWALL, Sept. 8. — (CP). — Cornwall experienced another sharp earth shock shortly after six a.m. today. The tremor was of brief duration and no additional damage was reported.

Today's tremor was severe enough to awaken slumbering citizens. However, police said there was no panic such as accompanied the first of a long series of shocks which started early Tuesday morning. Police headquarters reported only a few phone calls received concerning the mild quake.

Constable Calvin Mackenzie, Cornwall Township policeman, said today's tremor was the most severe since the initial shock on Tuesday which caused damages estimated at approximately $1,000,000.

"It began just like the first tremor," Mackenzie said. "I thought it was going to be bad, but it was very brief and there were no reports of any damage or great alarm."

The tremor was accompanied by a deep rumbling which sounded like muffled explosions in the distance. Many hundreds were awakened, but did not run out into the streets.

Three tremors were felt here yesterday. Mild shocks were reported about 10 a.m., 3 p.m. and again at 9 p.m., but the tremblings were so slight they escaped the notice of many residents.

Hard On Shoes

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP). —In July Gaston Koch, Republican candidate for the State Assembly from the Brooklyn second district announced he would visit every one of the 10,000 voters in his district. Thus far, he says, he has called on 2,493 persons and a pedometer has recorded 150 miles of his "bunion derby."

First Non-Stop Flight London-Ottawa

OTTAWA, Sept. 8—(CP).—A giant Liberator set down on nearby Rockcliffe airport today, completing the first non-stop flight in history between the capitals of Britain and Canada, 19 hours and nine minutes after leaving London.

The plane, an aircraft of the Royal Air Force Transport Command, carried among its passengers, Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, air officer commanding-in-chief of the R.C.A.F.

R.C.A.F. officials said they did not know the purpose of the trip and Air Marshal Breadner was not available immediately to newspapermen.

It was believed in some circles that he returned to Canada to discuss plans for moving the strength of the R.C.A.F. against Japan once hostilities in Europe cease.

His arrival followed London reports that Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt would soon meet in Quebec to decide how the armed forces now in Europe and others would be used in the Pacific.

Fighting Japs.

The R.C.A.F. already is operating against Japan in some sectors, but not in the strength that would be possible once fighting in Europe ends.

Air Marshal Breadner attended the conference Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt held in Quebec last August. He was then chief of air staff in Canada and he sat in on the conference with the military leaders of Britain and the United States while plans were drawn up for defeating the enemy in Europe.

Most of the other passengers aboard the plane were understood to be service personnel.

The aircraft was the famous Liberator AL-504, better known as the Commando, which has made scores of historic flights, including the conveyance of Prime Minister Churchill to Moscow and other United nations conferences. It was flown by Air Commodore G. J. Powell, C.B.E., senior air staff officer at Canadian headquarters of the R.A.F.T.C.

Although non-stop flights between Britain and Montreal have become almost routine, it so happened that never before had an aircraft continued on to the Canadian capital. When the Commando landed at Ottawa she had sufficient fuel remaining in her tanks to have taken her on to Winnipeg.

The time of the flight was considered remarkably fast in view of the fact that the flight—made at an average altitude of 6,000 feet—was against "very strong contrary winds" practically all the way.

Distance of the flight was 3,502 statute miles.

Ribbentrop, VonPapen Reported In Lisbon

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(CP-Reuter). —The Evening Standard's diarist wrote to-day:

"I believe there are solid grounds for the reports that Ribbentrop and Von Papen, most sauve and slippery of all the Nazi bosses, are in Lisbon.

"Rumor says that Ribbentrop and Von Papen are making arrangements for a sanctuary for themselves and their friends."

Bulgars, Huns Fighting Near Serbia

Mass Uprising Sweeps Balkan States

LONDON, Sept. 8 (CP)—Fighting has broken out between Bulgars and Germans on the Serbian border, Cairo reports said today, and the Free Yugoslav radio declared a mass uprising "on an unprecedented scale" had started against enemy occupation forces.

The Yugoslav radio said the Serbs were in general revolt and attacking garrisons. The Nazis and collaborators were reported in panicky flight toward Hungary. Marshal Tito's forces were said to have tripled in size during the last few days as his Partisans and the Russians on the east pressed tighter the jaws of a trap fashioned for the enemy in the southern Balkans.

200,000 Trapped

The Bulgarian government sought peace with the Allies.

The Bulgar-German clashes were apparently on a small scale and not a part of any concerted Bulgarian campaign against the Germans. Military experts in Cairo said that developments in the Balkan country bottled up some 200,000 Germans in Greece and southern Balkan areas. There was no indication of a large-scale German withdrawal from Greece, but there was some evidence that the Germans were pulling garrisons from Rhodes and the Dodecanese islands as well as from Crete and the Cyclades. These troops were reported being regrouped in northeastern areas to meet the Russian-Bulgarian threat.

Allied Headquarters in Rome announced that rail routes along which the Germans are attemping to evacuate troops from Greece into Serbia and thence into Hungary have been destroyed and Yugoslavia's railways are so devastated that organized resistance to the Russian thrust toward the Adriatic will be impossible.

"A barrier has, in effect, been laid across the Balkans from the coast to Romania to prevent the possibility of any planned retreat back into Germany," an official an-

French Demand NewGovernment

PARIS, Sept. 8—(AP). — A new French republic with a government along the lines of that of the United States, with Gen. De Gaulle installed as its first president was advocated today by a powerful federation of French resistance groups.

This coalition would launch the fourth republic of France as soon as the war ends and political and war prisoners can be returned from Germany.

The federation, known as "Mouvement de la Liberation Nationale," embraces groups controlling six of the most influential former underground newspapers in France, all published daily in Paris.

The M.L.N. was formed last January, although its six papers have been published in some form since 1941. The directors, all publishers, are Philippè Viannay, Robert Salmon, who is also a member of the National Council of Resistance, Jean Jurgensen, and Aiy Black.

"Our federation is socialist, even tending toward communist," Jurgensen said. "We want nothing of the old government. It brought about the ruin of France."

Prince Warns Dutch People

Bernhard Has Headquarters In Belgium

WITH NETHERLANDS FORCES IN BELGIUM, Sept. 8. — (CP-Aneta).—Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands today established the headquarters from which he will command the Netherlands forces of the interior whose commander-in-chief he was made last Sunday.

He was accompanied by a small staff, including a number of Netherlands commandos.

In an interview the Prince warned that the Dutch people should exercise "the utmost care during these last days of their oppression." He said it was his hope that no premature demonstrations would be held in any town, village or hamlet in Holland.

"In both their own and the national interests," he said, "the people should wait to openly express their sentiments until they have actually seen the Allied troops in control in their districts. The danger of premature demonstrations was exemplified by what happened in Paris after the entry of the first Allied troops when groups of German soldiers unexpectedly caused bloodshed and civilian casualties."

The Prince said that the Dutch people would hear from him before the actual liberation had occurred only by radio and then only when the situation in Holland necessitated it.

News Exchange Curbs Wars

Congress Urged To Support Principle

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8—(AP).— A resolution to put Congress on record in favor of world-wide freedom of news exchange "to promote better understanding among nations and thus help prevent future wars" was offered in the House of Representatives yesterday by Representative J. W. Fulbright.

The Arkansas Democrat, author of a House declaration on post-war foreign policy, told his colleagues he believed it appropriate that Congress should "express itself in no uncertain terms, its devotion to and belief in the principle of freedom of speech and of the press."

The resolution follows:

"Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring) that the Congress of the United States, believing that the unhindered interchange of independent news would promote a better understanding among nations and thus help prevent future wars, expresses itself as favoring international agreements which shall guarantee world-wide the right of all accredited press and ratio representatives to (1) write, transmit and publish the news without private governmental interference, and (2) at uniform communications rates."

The resolution was referred to the foreign affairs committee of which Fulbright is a member.

Prices Steady Holdover Shows Increase

TORONTO, Sept. 8 —(CP) —Prices were steady on stocker cattle but sales of killers were so few that no definite market trend was established on the livestock market here this week. Later sales on a few butcher steers and heifers were down fully 25 cents. Calves, hogs and sheep were unchanged.

A carryover of 1,100 cattle from the preceding week was increased to 2,600 heat at the clise of the current week. Most of the better quality steers and heifers were unsold.

Buying by larger packers was negligible. A few common to good weighty steers sold at $10 to $12. Butcher steers and heifers were $8 to $10.75 on scattered sales with fed yearlings at $11.50 to $13.50. Butcher cows closed at $7 to $8.75 with canners from $4 to $5.50. Bulls were $6 to $8. Stockers sold at $7 to $9.50 with feeders up to $10.50. The best milkers and springers offered sold at $130 to $150 each.

Dressed beef was very scarce in local coolers and the reason for light buying of live cattle was given by packers as shortage of labor.

Calves were steady at $13.50 to $14.50 for choice vealers with common downward to $7. Grass calves ere $6 to $6.50 cwt.

Hogs were $17.35 to $17.45 for grade A, off trucks at the yards and at local packing plants. Sows sold at $13 to $13.25 dressed. Grade A hogs were $17.75 to $17.85. Government premiums wer in addition.

Lambs were steady at $13.40 for good ewes and wethers delivered by rail and at $13 by trucks. Bucks sold at $12 to $12.50 and culls were $8 to $10. Sheep were slow at $2 to $5 cwt. Closing lamb trade was dull with about 400 head unsold.

Pension Boost Given Imperials

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Notification of pensions increases for recipients of pensions and special allowances from the British Army have been received by Imperial veterans in Canada, revealing a scale of increases, dependent on present income and pension amounts, ranging between 20 and 30 per cent.

To become eligible for the increases, a pensioner must be earning a total income of less than £300 a year if married or £225 if single, less £52 deduction from total income (earnings plus pension). Pension increase rates are 30 per cent if pension is less than £100 a year for married men or £75 for single men; 25 per cent if between £100 and £200 married or £75 and £150 single, and 20 per cent if over £200 a year married or £150 a year single.

nouncement said.

Advanced Russian units slashing through the Balkans moved west toward a junction with Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans. Moscow reported that the drive was intended to pocket all Germans in Greece, Bulgaria and Albania.

Attempting to set its house in order and satisfy the Allies, the Bulgarian government announced the dissolution of the National Assembly, banned all organizations having Nazi or Fascist tendencies and ordered the release of all Allied war prisoners.

The measures were announced in an official Sofia broadcast, which explained the dissolution of the assembly by declaring it was "constituted against the will of the Bulgarian people and supported a false policy."

(A Sofia broadcast reported by the United States federal communications commission also announced that the Bulgarian Army's Chief of Staff, Gen. Philipov, had been "relieved of his duties" and replaced by Gen. Yantcheulev.)

It thus appeared that the new Sofia government was trying to dissociate itself entirely from the regime responsible for allying Bulgaria with the Axis.

Bulgaria thus remained technically at war with both the Allies and Germany, having broken with the Nazis yesterday.

Dispatches from Moscow, meanwhile, quoted the head of the Romanian armistice delegation there as predicting that formal agreement on armistice terms would be reached by tonight. He attributed the delay to Britain and the United States rather than Russia.

1000th Plane Spans Ocean Ferry Service 3 Years Old

MONTREAL, Sept. 8 — (CP). — British Overseas Airways Corporation today announced the completion of the 1,000th flight between Montreal and Britain on its North Atlantic return ferry service following the arrival at Prestwick, Scotland, of Liberator AL-597. The plane was piloted by Capt. William S. May of Winnipeg on the flight.

British Overseas Airways has operated this service from Montreal airport at nearby Dorval for exactly three years—the period in which the 1,000 crossings have been made. This represents a total flying distance of 3,500,000 miles.

The North Atlantic service of B.O.A.C. is operated on behalf of the R.A.F. Transport Command and its chief functions are to carry government-sponsored passengers, diplomatic, troops and general mail and urgent war freight from North American to the United Kingdom. Its aircraft return to Canada with mail, cargo and, as principal passengers, the air crews of the R.A.F. Transport Command who have delivered Canadian and American-built bombers to the European war theatre.

On the 1,000 flights between Canada and Britain the return ferry service has carried 11,478 passengers, 596 tons of war freight and 372 tons of mail.

Over North Atlantic

It is the only regular shuttle service—with at least one aircraft a day each way—which traverses the difficult North Atlantic route in the winter months.

Capt. May who piloted the craft has a varied career including barnstorming, instructing, managing Northwest Airways and piloting Imperial Airways aircraft between Britain and Singapore in the last 16 years. He now is one of the key men in B.O.A.C. and joined the North Atlantic service more than two years ago.

British Overseas Airways were asked by the secretary of state for air to operate the North Atlantic return ferry service in September 1941 at the beginning of the winter season when violent storms and ice reign from sea level up to 25,000 feet. The first planes were not designed for the task but the service had to be regular at all costs or otherwise a congestion of bomber crews would develop in Britain.

With the 1,000th trans-Atlantic flight behind, B.O.A.C. is ready for its fourth winter of regular routine operation and has overcome the storm and ice problem in the North Atlantic.

spring resort and seat of Charlemagne's empire.

It was noteworthy that neither of these thrusts—one across the Albert Canal, First Great War defence line, and the other deeply into Belgium's greatest foot triangle—encountered more than medium resistance and no massive fortified positions.

This seemed to substantiate reports current weeks ago that the Germans had depleted much of their defence system in the Low Countries by transfering their guns to the now-lost Atlantic Wall.

South of the Liege-Namur sector the U. S. 1st Army was across the Meuse river almost its whole length. These advances bulged steadily into the Ardennes forest toward Luxembourg. To-days communique placed the Americans half-way across the forest region in the area of the captured villages of Louette-St. Pierre and Bievre, midway between Givet and Sedan.

Allied Supreme Headquarters announced patrols on the right flank of the U. S. 3rd Army which had fought their way into Nancy had been forced to withdraw, but American forces clung firmly to Toul, 11 miles to the west.

A field dispatch said the U. S. 3rd Army was moving steadily across the Moselle river south of Metz, although heavy German fire made progress slow and costly.

Use Many Divisions.

"An indication that the Germans are using all available forces in the Moselle basin defence is the fact that Nazi officers from six different divisions have been captured in the U. S. bridgehead area south of Metz," the dispatch said.

The Germans were hitting back with all their might, keeping up the drumming artillery fire which earlier forced abandonment of a bridgehead at Pont-A-Mousson, the 3rd Army first setback since the Normandy break-through.

This was the German's dilemma: The Allies now are moving into a position to open a major assault against the Siegfried line anywhere along the front and the weakened German army simply has not enough men to fill its last-hope defence system everywhere in the strength necessary to stop such an attack.

For the Germans it is mainly a problem of dispostion of reserves.

As one high Allied staff officer explained: "we have them guessing where to put them, and with our air reconnaissance we know what their guesses are."

An official announcement last night said the enemy no had been cleared entirely from the historic French fortress city of Sedan. A sizeable German garrison had been pocketed there for nearly a week.

There was no news of the British spearhead long reported in the Netherland, but in Belgium and along the French channel coast, British, Canadian and Polish forces continued their steady mop-up of isolated German forces.

Around Boulogne and Calais and inland from Dunkerque the clean-up was moving into its final stage The Canadian net was drawn tighter around Boulogne and Calais.

The British moving northeast from captured Ypres pushed near Roulers, 18 miles south of Bruges, and sent a parallel column to a point some 15 miles inland from Dunkerque.

HOW ALLIES ARE CLOSING IN ON HITLERLAND—As one Nazi debacle follows another across the map of Europe, the hopeless plight of Hitler grows more apparent daily. This map, in which the black area shows the extent of Germany in 1939 indicates the nature and location of knockout attacks as Allied forces make their first thrust into German territory in the neighborhood of Stuttgart and Strasbourg (1), while British - Canadian troops swing through Holland. From East Prussia (2), where the Reds have entered Nazi territory to the Warsaw and Balkan campaigns, the eastern front front collapses. J. C. Armstrong Wins Top Award In Lawn And Garden Competition

In the annual lawn and garden competition sponsored by Wartime Housing Limited for the encouragement of their tenants in the beautification of their homes, the highest score was made by J. C. Armstrong, 719 New Romaine street, an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company, with 86 points. Mr. Armstrong is the winner of first prize in the group of 125 houses in the North Monaghan area between High street and Western avenue.

The winners in the four housing projects—Burnham's Point, Jackson Park, the Hatton property and High street—have been announced by Wm. C. Wilks, secretary of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, whose directors appointed the judges for this competition.

The judges were: Miss June Fraser, Mrs. Alex I. Butcher and Messrs. Fred Storey, John A. Smith, James Rigden, Wm. J. Smith, Bryce Steele, J. S. Mason, S. T. Harris, J. Jessen, A. D. Butcher and Mr. Wilks.

Mr. Wilks prefaces his report with the following comment: "The competition conducted in the Wartime Housing areas was very close this year. One area required the services of a neutral judge to break a tie for second and third awards at Burnham's Point.

Close Decisions

High street (last of the housing projects to be completed) proved the most interesting competition, and it was only when the last two houses were reached that a further tie was dissolved.

The tenants of all four areas are deserving of the highest praise, as many attractive specimens of home beautification are to be seen before the season ends. Many of the entries could compete quite successfully in the competitions of our own society. At the recent flower and vegetable show several tenants of Wartime Housing won awards with their exhibits, and we trust that many others will take part next year.

The High street area is deserving of much credit. Fully 80 per cent. of the tenants made real efforts at beautification of their premises, and the remainder made some effort. The people of this area appeared to enter into the spirit of the competition with deep interest.

A complete survey of the areas eliminated unsatisfactory entries. First judging took place during the first two weeks of July, and with a rotation of judges, the second was at mid-August. Each judge was supplied with a score sheet, and the entries were scored on a point basis."

At Jackson Park

The three awards at Jackson Park were:

1st—Mike Zaharuk, 413 Wellington street, 82 points.

2nd—William J. Bush, 438 Wellington street, 80.4 points.

3rd—Roy Parker, 668 Gilchrist street, 71.8 points.

Mr. Wilks' comment: "The winning entry of last year appeared to rely upon his showing in previous competition; consequently his beautification was overcrowded. The winner of this season's competition has made improvement over last year, while his victory garden, comprising 27 varieties, was in splendid condition."

An Examiner reporter accompanied J. L. Gillespie, administrator of Wartime Housing in Peterborough, in a visit to all four projects yesterday afternoon.

Planting For Future

Mike Zarahuk, whose score was second highest in the entire competition, is employed at Genelco Limited. He came from Sudbury to work in the local munitions industry. His vegetable garden is an outstanding and surprising example of what can be accomplished in production from a small plot of land. He even has a third crop of lettuce and his wife is stacking up sealers of sauces and combinations of peppers and tomatoes to the extent that she wishes she had some extra storage space.

Half a dozen grape vines have been planted, an apple tree or two, strawberries have been set out, and Mr. Wilks' count of twenty-seven varieties of vegetables is probably correct. There are three children in this family, and Mrs. Zarahuk said she and her husband hoped that they would be able to remain in Peterborough.

"We like this city and we like the people around us. They are good, quiet people."

Hoping for the best, the Zarahuks have planted for tomorrow, and in between times they made a lawn in front with a fine array of flowers.

William J. Bush, second prize winner, is another Genelco employee. He and his wife and one daughter have been living here two years and a half. Their lawn and flower beds at the front and side of the house compact of color, especially for September. The flowers include sweet william, asters, marigolds, zinnias, "Heavenly Blue" morning glories over the door, vines on the front wall a grand bloom of geraniums at the side.

The Bush family is another of the wartime arrivals who are going to be happy remaining here. "We like Peterborough. It is a fine city. My husband always wants to have a lot of flowers around our place, and to make things brighter."

Hatton Estate

The prize winners at the Hatton area were:

1st—Wm. Parker, 351 Holloway drive, 70 points.

2nd—A. D. Storey, 399 Armstrong drive, 66 points.

3rd — Victor Montgomery, 371 Armstrong drive, 62 points.

Comment: "The winner was placed third last year, and is well worthy of his new honor. The most improvement for one year is to be seen at 371 Armstrong drive (V. Montgomery) where a complete transformation has taken place."

Mr. Parker is employed at C.G.E. and Mr. Storey and Mr. Montgomery at Genelco Limited. Mrs. Parker said she liked the Hatton area and considered it an exceptionally healthy part of the city, largely because of the fresh air and pleasant surroundings.

Burnham's Point

Across the river, at the first of the local projects, results were:

1st—G. Laing, 3 Burnham court, 80 points.

2nd—Ewart I. Gale, 30 Edgewater boulevard, 77 points.

3rd—Clifford Storey, 5 Burnham c urt, 68 points.

Comment: "Competition again centred around three entries. Each winner is considered well worthy of his place in the sun. We would appreciate all three entries in our competitions next year."

The Laing premises, front and rear, have obviously received considerable attention, and show its effects in such details as the low fence around the lawn, two small circular flower beds with central red lily, elsewhere zinnias, asters, foliage plants and so on; even a little wall fixture at one side of the door with glass container and vine.

A Master of Arts

The house tenanted by Mr. and Mrs. Ewart I. Gale, nearest the C.P.R. bridge, is one of the most distinctive in the entire Wartime Housing area, but that comment does not imply reportorial variance with the decisions of the judges. Mr. Gale has been a consistent prize winner, and was first last year. Two sons of this home are in the R.C.A.F. They enlisted from bank positions in Toronto. There is also an only daughter, married.

Something was previously published in regard to the Gale sundial on the lawn, and Mr. Gale has elaborated its horometric scope to season indices, but that lies outside a lawn competition report. Mr. Gale holds two degrees from the University of Toronto, Bachelor and Master of Arts, and an A.M. from Columbia University, New York City. He was a teacher until shortly before the war broke out, and came to Peterborough to have a hand in the making of munitions. It is understood that Mr. Gale has really not decided yet his course after the war, but it may be that he will leave Peterborough and build elsewhere. He is a tool inspector at Genelco Limited. Part of his work for his major degree was the making of a telescope with which he has introduced most of the children of the neighborhood to phemonena of the planets and some of the brightest stars.

The Storey house deserved its rating, and its tenant, Cliff Storey, employed at Genelco Limited, evidently takes a pride in his comfortable place with its fairly high outlook over Little Lake. A well kept lawn with asters and vines are remembered as effects of his gardening.

High Street

As mentioned in the introduction, J. C. Armstrong wins the first prize in the High street (race track) area.

2nd—A. R. McCuskee, 748 Duffus avenue, 69 points.

3rd — Edmund Bertrand, 772 Brown street, 67 points.

Comment: "The winner has beautified front, sides and back in a very artistic manner as well as growing a victory garden of 22 varieties of vegetables.

"We are sorry the prize list does not permit a prize for lawns and while we made this recommendation to your committee, we feel that next year, possibly, outside awards might be found for such a competition."

The prizes paid by Wartime Housing Limited are: $15, $10 and $5, first, second and third, in each housing area.

Mention might be made of many of the front lawns in all four properties which present trimmed grass vines over the porches and neat beds of flowers. One of the many, for instance, is the house at 434 Wolsley street occupied by Walter Hirter of Genelco Limited, featured by the vividly contrasting beds of flaming salvias and gleaming marigolds. Clark Haig at 430 Wolsley street has another attractive front, brightening that strip of the street

American Force 50 Miles From Escape Gap

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 8 —(AP)—American troops of the 7th Army, pushing into Besancon in southern France after a swift advance from Arbois, were engaged in heavy fighting today with Nazi forces attempting to cover the retreat of battered 9th Army remnants fleeing toward the Belfort gap 50 miles to the northwest.

The gap—situated in the lowlands between the Vosges range and the Swiss border at the lower tip of the Siegfried Line—is the sole a[illegible] where there are no mountains [illegible] block the 7th Army.

The Americans penetrated into the western, southern and eastern sections of Besancon following a series of sharp fights with substantial forces of Germans employing machine-guns, mortars and tanks in the first real resistance encountered on the southern French front in several days.

There was no official confirmation here of reports from abroad that elements of the 7th Army had linked up with the U.S. 3rd Army to the north.

West of Besancon Allied forward elements breached the Nazi defence line set up along the Loue River south of the Foret de Chaux between the village of Paray and Quigey, about 20 miles to the east, and penetrated into the forest.

French forces sweeping up the Saone valley on the west flank [illegible] the Allied advance made substantial progress after running into stiff opposition north of Chalon sur Saone.

The towns of Mont Sous Vaudrey, Quingey, Villers-Farlay and Salins were among localities occupied in the American advance. The retreating Germans created road blocks at several points.

The French, fighting near Le Valdahon, site of a great Allied artillery training centre in the first Great War, engaged a German column of tanks and armored cars.

Allied headquarters did not state whether the main German force was still in the area between Chalon Sur Saone and Besancon, 63 miles to the northeast on the road to the Belfort Gap. A statement that the enemy was "concerned over the threat to his line of retreat" indicated the possibili[illegible] some of the main force faced a tra[illegible]

Churchill, F.D.R. To Discuss War On Japan

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP)—The conviction grew here today that Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt are planning to meet again soon—probably in Quebec—to plan the peace and bring to life a master plan for unleashing the whole Allied might against Japan immediately Germany is crushed.

With the final battle for Germany beginning, Hitler's satellites in open rebellion and a general feeling of Allied victory predominating, the following topics would naturally present themselves for discussion at such a meeting:

1. Untangling the wreckage left by the Nazis in Europe, including the policing of Germany; division of occupational spheres among Britain, United States and Russia, and deciding upon the machinery through which liberated countries may choose post-war governments.

2. Placing the final stamp upon military operations in the Pacific, consideration of the role Russia is to play, and the curbing of the demobilization fever expected to arise in Britain and the United States when Germany is defeated.

While military operations are at their most satisfactory state of the entire war, the diplomatic field now offers multiple possibilities for disruption.

Romania, Bulgaria and Finland are suing for peace. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt are certain to be kept informed of all developments before signed.

One of the knottiest problems facing the two leaders is presented by Poland. Both Britain and the United States are standing behind the Polish government in London, while Russia supports the Polish Committee of National Liberation, already set up in that country.

As the Allies close in on Japan the possibility of further co-ordination of all commands in the Pacific—even placing all under one supreme commander similar to Gen. Eisenhower in Europe—may be discussed.

PARISIANS FIGHT FOR THEIR FREEDOM—This photograph was made in the thick of the street fighting which preceded surrender of the city of Paris to the Allies. Men of the French forces of the interior, their attack spearheaded by one of the French tanks (bearing the cross of Lorraine) of Gen. le Clerc's second armored division, move against a Nazi strongpoint in the city. The men wearing civilian clothes are armed with a variety of weapons, but their fighting spirit is of the highest.

Paratroopers Walk Sixty Miles Chasing Nazis

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN PARACHUTE TROOPS IN FRANCE, Sept. 7—(CP)—Canadian parachute troops did another terrific job in Normandy, fighting their way forward for 60 miles from just east of the Orne river to the Aisle river through some of the toughest country in that part of France.

They did it in 10 days and the feature of the advance is that they did it almost entirely on foot, battling Germans most of the way. The only transport Canadians had was six jeeps and they were used exclusively for carrying ammunitions and rations.

Canadians carried out this feat of endurance and stamina during the push along the channel flank of the 1st Canadian Army which followed the capture of Falaise on Aug. 17.

They struck east with British airborne troops and Belgian and Dutch forces and the success of this 60-mile attack contributed a great deal to winning the battle for the lower Seine. Even the most optimistic commanders did not think they could ever move so fast.

Heavy Opposition

Canadian parachutists started from their positions between Troarn and the Orne river northeast of Caen. The first obstacle was a huge woods with mine fields sown in it, some of them 400 yards deep. They negotiated these and then had to cross four miles of swamp land by the Dives River. Parties of Germans sniped at them as they advanced but by the next night they were over the swamp country. Maj. Peter Griffin of Toronto led his company in an attack on some important bridges on road to Dozula, south of Cabourg and Houlgate and it was a complete success. The bridges were seized and by the time the rest of the Canadians came up Griffin's men had a sign up on the biggest bridge: "Canada Bridge."

Can't Be Stopped

As Canadians went on they were shelled frequently for two days but that did not stop them. They marched past Dozules which was burning and into the hilly, wooded country where they had to watch for ambushes and scattered batches of Germans, who were withdrawing but fighting rear-guard actions all the way.

The parachutists were held up several times by enemy in woods and these had to be cleared before they proceeded. Between Dozules and Ahnebault, nine miles southwest of Deauville, the Canadians had battles through caves where Germans were holding out. Dog-tired, they reached Annebault where they had a brief breather and then Belgian troop-carrying vehicles picked them up for their only ride in 60 miles. They took them six miles, but it was six miles north and not east.

The troop carriers dropped them about five miles from the Touques river and the Canadians marched on to the village of Touques, on the river two miles south of Deauville.

The Germans had blown the bridge there and in face of opposition from the far bank, the whole Canadian force crossed the deep, fast flowing, 40-foot river in two rowboats, manned by French Maquis.

Institute Honors Four Members

ROSENEATH, Sept. 8 (ENS) — Ralph C. Banbury, Agricultural Representative for Northumberland County, was guest speaker on Thursday afternoon when the monthly meeting of the local branch of the W.I. was held.

Mr. Banbury reviewed the agricultural situation, past and present, and referring to the future of agriculture said, now was the opportune time to take stock of present conditions and consider plans for the future. He spoke of the re-establishment of soldeirs on farms after the war, and the problems to be encountered and solved if the scheme were to be a success. How to maintain present prices for farm produce was a question needing serious consideration. He quoted Winston Churchill, who said an adequate home, adequate work and food are necessary to maintain peace.

Comparing the attraction of industry over farming, to a young man, Mr. Banbury said industry presents a future where too often farming does not. One generation ago credit on farm lands could be easily obtained, at present moneyed men are frightened of farm mortgages, he declared. Credit is essential and money should go back into farm lands, and while rehabilitation is the big thing of the future our position regarding the debt situation in 1929 must not be repeated.

Mr. Banbury was introduced by the president, Mrs. Frank Brown, and thanked by Mrs. B. Thackeray.

Present Certificates

Another special feature of the meeting was the prescentation by the branch of life membership certificates to Mrs. E. Sandercock, Mrs. George Mouncey and Mrs. B. Thackeray in recognition of faithful service during the past twenty years. The president made the presentation.

The meeting was held in the town hall, Mrs. George Mouncey was hostess and the president presided. It was decided to contact the secretary of the Red Shield for information regarding the Salvation Army's request for assistance in a rehabilitation program in Europe. An invitation was received and accepted to attend the tenth anniversary party of the Roseneath United church W.A. on September 20. Mrs. J. W. Pacey will be hostess at the Grandmothers' meeting in October, and will give an address on "Growing Old" Mrs. Harold Taylor and Mrs. Clarence Thackeray form a program committee.

Mrs. Frank Adams presented current events, confined to Ontario. Mrs. B. Thackeray presided for the program when three guests performed: Miss Audrey Down a piano solo, "Swallows"; and duets sung by Mrs. Clifford Timlin and Mrs. Clifford Minifie of Coldsprings. Mrs. Charles Sanderoock read of the various accomplishments of the farmer's wife, and the convener arranged a contest.

A collection for war work yielded approximately $4.00 and supper was served by the hostess.

900 Japanese Mutiny; 231 Die In Fight

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(CP). — Two hundred and thirty-one Japanese prisoners of war were killed and 108 wounded in a mutiny in an Australian camp, Aug. 5, it was disclosed last night in a statement issued here from Prime Minister Curtin of Australia.

The Japanese, armed with mess knives and baseball bats, rose against the guards in the early hours of Aug. 5. All but a few who escaped were rounded up by nightfall.

Of the dead, 20 committed suicide by hanging or strangulation, nine by stabbing, five from other self-inflicted wounds and two threw themselves under a train. The statement said also that 16 of the wounded also showed evidence of attempted suicide.

Australian casualties were light, but one officer was murdered by a party of Japanese during a search for the fugitives.

Nine hundred Japanese took part in the mutiny. Eighteen of 20 sleeping huts and two administration buildings were destroyed by fire, and inside were found a dozen Japanese bodies.

Humanity has but three great enemies: fever, famine and war; of these by far the greatest, by far the most terrible, is fever. —SIR WILLIAM OSLER.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1944

Let Us Be Ready To Celebrate

As matters stand at present the war in Europe may end abruptly, and at almost any time. The Germans may fight doggedly for many weeks inside their own borders, or they may collapse suddenly. We suggest, therefore, that the City Council and the other organizations in Peterborough which lead the community should prepare for the day of victory, so that we shall not be caught napping by it, without a plan for celebration.

If there is no plan the rejoicings may take a riotous turn and unpleasant incidents may mar the general happiness. But if there is a plan for a parade and a public service of thanksgiving, a torchlight procession or a street-dance, it will be possible to celebrate V-Day fittingly, handsomely and in a reasonably orderly manner.

It has been suggested in some quarters that we shall not feel like celebrating on the day of victory, for the realization of the bitterness and suffering that the war has caused will overwhelm us. The Examiner cannot agree with this lachrymose opinion; most people will be wildly delighted that the war is over, and those parents and wives who have lost men in the fighting will find their sadness lightened by the knowledge that those men did not die in vain, but have added to the triumph. Make no mistake about it, Canada will rejoice on V-Day, for as Canada shared the fight, so will she share the victory.

It has been suggested in another quarter that the churches should be thrown open on the day of victory, and the beverage-rooms closed; the question of closing the beverage rooms, or not, will be settled by the only proper authority, the L.C.B.O.; there will be many decent citizens who will include both prayer and beer in their personal program of celebration. We suggest that a non-denominational service should be arranged, to be held out of doors, if possible; we suggest also that a parade and a public dance should be provided for. Let us rejoice in every possible way.

And let us do it on the actual day of victory, and not two or three days later. That is why we urge the Council to make its plans as quickly as possible; there may not be many days to wait.

Criticism By An Australian

An Australian journalist, Mr. Don Whitington of the Sydney Daily Telegraph, recently published an article in the official paper of the journalists' union in his country, in which he made a number of severe criticisms of the news-gathering system used by Canadian newspapers. Two points stand out in the article and they are these: (1) Mr. Whitington is a better union man than he is a journalist, and (2) he did not make a careful study of the Canadian news-gathering system.

World news and Dominion news in this country is distributed to its members by Canadian Press, a co-operative news-gathering agency. The Examiner, which is a member of this organization, sends to its central offices all Peterborough news which is of more than local interest; we also receive news through Canadian Press of events everywhere in the world, for Canadian Press works jointly with the chief news-gathering organizations of the Americas, Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia, sending them Canadian news and receiving their news in return. Mr. Whitington does not like this system because he says that it cuts down the number of jobs available to journalists. We think that he is entirely mistaken. Does he imagine that a newspaper like the Examiner, or any of its provincial contemporaries, could afford to maintain correspondents all over the world? By the co-operative system that is what they do, and the news coverage which they are able to give in this way is first-rate. Nor, we may say, have we heard of any first-rate journalist going long without a job in this Dominion as a result of this system.

Mr. Whitington's complaint boils down to this: he does not like co-operative news-gathering because it means that small provincial papers are able to give their readers as much news, and the same news, as the large metropolitan papers; we like it for precisely that reason. Mr. Whitington himself admits that the Canadian provincial papers are of a size and quality seldom seen outside Australia's biggest cities. Would he like to see all of Canada served by a handful of large papers, as Australia is?

In the course of a short visit Mr. Whitington has got hold of the wrong end of the stick; if he will come back to Canada Canadian newspapermen will be glad to show him how our system works to the advantage of the country as a whole.

The Radio Scapegoat

The Police Association of Ontario met in Windsor last week, and in the course of its business passed a resolution urging that radio programs which presented criminal characters in an attractive light, and which discredited the forces of the law, should be discouraged. We should be strongly in favour of this if we knew of any such programs, but we do not. The Police Association's resolution suggests that there are several programs which make heroes of clever criminals, and make fun of incompetent cops; we know of several programs which present unusually gifted policemen and detectives as terrors of the underworld, but we have never heard any of the other kind. To what programs, precisely, does the Police Association refer? If they would name them we are sure that the CBC and the private stations would remove them from the air at once. But frankly, we know of no such programs and we should be surprised if the Police Association could back up its resolution with facts.

It is deceptively easy to lay the blame for increases in crime to radio programs or moving-pictures. We are convinced that the real causes of crime lie much deeper. Children who are so lacking in moral fibre that they are easily corrupted by movies or radio are not to be kept from crime merely by changing movies or radio; the change must be made in the child through its home environment. It may also be suggested that children who can be corrupted by movies or radio will be corrupted in any case by the first evil influence which they meet.

As for the Police Association, we suspect that it passed an important-sounding resolution without having given the matter much real thought.

The Vimy Memorial

The Vimy Memorial erected to the memory of the Canadian men of the First World War who gave their lives in France and Belgium stands undamaged. The fighting during the past five years has twice surged around this memorial and for more than four years it has been in the hands of the Germans. The only damage is that a hand of one of the figures at the top of a pillar is missing. The Hun during his occupation could easily have desecrated it; for the Germans have not been noted for showing respect to Allied and French war shrines, many of which have either been destroyed or taken to Germany. Perhaps it was that the commander of the Germans in the Vimy area was a veteran of the last war and appreciated the heroism of the Canadians. Whatever it was, thousands of Canadians are rejoicing today that Vimy Memorial stands intact.

A Focus For Hatred

There are a great many people in the world who have an immense store of hatred which they must get rid of, and they are always looking for something to hate. They are full of hate because their teeth are abcessed, or because they cannot get rich without working, or because they were disappointed in love 25 years ago, or because they eat the wrong sort of diet—the reasons are numberless. And they are always on the lookout for a focus for their hate. They hate the Jews, or they hate the rich, or they hate people whose names appear frequently in the newspapers, and all their hate, at bottom, springs from sources which have nothing to do with the objects of their hatred.

Quite a few people seem to hate the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Consider the silly story which was widely circulated that the Duchess was occupying ten rooms in a New York hospital, and was monopolizing the services of six nurses. The Duke has made a statement that she has but one room and one nurse, like other people, but the haters are satisfied—they have had their fun; they have revenged themselves on the Windsors for being more prominent than they. But what a pity that the haters cannot amuse themselves in a less disagreeable manner!

NOTE AND COMMENT

Let's keep cool over the coal situation. When winter comes it will be time to get hot about it—if possible.

Tough Alberta Politics

(By B. T. RICHARDSON)

OTTAWA: Upon reading a recent issue of Elmer Roper's newspaper, the People's Weekly, published every two weeks in Edmonton as a C.C.F. party paper, I find a bitter post-election statement that raises several crucial issues of current politics. Mr. Roper is the Alberta leader of the C.C.F., and the electors of Edmonton returned him to the new Legislature where he will be able to carry on the valuable criticism which he has directed at the Social Credit government for the past two sessions.

I hope the remarks he has just printed in his paper in hot anger do not represent his real convictions, because if they do, politics has effected a terrible transformation in Mr. Roper and, since he is an important figure in his party, a considerable section of the C.C.F. is prepared to renounce rational and restrained debate as the main technique of democratic politics.

Mr. Roper's theory is that the C.C.F. was defeated in Alberta because it did not stoop to the level of tactics employed against it.

"We talked about our own program," he wrote on Aug. 19, ten days after the election, "and quietly allowed the newly acquired political lackeys of the interests which are the people's real enemies to plaster us with so much mud that nobody could see us or our program. That definitely is not the way to carry on a political fight."

He went on: "Because the newly acquired Alberta flunkeys of predatory capitalism came into their present positions by mouthing fire and brimstone against the 'big shots,' we thought we should treat them tenderly....Our gentleness has been a very great mistake, and I feel humiliated that I was so much responsible for it. My repentance is final and complete. It won't happen again."

IF Mr. Roper is now determined to dedicate his political career to mud-slinging, I hope his judgment that this is the royal road to success in Alberta is wrong. The violence and the irrationality of politics in Alberta is shocking. The People's Weekly publishes a page of examples drawn from the recent election campaign, and of course all of them were directed against the C.C.F. I do not doubt that the Social Credit party's paper could compile the same number from C.C.F. sources directed against the Social Credit government.

As a veteran of public life, Mr. Roper should not be surprised at it. No one is likely to be taken in by claims of the C.C.F. in Alberta to special purity. In three years devoted to reporting Alberta affairs from 1936 on, I collected a file of documents and clippings that, I believe, compares with samples of invective, lies, tub-thumping politics and demagoguery that could be found anywhere in the record of Canadian politics. The assassination of character and truth has gone a long way in Alberta, and the C.C.F. cannot be exonerated entirely.

The temptation to renounce sweetness and light in political debate has become unusually strong in Alberta. The tradition goes back a long way. It was no accident that Mr. Aberhart, whose memory is still sainted to many people in Alberta, should make his success by methods that shocked reasonable people. The electorate had been well conditioned for years by the U.F.A. (one of the first affiliates of the C.C.F.) to regard with suspicion any criticism, to believe that opposition necessarily originates with 'big shots" outside Alberta, and to react favorably to fulminations against anything likely to interfere with the planning of paradise inside Alberta. Mr. Aberhart carried these heresies a little farther than most men, in their own consciences, could. He cast a spurious aura of divinity over them.

THE revolt against reason in Alberta politics has been going on a long time. A political party with a dogmatic doctrine of economic and social salvation soon finds its voice becoming shrill and violent. The means, so its apologists say in their own defence, are justified in view of the great end to be attained. Anything to make the people see that they must accept the doctrine, comes to be accepted and defended.

Finally, even force can be justified by the same false logic. In the early days of the Aberhart government, efforts to restrict the civil rights of bank employees and to gag the press were not only taken in hand but were defended warmly by some Social Crediters. Newspapermen were hounded by Mr. Aberhart. A law was passed to permit the government to blacklist them. The Edmonton government imported propagandists, one of whom quickly became entangled in a charge of criminal libel and went to jail.

The tradition of rough words and intolerance grew unconsciously in Alberta. It grew alongside high principles of human advancement. It grew with the concept of planning the economic welfare of the people of Alberta, and it was inevitable because the political salvationists must regard opposition as stupid, to be brow-beaten and coerced.

Concerning the problem of the C.C.F. future in Alberta, Mr. Roper wrote: "If we haven't learned that lesson we had better let somebody do the fighting who has more of what it takes." He has come squarely up against the central problem of political action, and I hope he recognizes the full effect of his discovery. As I recall him, Mr. Roper is a sensitive and humanitarian politician. If he wants to step aside for the hoodlums and toughies, I am sure his party will find plenty of them in Alberta to carry on the noble work of regenerating the electors in his provinces who are somewhat slow in seeing the light.

Unconsidered Trifles

"You called the plaintiff a rogue, a swindler and an ass. Why did you box his ears into the bargain?"

"Well, he is rather hard of hearing."

The village orchestra had just rehearsed the overture for the sixth time.

"Thank you," said the composer, who was also the conductor. "At last you have given me a true interpretation of my work."

"Gee," whispered the man with the trombone, "that's queer, I've got two pages to play yet."

Father sat down, rather red in the face and prepared to answer his small son who had just asked: "Where did I come from, daddy." Carefully and simply he explained the facts of life and the boy seemed to listen very attentively. At the end of the explanation there was a pause, then the father asked curiously: "What made you ask, sonny?"

Sonny started playing with a toy airplane and replied casually: "Nothing 'specially, dad, 'cept I heard the new boy at school say he came from Southend, and I wondered where I came from."

CUTTING OFF THE FUNGUS

Quebec Cabinet Is Biggest One Yet

(FROM OTTAWA CITIZEN)

PERHAPS the most notable thing about the new Quebec Government named yesterday by Premier Duplessis is its size. It contains 21 cabinet ministers. This is by far the all-time high for any Canadian government.

Mr. Duplessis evidently believes that if two heads are better than one it must follow that twenty are better than ten. The only other cabinet comparable in size to Quebec's is the Dominion cabinet, with 20 members. That represents an increase of four over its pre-war strength.

Among the provinces, Quebec has no rival. Ontario and Saskatchewan, with 12 each, came closest. When Premier Douglas recently enlarged the Saskatchewan cabinet from 9 to 12, he was twitted very widely. But Premier Duplessis has left him far behind.

The other provinces have the following cabinet strength: Nova Scotia 8, New Brunswick 8, Prince Edward Island 9, Manitoba 10, Alberta 8 and British Columbia 8. P.E.I. actually carries the greatest load, for it has one cabinet minister for about each 10,000 inhabitants. On the same basis, Quebec would have 350 ministers!

The new cabinet of all the talents will cost Quebec a pretty penny. Under the Godbout regime the Premier got $14,000, ministers $8,000 and ministers without portfolio $3,000. So the new Quebec cabinet will cost just about $150,000 a year. It may be cheap at the price. On the other hand, it may not.

Medical Examination and Marriage

(FROM KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

AT the General Synod of the Anglican Church of Canada, to be held in Montreal later this month, a recommendation will be made which will draw attention to one of the most important questions arising in the field of national health. Members of the Anglican clergy will be asked to advise "prospective marriage couples" of the necessity of premarital medical examinations. The idea is, of course, not new, but in recent years it has won the advocacy of an increasing number of organizations, religious and otherwise. In theory, premarital medical examinations are unassailable But unless such examinations were a national measure, their value would be problematical, and establishment as a national measure introduces the elements of compulsion and regimentation.

Canadians do not want any more regimentation than is absolutely necessary for good government and maintenance of a generally high standard of welfare in the Dominion. They have given convincing evidence of that fact on more than one occasion recently. However, a certain amount of regimentation is unavoidable even in a democracy, and this generally accepted fact is nowhere more apparent than in relation to national health. We have compulsory regulations already in existence regarding quarantine, isolation, and the treatment of certain diseases. It would seem only a logical step to prevent transmission of disease through marriage, particularly when it is realized that, in the absence of examination, babies are often brought into this world hopelessly handicapped at birth.

There is no real reason why the idea of premarital medical examinations should be repugnant. The belief seems prevalent that such examinations are conducted solely because of the suspicion of venereal disease—an idea which is, of course, utterly nonsensical. It is true that a check is made for such diseases, and even if that were the only check, a great deal of heartbreak and unhappiness could be avoided. A thorough medical examination, however, may reveal any one of a number of diseases which would make immediate marriage unwise. For the most of these diseases, venereal or otherwise, medical science has a cure or a partial cure; the presence of disease would not necessarily mean that the sufferer would be forever barred from marriage.

The committee which will make this recommendation to the General Synod has taken a step in the right direction. Some day the necessity for compulsory premarital examination will be almost universally recognized. In the interim, the most effective educational effort to hasten that recognition can be made by the church. It is significant that an increasing number of religious denominations have gone on record in recent years as favouring premarital examinations. Their views undoubtedly reflect the readiness of their congregations to subscribe to the measure.

Under Canvas And All That

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

IT is an appalling and deeply important social fact, seldom noticed by the sociologists and economists, that most of Canada never sleeps under canvas. Most of the sociologists and economists themselves would not know how to rig a tent, build a fire or cook a bannock, and hence are utterly incapable of understanding economics or society. For the basis of all economics and all social systems is the economy and society of the camp fire.

The chief disease of our world is the fact that most of its people no longer function in it or truly participate in its work. They turn a single screw in a factory, or add up figures in a ledger which mean nothing to them. They never see society whole or feel their part in it. Thus it is only round the camp-fire, where every man has his vital duty to perform and sees the final result in the form of a camp dinner and a well-made bed of hemlock boughs, that man truly functions and, with his companions, constructs a society of equal opportunity and equal reward.

And the deepest lesson to be derived from camping is the necessity of toil to earn the rewards of life. Therefore, it is useless to camp like a tourist, to equip a car with every kind of gadget, collapsible bed, iron grill and travelling refrigerator. The real camper will scorn all such cowardly devices and set out with his whole equipment on his back. Only after a long, toiling trail uphill in the hot September sun, only after the stinging laceration of packstrap against raw shoulder, only in blood, sweat and tears, is it possible to enjoy the spectacle of the perfect camping site, suddenly spread before you beside a dashing river, beneath the whispering music of giant pines.

Then the quiet craftsman's pleasure of cutting green evergreen boughs to make the springs of your bed, the artful weaving of smaller branches until the entire structure, a foot thick, is softer than the finest city mattress, a fit couch for kings, a bed for Cleopatra, and odorous with the clean perfume of the forest. But best of all, the unfailing boy's pleasure in building the fire, the whittled cedar shaving, the first frail flame, the sweet smell of wood smoke, and then the immemorial sound of fat frying and sizzling as the bacon cooks.

Thus a few days ago I sat upon the bank of a mighty river eating my bacon and bannock (both slightly burned) and with the smoke blowing straight in my face, and a hard rock beneath me for a cushion, and tea boiled into a tongue-burning liquor, and the jam somehow compounded with pine needles and bacon rinds, and I sighed softly for my unhappy friends in the city.

There in the twilight, with a harvest moon mounting over the shoulder of the hill, I thought of my colleagues on this newspaper, wolfing their dinners at a table at home, racked with the dyspepsia of the city, glowering at their wives and children. As I smoked in the dusk beside the river and almost repelled the mosquitoes with my tobacco, I brooded over the misfortune of the men who were getting out the paper for the next day, chained to their desks while I owned the whole outdoors.

As I lay on my bed of boughs (one of which had become detached somehow and thrust itself unaccountably into my back), I pitied my friends in their stuffy rooms, between city sheets. But my pity almost reached the crying stage at dawn when I arose to find the world and my clothes thickly coated in dew, when I stumbled down to the stone fireplace and, half-asleep, tried to coax a damp fire into life, and presently, squatting on the beach, eagerly gulped my bacon and new trout, faintly flavoured with sand.

A Bible Message

And there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked: the same heard Paul speak: who stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed, said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked. And when the people saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.....

Then the priest of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and would have done sacrifice with the people. Which when the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard of, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out, and saying, Sirs, why do ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein. (Acts 14: 8-11, 13-15.)

Haida Finishes Hun U-Boat In Short Order

LONDON, Sept. 8 — (CP Cable) — H.M.C.S. Haida, veteran destroyer of many a skirmish in European waters, played a large part in helping to sink a German submarine and capture all its crew recently, the Admiralty disclosed Wednesday.

The U-boat crew declined to fight after it had been forced to the surface by depth charges from the Canadian vessel and H.M.S. Eskimo, and all its members were captured as the U-boat sank.

An R.A.F. coastal command Liberator first sighted the submarine, attacked it with bombs, and then dropped a smoke float to guide the Haida and Eskimo to the position. Depth charges from the two vessels blew the U-boat to the surface and the crew jumped into the sea as quickly as they could pour from the conning tower.

Smashed by fire from the guns of the two tribal destroyers the submarine was sent to the bottom a few minutes later. There were nine wounded among the survivors picked up by the detroyers' boats.

Depth charges were released repeatedly by the Tribals after contact was made and the Haida picked up the sound of under-water hammering as if the submarine crew were endeavoring to make repairs. Survivors later said they had attempted to tighten several hatches which were leaking badly from the blasting.

Were Fishing

Some of the Haida's crew actually were fishing—scooping up herring stunned by depth charges—when word that the U-boat was believed to be "coming up" sent them dashing back to their posts.

Only a few hundred yards off the Haida's starboard the submarine broke the surface. The destroyers opened fire immediately and shells from Oerlikon guns and pom-poms struck the hull and decks of the U-boat.

Salvoes from the Haida shattered the submarine's conning tower.

The Germans then swarmed on deck and jumped over the sides. At this, Cmdr. H. G. De Wolf of Bedford, N.S., skipper of the Haida and in over-all command of the two Tribals, ordered cease fire and minutes later the submarine's stern lifted and she slipped under the sea.

As the Haida—perhaps the best known of Canada's destroyers because of her numerous recent actions—entered her base port ship after ship flashed signals of congratulation. From every little tug and harbor craft came waves and cheers.

Pekinese Dogs To Get Good Care

NAPANEE, Ont., Sept. 8—(CP)—Mrs. Ida Mae McGuire said today a bequest she receives under the will of Mrs. May Marguerite Shaw of Moneola, N.Y., "was the result of a promise I made Mrs. Shaw a long time ago." The will, filed for probate at Mineloa yesterday, provides that Mrs. McGuire will receive for life the interest from a trust fund of $100,000 providing she cares for 15 Pekinese pups.

"She was very fond of her Pekes, which she had on her estate in New York and I promised that if anything happened to her I would look after them as long as they lived," said Mrs. McGuire.

Most of Mrs. Shaw's dogs came originally from Mrs. McGuire, a breeder of Pekes for 18 years and owner of the Pekin Inn kennels at Napanee.

"She bought some of them from me and others were presents," said Mrs. McGuire, adding: "We had been friends for many years and I visited her at least four times a year."

Phone To Ireland

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 — (CP) — The BBC said yesterday that public telephone service between Britain and all ports of Ireland, discontinued last April to "prevent a possible leakage of vital information," has been restored. Must Like Dogs

MINEOLA, N.Y., Sept. 8—(AP).—It all depends on whether Mrs. Ita Mae McGuire of Napanee, Ont., likes dogs. If she consents to care for 15 pekinese pups, she will receive for life the interest accruing from a trust fund of $100,000, under terms of the will of Mrs. May Marguerite Shaw, filed for probate yesterday.

Soldiers Grow Vegetables In Barren Labrador

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY AT GOOSE BAY, Labrador, Sept. 8—Located on the Dominion's remote north-east shoulder, the coast of Labrador has for a vast number of years been regarded as a barren, frosty tundra inhabited only by a few trappers, Eskimos and Indians, a lonely territory, little-known and little-loved. War, however, has given Canada's sons and Labrador a chance to get better acquainted and it's beginning to be generally realized that Labrador isn't quite so barren and frosty after all. World War II. is likely to prove a big break for this far-away chunk of the North American Continent.

Canadian soldiers stationed here at Goose Bay are the most isolated of any Canadian soldiers this side of the Atlantic, and probably the other side of the Atlantic, too, but they are discovering that Labrador actually is habitable. There's a beach here. There's a place to swim. And hard though it may be to believe, a way has been found to grow vegetables.

This military base at Goose Bay is located on a high, flat sandy plateau between two rivers. Communication with the "outside" is maintained principally by air, with the radio helping the service men to keep in touch with what's going on in the world. Supplies, and the all-important mail, come in by plane.

Food Excellent

The best of food is obtainable at this base, including extra rations of meat and fruit, as well as table "extras" bought with canteen profits. A percentage of the camp's root vegetable requirements is already being produced locally. This production may ultimately be boosted to something like 75 per cent. of the total needs when the output of a 30-acre garden, now being cleared, becomes available.

One of the most unique undertakings of this great isolated base is the experimental work being carried out in the field of hydroponics (chemical soil-less gardening). Devoted to this work is a splendid greenhouse 75 feet long and 20 feet wide, supplemented by an acre of outdoor beds, where a variety of vegetables have already been grown successfully.

In good bottom land, three miles from the base, where the soil is light clay-loam and there is a good water level, a very successful market garden has been established by the men. Raspberries, blueberries and currants grow wild.

There's no main street at Goose Bay, and entertainment is an important item. Two instructors who were brought in from Ottawa last year taught several hundred of the base's soldiers to play the mouth-organ and various small instruments, and provided mass singing instruction. As a result of this musical pioneer work, the camp now has a good orchestra, which helps tremendously to while away the spare hours.

Radios Invaluable

There are radios in all recreation halls, movies every night, if the planes come through, and a daily Canadian newscast radioed from Halifax. Libraries are plentiful, and the soldiers have found that swimming along Goose Bay, in summer, is excellent. For soldiers who like camping out, there is a week-end haven where they can spend a few days, swimming, fishing and boating. Plans are under way to improve this spot by building a number of cabins there. Sports of all kinds, of course, are heartily encouraged at Goose Bay.

Huts at the military base are widely scattered — this to prevent spreading of any epidemic—and so far health has been excellent. Actually a medical officer in Labrador finds himself something of a country doctor. There is a mission hospital not far away, but no resident doctor at present, so most of the serious cases go to the military hospital at Goose Bay. Medical officers generally find that a good number of their cases prove to be ailing Eskimos.

One M.O. arrived at Goose Bay for duty, found out that the stork was hovering over an Eskimo family at Rigolet. He kept in constant touch with the case by radio-telegraph, with Rigolet wiring progress reports and the medical officer wiring back medical advice. It was a little out-of-the-ordinary for a new man, but he soon found that nothing is out-of-the-ordinary in Labrador. Mother and baby, by the way, are doing fine.

Elgin Tank Regiment Operates In Italy

With the 1st Canadian Army in France, Sept. 8 (CP Cable)—The Elgin Regiment of St. Thomas, Ont., is operating in France, it was permitted to disclose today.

The regiment is a tank delivery unit handling the supply of all armored vehicles from base areas to the front-line. One of its squadrons was with the 3rd Canadian Division and the 2nd Armored Brigade in the early assault stages of the Normandy campaign.

Originally the Elgins were infantry, later became a tank regiment, and then were converted into a tank delivery unit.

Million Strong Belgian Army Plagues Nazis

By ROBERT REUBEN
Reuter War Correspondent

NAMUR, Belgium, Sept. 8—(CP-Reuter)—Belgium's "White Army," the army of resistance, is estimated to have 1,000,000 secret members. Many of them joined German organizations and even the German traitor army or worked during the day supposedly as faithful employees of the Germans in Belgium.

It arose like a spectre to plague the once-proud Germany Army of Occupation when it began to crumble before the onslaught of British forces driving in from France.

In retaliation for the "White Army's" slaying of the collaborationist burgomaster of Charleroi and his wife, the Gestapo arrested and killed 500 civilians in the city, according to local officials and the populace, in one of the worst reprisal atrocities in occupied Europe.

The story is the same on a smaller scale throughout every little hamlet of the country.

In one village 10 civilians, including women, were rounded up indiscriminantly after the "White Army" blew up sluices on the River Meuse and disrupted German river traffic.

The age of members of the "White Army" ranged between 16 and 25 although many former officers and men of the Belgian Army have served in the underground forces.

Odd Insignia

Its only insignia is a small white bird.

More than 150 Belgian collaborators were rounded up in Namur today to be tried by the Belgian government on charges of treason within the next few days.

Included among the prisoners are members of the Belgian gestapo, despised nationals who operated their organization under direction of the German Gestapo, spies, members of the Belgian force serving with the Germans called "Rexists," and ordinary informers.

Ordinarily Belgium does not impose the death penalty for any crime but local officials said the criminal code would be suspended to permit capital punishment for treason during the war.

Those convicted of less serious crimes will be liable to 20 years imprisonment with hard labor, the officials said.

The prisoners will probably receive a jury trial under direction of the Belgian prime minister, Hubert Pierlot, when he arrives from London. Sentence will be passed by the justices.

Name Dr. Frigon Gen. Manager

OTTAWA, Sept. 8 — (CP) — Dr. Augustin Frigon, acting general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, has been appointed general manager of the Corporation, War Services Minister LaFleche announced today.

Gen. LaFleche also announced that Donald Manson, secretary of the CBC Board of Governors, has been appointed assistant general manager and that Ernest Bushnell, supervisor of programs, has been appointed to the post of director of programs.

Dr. Frigon had held the post of acting general manager since last November when Dr. James Thomson, president of the University of Saskatchewan, resigned as general manager to return to the University. Dr. Thomson had held the general managership for one year.

Dr. Frigon was assistant general manager at the time he was appointed to replace Dr. Thomson. The post of assistant general manager had remained vacant since that time.

A prominent engineer, Dr. Frigon was appointed assistant general manager when the CBC was formed in 1936. He had been president of the Quebec Electricity Commission when he accepted the post with the CBC.

Gen. LaFleche said the appointments were made by the Cabinet on the recommendation of the CBC Board of Governors.

The announcement did not indicate whether the appointment of a full-time chairman of the CBC would soon be announced. A Bill authorizing such an appointment was passed at the last session of parliament.

Secret Weapon Developed By Canadians

By CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 8—(CP)—British and Canadian troops landing on the Normandy coast June 6 carried with them a secret weapon—the weapon of flame.

One of the first units to use it in France — operating "pack models" successfully—was the North Shore New Brunswick Regiment. This was fitting, for Canadian experimentation and training had much to do with development of flame to an efficiency far outmatching anything produced by the enemy.

The Germans used flame-throwers in the last war and again in this—Canadians faced them in Italy—but they had nothing, and have nothing yet, to match the crocodiles and wasps — flame-throwing tanks and Bren-carriers the armies of liberation were able to throw against them in France.

The Canadian contribution has been summed up by Geoffrey Lloyd, secretary for petroleum: "We owe a great debt of gratitude to Gen. McNaughton and the Canadian Army, particularly the engineering corps. The Canadian Army carried out the first practical trials with the new weapon and the Canadian government placed the first large order."

Back in 1941 Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former Canadian Army commander, saw a demonstration of flame-throwers and thought the 1st Canadian Army could use them. The 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Engineers, was given the job of making trials of equipment in co-operation with the petroleum warfare department. In June, 1942, the Canadian warfare experimental unit was formed and given the specific job of producing a carrier-born weapon with a range of at least 100 yards.

Canadian experimentation resulted in improvements in both fuel and mechanism. The Canadian experimental unit proved the principle on which the Wasp works; the latest design has an important modification conceived and designed by Canadian efforts.

Among the men who developed this weapon were Capt. J. M. Patton Hamilton and Lieut. (now Maj.) George Wilson of Kenmore, near Cornwall, Ont., chemical engineer.

IT'S WHAT YOU DON'T SEE THAT COUNTS!

It's the knowledge, skill and experience which go into the building that make a tire great

● All tires, except for tread, look alike: But wise buyers never judge value on superficial appearance alone. They want mileage . . . performance . . . safety. That's why Goodyear is the popular choice in tires.

Goodyear believes, and rightly so, that it isn't so much the materials used, but how those materials are used, that make a tire great.

For example: all tires contain rubber, cotton, steel and other essential ingredients. But Goodyear tires contain the most important ingredients of all . . . the experience, engineering skill, craftsmanship, and research that for more than 28 years have made Goodyears the first choice of tire-wise motorists.

Into and under the tread of every Goodyear tire go the factors that provide the wide margin of superiority in Goodyears . . . the factors that make Goodyears first in mileage . . . first in trouble-free performance . . . first in safety.

Let the experience of the majority be your guide: If you are eligible for new tires use your permit wisely . . . for value-proved Goodyears.

TYPICAL PRODUCTS OF GOODYEAR RESEARCH

Rubberized Life Rafts, developed by Goodyear, save the lives of aircrews when planes are forced down at sea. These rafts inflate in seconds with chemical gas released by a rip cord.

Bullet-puncture-sealing fuel tanks for warplanes are another product of Goodyear research. When a bullet pierces the tank the puncture is automatically sealed, to eliminate the hazard of fire and loss of fuel.

LifeGuards, another Goodyear exclusive development, replace ordinary inner tubes, provide positive blow-out protection. If a blow-out occurs, the LifeGuard carries the load, allows the driver to steer to a safe, sure stop.

Dektred is a new Goodyear "war paint" that provides a flame-proof, non-skid, weather-resistant floor and deck covering for ships, trucks and aeroplanes. It has many potential civilian uses where safe footing is required.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP).—Of all the arguments for and against night baseball, the one likely to carry the most weight is seen in the following note which appeared in the Atlanta constitution last Tuesday morning: "Due to a partial holiday in the constitution's composing room yesterday there is no story on the sports page regarding the Atlanta Crackers-New Orleans double-header last night."....Lew Tendler, the old-time lightweight, has just become a grandfather for the third time....The Nazi radio reports that the Hungarian Swimming Association has barred a number of its best swimmers from competition for refusing to take part in an intra-Axis meet at Bratislava. Trenton Flyers Capture Baseball Title

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—(CP).—The Trenton Flyers won the baseball championship of the R.C.A.F.'s No. 1 Training Command, when they registered an easy 6-2 victory over the Hagersville Cheetahs at Maple Leaf Stadium here last night. The game was played before a regularly scheduled Toronto-Buffalo International fixture.

LAC. Lefty Jack Garton who limited the Cheetahs to five hits, contributed a triple and a single to Trenton's 11-hit attack off FO. Pete Wright. Although he struck out 10 men, Wright contributed to his downfall by tossing three wild pitches with runners on base.

The Flyers, sparked by second-sacker LAC. Paul Raymond and shortstop Cpl. Eddie Geraldi, aided Garton's fine hurling performance with a good defensive showing, featured by three double plays.

Football is returning to St. Thomas, former home of O. R. F. U. intermediate champions, with the entry of a team of the R. C. A. F. Technical Training School in the all-services gridiron loop which opens at St. Thomas Sept. 23 with Hagersville airmen as the visitors. The other opener on that date will be played by Camp Borden and Toronto H.M.C.S. York.

Belleville Marines inflicted a 14-7 defeat on Oshawa at the motor city last night in the first clash of the eastern zone series of the intermediate "A" playdowns of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

After the proposal had been turned down by school officials in both Toronto and Montreal, Toronto's St. Michael's College has tentatively accepted Winnipeg's challenge for an East vs. West High School Football playoff in October at Winnipeg. The easterners would be expected to finance a return game in 1945.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

When Toronto York Brass and Westclox meet here at Riverside Park at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the second game of their second round P.W.S.U. intermediate playdowns it is practically certain that Vera King, the Queen City team's red-headed ace and Isobel Bullock, star hurler of the Big Bens will resume their pitching duel, started in the opening game in Toronto Wednesday night. The Peterborough girl had a distinct edge on her York Brass rival in that argument, allowing only four hits and striking out 11 Brassers but Vera King was not hit hard and the Big Bens had to work for everything they got. Tomorrow's battle should be quite a tussle. The Toronto girls are fighting in the last ditch for they have to win the afternoon game to avoid retirement for the season. They are a classy outfit, despite the fact that they were blanked on their own diamond in the first game and they will be battling every foot of the way in tomorrow's game to stay in the running. The Big Bens will have to come back with another similar display of high-class softball to stop the Toronto threat and the result should be one of the best girls' games of the season.

Westclox made a hit with Toronto fans by the business-like manner in which they proceeded to dispose of York Brass, getting brilliant pitching and playing perfect ball defensively. Bobby Rosenfeld, the Globe and Mail's commentator pays them the following tribute in her Sports Reel column: "Gladys Mortimer, Peterborough president of the Provincial Women's Softball Union can be right proud of the Lift Lock lassies who took Toronto's York Brass into camp at Sunnyside last night. Wearing the Westclox crest the visitors stopped the Olympic Leaguers 3-0 in the opener of a 2-of-3 series and looked solid in doing it. Isobel Bullock, Petes' chucker, rapped the Brass knuckles (Yuk, yuk, yuk) when they reached for hits, allowing but four and whiffing 11 of 'em." Westclox hope to start their regular team against the invaders tomorrow although Jean Castle batting heroine of the first game, may not be available and Aggie Anderson's sore knee might keep her out. The York Brass batting order will likely be the same as in the opener as follows: Marg Schram 3b, Alice Whalley 2b, Mary Lawrence 1b, Marg Robertson ss, Jaye Smerdon cf, Moss Doane rf, Lil Goff lf, Betty Laird catcher and Vera King pitcher. If a third game should be needed it will be staged tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock.

Thirty years ago yesterday was an important date in Peterborough sports history because it marked the final appearance of a Peterborough team in professional baseball. It was the end of a three-year experiment that saw this city striving to operate a club in the Canadian League in the face of manifold difficulties not the least of which was the fact that disregard of the salary limit by the Ottawa club made it difficult for outfits in the smaller cities to carry on. On September 7, 1914, with the First Great War getting under way, the Peterborough club finished its season with a game in Ottawa and that was the swan song of professional ball here. The battle meant nothing to Peterborough, well down at the bottom but Ottawa had to win to take the pennant from London by two percentage points. The Senators won 6 to 2 with Urban Shocker, destined to be one of the greatest spitballers in baseball with the New York Yanks and the St. Louis Browns, holding the Petes to six scattered hits. Iron Man Ken Tracey, one of the most popular tossers on the Peterborough roster was on the firing line for the losers and was cuffed for 14 blows. And that was the sad ending of Peterborough's three years of professional baseball.

Apparently the accent is not on youth in Kingston baseball. The official averages of the Kingston Baseball Association show that the well-seasoned Bob Elliott is the 1944 batting champion with 20 hits in 44 trips to the plate for an average of .452. Other old timers have also been doing quite well by themselves according to the statistics for the veteran catcher Jim Corkey is credited with a mark of .429, Jakey Quinn hit for .419, Jimmy Arniel .417 and Vinny McQuaide .390. Obviously the 1944 brand of pitching must be many degrees below the standard of the palmy days of the Central League for those old birds never hit at that pace years ago when they were in their prime and considering the age handicap they are now carrying their present batting averages are really something. At all events they are keeping baseball alive in the Penitentiary City and for that all friends of the orthodox brand owe the old guard a hearty vote of thanks. Incidentally Maurice Giardino, Peterborough boy playing in the outfield for the Navy team in the Kingston League finished up the season with an average of .250 and Red Jubenville, former Oshawa hardball and softball star who was with an Army team had a mark of .292.

Softball fans are reminded that there will be a battle immediately after the York Brass-Westclox girls' game at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon between the Radar team from Barriefield Camp and the local Military Training Centre in the first fixture of a series for the military sotball championship of No. 3 District. This should be an exciting tussle all the way. The local Soldiers, using the team that represented them in the City League play smart ball, as Peterborough fans know, and they are confident that they can grab off the series from the strong Radar outfit. The latter have been going strong, however and will be tough to beat. All in all it shapes up like a real argument and the first game tomorrow afternoon should be a thriller as the rivals battle to get out in front. Earl Revoir or Pete Procyk will do the twirling for the Peterborough Soldiers. The series will be continued on Sunday afternoon at the diamond at the Military Training Centre and the public is invited. The game is at 3 o'clock and the proceeds of the silver collection to be taken up will be presented to the British War Victims' Fund.

Oshawa Main Office ran into an unexpected defeat before their home fans last evening when they were beaten 14 to 7 by the Belleville Marines in the first game of the Eastern Ontario zone of the O.A.S.A. intermediate A finals. The conquerors of the Plazas had expected a bye after the withdrawal of the Kingston Ordnance team from the provincial competition but the O.A.S.A. authorities sprang a surprise by allowing the Belleville team which had been eliminated by Ordnance to carry on in place of the Kingston Soldiers. And the Quinte team took full advantage of the opportunity by handing Oshawa a lambasting. Oshawa reports say that they hit Harvey Bennett, the Main Office southpaw hard and also did some smart bunting. They broke through for five runs in the third and added four with another big uprising in the fifth while Hunter pitched effective ball or the Belleville outfit. The latter are now favored to take the series which is a sudden change of situation for Oshawa were apparently into the semi-final round two days ago.

Marines Defeat Brinton Girls 3-2

After being defeated three times in a row, Outboard Marines finally managed to toss a monkey-wrench into the Girls' League intermediate championship machine Thursday evening, when they sent Brintons down to a 3 to 2 whipping, in an abbreviated five-inning tilt made necessary because of sporadic downpours of rain. Brintons, who have won the first three games of the four-out-of-seven schedule, needed only one more win to make them champs, but the unexpected victory for the Marines will force the rivals into another battle, to be played early next week.

Helen Mark, pitching for the Marines, played steady ball during the game, fanning four batters in five innings, walking none, and allowing only three hits, one of them scratchy.

Brintons sent Thelma Batley, who usually plays third base, in against the Marines, and although wild in spots, she tossed a swift ball, fanning one, walking two, and allowing three hits.

The three Marine runs were all scored in the first inning, Ollie Smith scoring on Marjorie Smith's sacrifice hit, Vera Mitchell coming in when Maxine Monson's fly to short stop was ignored, each Brinton player expecting someone else to nab it, and Helen Mark ran home when Teddy Mills' swift roller to Gladys Lawson was muffed. This was all the scoring Marines effected, and no other batters were allowed to reach third base; the side retired in order during the last two innings.

Brintons chased one across in the first when Thelma Batley, who struck Brintons' only two clean blows, scored when Marjorie Walling rolled one to Marjorie Smith, and the ball was tossed to first base. The remaining counter registered in the last inning.

Phyllis Corrigan grounded to Marjorie Smith at first base, who made a wild throw to Vera Mitchell and Elsie MacKenzie took advantage of the play to score.

The Marines' runs were scored on three hits and four errors. Brintons' two runs came on three hits and three errors.

The teams:

Ollie Smith, 2b; Vera Mitchell, 1b; Helen Mark, p; Marjorie Smith, 3b; Maxine Monson, rf; Teddy Mills, c; Viola Martin, lf; Edna Smith, cf; Bertha Phillips, ss.

Brintons: Thelma Batley, p; Betty Hamblin, 3b; Marjorie Walling, lf; Norma Blackwell, cf; Marg. Thompson, 2b; Gladys Lawson, ss; Elsie MacKenzie, 1b; Jean Vass, c; Phyllis Corrigan, rf.

Umpires—Herb Payne, plate; Art Barrett at bases.

Buffalo Halts Toronto Drive; Baltimore Wins

By The Associated Press

Baltimore remained in first place in the International League last night as the result of one of the strangest games of the season.

In coming up with a 21-10 decision over Jersey City, the Birds were handed 16 bases on balls and benefited by eight Jersey errors. The comedy started in the ninth when Walter Ockey, who came in to relieve in the eighth, walked 11 men, six consecutively. Baltimore scored 10 runs in the inning on only two hits.

Newark hung onto second place, one percentage point away from Baltimore as they shaded Syracuse 4-3. Joe Page won his own game as he brought Joe Buzas in with the winning run on a long fly.

Buffalo halted Toronto's third-place drive as they went 10 innings to record a 9-7 triumph over the climbing Leafs. Combing three Leaf pitchers for five runs in the 10th, after Toronto had come from behind to tie the score in the last of the ninth, the Bisons pulled 1½ games away from the fourth-placers.

Rochester's Glen Gardner racked up No. 12 as he subdued Montreal, 8-2. Moe Aderholt, just ordered up by Brooklyn, spoiled a shutout for Gardner when he poled a first-inning home run.

Browns Climb Back To 1st Place Tie

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

St. Louis was back on top of the American League today, tied with New York Yankees, after three days in second place, but infield jitters and the onrushing Detroit Tigers gave Manager Luke Sewell no peace of mind.

Detroit's idleness during an open date braked their advance for at least 24 hours but the error column was the Brownies' newest menace. In the last seven games, 14 misplays have been registered against them.

The Brownies almost missed their chance to tie the idle Yanks last night because of early-inning boots against Chicago. Three runs in the ninth inning, two off the bat of Mike Chartrak, who came through with a bases-loaded single, turned the tide 5-4.

Tigers Win

Detroit pulled to within a single game of the deadlocked leaders on Paul (Dizzy) Trout's impressive three-hit shut-out of Cleveland, 3-0, for his 24th victory. His record showed 28 complete games and six shut-outs (tops in the American) for 297 innings of effort.

Roger (Doc) Cramer stretched his amazing string to 24 safe blows in his last 44 times at bat as the Tigers raked Jim Bagby for nine singles and a double in his seven-inning stay.

The National presented an all-night program featured by St. Louis' 14th successive triumph over Chicago, 3-2. The Bruins had a 2-1 edge with two out in the ninth and appeared to be on the way to routing the Cardinals' jinx but couldn't make it. Don Johnson's error let the tying run in and Bob Chipman wild-pitched the big one home.

Bill Voiselle copped his 19th as New York trimmed Boston, 9-3, with the help of Mel Ott's 26th homer and Ernie Lombardi's ninth. Ed Heusser bested Fritz Ostermueller to give Cincinnati a shade over Pittsburgh, 2-1, in the first game of their series for second place. The Phillies came from behind in the late innings to down the Dodgers, 7-5 in their cellar series.

Voiselle now seems a cinch to become the first rookie pitcher to win 20 games in a season since Jim Turner and Lou Fette of the Boston Braves and Cliff Melton of the Giants did it in 1937.

War Department Blocks Baseball

TORONTO, Sept. 8—(CP)—Lloyd C. Douglas, Canadian Commissioner for sandlot baseball, today announced he has received word that the United States War Department has refused permission for the Sherman Field Flyers from Fort Leavenworth, Texas to come to Canada for an international baseball series with the London, Ont., team which won the Canadian sandlot title.

The series was originally scheduled to begin Sept. 15 at London. The Flyers won the U. S. title.

TORONTO, Sept. 8—(CP)—At the risk of being tedious, the text today again will be the familiar one of the National Hockey League presidency or, where is the thrice-blessed man?

Everyone in the country seems to be definitely agog about the whole thing, and will be until the decision is made public.

Connie Smythe of Toronto seems to be gaining strength as a proposed candidate, and Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle reports at least three of the N.H.L. governors are in favor of choosing him—Maj. E. W. Bickle of Toronto, Bill Tobin of Chicago and Lester Patrick of New York. It Detroit's Jim Norris will give his o.k., Lytle adds, Smythe will be as good as in.

All that is assuming the peppery little major will accept the job, which has been offered to him through intermediaries. Connie likes excitement, and might not want to be tied down in the staid presidential chair.

Meanwhile, Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara, himself a nominee, wonders humorously what would happen if Connie gained the seat of authority over the governors, with many of whom he has had rather vitriolic relations betimes.

It would be an interesting experiment at that but O'Meara thinks Connie could rise to the occasion and make the governors like it, "in public at least."

Iron Man, Wooden Horses:

Ben Buffett of New Waterford, N.S., is just as hard on horses as he is on footwear. Buffett is the runner who twice entered the Boston Marathon and twice failed because he wore his shoes out. The other day, just to keep in shape, Buffett ran from New Waterford to Sydney, about 12 miles away, and back. He towed a horse on a halter behind him, changed it at Sydney and ran back with another one. Reports say the second nag was buckling at the knees when Buffett led it home, but the runner wasn't breathing overly hard.

Just No Use:

The fans have been riding Mike Guzzell unmercifully when he umpires girls' softball play-offs in Port Arthur, so he decided to do something about it. Not wanting to flee ignobly, he shaved off his mustache and went on the field in the next game, hoping to assume anonymity in a new identity. He fooled everyone until the seventh inning, when some hawkeye in the bleachers cottoned to his trick and bellowed: "We'll, I'll be hornswaggled if it isn't the same old goon."

Lacrosse Game For Saturday

At King Edward Park Saturday afternoon at 2:30, the first lacrosse game in several years will be played in Peterborough, when Ira Dundas' team of boys from the west and north districts of the city will clash with a team picked from the east and south sections, led by Vert Reynolds.

The game promises to be a real action-packed tilt, and boys interested should turn out to see the proceedings. All those participating are asked to bring with them to the Park all spare pads, and hockey mitts they can round up, as there is quite a shortage of this equipment.

The game is scheduled to start sharply at 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

Canadian Wins Second Honor

LONDON, Sept. 8—(CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. H. W. (Wally) McLeod of Regina has been awarded the D.S.O., it was announced today.

Today's gazetting formalized an award which had been known to the flier's squadron for some weeks. McLeod previously won the D.F.C. and bar.

He is a veteran of more than 250 sorties over England, Malta and France with 21 confirmed victories in his log book, and is Canada's leading fighter ace still on operations.

The 27-year-old flier's complete score since his first operations flight in July, 1941, is 21 destroyed, three probably destroyed and 12 damaged.

German pilots now flying McLeod finds are inferior to those met earlier in the war, he told Canadian Press War Correspondent Louis V. Hunter in a recent interview. Hunter has since returned to Canada.

McLeod believes Canadians have proved themselves to be the best fliers in the world.

"Canadians fly together as a team without the slightest bickering and you couldn't wish for better men. Behind the pilots, the men on the ground work their hearts out on the kites."

Students Trek Hundreds Of Miles To Attend Colleges In China

OMEMEE, Sept. 8—(ENS)—Rev. Howard J. Veals, B.A., B. Paed., a United Church missionary, who with his wife and two daughters, Katherine and Marion, has recently returned from the Far East, has a most interesting story to tell of life in war-torn China. An interview with Rev. Veals has revealed some pertinent information regarding the effect of the war on different aspects of Chinese life, namely, education, health, religion and economics.

Regarding education, Rev. Veals says that taking the whole country together, the number of students is smaller because of the war. In Japanese occupied areas most of the colleges have been closed because there are no students left, whereas in Free China the number of students and colleges is much greater because most of the universities from the occupied areas have moved "bag and baggage" into Free China. There has been a great trek of students, some going one thousand and two thousand miles by rail, bus, foot or any way possible.

Because Chinese society realizes the importance of education, students are exempt from military service. In Free China there is a greater enrolment in all the schools, because even in the midst of war education is definitely a part of the Chinese program of reconstruction.

In West China there has been a great advance in all forms of education opportunities, especially vocational. However, this advance is certainly not so great as it would have been had no war intervened, for a great program for education advancements and for wiping out illiteracy was planned, but when so much money is required for war purposes this has been greatly curtailed.

Too Few Teachers

Just now in China there is an acute shortage of teachers since there are so many other avenues open for young people. Quite a number of girls are now entering the teaching profession, something that until recently was unheard of in China. In county towns the percentage of illiteracy is being greatly cut down, but it is still very high throughout the country.

The war has had a definite effect in health in China. Because of war Western drugs are scarce and are available in much smaller quantities. The West China Union University has opened a department of pharmacy, and a Canadian missionary pharmacist, Dr. E. N. Meuser, has now opened a department in the university for the manufacture of Western drugs from native raw materials. This is helping some to relieve the situation, but is by no means adequate. The worst feature in the health situation is that doctors are pitifully inadequate in numbers. There are, however, steps being taken in the right direction. Health centres, comprising a hospital and dispensary, with limited opportunity for health education, are being opened by the Government in every county town. However, the inadequacy of these will be realized when it is known that in China each county has a population of from one-quarter of a million to one million people. Too, these health centres lack trained people to man them. Some of their personnel are young doctors, as graduation students in medicine must spend at least one year prior to setting up a practice in some form of Government service.

There are very few qualified doctors in the Chinese army. Most of their medical men are male nurses with various degrees of training. Civilians who have been injured in air raids and other enemy action make a heavy strain on the very limited medical services. Incidents of tuberculosis are very high, particularly among students and refugees, and are most often caused by malnutrition.

Going Ahead

As far as the Christian church in China is concerned, the war has caused no reverse. There is in evidence a great friendliness toward the foreign missionaries because they come from abroad, from Allied countries.

The improvement of the feeling of the Chinese people for Canadians, British and Americans has come with the abolition recently of extra territorial rights whereby English and American people in China were responsible only to their own Governments. Now with these "unequal treaties" withdrawn, all who are living in China are subject to Chinese courts of law.

Much of the resentment held against the church was because the Chinese could never be convinced that the missionaries were not sent by their Governments, and because they thought the Christian religion was being forced upon them. Consequently, with the better feeling between the countries, has come a better feeling toward the Christian church. However, this feeling has never gone far enough to precipitate any great flocking into the church.

During the years of war the church has done a great deal. Almost all the relief from abroad goes through church channels, the reason being that the Chinese people trust them. A great deal has been done too in helping wounded soldiers and civilian refugees.

Costs Soar

By far the greatest effect which the war has had on Chinese life is seen in the economic situation. As is well known, China has been suffering from inflation for years, and this has become much more acute since the outbreak of the European war in the fall of 1939.

The inflation index has kept rising. Since 1939 the rise has been approximately ten per cent a month compounded. "When we left China" said Rev. Veals "the index had risen about thirty thousand per cent since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe. Just before we left it rose in one month, from twenty-two thousand per cent to thirty thousand per cent. Of course, prices of local things rise very much more slowly than imported."

In order to keep up with inflation prices, paper money from abroad is constantly flown in to China through India. At present, a one dollar bill is scarcely worth the paper on which it is printed and the smallest denomination which was being printed for circulation when Rev. Veals left hina was twenty dollars. These twenty dollar (or twenty Yuan) bills are slightly smaller than our Canadian bills. On one side they are printed in Chinese and carry a reproduction of a Chinese temple scene — all in brown tones on white. On the reverse side which is coloured in red on white, the printing is in English and "The Central Bank of China" appears across the top over the signatures of the General Manager and the Assistant General Manager. Fifty and One Hundred Dollar bills are also printed.

A few months ago, one of these twenty dollar bills would purchase about one pound of China's staple food—rice; almost three eggs, one egg being worth seven dollars; six inches of native cotton cloth, or about two inches o the imported blue cotton cloth which is used so extensively in China. The official rate of exchange for twenty dollars Chinese money is one dollar Canadian or American.

Inflation Causes

Rev. Veals says that some of the causes of the inflation include: no foreign trade, profiteering, hoarding, and the printing of large quantities of bank notes. The inevitable end of inflation will be the repudiation of the paper money which is, of course, worthless. It will be necessary to sart new currency and a new system. Realizing the worthlessness of the present currency, no one wants to keep it, and consequently ther is a great craze to buy and board things— commodities of any kind. Prior to the war China depended on her coastal cities for manufacturing and now these cities are cut off by enemy action and enemy occupation. Industrial co-operatives have been formed to try to compensate for this loss but this loss but they have proven to be inadequate.

In spite of any and every hardship suffered by the Chinese people, the spirit of resistence is still strong. Prices for labor have risen with the prices of goods; farm produce prices have also risen correspondingly, so the people are able to carry on. Even though more cities of China fall to Japan, they are unlikely to collapse so long as parts of China are still free. Although it may seem to the casual observer that Japan is in possession of a great part of China, there still remains a wide tract of moutains between the occupied areas where the fighting is in progress, and the capital Chungking—mountains that are practically impassable.

Rev. Veals and his family, in leaving China, used almost all means of travel; first by sedan chair, by open truck to Chungking, by aeroplane "across the hump" to Calcutta, by train across India, and by military transport ship to the United States. On board ship they observed boat and fire drill twice a week. They were served two ample meals each day, and their quarters, while crowded, are reasonably comfortable. While most of passengers were, of course, military personnel, there were civilian passengers of several different races — Chinese, Iranian, Indian, American, Canadian, and Australian, a cosmopolitan company.

Some interesting meetings were enjoyed, sharing experiences of the different countries. Both Protestant and Roman Catholic devotional services were held every day and a spirit of good fellowship was noticeable all through the journey. "I received the impression" asserts Rev. Veals "that both the military and the ship personnel were always on the look out for the safety of both the ship and the passengers. It was with a grand feeling of thankfulness that we arrived at the American port to strains of welcome from an American band. And when we crossed the border, Canada looked more beautiful than ever."

To Support Dewey

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8 — (AP) — The Cleveland Plain Dealer will urge in today's editions the election of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York as president, marking only the second time in the paper's 103-year history it has supported a Republican candidate. It advocated election of Wendell L. Willkie in 1940.

ACCUSED—Tyler Kent, a clerk in the U.S. Embassy in London, now serving a 7-year prison sentence imposed in England in 1940, has been officially charged by the U.S. State Department with having "displayed disregard for decency and honor so far as his obligations towards the U.S. are concerned." Kent was convicted with an alleged pro-Nazi accomplice for having delivered confidential information to German agents.

FISH CONSIGNMENT

The Department of Game and Fisheries Thursday deposited a large consignment of bass fry in Mississauga, Ketchecum, Gold, Eagle, Bottle and Deer Lakes, the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association announced today.

MEAN THIEF

Another nominee for the "meanest thief in the world" title is the person who stole the Kinsmen's Milk for Britain Fund bottle from Deyell's Book Store, Saturday. The little bottle, containing donations from customers to buy milk for British children, was located near the cash register, and disappeared Saturday.

EXPLANATION

Questions put to the Examiner as to why Gent and Reims are to be found in the news columns without the usual "h" after the first letter, may be explained that according to the new National Geographic Society spelling, the "h" has been dropped in both place-words, and news agencies throughout the world have adopted the shorter spelling.

NOTIFY EXAMINER.

Peterborough families receiving notices about casualties in the armed forces, are asked to get in touch with the Examiner as soon as possible. The paper likes to publish them as soon as word arrives and if the families delay, it means that they are several days late appearing. Official reports from the War Office are six to eight weeks late in appearing.

SUGGESTION AWARDS.

Of the $220 recently distributed among 32 employees of the Canadian General Electric Company as suggestion awards, the largest individual cheque was for $40 to Charles W. Graham of the steamfitters' department; $35 each to T. J. Byers and J. Houghton; $25 to R. F. Pearson; $15 to C. J. Cadd and smaller sums down to $2 to the others.

PICTURES AVAILABLE.

The Examiner has received from the Public Relations several group pictures which include Peterborough boys. Should relatives of the following boys wish to get these pictures they can have them by calling at the editorial department of The Examiner: Driver Bill Anderson with a group of officers and men attached to a Canadian Divisional Headquarters in France; Pilot Officer L. S. Oliver of Bobcaygeon; Pte. S. Bebee of Peterborough arriving in Kingston; Gnr. E. R. Norrad of Royal Canadian Artillery and Flying Officer F. D. Jackman of Stirling.

FLORAL NOTE.

More 'Heavenly Blue' morning glories are twining about the "cabin doors" in the Wartime Housing areas, proportionately at least, than in all the rest of the city. There is one little observation from a visit to the four sections of the city in which these houses were erected for wartime workers. It really is surprising, the extent of this blooming these September days. And if the morning glory vines framing the front door are an external sign of interior domestic grace, households must be pervaded with harmony above the average of the city. Most of them are seen at Burnham's Point and Jackson Park.

Canton Contractor Kawartha Booster

Howard N. Rashong, general contractor of Canton, Ohio, is back again at Burleigh Falls, his favorite fishing haunt for the past twenty years. Along with Mrs. Rashong, he has been having fairly good success at fishing. The first day out they got three maskinonge, and the story of the landing of these three and the couple of others which got away will be the talk around Canton for the next year. In fact, friends of Mr. Rashong claim he takes six months after returning from Canada to tell about his fishing trip and the next six months preparing to come to Canada again. Mr. Rashong is one of the many boosters that the Kawartha district has in Ohio, and his friends claim that nothing can curb his tales of the Kawarthas and fishing.

Hunter St. Girls Raise $11 Aid To Robot Victms

Opportunity knocks, and to all who take advantage there would seem to be some measure of credit due, for there are still some whose good intentions like those symbolized by the story of Felix in the Good Book, always get just to the brink, and then defer putting them into effect until a more convenient season which sometimes never arrives.

This may be true of some who have thought of the distress occasioned to people in the British Isles by enemy air raids, and of late the robot bomb attacks, and mentally have said "I must do something to help" but never really seemed to get around to the point of actually taking advantage of this glorious opportunity for doing their fellow creatures the good that lays in their power at that time.

During the long summer vacation period that school children have just recently passed through, it can be said to the credit of some of these youngsters that they utilized the time and opportunity that was then theirs, to take a hand in this blessed work of doing good for others through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, a further instance of which is seen through another contribution appearing to the credit of four young girls who held a bazaar last Saturday at 69 Hunter street East.

Adele Bacon, Velma Adamson, Roselyn and Marilyn McInroy are the quartet of young girls who undertook this enterprise as one of the closing acts of the summer vacation, and they were assisted by Jack Bacon, their offerings of a varied nature having been donated by neighbors and merchants, from which the nice sum of $11.24 was raised and credited in their name today. These young folk would herewith express their thanks for the assistance they received in making their venture a success.

A short while ago, a ladies club in Cavan sent in a donation, and this is now followed by another for $5.00, which this time comes from the Stitch and Chatter Club of the same township, through June Miller their treasurer.

There have been numerous examples where some one person's misfortune has brought some good to others, which no doubt has assisted in coining the expression that "Good often comes out of evil." Not so long ago, a lady had an unfortunate accident which necessitated a cast being placed on her wrist, and a number of well wishers paid small sums to inscribe their names thereon, from which the fund has now received the sum of $3.00, which is listed under the acknowledgement of "An orphan of the storm."

Kaleidoscopes to Help

At the approach of the Christmas season for the last three years, the Roy Powell family has supplied the fund with a number of Kaleidoscopes, the proceeds of the sale of which have all come into the fund, and assisted in quite a substantial manner, they having found a very ready sale indeed. Repeating their efforts of former years, this same family has again started to supply some more of these creations which make such excellent gifts for children, and these may now be procured at the Examiner office at a cost of 25 cents each.

Lions Defeat St. Peter's Team

Riverside Lions defeated St. Peter's in a snappy exhibition of baseball at Riverside Park Thursday evening by 5 to 3.

The youngsters are showing a lot of style in playing the orthodox game and are doing their part in bringing baseball back.

Lions got away winging in last night's game by chasing two runs across in the first inning, with the Saints evening up with a pair in the last of the second. Lions took the lead again with a single run in the third and once more St. Peter's tied it in the next frame.

The Riverside outfit finally went in front again in the sixth when two markers were scored on a wild throw to third and that proved to be the winning margin for there was no more scoring.

There will be a baseball practice at Riverside Park tonight at 6 o'clock and all boys 14 to 18 interested in baseball are invited to get in touch with Ray Fitzgerald, by dialing 3053 between 5 and 6 o'clock.

Port Hope Flier Dies From Polio Attack

A cousin of Miss Margaret Gray, who lives at the Y.W.C.A. and well-known in Peterborough and district, LAC Lloyd Gray Dunbar, RCAF, died Monday at the Riverside Isolation Hospital in Toronto.

Prior to joining the R.C.A.F. he was employed by the Mathews Conveyor Co., Ltd. of Port Hope. He enlisted in September 1943 and trained at Hamilton, Belleville Fingal and Crumlin, and in two weeks he would have received his bombadier-wing.

Suddenly stricken with poliomyolitis he was flown by Anson bomber to Toronto on August 26, but in spite of the efforts of medical science he died two days later.

A funeral service was held recently at Welcome cemetery with an Airforce Flight from Trenton in attendance, the airmen accompanied by Padre Flight Lieut. A. Namino formed ranks at his parents' home and with an R.C.A.F. truck which carried the flag draped casket surrounded by flowers marched to the cemetery where a full military and Masonic service was held with a firing squad, Last Post and Reveille.

Golf Playoffs Set For Next Sunday

Directors of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club are anxiously scanning weather reports in anticipation that Championship Day, September 10, will dawn warm and sunny and so provide an excellent background for the final matches in many of the club tournaments.

It was originally hoped that it would be possible to hold the finals of all tournaments this coming Sunday, but a couple of competitors have preved to be so keen that they now find themselves in the final brackets of more than one tournament. So, as far as possible the following schedule will apply.

Milf Hardill will play Heck Thompson in the finals of the Westclox Trophy on Saturday afternoon, September 9.

Rev. George Kelly must play W. E. Lloyd in the finals of the MacDonald Trophy. This match play tournament in which no handicaps will be used and stymies must be played is usually taken to represent the second flight club championship.

Bob Abbott and Miss M. Abbott will meet Stan McBride and Mrs. J. M. Watson Saturday afternoon for the right to advance into the final round of the C. G. Graham Trophy, which will be played Sunday afternoon against the winner of a Saturday afternoon match between Mr. and Mrs. John McKercher and Russel Kitchen with Miss M. Hatton.

In the event of Mr. Abbott being eliminated from the C. G. Graham Trophy on Saturday afternoon, he will tee off for the Club Championship against last year's winner, Stan Payne, in a 36-hole match play tournament, 18 holes of which will be played Sunday morning and the other 18 holes in the afternoon.

In the consolation round of the mixed two-ball foursome tournament Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Degraw will play Sunday afternoon against Heck Thompson and Miss I. Bullock for the R. R. Faryon prize.

The finalists for the Stratton Trophy are Dr. C. C. Cragg and Gordon Whatman, and this interesting match will also be played on Sunday afternoon.

So many contestants in the President's Prize Tournament are engaged in other battles that it is impossible to play this tournament Sunday afternoon.

Members of the Ladies' Division are arranging with the club stewardess, Mrs. Duvall, that a light lunch be served on Sunday afternoon commencing about 3 o'clock and when winners are determined in the mixed two-ball foursome tournament the presentation of these prizes will be made.

All competitors are urged to be on hand in time to start as soon after noon hour as possible and it is hoped that many club members will be on hand to watch their friends in action.

Mrs. C. G. Graham or Mrs. J. H. Vernor request that all ladies who wish tea Sunday afternoon advise them or Mrs. Duvall as soon as possible.

If sufficient mixed team are on hand Sunday afternoon another mixed two-ball foursome sweepstake will be organized.

Dog Shooting Case Adjourned 10 Days

Charged with shooting a dog owned by Thos. E. Curvin, in the South Beach district in June last, Vincent Dunford, Douro township, pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned before Magisarate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning. Dunford was defended by John A. Bradshaw and the case was adjourned until September 18.

Dorothy Whitmore, 16, charged with the theft of a bicycle from Betty McMahon, also was defended by John A. Bradshaw and there was an adjournment in that case as well.

D. L. Faucett, who pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor, was fined $20 and $2.50 costs. The accused said the beer had been given him by an American tourist.

Smoke Inhaled Impairs Sight

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8.—(AP).—Inhalding of the smoke of even one cigaret, the Aero Medical Association of the United States was told yesterday, impairs the keen eyesight needed at night by military fliers.

The sight loss is caused by carbon monoxide from the burning tip. This loss is nothing likely to be noticed in normal life, nor does it have any known bad effects on health. But the impairment is important to night-fighting aviators working at the threshold of vision, the point where they can just barely discern enemies or objectives.

The report was made by Doctors R. A. McFarland, M. P. Halperin and J. I. Niven of Harvard University.

Their investigation showed that inhaling three cigarets is equivalent to the loss of vision which comes at about 8,000 feet altitude. The loss of sight sensitivity at this height doesn't bother air passengers. But is is so important in war to avoid the slight change that military aviators at night breathe pure oxygen from the ground up, the oxygen being a complete antidote.

L-Cpl. "Bud" Collins Wounded In Italy

Lady Luck who has smiled on L-Cpl. Bobby (Bud) Collins since the day he enlisted five years ago, one of the first from this district, deserted him on August 28, when he was slightly wounded. He had been serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy.

Son of Joseph Collins and the late Mr. Collins, 262 Munroe avenue. L-Cpl. Collins had just finished school when he went to Picton to enlist after war broke out in 1939. He went overseas with the H. and P. E. Regiment in December of 1939 and has fought in all the battles without a scratch until this time.

OBITUARIES

MRS. FRANCES ADELINE EMMERSON

The funeral was held recently for Frances Adeline Weldon, 210 Prince street, widow of the late James G. Emmerson, who passed away after a brief illness in Nicholls Hospital recently, in her 73rd year.

Mrs. Emmerson was born in Mariposa Township, and before coming to Peterborough resided for some time in Lindsay and Bowmanville. She was a devout member of the United Church, and took a great interest in her family, all of whom survive to mourn her loss: Four daughters, Mrs. J. V. Wilson, 210 Prince street; Mrs. Robert Byers, Peterborough; Mrs. G. K. Hardy, of Port Hope, and Mrs. G. H. Thomas, of Brighton. Also surviving are two sons: Glen, of Buffalo, and John, with the R.C.A.F. at Dunnville; two sisters, Mrs. Lou Tribe, of Saskatchewan, and Miss Loretta Weldon, of Lindsay; and three brothers, George, of Oakwood; Arthur, of Peterborough, and Robert, of Orillia.

Interment was in Oakwood Cemetery, and pallbearers were Herbert, Lloyd, Milton and Clark Weldon, Howard Hardy and Fred Reid.

GEORGE FROST.

Stricken while on his way to work, George Frost, 255 Evelyn street, Toronto, formerly of Otonabee and Peterborough, died suddenly Thursday. He was in his 69th year.

Born and educated in Otonabee, Mr. Frost lived in Peterborough for several years. In Toronto, he was employed by the Massey Harris Company, and attended the United church.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Frost, he is the widower of the late Letitia Meharry. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Harry James, at home, two sons, Norman and Ernest, both of Toronto, two sisters, Mrs. Edward McGregor, of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Arthur Holden, of Park street, Peterborough, and three brothers, Charles of Peterborough, Albert and Ralph, both in the United States.

Another brother, Elmer, taught school in Peterborough before passing away last January.

The funeral will be Saturday afternoon, from his late residence, 255 Evelyn street. No other information about the funeral is available as yet.

Recruit Corps To Canvass For New Centre

The recruiting of canvassing corps for the approaching campaign to raise $100,000 by public subscription for the Memorial Centre for recreation and health is reported to be nearly completed.

Those who have been chosen for the work allotted to the "special names committee" are as follows, with Ross L. Dobbin as chairman: Robert Abbott, R. Vern Dawson, C. S. Cummer, O. A. DeGraw, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., Hubert Eastwood, Reg. R. Faryon, Jack L. Gillespie, Alderman R. M. Glover, Fred Hills, Gordon H. Munro, T. A. Mackay, Ian F. McRae, John R. Marshall, D. G. H. Melton, W. H. Richardson, G. H. Thompson, J. A. Jebson; Frank Hughes and Everett L. Sackville.

That is about as enterprising and persuasive a canvassing crew as could be assembled for the special names detail—potentially, at any rate, and it is assumed that everybody is going into this Health Centre project without pulling any punches or picking soft spots and generally dodging the tougher assignments.

John E. Keyes, chairman of the finance committee in this drive, has prepared the name and address of every householder in the city—in fact everybody, householder or otherwise. It is a local Domesday Book; and everybody is going to be solicited for a contribution to this ambitious project which will become not only an immediate public asset but an investment in the city's future parks development.

Retail Division

The retail division has Ed Riley for chairman, and here are his helpers: Bob Everett, Dennis Fitzgerald, Vern Selkirk, George Hildebrand, Art Cauley, Herb Jamison, Vic Gallon, G. H. Sheir, Jack Curtis, Vic Tully, Norm Hamley, W. J. (Bill) Hamilton, Charlie Elliott, M. Levine and E. G. Pridham.

War Bond Training

Obviously the Community Centre general committee is about to employ the experience and training in the sale of Victory Bonds to this community effort of a Recreation and Health Centre. And there are some hard-bitten canvassers in both those groups; they have been through all kinds of encounters during the five years of Victory Loan campaigning.

It is understood that the names of other groups of canvassers will be published from time to time through the present preliminary stage of getting the troops ready for the voluntary assignment of collecting $100,000 from the public-spirited people of Peterborough who know by this time that a Memorial to war service and sacrifice should preferably be something practical and available to everybody through the usefulness of parks, the attraction of their beauty, and in the many uses of the Memorial Centre.

Worker Shortage

TORONTO, Sept. 8—(CP)—J. W. Temple, manager of the National Selective Service office here, said last night Toronto now faces the "most acute" manpower shortage since Selective Service was set up in 1942 with almost 18,000 men and women needed immediately for war work and essential jobs.

SERVING IN ITALY—Pte. Murliland Knott, Curve Lake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Knott, is serving with an infantry unit in Italy. The 19-year-old soldier, whose father was with the 93rd Regiment in the last war, and served 23 months in France, formerly worked in the Wire Department of C.G.E. He enlisted in November, 1943.

AT KITCHENER—Pte. Helen Smith, daughter of Mrs. Annie Smith, 468 Reid street, is stationed at Kitchener with the C.W.A.C. where she is taking a clerk's course. Prior to enlisting she was employed at the C.G.E. Two brothers are overseas, Alex. Smith, with the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, and Stewart Smith, with the S.D. and H. Highlanders, in France.

Quaker Workers Get Wage Bonus

Employees of the Quaker Oats Company of Canada received by mail on Wednesday a wage bonus of 10.6 per cent of their earnings for the last twelve months.

This annual bonus plan was adopted by the company in 1936. It is based on the net earnings of the company after provision has been made for payments on the preferred stock, but the amount set aside for the employees' bonus takes precedence over dividends on the common stock and also taxes.

This sharing of company earnings arrives this year at a turn of the season when obviously employees are giving thought to their purchase of coal for the fall and winter, one item of household expense that will be amply covered for the staff of the Quaker Oats.

Cpl. Leo O'Connor Killed In Action

During the years he was a clerk in Shannon's Drug Store, he made a host of friends. His younger brother, Thomas, is now serving in Italy, while his eldest brother, Earl, is a veteran of the First World War. Before going overseas, Cpl. O'Connor, who was a faithful and devout member of the Sacred Heart church, was in turn altar boy and secretary of the Holy Name Society.

Gagnon-Grady Vows Solemnized

A pretty wedding took place at Sacred Heart Church Tuesday at nine o'clock when Agnes Elizabeth Grady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Grady, and Joseph Leo Gagnon, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Gagnon, St. Prosper, Quebec, were united in marriage. Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiated, with Mr. Armstrong at the organ and Mrs. C. Connelly as soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of duchess satin made on torso lines, with sweetheart neckline. Her white tulle fingertip veil was caught with white flowers and she carried a nosegay of pink roses.

Her sister, Mrs. Roy Bacon, matron of honor, was gowned in long white sheer with tight waist and lace yoke. Her headdress was a shoulder-length pink veil, caught with pink flowers. The groom's brother, Maurice Gagnon, was best man and the ushers were Pilot Officer Billy Grady and Roy Bacon.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club where the bride's mother received, assisted by the groom's sister, Miss Claire Gagnon.

The couple left for a trip to Northern Ontario. For travelling the bride wore a gold wool dress, brown topcoat and matching accessories. On their return they will live at St. Genevieve de Batiscan, Quebec.

Grape Jams and Jellies Are Favorites in Mot Homes

TIME TO DO YOUR GRAPES.

Many Canadian women are finding themselves right now, with more empty jars in their jam cupboards than usually at this time of year. For some have deliberately put off their jam and jelly making, to save sugar for the later fruits; and some because of lack of berries and other early favorites, have found previous jamming and jellying impossible.

Fortunately, the grape crop is a good one this year—and fortunately, grape jam and jelly are prime favories in most Canadian homes. Your family will scarcely miss the other familiars, so long as there's lots of grape jelly and jam on hand.

Whether or not it's your usual plan, it will be well this year to do down not just one, but several batches of grape jam and jelly. Will it all be of the same kind? Or will you work for greater variety, by making not only jam and jelly, but Grape Butter and Marmalade and Conserve as well.

Whatever you may decide, you'll appreciate the speed and assurance of recipes like those given below. The use of commercial pectin (a concentrate of the pectin naturally present in fruits, and necessary to make a 'jell') shortens boiling time and makes for consistent success, whether or not the fruit is one that naturally jells well and easily itself.

In case the proportion of sugar seems high to you, an explanation might be in order. To set properly, the boiled jam or jelly must have certain definte proportions of sugar and pectin. Concentration of the juice with less sugar, by long boiling without added pectin, ultimately gives the same proportion of sugar and pectin as when more sugar and added pectin are used. And decreased boiling time due to the addition of pectin results in more jars of jam or jelly results in more jars of fruit.

COMBINATION GRAPE JELLY AND GRAPE BUTTER.

To prepare fruit, stem about 5 pounds (a little over 4 pounds) thoroughly washed ripe blue grape. Crush thoroughly. Add ½ cup water, cover and simmer for 5 minutes or until very soft. Separate the juice from the pulp by turning the hot fruit into a 2-quart sieve.

For Jelly: Drip or press enough of the juice through a double square of cheesecloth to give 4 cups of the strained grape juice.

For Butter: Rub the grapes from which the juice has drained, through a sieve, to obtain 4½ cups pulp. Use the excess juice or water if necessary, to fill up the last cup.

RIPE GRAPE JELLY.

4 cups (2 pounds) juice.
7½ cups (3¼ pounds) sugar.
½ bottle liquid pectin.

Measure juice and sugar into a large saucepan and mix well. Gring to boil over strongest possible direct heat, stirring constantly. At once stir in pectin, and bring again to a full rolling boil; then boil hard for ½ minute. Remove from heat and skim. Pour quickly into hot sterilized jars. Cover at once with a firm of hot paraffin, ⅛ inch thick. When sold, cover or tie down. Makes about 11 glasses of jelly.

RIPE GRAPE BUTTER.

4½ cups (2¼ pounds) prepared pulp.
7 cups (3 pounds) sugar.
½ bottle liquid pectin.

Measure sugar and prepared grape pulp into a large bottle. Mix well. Bring to a full rolling boil over strongest possible direct heat. Stir constantly before and during boiling. Boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir in pectin. Pour quickly into hot sterilized jars. Cover at once with a film of paraffin, ⅛ inch thick. When cold, cover or tie down. Recipe makes about 11 glasses of Grape Butter.

FRESH GRAPE JAM

For flavor fresh as grapes off the vine, try this quick-and-easy method for jam. The recipe makes about 11 glasses of grand Grape Jam—six fluid ounces each.

4½ cups (2¾ pounds) prepared fruit; 7 cups (3 pounds) sugar; ½ bottle liquid pectin.

To prepare fruit, wash about 3 pounds (a little less than 3 quarts) fully ripe grapes. Slip skins from pulp, and simmer the pulp, covered, for 5 minutes. Sieve to remove the seeds. Cut skins fine or put through a food chopper. Combine pulp and skins.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into a large kettle, making up measure of fruit with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to full rolling boil over strongest possible direct heat. Stir constantly before and during boiling. Boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir in pectin. Pour quickly into hot sterilized jars. Cover at once with a film of hot paraffin, ⅛ inch thick. When cold, cover or tie down and store in a cool dark place.

NOTE: This recipe may be made up with sweep grapes of the Malaga type, or with wild grapes. Stem, crush, and simmer 30 minutes with ½ cup water added. Sieve and measure. Use 4 cups prepared fruit, and add the juice of 2 lemons.

SPICED GRAPE JELLY

A great favorite for serving with meats both hot nad cold, this Spiced Grape Jelly suggests the use of powdered spices. However, you may if you prefer use your own choice of stick cinnamon, whole allspice, whole cloves, etc.—in which case they should be simmered with the crushed fruit, before dripping the juice.

4 cups (2 pounds) prepared grape juice; 7 cups (3 pounds) sugar; ½ bottle liquid pectin.

To prepare juice, wash, stem and crush thoroughly 3 pounds (about 2¾ quarts) fully ripe grapes. Add ½ cup cider vinegar, 1 teaspoon powdered cloves and 2 teaspoons powdered cinnamon. Bring to boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag or double square of cheesecloth and squeeze out juice.

Measure juice and sugar into a large saucepan and mix thoroughly. Bring mixture to full rolling boil over strongest possible direct heat, stirring constantly. Immediately stir in liquid pectin. Bring again to full rolling boil and boil hard for ½ minute. Remove from heat, skim, and pour quickly into hot sterilized jars. Cover at once with a film of paraffin, ¼ inch thick. When cold, cover or tie down and store in a cool dark place. Recipe makes about 11 glasses of jelly.

Alexius English Weds Zeta Fitzpatrick

A pretty wedding was solemned recently in St. Paul's Church, Norwood, by Father C. J. Carroll, when Mary Zita Fitzpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick, Hastings, was united in marriage with Alexius English, son of Mrs. Edward English and the late Mr. English. The nuptial mass was served by Francis Fitzpatrick, brother of the bride, and Robert Anderson of Nelson, B.C., both students of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto. The church was decorated with autumn flowers and the music was played by Mrs. C. Coughlin. Mrs. D. Brennan sang "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white sheer over satin with sweetheart neckline, full bouffant skirt with insets of suede lace, and tiny self-covered buttons from neck to waist at the back. Her veil of silk net was caught with roses and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Miss Marie Fitzpatrick, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and was frocked in sapphire chiffon, with shirred neckline and waist, and long full sleeves, shirred at the wrists. Her matching shoulder-length veil was caught with a wreath of blue flowers and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. The best man was Clem English, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received wearing a two-piece dress of navy crepe and matching accessories and a corsage of gladioli. The groom's mother, who also received, was gowned in a two-piece navy crepe dress with matching accessories and a corsage of gladioli.

Later the couple left for a trip to Toronto and Niagara, the bride wearing a Helena Green dressmaker suit, with brown accessories. On their return, they will reside on the groom's farm at Norwood.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver, to the bridesmaid a gold cross, and to the groomsman, a leather billfold.

For Saturday, September 9

THE LUNAR aspects for this day indicate sudden upheavals, reversals, underhand as well as surface connivances, confusions and enmities. It is probable that such antagonism or opposition may come from high or influential persons who may best be placated by finesse, tact or strategies. Behind the scenes factors for wire pulling and upsets should be taken in hand with firmness. Use particular precautions as to writings, signatures and speech. Such vigilance likewise obtains in social, domestic and affectional relations.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for an alert and vigilant care of underhand ond above board opposition, antago-[illegible] and conflict, especially in dealings with those in place and power. Be cautious with all documents, agreements and writings, and guard speech against distortion and misconstruction.

Sudden uprooting seems imminent, with reversals of fortune, betrayals and ill advised associations. Similar underminings may affect private relations, social, affectional or professional. Keep wary and discreet in all affiliations.

A child born on this day may have many ups and downs in its fortunes, being subject to undercover attacks, its own laxities, affecting its funds, its nervous state and its social status. Early training and discipline may help its integrity and prudence.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

We will give some recipes today for pickles, relishes and jellies, the process is called pickling. Both fruits and vegetables may be pickled whole or in halves, quarters or slices. Cucumbers, tomatoes, onions beets, carrots, cauliflower and cabbage, peaches, pears and grapes are the vegetables and fruits most often preserved by pickling. Following are some recipes that are delicious when made.

Grape Catchup

4 pounds grapes (blue), 2 pounds sugar, 1 pint vinegar, 2 teaspoons cloves, 2 teaspoons all-spice, 2 tablespoons cinnamon. Wash the grapes and remove them from the stems Place them in a pan and steam them without water, until they are soft. Put the fruit through a sieve, add the other ingredients and simmer the mixture for 20 minutes. Seal in hot jars.

Corn Relish

18 ears sweet corn, 1 small cabbage, 1 cup chopped celery, 4 onions, 3 large green peppers, 1 quart vinegar, 3 cups brown sugar, ½ cup salt, 3 tablespoons mustard. Blanch the corn for two minutes and cut the kernels from the ear. Chop the cabbage, celery, onions and peppers. Combine all the ingredients; and cook until the vegetables are tender, 25 to 30 minutes. Seal in hot jars.

Piccalilli

1 quart green tomatoes, 1 head celery, 2 sweet red peppers, 2 sweet green peppers, 2 large mild onions, 1 small head cabbage, ½ cup salt, 3 cups vinegar, 1 pound brown sugar, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon tumeric. Chop the vegetables, cover with salt and let stand over night. In the morning drain and press in a cloth to remove all the liquid possible. Add the vinegar, sugar and spices and simmer until clear. Seal in hot jars.

Spiced Plums

4 quarts plums, 3 pounds sugar, 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, 1 pint vinegar, 1 tablespoon cloves, 1 tablespoon allspice. Make a syrup of the vinegar, sugar and spices. Boil for five minutes. Prick each plum with a fork and pour the boiling syrup over the fruit. Let the whole stand for three days, then skim out the plums, boil down the syrup until quite thick, add the plums and heat to boiling point. Seal in hot jars.

These are lovely to serve with cold meat or fowl.

GIRL'S APPEAL NATURAL ASSET

Mother Can Spoil It, Or She Can By Highbrow Mien, Excessive Demands on By Friends

DEAR MISS DIX: Why is it that one girl will have a great many men friends who shower her with expensive gifts and attentions and who even has the faculty of causing a middle-aged married man to fall in live with her, while most girls receive only an average amount of attention, and some girls none at all?

M. E. MC

ANSWER: It is primarily a matter of sex attraction. Some girls have it and others don't, and there is nothing that anybody can do about it. Yet while it is true that if Nature didn't put the come-hither look in a girl's eyes she can't wish it there for herself, still there are lots of reasons why girls who should be in circulation get left on the shelf. The chief of these is Mother. A girl's popularity depends just as much upon mother as it does upon herself.

Mother can shoo off the boys, or she can tow them into the living room. If Mother writes welcome on the doormat and makes things nice and jolly and friendly when the boys come and gives them the run of the ice box, they play a return engagement. But if, when a boy calls of Marybelle, she acts as if he had come to steal the silver, it is goodnight for good when he departs.

Girls can also scare boys off by being too highbrow and throwing their college degrees into high school boys' teeth. Or by demanding too much when a boy takes them out. Or by being too hard to please. Or by being too anxious for attention.

A girl who isn't a natural born wow has to develop a good sales technique if she expects to have plenty of boy friends.

Girl Must Consider Parents' Age

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I are elderly people in our sixties. We worked hard and made many sacrifices to rear and educate our four daughters and to give them every advantage that we could. All of them are married now. The husband of one of them is about to be sent overseas and she wants to come to us and bring the baby for the duration. We feel that it would be very hard on us to have them, as the baby cries a lot and she is fond of gaiety and would have young people in and out all the time.

I could stand it if I had to, but my husband is not well, and if he cannot get his rest he will not be able to do the work that he has to do as a pattern-maker. Our daughter is pleasantly situated in a house with people she knows. Woult it be too unkind to tell her to keep her own home?

DISTRESSED MOTHER

ANSWER: I think you would be exactly right to tell you daughter that you and her father are old and need rest and quiet, and that you are not able to stand a baby in the house. To the on-looker it seems shockingly selfish the way so many young wives have broken up their homes and descended upon upon their parents, with their children, to be taken care of during the war. The only explanation seems to be that the young mothers think it is a privilege for Grandma and Grandpa to listen to the baby howl and spend their time and substance taking care of him.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I are unxious to adopt a baby girl, but our friends and relatives tell us we are crazy and that a baby will bring us trouble that we have never known, and that when it grows up it will not respect us because it was an adopted child and not our own, and that it may turn out badly. What shall we do?

MRS. E. I.

ANSWER: Don't listen to your friends. Adopt the baby if you want one. If you tried to please all of your friends and relatives, you would never do anything because they would never agree on a line of action. And inasmuch as you can't please them, please yourself. It is a grand and noble thing to give a little motherless, nameless child a place in the sun.

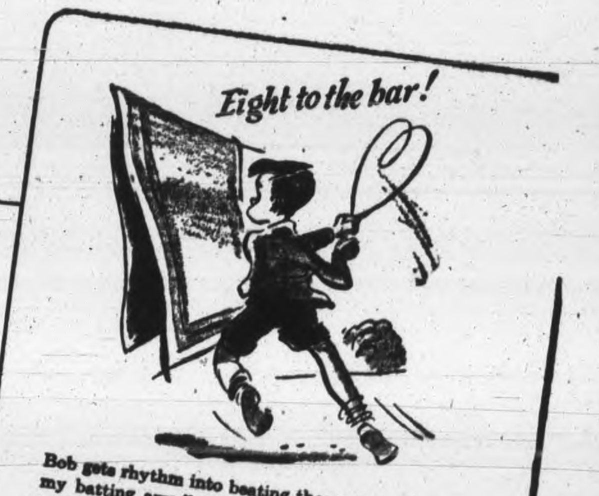
Home Harmony!

THE TWEEDS! A real reporting team — Jean writing, Tommy drawing. They collect interesting tidbits about home-life in Canada—bring you closer to your neighbours in the East and in the West. This time, they're introducing the Forests of Montreal.

It really flies when Helen gets to work. "I always help Mummy when she's cleaning up. And I'm teaching my dollies to keep house, too." Helen is quite the little mother—nothing but the best for her babies, so she always gives them Kellogg's Corn Flakes for breakfast, and often for lunch or before bed, too. "Just like Mummy does for me."



Bob gets rhythm into beating those rugs. "Good for my batting arm," he explained. "And the way he eats!" his mother exclaimed. "One bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes is never enough. But they're easy to digest and easy on my purse so I let him go to it. And, with Kellogg's Corn Flakes there are no messy pots or pans to be washed up."

Just a peek—Mr. Forest simply had to see what was cooking. "Hamburg steak!" he gloated. "Just let me get my teeth into that!" His wife knows the way to a man's heart—"Via Kellogg's" she smiled. "The family really enjoy meat dishes made with Kellogg's Corn Flakes—they give added flavour."

Aren't the lads enjoying an evening out? The Forests entertain the Air Force regularly. "A lot of these boys haven't been home for months," said Mrs. Forest. "It helps a bit when we include them in our family circle." It helps a lot. And this is something we can all do—a real contribution to the happiness and well-being of other mothers' sons.

FINALE IN FLAVOUR! The last word in tastiness—Kellogg's Corn Flakes! They're favourites in most Canadian homes because they're so good—and because they're so easy to prepare. Ready in 30 seconds flat! Keep Kellogg's Corn Flakes in your kitchen always—handy for a meal at any time. When you order your groceries today, get a couple of packages—large or regular size. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Save time...save work...save fuel!

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 8 — (CP) — Canadian poultrymen must organize if they expect to compete with poultry-producing nations in the post-war world, J. S. Hyde, Dundas, Ont., president of the Canadian Baby Chick Association Incorporated, said here yesterday at the closing session of the 20th annual meeting of the organization.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By J. R. Scott

WEST WALL NOW GERMANY'S DEFENCE—Three Allied armies are reported deploying for an assault on the Siegfried line, and Karlsruhe and Ludwigshaven, two of the principal communications centres behind that line opposite the Americans 3rd Army concentrated between Metz and Nancy, have been heavily bombed, by British and American air forces. The Maginot Line defence area, now cracked, by the Allied armies, is shown shaded on the above map. East of this area may be seen the defence positions of the German West Wall, also shaded on the map.

Captured Nazi Admits War Lost

By JOHN F. CHESTER

A BRITISH ARMY HOSPITAL NEAR LONDON, Sept. 8—(AP)—The latest member of the German General Staff in France to be brought to England says that Germany has lost the war.

There were indications that most of the other members of the German staff felt the same way after the breakfast surprise party given them by British-operated German tanks which reached Amiens ahead of schedule.

Lying on a stretcher on the floor of an ambulance which was taking five of us to a hospital ship, Col. Baron von Gleicher said "Our hope is that English and American troops reach Germany before the Russians to assume protective control."

During the four-hour ambulance journey, von Gleicher, until recently commander of a panzer group, also said:

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel definitely is alive because he had a personal conference with him in a German hospital 10 days before von Gleicher himself was wounded and captured at Amiens.

Field Marshal Gunther von Kluge died of a heart attack on a train near Metz after he had been relieved of his command because of the failure and subsequent destruction of his 10th Army.

A good part of the German General Staff in France was having a before-dawn breakfast in Amiens when the British armored column broke in upon them. Von Gleicher did not know the fate of the others but believed at least one high general was captured.

2 More Regiments Named In France

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 8—(CP Cable). — The Governor-General's Foot Guards of Ottawa, and the South Alberta Regiment of Medicine Hat, Alta., are two more units which advanced with the Canadians from Caen to the Somme. The Foot Guards are a tank unit and the S.A.R. a reconnaissance unit.

Their names were released for publication today.

Both took part in the battle of Falaise and saw action around the Trun gap, then advanced to the Seine, with the S.A.R. doing remarkable work far ahead of armored and infantry units.

Crossing the Somme, the Foot Guards and S.A.R. advanced around the east side of Rouen and pushed east to the Somme.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THE WHOLE SECRET

IN THE case of a true lead-throwing end-play, the entire secret of success consists of leaving your opponent no option which is advantageous to him. In your preparation for the play, you must fix things up so that, when you toss him into the lead, there is absolutely nothing he can do except choose one course or another which is profitable to you and costly to him. This usually means eliminating certain cards first from your own holdings or from his.

If North had bid 1-Heart there—a much better bid than he made, since it would have probed for a possible 4-4 major suit fit and also would have betokened a No Trump stopper as protection for lead of the suit—South could have bid 3-Clubs and a fine bidder in the North would have called 3-No Trumps. That would have been a far better contract, with game certain and extra tricks possible, but the 5-Clubs should have been made, too.

South started all right after West led the diamond K to the A. But he went wrong quickly. He scored two top clubs, the spade A, a third club, the spade K, discarding the heart 6, ruffed the spade J and then threw West into the lead with the diamond 5 to the 10 and J. Not at all perturbed, West returned the diamond Q to be ruffed by the declarer. He went to dummy with a trump and led to the heart K. This cost him two heart tricks and set him.

South went wrong when he discarded a heart on the spade K. He should have thrown a diamond instead. Then, when he put West into the lead later, a diamond return would have found both declarer and dummy void of the suit. The lead could have been ruffed in the dummy while a heart was discarded by South. This would have held him to one heart loser instead of two, making his contract. The same thing would have happened if West returned a spade, a ruff and discard. And if West instead returned a heart, it would have "put pants on the king."

1,250 Planes Lash At Reich Cities

Mainz, Mannheim Dusseldorf Battered Again

LONDON, Sept. 9—(CP)—More than 1,000 American heavy bombers escorted by more than 250 fighters smashed to-day at industrial and rail targets in the Ruhr and Rhineland ahead of the advancing Allied armies.

The bombers, striking targets in Germany for the second successive day in support of the mounting ground offensive, hit Mainz, Mannheim and Dusseldorf.

During the night R. A. F. Mosquitos smacked at Nurenberg again, rounding out a heavy day which saw Brest pounded twice and the Le Havre and Boulogne garrisons battered by the big bombers.

Heavy bomber attacks were carried out yesterday against oil plants at Ludwigshafen rail yards at Karlsruhe, and depots and factories on the outskirts of Mainz.

A constant petrol was kept last night over shipping around the Netherlands islands although pilots reported seeing no concentrations which might suggest evacuation attempts.

Mosquitos set bridges afire in the Flushing area of the Southern Netherlands where the Germans are trying to escape from Belgium by crossing the Scheldt, and also in the Rotterdam vicinity.

The Nurenberg attack was a highly-concentrated two-minute affair with blockbusters raining down upon the former Nazi congress site.

Rockets Destroy Italian Liner

ROME, Sept. 9—(AP)—The 51,000-ton liner Rex, one time queen of the Italian merchant fleet and an Atlantic record holder lay burning in the northern Adriatic sea off Trieste to-day, after a blistering attack by rocket-firing Beaufighters.

More than 120 rockets hit the big liner, some below the waterline and reconnaissance disclosed she was lying motionless with a 60-degree list to port.

An air force report said German naval experts believed preparing to sink the Rex to block Trieste harbor.

Two days ago an R. A. F. plane crew saw the big ship being towed south of Trieste. She was listing slightly.

Yesterday, while she was at anchor, Beaufighters attacked just before noon, sending 59 rockets crashing into the target.

Later in the day more Beaufighters from the Balkan Air Force added the finishing touches with 64 rocket hits.

Fliers reported after the last attack that a 500-foot column of smoke rose from one end of the vessel, that two-thirds of her decks were submerged and flames were gushing from her entire length.

In August, 1933, the Rex crossed the Atlantic from Gibraltar to Ambrose Light in New York Harbor, a distance of 3,181 miles, in four days, 13 hours and 58 minutes.

He'd been through it all before, nearly two years ago, when he registered at the age of 16, falsely stating his age, saw action with an anti-aircraft unit in some of the hardest fighting of the North African campaign before his true age was discovered in October, 1943.

Ontario Tank Unit Wins Battle Honors

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, Sept. 9—(CP).—From the shores of Lake Trasimeno through the hilly, ridgy countryside characteristic of the 80 miles of terrain to Florence, the Ontario Tank Regiment of Oshawa, Ont., supported British and Indian infantry formations in a relentless "push," forcing the enemy steadily back, wearing him down into a retreat without allowing him to have anything more than a minor action anywhere.

Advancing from Foiano, with a squadron under Maj. Doug. McIndoe, Vernon, B.C., leading, the unit's first objective was Tuori. After two tries a squadron occupied a ridge three-quarters of a mile from Tuori. Infantry working with it cleared the enemy from a hill 800 yards northeast of the Ontario's own feature, occupied it, and held it under protection of the Canadians' guns.

During this action a squadron under Maj. Bill Harrod, Toronto, sped forward and captured Megnano on the main Arezzo road.

With Mignano and Tuori in our hands it meant the regiment had come into country under direct observation of excellent positions on the Civitella ridge.

Capture Hill.

It was discovered a feature known as hill 489 overlooked Vivitella itself and Maj. McIndoe's squadron was ordered to put on a night attack. Again natural conditions interfered, caused the action to develop along other lines, but the Yanks and their infantry managed to reach several alternative hills despite strong opposition from German self-propelled guns.

Here the unit was relieved by the Three Rivers' regiment and they retired for a four-day rest.

Then came the order to advance on Palazuolla. Major Eric Simmons, Toronto, and his squadron led the unit into this town. Ten days after leaving the building they had used as headquarters in Palazuolla, a time bomb exploded, wrecking the place, killing and wounding many of the artillery unit then in occupation.

Cennina and San Leolino were successively taken by this squadron with light fighting, although there was delay by demolitions.

The further advance to Ambra was led by Maj. Simmons' men across difficult country. When the village was taken, some Herman Goering Grenadiers were captured and others chased out.

Maj. McIndoe's squadron took over the lead here and advanced 500 yards toward Ricasoli despite heavy shelling and extensive demolitions.

Spearhead

At this point the Ontarios' necks were "stuck way out." They were the 8th Army's "leaning spearhead," unprotected on their flanks. The Three Rivers' Regiment on their right were some distance behind and on their left the south Africans were five miles back.

However the advance was resumed and 300 yards short of Ricasoli the

Reds Accept Bulgaria As An Ally

Believe Balkans Will Be Freed Within a Week

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 9—(AP)—A Red Army offensive through Bulgaria, coupled with the combined operations of Marshal Tito's Partisans and Allied Commando units in Yugoslavia, appeared likely today to free the Balkan peninsula entirely of Germans in less than a week.

At the same time a Russian armored force driving from the strategic heart of Transylvania pushed within 128 miles of the flat open frontier of Hungary.

Bulgaria's declaration of war on Germany persuaded the Soviet Union to accept Sofia's request for an armistice, and Russia veterans who moved into Bulgaria from Romania on a 135-mile front greeted the Bulgars as brothers in arms.

Front dispatches said no hostilities jarred the Russian advance across Bulgaria, which followed the capture of two big ports, Ruschuk (Ruse) on the Danube and Varna on the Black Sea. Presumably the Bulgarian army, now a co-belligerent will be assigned an effective role in the Balkan clean-up.

The Kremlin through the press and radio, continued to call on the Hungarian people to follow Bulgaria in abandoning the doomed Germans and save their independence.

Disaster Looms

Bulgaria's outright participation in the war turned approximately one-third of the total area of the Balkans into Allied territory.

It transformed the German withdrawals from Southern Yugoslavia, Albania, Greece and the Aegean Islands into desperate action which might end in final disaster at any moment.

Small blockade runners slipping up the Adriatic Sea under the cover of darkness were the only hope of escape for Germans on the western side of the peninsula. On the east the Athens-Salonika-Nis-Belgrade railway was under severe air attack and was being raided ceaselessly by Yugoslav and Greek Partisans.

(At the same time a Rome dispatch said Allied Commando units were striking into Yugoslavia from the Adriatic coast toward a junction with the Russians in an effort to close a trap on the 250,000 Germans stalled in the Balkans because bombing and sabotage wrecked all main rail escape routes.)

The Bulgarian divisions could cut the trans-Balkan railway in the vicinity of Nis within a matter of hours.

The possbility was seen that the German High Command might leave some troops on Crete and scattered among the Aegean islands in order to delay the possible linking of Allied sea power between the Mediterranean and Black Sea as long as possible.

Turkey was given sharp notice by Russia during the last few days that she is expected to co-operate wholeheartedly with the latest developments. Russian troops rolling through Bulgaria apparently were headed for the Turkish border.

In the course of the entire Soviet offensive begun June 23 the Russians have taken 41 German generals, the Soviet communique said.

Crerar Visits Ypres Front

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY, IN BELGIUM, Sept. 9.—(CP Cable).—Lt.-Gen. Crerar has been into Belgium and visited Ypres—the Canadian Caen of the First Great War—and Poperinghe, east of Ypres.

He made the trip Sept. 7, a few hours after Polish forces under his command had taken the area.

Gen. Crerar was an artillery officer who served in many battles in this area in the First Great War, and for him it was a personal pilgrimage as well as a current operational trip.

In Ypres he renewed acquaintances with the burgomaster, whom he met during the Vimy pilgrimage in 1936.

At Ypres and Poperinghe the citizens turned out in hundreds to welcome him.

Later Gen. Crerar plans to visit the Vimy Memorial.

Allied Artillery Shelling City Of Belfort

By SID FEDER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 9—(AP)—Seventh Army forces, driving rapidly northeast through the Doubs River valley from Besancon, have reached a point less than 25 miles from the Belfort Gap route into Southwestern Germany, Allied headquarters announced today. Already American troops had covered at least half the distance between Besancon and the key city of Belfort.

(An Associated Press dispatch from the French-Swiss frontier last night said three Allied motorized columns were approaching the city, with the most advanced only 10 miles distant. This dispatch said Allied artillery opened up on the city as early as 4 a.m. yesterday.

("The Germans, in strength in good positions, appeared determined to defend the gap," the dispatch said.)

French troops driving northward west of the Americans overran the towns of Le Creusot, Chagny and Montchanin-les-Mines in the heart of a coal and industrial area that long has fed the Nazi war machine.

In this region lies the Schneider Metallurgical works and plants with a capacity of 30,000 tons of steel annually. The area often was a bomber target.

West of the Saone river the French kept up a steady pace toward Dijon and cleared the enemy from Beaune after two days of stiff fighting. Beaune lies 18 miles north of Chalon Sur Saone on the route to Dijon.

Skirting the Swiss frontier in a northward push the French troops seized the Jura mountain towns of Pierre-Fontaine and Maiche, the latter 25 miles south of the ancient gap at the end of the Vosges mountains 30 miles from the German border.

Rout Oppostion.

The 7th Army, after being held up by bitter opposition at Besancon, picked up speed and again drove eastward to the vicinity of Roulans le Grand, 10 miles nearer Belfort.

The Germans fought to keep the back door to Dijon open, particularly along the Beaune-Chagny-Montchanin line. But the French dug them out and pushed westward to Autun, presenting a solid 40-mile battering ram westward from the

Savage Battle Raging For Po Valley

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ROME, Sept. 9.—(AP).—A savage battle is raging for Rimini and the gateway to the Po Valley without substantial changes in positions and heavy casualties are being suffered by both the Germans and the British 8th Army, Gen. Alexander's Headquarters announced today.

Gambling desperately to prevent a break-through that would enable the Allies to sweep into Northern Italy and envelop the whole Gothic Line, Field Marshal Kesselring threw his infantry and armored forces into a series of counter-attacks yesterday. They extended along the Adriatic sector of the front from the coast to the village of Croce, 6½ miles inland and nine miles southwest of Rimini.

These counter thrusts were beaten off without loss of ground by the 8th Army and British troops seized and held Croce, which was the scene of prolonged day and night see-saw fighting.

Violent rain and thunder storms hampered Allied attempts to press the attack, but the tempo of the fighting was not reduced.

Along the coast, where Canadian troops fought to the banks of the Marano River, within four miles of Rimini's outskirts two days ago, that Allied command reported only that patrols were maintaining contact with the enemy. A heavy curtain of mortar and artillery fire was being laid down in the path of the Canadians' advance.

Palau, Halmahera Obstacles In Drive On Philippines

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There are many signs that important developments are impending in the war on Japan.

First, London is convinced President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will meet again in the immediate future—probably at Quebec. They will not only plan for peace, but get set to unleash the entire Allied striking power against Japan the instant Hitler has been knocked out.

Here enters Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters to give us a possible date for the Fuehrer's crack-up. They say the end for Germany may come by early November.

Coincident with this, American bombers have made another heavy assault on Palau, the Japanese naval and air base known as "the Japanese Singapore." Observers, piecing this into the Oriental jigsaw, think it presages events which will unlock the gateway for a direct assault on the Philippines.

Palau, which can accommodate a great naval fleet, lies only 550 miles east of Mindanao Island in the southern Philippines. Before an attack can be made on Mindanao by Gen. MacArthur, Palau must be rendered impotent.

There's one other obstacle still in MacArthur's way—the Island of Halmahera which is said to be strongly held but it has airfields which MacArthur needs not only for his own security but for operations against the Nipponese on Mindanao.

Once Halmahera and Palau are disposed of MacArthur can move swiftly against the Philippines, recapture of which is about the biggest single step the Allies could take at this stage in smashing Japan.

These great islands lie right across the sea communications between Japan and all the wealth of the Indies which she now holds. Without the oil, the rubber and the other essentials which she secures from these conquests, her war machine must collapse.

The Mikado and his little men are aware of the fate which is in store for them. The Emperor has appeared before his Diet and warned his people of the gravity of their position. Premier Koiso at the same time called on the population for a total war effort in what he described as a life or death struggle.

From Japanese-occupied Shanghai comes a broadcast saying Tokyo expects naval landings soon in Philipine bays. The bombing operations by MacArthur are termed the "calm before the storm."

Historic Conference Looms

Spotlight Soon To Be Turned On Japan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt are on the threshold of another historic conference, summoned by the welcome problems of imminent victory over Germany and of speeding Japan's downfall.

London reports that Quebec is the likely meeting place. Washington sources say military matters are earmarked for first consideration. It was possibly as a preliminary that President Roosevelt conferred yesterday with his top military chiefs.

But military problems, at a time when Gen. Eisenhower's armies are driving the death-blow toward Berlin, blend into those of occupation and economic control. Speculation here lists these also for consideration at Quebec, for in the past Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill have not confined themselves to a rigid agenda.

Premier Stalin's absence again is attributed to the pressing problems of the Russian front as Red armies help translate plans mapped at Teheran last November into triumphant action. It is taken for granted that Mr. Stalin will be kept informed of all British-American views relating to the crumbling German front.

Liege, Ostend Fall In Drive To Breach West Wall

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 9.—(AP).—Four Allied armies—the British 2nd and American 1st, 3rd and 7th—closed in for the battle of Germany today and drove to within heavy artillery range of the Siegfried Line in the key sector around the German border city of Aachen, while to the west the 1st Canadian Army continued to mop up the isolated rocket-bomb coast of France and Belgium.

The British 2nd Army in the north held its five-mile deep bridgehead over the Albert canal against increasing fierce resistance as the Germans battled to stem this flanking sweep toward the northern anchor of the Siegfried Line at Cleve, a German border town 65 miles southwest of Amsterdam.

(The BBC in a broadcast heard by NBC said that the British had forced another crossing of the Albert canal 25 miles east of Antwerp and west of the original crossing in the face of increasing enemy resistance).

These were the positions of the American armies:

The 1st Army in Belgium drove beyond the captured fortress city of Liege to less than 18 miles from the German frontier in the vicinity of Aachen.

The 3rd Army had crossed the Moselle river in five places around Metz and Nancy in Eastern France, and had crushed a large-scale German counter-attack.

The 7th Army which came up from the Mediterranean, was driving the last 25 miles to the Belfort gap north of Switzerland.

To the west British, Canadians and Poles of the 1st Canadian Army closed in on the last of the Nazi-held coast. They seized the Belgian ports of Oostende (Ostende) and Nieuport without a fight and hemmed the Germans into cramped pockets around the other coastal ports of Boulogne, Calais, Dunkerque and Zeebrugge near the Holland line.

Coastal Guns Active

The Germans still are firing their coastal guns from Boulogne although Canadian forces have isolated the port. The guns fired spasmodically this morning, apparently at Allied shipping, but the shells fell into the sea.

Aachen, toward which United States 1st Army troops were driving, was the original northern anchor of the Siegfried line. The German defence zone now extends well in front of Aachen.

AMG. Carries On Doing Great Job

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

FLORENCE, Sept. 9 (CP)—Keeping the wheels of civilian life turning with minimum inconvenience to operational troops still in the area, until the newly liberated district can be handed back to civilian control, is the job of A.M.G.—Allied Military Government.

Florence illustrated how A.M.G. tackles a job, sometimes even before a town is completely free of hostile activity. A.M.G. was operating in Florence while Germans were still there, and while Fascist-Republican snipers were still being mopped up by the Partisans.

Water was not flowing in the mains, the pipe line having been blown up. There was no electric light and the food situation was so bad that children were dying of hunger.

Medical supplies were carted away by the Germans, who also took all livestock.

Within 24 hours there were 15 tons of supplies in the town, 200 people were helping A.M.G. and the committee in the work. Within 48 hours there was a regular flow of 30 tons a day, and citizens were receiving 200 grams of white bread at a cost of one cent each—the first white bread they'd seen in years.

Three bakeries were functioning within that time. Four tons of milk for mothers and children went in. Water was flowing in the mains again within the week.

Medically, too, A.M.G. was on the job and medical supplies were poured in.

Canada Likely To Have Larger Army

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—(CP).—While it is assumed Canada will maintain larger permanent armed forces after the war than the bare skeleton forces of pre-war years, no definite decisions have been taken on their size.

Within the three fighting services, however, young men thinking in terms of a post-war career are wondering what the prospects are of continuing in uniform and official planners are pondering the various factors which will determine the size of the services.

The only authorized post-war establishment is 9,000 men for the navy. This, however, is an arbitrary figure which may not stand and Navy Minister Macdonald has indicated he would like to see a post-war navy of 15,00 men.

Suggests 40,000.

If the post-war army and air force bore the same relation to the pre-war establishments as Mr. Macdonald's 15,000 figure bears to the navy's pre-war 1,700 there would be an army of 40,000 and an air force of about 40,000 compared with 4,500 permanent force soldiers and 4,000 men in the permanent air force.

The Navy's 9,000 complement was authorized by the Cabinet a couple of years ago when the seagoing force was planning a building program and asked direction as to what buildings should be permanent and what temporary.

Uncertain factors which will influence the size of the post-war forces are the nature of the peace and arrangements made for maintaining it through international agreement, the attitude of the people and of future parliaments towards the spending of money, taxation and preparedness.

Certain factors are the vastly increased complexity of weapons and methods of warfare, Canada's increased vulnerability of attack by reason of developments in aviation, and Canada's all-round increased interest in world affairs as the most powerful of the smaller nations and a potential great power.

Both the pre-war army and navy were more in the nature of establishment for the training of reservists than actual fighting forces. The small permanent army was barely sufficient to provide staffs for national defence headquarters in Ottawa, the Royal Military College at Kingston, the various military district headquarters and instructors for the non-permanent active militia, now called the reserve army.

Within it there were enough specialists to keep fairly well abreast of developments in methods of warfare and weapons. The number of specialists required after the war will be much greater, however, because of developments during the present conflict.

The same is true of the navy and the air force.

Four Channel Ports Surrounded

Entire Robot Area Overrun By Canadian Army

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Sept. 9 (CP-Cable)—Canadian tanks and infantry today are closing in on Bruges, and unconfirmed reports said leading patrols had advanced into this town, 10 miles west of the Netherlands border and 12 miles south of Zeebrugge on the coast.

On the right flank of this advance, going forward under clear blue skies, Polish armor and infantry are in the Thielt area. The Channel ports of Le Havre, Boulogne, Calais and Dunkerque are all invested by 1st Canadian Army troops. There is no important change in these sectors.

While the roads and fields are drying after two rainy days, the areas along the coastal strip from Dunkerque to Bruges and into the Netherlands are low-lying, and with some of them flooded by the retreating Germans movement is restricted.

There is a maze of canals, dykes and controlled waterways in the Bruges district.

At Boulogne, Calais and Dunkerque the Canadians are improving their positions by endeavoring to isolate various defended gun positions.

Practically the entire French-Belgian rocket coast now has been overrun by Canadian, British and Polish troops of the Canadian Army. It is estimated about 300 flying-bomb sites have been discovered in this advance, and probably more are hidden away in isolated woods which have not yet been investigated. None however can be used.

They are all "V-1" sites and there is no evidence yet of any "V-2" sites in this neigborhood.

The 18th Armored Car Regiment (12 Manitoba Dragoons) of Winnipeg occupied Ostend yesterday.

They were on dyke roads south and west of the port preparing to

Court Considers Nazis' Action

TORONTO, Sept. 9 (CP)—Whether a crime committed by a prisoner of war in the course of an escape from a camp is to be considered an act of war or a breach of the Canadian criminal code punishable under civil law, will be considered Tuesday by the Ontario Appellate Court here.

The case concerns Eckhart Brosig, 24-year-old German paratrooper, who has made four breaks for freedom. After his third escape from the Monteith, Ont., camp, he was acquitted by a North Bay, Ont., magistrate of a charge of theft from the mails.

Following the trial the government amended the criminal code eliminating mandatory minimum sentences of three years in cases of theft from the mails.

In his escape, Brosig stowed away in a mail bag on a Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway car. He cut his way out, taking with him gum, cigarets and perfume. He was recaptured by a mail clerk and charged with theft from the mails.

Crown Counsel John Robinette said the crime was punishable under civil law, but G. A. Martin, counsel appointed for Brosig by the Swiss counsel, argued that anything done by the prisoner in connection with his escape fell into the category of an act of war.

Suicide Units Hold Ports

Canadians Facing Difficult Task

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 9.—(CP Cable).—Capture of the besieged channel ports and the destruction of German forces still west of the Scheldt estuary appears to be the immediate task of the 1st Canadian Army, and it does not seem likely that its forces will share in the first assault on Germany itself.

It is possible that following the final elimination of German resistance along the channel coast the Canadian army will be rested before taking the road to Berlin.

There still is considerable fighting to be done along the coast. Le Havre is being invested by strong British forces under Gen. Crerar's command, but the German garrison stubbornly refuses to surrender, although it has been heavily bombed.

At Boulogne, 5,000 Germans are in strong positions guarding this fortress port. A smaller force holding Calais also shows no sign of giving up. There is another suicide garrison at Dunkerque, and possibly another at Zeebrugge.

Canadian Corps To Convene November 10-11

TORONTO, Sept. 9.—An Ontario convention of the Canadian Corps Association for the Armistice Day week-end of Nov. 10 and 11 was announced here last night by Stanley Harpham, chairman of a meeting of the officers of unit associations from Toronto and other Ontario points.

"And it is quite possible that there may be a Dominion convention at the same time," said Mr. Harpham. "But that is only just possible."

The most important matters to be taken up during an Ontario convention would be rehabilitation of servicemen, hospitalization, pensions and youth training, he said.

Major G. Fay Davies, Dominion president of the association, criticized the Government's rehabilitation machinery in an address as divided between too many departments and lacking centralized control. Veterans' organizations must act to see that the rehabilitation procedure is straightened out, he said.

"We object quite strenuously to all the advertising around the country that we have the most wonderful rehabilitation plans in the world," he said. "Well, it just doesn't work that way, although it looks all right on paper."

Looking to the organization of veterans' groups after the war, Major Davies believed that the personnel of the army, navy, air force, Cwac's and other branches of the service would want to form their own separate organizations. He did not believe veterans of this war should be recruited into established veterans' organizations of the last war.

But he felt that the postwar veterans' organizations would work together on matters of national interest through the National Council of Veterans' Organizations, on which all could be represented, and thus speak with "one voice" on matters affecting veterans. He urged that the Canadian Corps help bring about the adoption of this scheme.

O. T. G. Williamson, Dominion secretary of the association, protested against the "stupidity and stubbornness of the officials who have set out to build the psycopathic building of the Sunnybrook hospital, while neglecting to construct the building in which wounded cases will be sheltered. The latter are still intended to be sent to Christie Street Hospital, he said.

Discussing the association's efforts to help soldiers' families who are faced with housing difficulties, he said that Toronto's welfare department "knows of almost 600 families of men overseas who are facing evictions on Oct. 1."

The gasoline-thirsty United States 3rd Army to the south was supplied by a sky-train of C-47 transport planes which landed on forward air-strips. It was a lack of supplies which first slowed up the 3rd Army.

Allied Supreme Headquarters masked the exact positions of the forward elements of the four Allied Armies, concealing from the Germans which columns were engaged in feints and which would deliver the smashing blow designed to breach the Nazi line and fan out into the interior of Hitler's final fortress, Germany.

The Germans were rushing reinforcements into the Siegfried line but new American Black Widow aircraft ranged into Germany at night smashing convoys.

Both Ostende and Nieuport were found badly demolished. The Canadians reached the French city of Bergues, five miles inland from Dunkerque, and the Poles pushed to the Ostende-Gent road, six or seven miles south of the Belgian town of Bruge. There were unconfirmed reports that leading Canadian infantry patrols were in Bruge, 10 miles west of the Dutch border and 12 miles south of Zeebrugge.

The mop-up of the coastal area was slowed somewhat by extensive German defensive flooding of lowlands between Boulogne and Dunkerque.

In one of the last front line dispatches before the security silence went into effect Associated Press War Correspondent Edward D. Ball said the Americans had won two new Moselle River crossings south of Metz where they already had one and made a second crossing in the Nancy area near Toul.

More than 100 miles to the north of this bulge the U.S. 1st Army pushed three miles southeast to Romsee after taking Liege.

Between Liege and Metz other 1st Army troops were pushing steadily through the Ardennes forest on a broad front toward Luxembourg to complete the close in on the German border.

These troops captured little villages by the dozen and reached Neuville En Condroz, 10 miles east of Huy; Maissin, 22 miles east of the Meuse River, and Haut Fays, 12 miles east of Givet.

WomanCharged In Cafe Brawl

Following a fight in the Victory Cafe Friday evening Mrs. Alma Ronco, 22, was arrested by Constables W. A. Clarke and Allan Edmison and this morning was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. with having created a disturbance.

Mrs. Ronco pleaded guilty to the charge and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. and Acting Chief Constable John Thompson informed the court that the woman had been giving considerable trouble. It was pointed out that she had pleaded guilty only a short time before to a similar offence as the result of a fight on Charlotte street in front of the Hotel Champlain.

"She was the cause of the trouble in the Mayfair Cafe when Constable Dalton was assaulted," said Chief Thompson. "She was not charged on that occasion."

"You were fined only on August 19 for the same kind of thing," said Magistrate Langley. "It does not seem to have been much of a lesson to you."

Withholds Sentence

His Worship was about to sentence the woman to a short jail term but yielded to a suggestion made by the husband of the accused that she should be required to report regularly to the police matron.

"That's what I had better do," remarked Magistrate Langley. "I'll suspend sentence and have her report to the matron and if she doesn't behave you can bring her back and I will give her a sentence on this charge."

A condition of probation was that Mrs. Ronco, who is the mother of two small children, must report to Police Matron Maguire once a week during the next six months.

Charges are being made against other who were allegedly involved in the Victory Cafe brawl.

Congress Works Against Time

By C. R. BLACKBURN, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 —(CP)— In an effort to prepare for handling some 10,000,000 ex-service men and women, and possibly $75,000,000,000 worth of surplus properties and war material, Congress is working night and day with an eye on the calendar.

The members want to get away for a recess for electioneering purposes. A new House of Representatives— 435 members— must be elected along with a President and Vice-President, next Nov. 7.

And 32 of the 96 senatorial seats will be in jeopardy on election day. Even those senators who do not have to fight an election want to get into the fight for their friends.

But Congress wants to exercise its democratic rights to dictate the provisions which are to be made for rehabilitating war veterans, and for the disposal of the huge quantities of war material and property which will not be needed by the Government when peace comes.

However there are many differences of opinion in both chambers as to the procedure to be adopted, particularly regarding the financial provisions for the war veterans, and for those who will be thrown out of work, temporarily at least, when war production stops.

Unemployment compensation provisions in the various measures before Congress range from around $20 a week maximum for a family man up to $35 but it seems the lower figure will prevail.

Car Driver Injured In Truck Collision

BANCROFT, Sept. 9—(ENS)— Richard Buelow, 55, of Bangor township, near Bancroft, is in Cottage Hospital, Pembroke, today in a serious condition suffering from a broken left knee cap, several broken ribs and lacerations to the arm and head.

His injuries are the result of an accident which occurred at 4:30 Friday morning at Belle's Rapids, 30 miles northeast of Bancroft. He was proceeding up a hill when he was met head-on by a truck, owned by Henry Fleguel of Palmer Rapids. It was driven by Bromis Zielnie. The truck mounted the front of Buelow's car, shoving it down hill a considerable distance.

Mr. Buelow was taken from the car in an unconscious condition and rushed to Killaloe where he received medical attention. He was later removed to Pembroke. Provincial Constable S. Palmateer of Bancroft investigated.

Ricasoli was being held by 150 Germans armed with Spandaus and 15 machine-guns, who had the additional advantage of highly defensive ground. Maj. Harrod's squadron came up to help, but the Germans withdrew during darkness.

Shortly afterward, the unit was relieved by a British armored regiment, and ordered to proceed to support an Indian infantry division 50 miles away. They went to Certaldo, by way of Siena. There they had a 10-day rest and then went back into the line again near Montespertoli, resumed the push and forced the enemy back to the Arno.

Alice Williams Dies In Toronto

Well-known in Peterborough, where for many years she was active in the ladies' ready-to-wear clothing business, Alice T. Williams, 710 George street passed away at Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Toronto Thursday, after a lengthy illness. She was in her 74th year.

Affectionately known by scores of friends and business associates in Peterborough as "Alice T." she was born in Wembley, England, and came to Canada at the age of 17. Coming to Peterborough almost immediately, she was employed for more than 40 years in the ready-to-wear department of Cressman's Departmental Store in Peterborough. Later, she was employed at Barrie's Store, and at one time, was with Peblow's Store in Renfrew, Ontario.

Miss Williams was thoroughly experienced in that line of work, and returned to Peterborough from Renfrew to begin her own business which she operated for more than 18 years, before succumbing to a serious illness. This forced her to give up the store she operated for so many years at 147 Hunter street, W. Later, she was taken to Toronto for further medical treatment, and she remained there until her death.

Although she had no relatives in Peterborough at all, Miss Williams made scores of friends while here; customers thought her clothing work so skilled almost all of them have been with her for years. Miss Williams was loved by all who knew her, and rivals in the business are the first to admit her skill with clothes was beyond complaint. A devout member of the Anglican church, Miss Williams was a lover of good books.

Surviving are a brother, William, in Wembley, and two nephews, David, and William, both in the British Army.

The funeral was today in Toronto at 2 o'clock from the Ross Craig Funeral Home on Dunn avenue and interment was in Park Lawn cemetery.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

Now that we are past Labor Day, the last holiday of the summer season, and people are back from their summer holidays and cottages, minds are turned to the fall styles and what colors are in the highlights of fashion. Well, that is what I am going to write about today.

Sentimental mauves, rich purply reds, startling American Beauty, and the deep plummy purples, are colors that catch the very spirit of the mid Victorian days, colors that have warmth and dignity and that air of luxury. The whole purple family, grape, heather, hyacinth and fuchsia tones are to be very much in the public eye for fall.

A dress in the purply red shade, in rayon crepe, with neckline draped to a V has jabot ends pulled through a crystal square buckle. An American Beauty coat for the younger miss made with lush tuxedo front of black Persian lamb is worn with a pillbox turban, the cornet about 4" high, in American Beauty felt. Another very smart hat is shown in purple felt, with very high rolled side, and a trim of fuchsia ostrich in long tassel effect on the low side.

The narrow brimmed sailor hat is made of feather pads in the bright colors spoke of at the first of our column. Small cap effects, worn back of the pompadour, are also made of feathers, trimmed with long hoops of heavy silk cord at either side. Then we have the suit in grape and heather shades, made of gabardine with a plain skirt and trench coat. A draped turban made of the same material is worn with this suit, the turban being worn well back on the head off the face.

Many of the fur coats are made on the Russian tunic style all showing fancy belts. These coats have full sleeves, brought in at the wrist with a narrow band of fur and the neck lines are collarless. This type of coat is beautiful when made of Persian Lamb or mink.

While the brighter shades are very much to the fore, black still holds a high place in the fall colors. A black dress of rayon crepe, made with the new lowered waistline, has, as a trimming, a side lacing of velvet, looped through small buckles, set with either crystal or colored stones. This gives just enough color to enhance the beauty of the black dress.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, September 10

Sunday's horoscope holds token of conflict and contradiction, with much of a routine nature but leading into extremely active and lively developments. This might be due to change, travel, new interests or agreements, in which writings publishings, agencies or other forms of intellectual pursuits figure. On the negative side there may be treachery, disagreements and inharmony with highly stimulated emotions and impulses. Happiness and profit come from restraints.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting circumstances with much stirring of a lucrative nature, concerned with travel, writings, publicity or other mental activities. An undercurrent of publicity might bring complications and domestic inharmony. The energies, emotions and impulses should be curbed.

A child born on this day may possess a keen mind and active emotions, and may need cool restraints and direction to guide it into safe and constructive channels.

For Monday, September 11

Monday's astrological forecast is for an exciting day, in which probably the affairs of the young, wayward, romantic and restless may claim the major attention. Such energy and ambition might be diverted by constructive channels, by some guidance. Turmoil, impetuous mistakes may forfeit indicated gains and stability. Beware sensational intrigues or entanglements.

Those whose birthday it is have a year of potential success, profit and happiness, but its tempestuous, passionate and impulsive performances may beget loss, regrets and practical endeavors for progress indulgence, runaway emotions and reckless behavior may cause financial loss of standing and peace of mind. The social, domestic and romantic affiliations are likely to suffer most.

A child born on this day may be clever and energetic, but its misguided emotions and impulses may cause it sustained loss, grief and reversals.

Bishop Raps Resources Agent

OTTAWA, Sept. 9 (CP) — Most Rev. J. L. Coudert, Roman Catholic Bishop of the Yukon, in an open letter today to Resources Minister Crerar, repeated charges made previously against C. W. Jackson, secretary and chief executive assistant in the Resources Department.

Bishop Coudert said he had not been misquoted by the press when he stated Mr. Jackson had told him last October while speaking on Indian welfare that: "We must first win this war, and if I had any money to spare right now I would rather have cannons built and let the Indians die than spend it at such a time on Indian welfare."

The conversation with Mr. Jackson had taken place in the presence of Rev. J. O. Plourde, superintendent of the Indian Commission for Catholic Affairs, said the Bishop.

Father Plourde "is ready to vouch for the accuracy of my report regarding the nasty remarks passed by your executive," the Bishop stated.

(In a statement issued simultaneously with release of the open letter, Father Plourde said he was present at the interview with Mr. Jackson, and that "I hereby declare that the statement quoted by him (Bishop Coudert) and attributed to the official of the Department of Indian Affairs is accurate in every respect.")

The open letter was in reply to a statement in the Commons Aug. 14 when Mr. Crerar denied that Mr. Jackson had made the statement attributed to him by the Bishop.

(Mr. Crerar could not be reached immediately for comment on the open letter or on Father Plourde's statement.)

In his previous statements, Bishop Coudert had said Mr. Jackson's remarks followed a request for aid to relieve the "sad plight" of the Indians in Northern Canada.

Physical Fitness Program To Be Outlined

When Major Ian Eisenhardt, National Director of Physical Fitness, arrives in Peterborough to address an open meeting of the Local Council of Women at the Y.M.C.A. Monday evening, September 11, he will bring with him a story of health education measures and youth training based in first-hand knowledge of the subject, which he studied extensively in almost every country in Europe before the war. His visit is particularly timely, because Peterborough citizens are about to build a Community Health Centre.

Since arriving in Canada in 192[illegible] Maj. Eisenhardt's career has been an interesting one, following a varied pattern that began with a position as playground inspector in Vancouver.

There, his deep understanding of the problems of youth training and development led him to submit plans to the provincial government for youth training, which were accepted and an appointment as Director of Physical Education for British Columbia followed.

He has worked on numerous provincial and federal health schemes including National Selective Service in providing recreation for war workers; Unemployment Commission, to promote health, recreation, and physical education for Canadian youth, including rehabilitation; and Maj. Eisenhardt played a leading role in drawing up the National Physical Fitness Act, brought into effect early this year. His athletic background that had its beginning 38 years ago in his native Denmark, his education received in Germany, France and Denmark, and his travels through Continental countries to study youth training have all been put into his work to make Canada a happy, healthy, and useful body of citizens.

Peterborough will be interested to hear Maj. Eisenhardt, and his address on such an appropriate and important subject will be undoubtedly attract a large number of people.

Samuel Directed By God To Choose David As King

Samuel mourned and mourned for Saul. He had proved such a bitter disappointment to Samuel. So fine looking, so talented and so much a leader and man of God, Samuel had thought him. But now he showed himself weak in many ways; he was selfish, headstrong, not willing to be guided by the Lord, and Samuel grieved that so much promise had ended in failure.

But there was work to be done. Another man must be chosen to take the place of Saul when he was finally deposed or died, so the Lord called Samuel and told him to cease mourning over Saul for He, the Lord, had chosen another man to be head of the Israelites.

"Fill thine horn," the Lord said, "and go, and I will send thee to Jesse the Bethlehemite; for I have provided me a king among his sons."

"How can I go?" Samuel asked. "If Saul hear of it, he will kill me." But the Lord told him to take a heifer and say he had come to sacrifice to the Lord. Samuel obeyed and when Jesse and his friends saw him coming they were frghtened, for they were afraid something was wrong.

Samuel Quiets Fears

Samuel quieted their fears by saying, "I am come to sacrifice unto Jehovah; sanctify yourselves and come with me to the sacrifice." So he prepared Jesse and his sons and called them to the sacrifice. One by one Samuel had the sons of Jesse pass by him, while he awaited the word of the Lord saying which one was the man chosen. When all the sons present had passed before Samuel without the sign for which he was waiting coming to him, he asked Jesse, "Are here all thy children?" No, there was another, the youngest, Jesse answered; he was tending the sheep. David was sent for, and when he came, Samuel saw he was "ruddy, and withal of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. And the Lord said, Arise, anoint him: for this is he."

"Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up and went to Ramah." David was anointed three tmes in all. This was the first of the anointings.

The spirit of the Lord had left Saul, and he was often troubled with an evil spirit. Jealousy and suspicion plagued him, and when these moods came upon him, he probably made all his household uncomfortable, too. In one such mood his servants suggested that they find someone who played the harp that music might quiet and comfort the king.

"And Saul said unto his servants, Provide me now with a man that can play well, and bring him to me."

Suggests David

One of the servants said, "Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse the Bethlehemite, that is cunning in playing, and a mighty valiant man, and a man of war, and prudent in matters, and a comely person, and the Lord is with him."

So Saul sent messengers to Jesse and said, "Send me David thy son, which is with the sheep."

So Jesse took gifts of bread and wine and a kid, and when Saul saw this fine young man he loved him greatly, and David became his armorbearer. When evil moods came upon the king thereafter, David took his harp and played, and the troubled soul which plagued Saul was quieted.

Bethlehem was an obscure town in Judah. Jesse was evidently one of the prominent men of the town. He was the grandson of Ruth and Boaz. It was the place where Rachel died, which is the first time it is mentioned in the scriptures. It later was the city of Ruth and Boaz, and long after David's time Micah the prophet foretold that the Messiah would be born there. The word "Bethlehem" means "the house of bread."

Nowhere in the Bible do we find the name of David's mother. Twice David speaks of himself as "son of thy handmaiden."

Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

In eastern Canada, there are two distinct flights of hawks in the autumn. One starts in early September, reaching a peak between the tenth and fifteenth. Then there is a lull, until about mid-October. For about two weeks in early October there may be no hawks in evidence, but for the rest of the time there are usually a few straggling through. Then the second flight begins, carrying on into November.

In the autumn north-west winds are fairly common and it is upon days of this kind that the hawks are on the move, coming down from the north-east, apparently getting a two-fold benefit from the wind direction.

Soaring is easier going into the wind and so htere is some gain

Sharp-Shinned Hawk

here, but also they are given some assistance from the general northerly direction of the wind being somewhat behind them. No doubt some such benefit is derived as a sailboat receives, taking the wind from the side.

Many Hawks Participate

These two flight are characterized by the presence of different hawks. In the first, the predominant species are the sharp-shinned and coopers (genus accipiter), broad - wing (buteo), marsh hawks (harrier), with a fair sprinkling of red-tails (buteos), sparrow hawks (falcons) and the occasion pigeon hawk and peregrine (rarer falcons) and osprey.

In the later flights the larger buteous — red-tailed red-houldered rough-legged hawks—make up the bulk of numbers and it is with this lot that the largest of the accipiters, the goshawk, comes south, when it does, every few years. A few pigeon hawks, peregrines and bald eagles come through with this later flight.

The outlines of the different groups of hawks are distinctive, rendering identification easier, and nearly all hawks fit roughly into the four main groups, buteo, accipiter, harrier and falcon. Of course, variation in proportion produces suggestion of overlapping, such as the goshawk and red-shouldered in accipiter and buteo groups, but here, the difference of flight puts them in their proper group.

Accipiters rarely soar usually flying with a continuous flap-flap-flap glide. Buteous sometimes fly straight on like this but so commonly break into soaring in broad circles without flapping the wings that a few minutes watching will usually settle this question. When an accipiter does fly in circles, it rarely spreads its tail while a buteo almost invariably spreads it fanwise.

1, Osprey; 2, Accipiter (Couper's Hawk); 3, Falcon (Peregrine); 4, Harrier (Marsh Hawk); 5, Buteo

Broad-Winged Hawk

In a straight glide, the wings of many hawks form a blunt point, but a falcon's win is pointed whether it is turning, flapping or sailing.

Sharp Bend In Osprey's Wings

The osprey and bald eagle are of buteonine outline. An osprey holds its wings forward in such a way that they form a decidedly sharper bend than other buteonine hawks. To be used as a reliable mark it should be considered only when the bird is flying directly overhead, for different angles of perspective will suggest this in other hawks, then when they are immediately above you, you see that they have not this pronounced bend.

With the exception of the red-shouldered hawk, these species and a few additional ones are found in the west, where there is a similar spring and fall migration. A search of literature on the subject has failed to reveal any mention of the character of the flights in the west, but no doubt there is a similarity.

Modern Christians Fail To Take Religion Seriously

REV. E. R. JAMES.

The Lord God hath made me like a Polished Shaft: In His Quiver hath he hid me. Isaiah 49; 2.

A Commando is one who has heard the call for high and dangerous service. He is thrilled that he has been chosen. It means the hardest and severest training. Yet the commando's heart is deeply moved that the Captain has picked him. The ancient prophet has had a similar experience "The Lord God hath made me like a polished shaft and he has hid me in His Quiver."

Many centuries later the Prophet from Nazareth, Jesus the Christ, calls a handful of men "that they might be with Him." to be trained and disciplined for service; to be rock men for his new Kingdom of God on earth.

Unhappily modern Christians have not taken their religion seriously. The great mass have not looked upon their relgion as a profession— a calling. Moreover the Church has not appealed to her children for self sacrifice and discipline. They have no idea that true relgion is a matter of "blood, sweat and tears" in order that they may conquer the evil in their hearts. The troops who landed on D-day were most highly trained and efficient. They realised their ability to do the almost impossible storming of medern fortifications. They conquered because they were polished shafts.

God has been gracious unto us and is giving us the victory over our enemies. Yet with the coming peace there will be still greater problems to solve. The men and women who will solve them must be Christians highly trained and polished shafts.

How does a Christian become a polished shaft?

PRAYER: Have you formed a regular and definite. The Devil loves regular and definite. The Devil loves to whisper that you need not pray till you feel like it— most subtle temptation. Yet prayer is a duty, it is a debt due to God. As a priest, of a holy and royal priesthood it is your duty to offer the morning sacrifice of confession, praise, thanksgiving and intercession for yourself and your brethern. Set the time; keep the tryst with God. A tryst with God means entering into the very Presence Chamber of the Most High. When you learn to keep that tryst with God it will be seen in your life and character. You will reflect something of His Presence for you have been in His Presence Chamber.

At night do not fall asleep without dropping into your mind a thought from God's Word. That Word of God will sink into your subconscious mind. By the grace of God it will drive away evil dreams. "He giveth His beloved sleep." Ps. 127; 2. There is an important change in the Revised Version: — "He giveth unto His beloved his sleep." Modern psychology recognises this truth.

When you awake in the morning train yourself to say:— "Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord." Keep doing this daily. Then the time will come almost unconsciously you will exclaim:— "Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord." You have begun the day aright, placing yourself in His Presence. Then in the hour of trial or temptation you will realise His Presence and His promise:—"Lo, I am with thee all the days."

MY PRESENCE SHALL GO WITH THEE, SAITH THE LORD GOD.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Samuel 16:1-5, 11-18

By Alfred J. Buescher

David Anointed King

The Lord said unto Samuel, how long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? Fill thine horn with oil and go to Jesse the Bethlehemite.

The Lord told Samuel He had picked out a king from one of Jesse's sons, but Samuel was afraid to go, so the Lord told him to fill his horn with oil and to take a heifer with him.

When the elders of Bethlehem saw Samuel coming they asked if he came peaceably, and he said he came to sacrifice to the Lord, and told them to sanctify themselves.

Saul had many evil moods, and when one came over him his servants called David and had him bring his harp and play for the king.

Humanity has but three great enemies: fever, famine and war; of these by far the greatest, by far the most terrible, is fever. —SIR WILLIAM OSLER.

A Hall For Peterborough

Peterborough badly needs a well-designed, comfortable, easily accessible public hall, suitable for meetings, concerts and plays. Has any step been taken so far to include such a hall, either in the plans of the new Health Centre or the new City Hall? If not we suggest that this matter should be considered before those two sets of plans are completed.

Our city is not well supplied with halls. The best one available is the auditorium of the P.C.V.I. For seven months in the year this hall is used for a variety of purposes, but its usefulness is limited by the fact that it seats less than 800 people and also by the fact that, as a school hall, it cannot be rented for certain uses, such as political meetings. In this city we need a hall which would seat 1200 or 1500 people, with good acoustics, a good stage, and adequate backstage accommodation. The arena of the Health Centre will, we understand, be available for very large meetings, band concerts and so forth; we understand that it has also been suggested that a portion of the arena might be isolated for use as an auditorium. We have never seen this done successfully; in order to cut a large arena down to a smaller size for a concert, for instance, it is necessary to hang the ceiling with hundreds of yards of heavy material in order to prevent echoes and other acoustic nuisances, and this is not only expensive and unsightly, but unsatisfactory as well.

A good auditorium is an asset to the life of any city, and we have a golden opportunity now to put one either in the Health Centre or the City Hall. Are we taking advantage of our good luck? The citizens, we are sure, would be glad to have an authoritative statement from one or other of the committees which are working on plans for the two buildings.

Let's Not Be Beastly To The Germans

When Noel Coward wrote his song which began with the lines

Let's not be beastly to the Germans,
Let's not be horrid to the Hun

he satirized an attitude of mind which he well knew would be found in high places and low as soon as the end of the war came in sight. How right he was! The Russian Government paper, Izvestia has written protesting bitterly against Dorothy Thompson's plea, "Don't let the Germans suffer too much because this might provoke discontent among the German people"; Izvestia also complains that the Secretary of the National Council For The Prevention of War (an American organization) has suggested that the United Nations should sign a peace with Germany because it is senseless to continue slaughter; Izvestia complains that a powerful Turkish newspaper has attempted to plead the cause of Marshal Petain and to protect him from the wrath of the French people; and finally Izvestia protests against the request of Pope Pius to the people of London to forgive the Germans for their air raids, and to treat them in a Christian manner.

This latter request has roused the wrath of the British parliamentarian, A. P. Herbert, who does not hesitate to call it "feebleness of mind". Herbert would deny forgiveness where there has been no sign of repentance.

The forgiveness of enemies is an important part of Christianity, and it is basic in many other great religions. Forgiveness and passive resistance are the weapons which Gandhi has used against Britain with such subtlety and irritating effect. But whether forgiveness can be made to work in a world in which millions of professing Christians are still vindictive pagans at heart is a theoretical, and not a practical question. It must be obvious to realists that if we let the Germans off, now that we have them on the run, they will simply look upon us as weak fools and attack us again as soon as they are able. If we beat them thoroughly they will hate us for a while, and they will respect us; but they will not be likely to attack us again until the memory of that beating has faded, and that will not be for many years—perhaps even for a century. It is not Christian, and it is not pleasing, but the plain fact seems to be that the Germans must be beaten and degraded, or they will soon be up to their old tricks again. If Christianity does not agree with the facts of history as we have seen them, which shall we set aside? To this question no doubt ardent Christians will reply that true Christianity has never yet been given a trial, and this seems to be a reasonable point of view. But if modern Christianity is imperfect, let us find some less expensive way of proving its imperfection than by forgiving the Germans for the misery which they have brought upon the world.

Very few people want our troops to treat the Germans as they treated the peoples whom they subjected. Between German bestiality and Allied severity there is a gulf which cannot be bridged. But the severity with which we treat lawless and vicious individuals may well be expanded to include lawless and vicious nations. There is a 'righteous wrath' which is not unbecoming in a Christian, and which Christ himself did not hesitate to assume when the occasion demanded.

Terra Infirma

To say that something is 'solid as a rock' is to pay it a limited compliment; when the right moment comes rocks can shift and heave in the most surprising manner. Similarly we should be careful of saying that anything is 'safe as houses'; in an earthquake shock houses tumble down as though they were made of nursery blocks. The shock which was felt in this province last Tuesday morning was a trifle, as earthquakes go, but it was bad enough to do a million dollars' worth of damage in Cornwall, and it gave us all reason to remember that what we call terra firma might be called terra infirma with equal justice.

A hundred thousand years ago—not a very long time, as geologists measure it—a great part of this continent was covered with a cap of ice which was so deep that it is thought to have weighed about a million tons a square mile. A mere twenty-five thousand years ago that ice began to melt, and to recede, and it is still melting and receding; we live in the last centuries of an Ice Age. As this great weight recedes the load on the earth's crust is lightened, and it expands and springs back into something like the shape which it wore before the ice covered it. When this process of recovery splits rock along a fault or fracture we feel the tremors of an earthquake, and although the movement of rock may be only a few inches it is a noisy, dangerous and alarming experience for the tiny creatures who build their settlements on the surface of the earth.

The worst Canadian earthquake of which we have a record was that of 1663, which lasted for six months, from Feb. 5 to Sept. 1. A spirited account of it has been left to us by Father Lallemant, the Jesuit Superior at Quebec. The first shock was felt at half-past five in the morning, when the church bells began to ring from the violence of the tremors, and buildings tumbled down in the streets. Thick ice in the St. Lawrence broke up, the inhabitants of the settlement ran hither and thither in alarm and, in Montreal, the patients at the Hotel Dieu rushed out into the snow and could not be induced to enter the building again. The earthquake was not continuous, but its shocks continued with varying violence for six months, and ended at the time of an eclipse of the sun. Father Lallemant related the two incidents, and it is possible that he was correct in doing so. This earthquake is thought to have altered the contours of the lower St. Lawrence.

Because we do not live in the Banana Belt we are apt to assume that earthquakes cannot happen here. But the earth has other business besides making mankind happy; we are, after all, mere parasites on a plant which has its part to play in an extensive solar system. As the earth warms up, or cools, it wriggles its skin, and if we are incommoded we cannot expect the earth to be interested in the fact.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Now that school has re-opened geography teachers are on the spot once again.

Borrowing money is said to have a weakening effect on the character. And in some cases it has even been known to destroy the memory.

Canadian Shipbuilding

By
B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—The Canadian shipbuilding industry, which has built 2,500,000 tons of cargo shipping during this war and in addition many thousands of tons of naval craft, has presented squarely the main postwar problem of industrial readjustment in a series of recommendations submitted to the government.

This is the first major lobby to make its appearance in Ottawa for the purpose of obtaining protection and government assistance in order to continue the shipbuilding industry in Canada after the war. The Canadian shipbuilding and ship repairing association, comprising 18 firms with shipyards on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in Great Lakes ports, have opened an Ottawa office.

President of the association is J. Edouard Simard, of Marine Industries Ltd., Sorel, Que.

"It has to be acknowledged," said Mr. Simard, in the association's brief, "that owing largely to the much higher wages obtained, the competitive position is not favourable as compared with British shipbuilders." He also said: "If a shipbuilding industry is necessary to Canada and the Commonwealth in time of war, then any modest degree of assistance which may be necessary to maintain it in time of peace should be now forthcoming."

FUTURE Canadian shipbuilding policy, as Mr. Simard suggests, is not likely to be decided entirely upon economic grounds. Questions of national security and of British Commonwealth decentralization of industry will undoubtedly figure in the national debate on the issue of how far public assistance should be granted to preserve the industrial structure created during this war. Comparative figures of costs in Canadian shipyards and in British or American shipyards are not shown in the association's brief, nor have they been available from official sources.

It is understood that Canadian shipbuilding costs compare favourably with those in American shipyards, but that British costs remain substantially lower than Canadian costs. The brief issued by the shipbuilding association bears this out, for its recommendations request protection for Canadian shipyards against British rather than American competition.

Pending an authoritative analysis of costs and other factors, it is understood that about 75 per cent of the Canadian shipbuilding industry will become uneconomic in terms of the competitive situation likely to exist after the war. Postwar salvage of the industry, from a national point of view, will likely be a matter of closing down high-cost shipyards and encouraging the more efficient yards to continue.

THE association has drafted ten recommendations:

That Canadian coastal shipping trade be restricted to vessels registered and built in Canada;

That shipowners engaged in foreign trade in and out of Canadian ports be encouraged, by subsidy if necessary, to build and register their ships in Canada;

That Canadian government ships be replaced, due to obsolescence, by Canadian-built ships;

That Canadian naval ships be built in Canada and the British government be asked to place orders for British naval ships in Canada;

That government-owned shipyards be liquidated as soon as possible;

That loans and other financial assistance be made available to Canadian shipyards;

That the Canadian government purchase and scrap obsolete shipping in the Canadian coastal trade;

That a Canadian shipping and shipbuilding authority be created;

That all vessels in Canadian fishing industry be built in Canada;

That facilities in shipbuilding and marine engineering be created to provide technical education.

The Canadian shipbuilding industry employs 66,000 persons. The re-employment of personnel and facilities in this industry, as in many others which have been developed and have operated in Canada during the war, will shortly become a crucial problem of reconstruction, to be administered in the new department of reconstruction which has been authorized but not yet set up.

What the shipbuilding industry wants, to put it briefly, is an enclosed area of operation from which outside competition will be shut out. That area, judging from the association's brief, would be chiefly the Canadian coasting trade which, in 1939, engaged about 850,000 tons of shipping, much of which could legitimately be replaced because of obsolescence.

But the shipbuilding brief raised a far broader question: whether the Canadian export trade which will be the critical factor in future Canadian prosperity shall be carried in Canadian ships cannot be constructed in competition with shipyards in Britain and elsewhere. If Canadian shipbuilding is uneconomic in comparison with world costs, such an arrangement would require a substantial protection in various forms and would mean a substantial added charge on the carrying costs of Canada's foreign trade.

THE competitive position of Canadian foreign trade will be one of the crucial factors in our future prosperity, but it will also raise other issues which no government or parliament in Ottawa in the future will be able to decide easily. If policies of protection at home are adopted by Canada and other nations, the postwar objective of a freely-trading world economy will be impaired at the start. Protection in various forms means a revival of economic warfare of the type which destroyed the prospects of prosperity before the war.

Prosperity, as Mr. King said, is indivisible; and while there are yet no specific guideposts to what future policy will be in regard to a single industry such as shipbuilding, the broad trend of Canadian policy is unmistakable. It is, for the present at least, against the resurrection of high walls of protection. But this in turn, will depend on success achieved by the nations in destroying old barriers to trade in the immediate future, and in securing by international collaboration an operating system of prosperous trade.

In the final analysis, the future policy of Canada will be determined by public opinion. The shipbuilding brief, which has raised in an acute form the issue of protection, has at last brought out into the open the main economic problem of postwar reconstruction policy.

Drill Or Playing-fields

(FROM MONTREAL STAR)

A SPEAKER at a session of the National Council on Physical Fitness now meeting at Ottawa has been telling his audience that the answer to the problem of national health in Canada lies in physical training of the young and not in the playing of games in which, he says, the number of those participating is small.

But is it so small? And if it is, whose fault is it? It would be interesting if a national survey could be made to show how many Canadian youngsters play games. It would, we believe, show that practically every young Canadian, given normal health and physique and any chance whatever to do so, play some sort of game requiring bodily strength and adroitness and thoroughly enjoys it. Given a choice between "physical jerks" under a drill-master and even the most unscientific of football, baseball, hockey or other outdoor pastime, and the normal youngster would not hesitate very long. And it is reasonable to suppose that exercise he likes will do him more good than one to which he most probably will be either indifferent or mildly hostile.

We are at present engaged in a struggle to the death with a nation whose youth has been almost universally trained by physical exercises under the most rigidly imposed universal system. Before the war we were constantly shown photographs of acres of young German youths and maidens doing calisthenics with the lined-up accuracy of an Egyptian frieze and were told that this was the way young bodies should be trained. Yet the ultimate test of all physical fitness, war, has not shown the German soldier to be any better—if as well—fitted to endure the most extreme tests of pain and fatigue than those who built up their bodies, until they entered the armed forces, by much less formal methods.

It is unfortunately true that there are some—indeed, too many—Canadian children who do not participate in games, for the reason that their elders do not give them any place to play in. Neither, for that matter, do they provide facilities for the sort of physical training that the Ottawa speaker would substitute for games. These unfortunate children play their own kind of games among the wheels on the streets and in the dirty alleys of the cities.

The answer is not, we suggest, to be found in drills in which the Canadian youth of both sexes can be lined up and put through a course of simultaneous and identical bodily movements. Let our cities—above all let Montreal, where they are so badly needed—equip and hand over to their youngsters adequate playing fields, with intelligent instruction and supervision of games, and the Ottawa experts will find all the participants that the population will provide.

A Matter of Language

(By C. A. LEJEUNE in the LONDON OBSERVER)

A MR. GRADWELL SEARS, who has come over from America to seek an output of British films for his company, has been making some interesting comments on our disabilities as a partner.

"As soon as the language difficulty is settled, if ever, he is reported as saying, there is no reason why the two markets should not work together....The Americans make films that are understandable in both markets. The average American cannot, for the life of him, understand the average British picture.... So many British actors talk simply with the mouth. People in the Middle West have not the remotest idea of what they are saying. I saw one of your films just after my arrival here, and as to 50 per cent. of it I could not understand a single word".

Now it would be simple folly to take offence and pretend that the delivery in British films is beyond criticism. It is the business of an actor to make himself understood, and some of our British actors, and more particularly our British actresses, can barely make themselves understood in the wilds of northwest London. Anything that can be done to make our professional folk speak clearly, simply, and forthrightly would be welcome. But when Mr. Sears suggests that our "language"—by which he presumably means idiom as well as diction—should be adapted to the conversational exchanges of the Middle West I think he is going rather wide of his mark.

He says: "The Americans make films that are understandable in both markets", but he does not stop to consider why. It is not that the average American film voice is more musical, better modulated, or more clearly articulated than ours. It is not even that the lines they speak are better English, for many of them are not English at all in the standard sense. It is simply that we have grown accustomed to them by usage. The American voice and the American idiom have been relentlessly plugged—an American word—for more than a generation by films and wireless; or, to preserve a consistent phraseology, by movies and radio. Of course we understand them. In time a traveller on the Metropolitan Railway even learns to understand the ladies at Finchley road station who invite him through a loud-speaker to stend-cleah-pliz-an-cleozedoz.

I don't suppose Mr. Sears would claim that Hollywood considers the susceptibilities of, say, the Potteries, before making its films. And yet I am assured that Hollywood films are popular in Walsall. American films are primarily made for American audiences, using American speech and American symbols. They are as "foreign" to the people of this country as French films or Russian films. But because they are, on the whole, good entertainment, these completely foreign works are warmly welcomed in England; we have gladly learnt to understand them.

As I see it, Mr. Sears has unintentionally presented us with the complete case for nationalism. If the good Hollywood films have become international by remaining solidly American, why should not the good British films become international by remaining solidly British? The art of every country, and of every individual maker within that country, has its own set of symbols, its own mood and rhythm, into which expression falls most richly. This natural flow, born of the race and soil and the homely needs and delights of one's own country, is the thing that gives a work of art life, and so makes it generally desirable.

Does Mr. Sears really think that Noel Coward would have made a film that moves British audiences and won critical praise in America, if he had written and directed every line of "In Which We Serve" with a speculative eye on Oklahoma? Does he imagine Aristophanes paused in the middle of writing "The Frogs," smote his thigh, and pondered, "Brekekekex, coax, coax—by Herakles, will they get the onomatopaeia in Arcadia?"

No, let us take this timely hint from a visitor sensibly. Let us correct slipshod speech by all means, until it becomes clear and forceful English. And then let us use our national talents and resources to make the best possible national pictures. The mountain, as I remember, lost nothing by not going to Mahomet. Why should we go to the Middle West looking for a market? Mr. Sears, who has come all the way to England in war-time seeking British product, is himself a native of Hannibal, Missouri; a town which, as readers of Mark Twain's boyhood reminiscences know, is not so far from the Middle West.

Ode to a Tomato

Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never has raised his own tomatoes? If such there be, go mark him well. For him no summer raptures swell in lifting big, rich, red fruit from the vines. There is a fragrance from the vine itself which sharpens the appetite. There is an aroma to the tomato ripened on the vine and freshly picked that is never to be found in fruit which has travelled far and languished long in crates.

The taste, too, has something more. Surely there is no one who did not in childhood pluck tomatoes in the field and eat them as one eats apples. That long-forgotten pleasure returns when eating tomatoes raised in one's own garden.

The tomato is one of summer's brightest jewels—if grown in one's own garden.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
